Flower Market Reports

where in demand on St. Patrick's Day. Out door narcissi are coming in from Southern Illinois.

There were plenty of flowers to be had last week at practically the buyer's own price. This was particularly true of violets and sweet peas with which the market was badly overcrowded. The latter part of the week found conditions somewhat improved but not to the extent where it would do much good. White carnations sold well for St. Patrick's Day. Outdoor daffodils are to be had at low figures. The greenhouse stock continues good and is in fair demand. Most of the local growers are cut out of freesia and this flower is one of the few scarcities. There are more lilies now to be had than the market can possibly consume. Roses have been selling better.

Obituary

Mrs. James Blair.

Mrs. Blair, wife of James Blair, gardener for Mr. Ogden Mills, Staatsburg, N. Y., died on Monday, March 19.

Andrew B. Holmes.

Andrew B. Holmes, florist, of Brookings, S. D., passed away Feb. 28, at the age of 69 years. He is survived by five children.

H. L. Gowan.

H. L. Gowan, for many years a retail florist at 136 Chestnut street, Lynn, Mass., passed away March 10. He was very well known in the wholesale markets in Boston.

Chris. Butler.

Chris. Butler, brother of the late Henry Butler, florist, of New York, who was well known in the New York City trade, died on March 15 in Astoria, L. I. Mr. Butler formerly conducted greenhouses in Bayside.

Wm. T. M. Lehr.

Wm. T. M. Lehr, one of the oldest florists in Baltimore, died at the home of his daughter, 19 E. 21st street, March 7th. Mr. Lehr was born in Germany 92 years ago, and came to America in 1850. He worked on private estates for a great many years before entering the florist business for himself. He is survived by two sons and three daughters.

DAHLIA POINTERS.

Extract from a talk by E. L. Kunzman before the Kentucky Society of Florists.

Should you wish to reduce the height of growth pinch out one-half or about 6 in., when the plant has reached a height of 12 in. or so, and never have more than one or two sprouts from bulb. This pinching will reduce height of growth about one-third, but will retard blooming period 10 to 14 days.

To support the bushes use a strong stake, or several to each plant where you have a few plants; but if you grow a number, set a strong stake about every ten plants and run a single wire (No. 14 is strong enough) the length of the row, fasten it to the stakes at about a height of 20 in. from ground level, and fasten your plants to this wire where necessary with binder or other loose twine. Should you need it, run a second wire at about 40 in. from ground level. However, it will be found that one wire, even without tying, stiffens the bushes wonderfully.

Some practice disbudding, and while it might increase the size of bloom or length of stem somewhat, it is not a paying practice for the florist, as the Dahlia is really more artistic when cut with the buds. Blooms should be cut in the cool part of the day, morning or evening; should it be necessary to cut in the heat of day, immerse the stems immediately in two or three inches of hot water and let remain till the water is cool; place part away in cool water until used. Nearly all varieties will yield to this treatment.

The Dahlia requires good cultivation, sunshine, not too much water, and support to do its best.

IMPROVEMENTS

ESTABLISHMENT OF WM. ESPY & SONS, BROOKVILLE, PA.

Anyone will admit that the greenhouses of today are a big improvement over those of twenty years ago. We make improvements constantly, but never any until we have tested them thoroughly. Read what our customers say:

BROOKVILLE, PA., February 21, 1917.

John C. Moninger Co., New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen: We are pleased to inform you that we have found Moninger's houses to be satisfactory in every way. We have built five houses and not one stick of any but your material.

Further, you people are progressive enough to make the small improvements so essential to the florists, and while the first lot of material was excellent, every additional lot looks better.

Wishing you a very prosperous and successful future, we are

Yours very truly,

Service

Metropolitan Greenhouse Service

and — results

No matter what the initial cost of a greenhouse amounts to, it is in every instance a good investment, provided the revenue results are proportionate, and the cost of maintenance remains at a minimum. But no matter how little the initial cost, it is far too much for unsatisfactory returns, with constantly increasing upkeep and repair expenses.

Therefore, as the quality of materials used in the construction of all greenhouses is, after all, a matter of contract specifications, this organization bases its claim upon the high character of its labor and its constant endeavor to render a service which is at all times the utmost in efficiency, economy and results.

The reliability of this organization has been conclusively proven by the fact that it has not merely sustained, but heightened its prestige for so long a period.

EVERY LUTTON GREENHOUSE

Represents Three Problems Solved Right

(1) THE ARCHITECTURAL PROBLEM.

—The materials of which a greenhouse is constructed should be selected with a view to suitability and durability and the design should harmonize with the surroundings.

LUTTON Greenhouses embody the highest architectural standards. The LUTTON Rust-proof V-Bar Frame is unequalled for durability and appearance (it avoids the unsightly rust stains common to all ordinary greenhouses). Everlasting slate and tile benches are better and more economical in the long run. Glass does not touch metal thereby eliminating a common source of glass breakage.

(2) THE ENGINEERING PROBLEM.—

Temperature and ventilation should be under perfect control and means should be provided for draining away moisture which condenses inside on the glass and rain, snow or sleet outside.

LUTTON heating plants are economical and efficient; cast iron wall ventilators direct the cold air over the heating pipes, so as not to blow directly on the plants; the V-Bars have special provision for carrying away the moisture that condenses on the glass and the patented curved eave construction prevents ice and snow from accumulating at the eaves.

(3) THE HORTICULTURAL PROBLEM.

—This consists in giving the plants what they need in order to get RESULTS. Besides heat, moisture, air, food and the good care which the gardener gives to the plants, they need light—lots of light.

The wide spacing (24 inches) and compactness of the V-Bar supporting members and the absence of shadow-casting members at the eave line permit every available sunbeam to reach the plants. The advantages of these features are at once apparent by comparing the LUTTON Greenhouse (on the right in the view below with the house on the left.

Who can tell whether the three problems are solved right? Surely none are more competent to judge than the growers. Letters of endorsement from well known gardeners in various parts of the country are on file for your inspection. LUTTON construction always makes a strong appeal to owners as well, as is evidenced by the large number of prominent men who own LUTTON Greenhouses,—such as Mr. C. A. Coffin, Pres. General Electric Co.; Mr. E. M. Herr, Pres. Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co.; Mr. F. S. Wheeler, Pres. American Can Co.; Mr. Galen L. Stone of Boston. Mr. E. L. Ford of Detroit, etc.

We would like to tell you the rest of the story in person, or at any rate mail you full particulars and recent views

Note how scarcely noticeable the sag rod is, extending from the header purlin to the eave plate. No intermediate posts are needed.

SAG

How We Prevent Eave Sag In Our Reconstructed Constructed Houses

WITH the old spacing of 8 feet 4 inches between rafters, the Eave kept right up in line, true as a die.

But when it came to making that spacing 12 feet $1\frac{1}{4}$ inches and using 20-inch glass instead of 16, there was an extra strain thrown on the angle iron plate, which had to be taken care of, or there would be a sure enough centre sag.

Such a sag would look bad, cause loosening of the glass, and make the sash hit and stick.

Any one of these faults would be bad enough. To have all three would be beyond endurance.

Being the first to use such a wide rafter spacing, with 20-inch glass, we had many difficult complications to overcome.

All of them were solved before we sold a house.

It's not our way to induce the grower to be the goat and try our experiments out for us.

So to prevent that Eave sag, we put in a half size intermediate rafter running only from the header purlin to the ridge on both sides. Running from that purlin through each one, down to the plate, we ran a sag rod.

At each purlin it had a stop which fitted up snug against it, also preventing any possibility of their sagging. As a result, our Eaves and purlins remain straight as a string.

It overcomes entirely the necessity of using that heavy eave supporting centre post that in some constructions comes right in the centre of a light.

In comparing our construction carefully with others, you can plainly see in how many ways we accomplish the same thing in a neater, more common sensed sort of a way.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

"Get them at Dreer's"

Hardy Perennials

For many years one of our most important specialties, our stock this season is again in prime condition, more extensive than ever, with a complete assortment of both standard varieties and novelties.

Roses, Two Year Old Plants for Outdoor Planting

Our Roses are all field grown plants which were dug in the fall, and which during the winter months were potted into 5 and 6 inch pots. They are stored in cold houses and frames, being retarded as much as possible, and are just the sort of stock that will please your retail customers. We are particularly strong on Hybrid Teas but carry also nearly all other types.

Aquatic Plants

Eight acres of Ponds are devoted to Hardy Nymphaeas and Nelumbiums alone, a large assortment of Tropical Nymphaeas, Victoria Regia, etc., as well as sub-aquatic plants for marginal planting. If interested in these, send for our book "Dreer's Water Lilies." It is not only descriptive, but gives full cultural directions.

Hardy Shrubs and Vines

A choice assortment of standard varieties—Altheas (including our own splendid novelty William R. Smith) Azaleas, Callicarpa Purpurea, Hydrangea Aborenses Grandiflora, and Paniculata Grandiflora, Cotoneasters, Buddleias, Deutzias, Forsythias, Prunus, Philadelphus, Spiraeas, Viburnum, Weigelas, Ampelopsis, Akebia, Aristolochia, Clematis, Honeysuckles, Wisterias, etc.

Decorative Plants

Palms and Ferns, Aspidistra, Crotons, Dracaenas, Ficus, Pandanus, etc. Amaryllis, Tuberous-Rooted Begonias, Caladium Esculentum and a splendid assortment of Fancy-Leaved Caladiums, Golden Yellow and Spotted-Leaved Callas, Hyacinthus Candicans, Gladiolus, Lilies, Montbretias, Tigridias, Tuberoses, etc.

All of the above and many others are fully described in our current Wholesale List, January to June, which will be mailed upon request only to persons engaged commercially in Horticulture.

The Verdict of the Expositions on Swas-teeka Cannas

SWAS-TEEKA BRAND CANNAS walked away with the gold medals at both the San Francisco and the San Diego Fairs. That was the verdict.

A verdict which means that when you buy Swas-teeka Brand Cannas, as the best Cannas to buy, your opinion concurs with that of the judges at both Fairs, as to what the best Cannas to buy really are.

Milo M. Potter, President of the Potter Hotel Co., Santa Barbara, Cal., visited the San Diego Fair. He saw our Gold Medal Winner Cannas. This is what he wrote about them:

"While in San Diego I visited the San Diego Fair, and had the pleasure of seeing your Cannas. I not only looked once, but several times. I mean by that, I went away and then back again to look again. . . . Have visited thousands of beautiful gardens and parks; but I have never seen such Cannas as you have at the San Diego Fair."

These Gold Medal Winner Cannas are selling like hot cakes.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Ferns

From now on sow successive batches of spores, as it takes from 10 to 12 months from the time of sowing to get useful sized plants. All the soil used for sowing spores should be sterilized. Use pans and fill half full of good drainage. Then fill to within half an inch of the rim with a sifted mixture of soil, leaf mold, peat and sand in equal proportions. Give the pans a good watering and allow them sufficient time to drain, then sow the spores thinly over the surface and plunge up to the rim in a propagating frame with a temperature of at least 65 degrees at night and protect from the sun. Where it is intended to grow large specimens they should be kept moving as fast as possible now. Most of this class of ferns can be materially assisted by the careful use of liquid manure, but the pots should be well filled with roots before applying any stimulants. All kinds of ferns will need some shade from this out, so they will retain their color.

Gloxinias

Tubers that have been kept back but are now starting up naturally should be potted, using a mixture of two parts leaf mold and one part fibrous loam and some sand. Plants that are coming into bloom should have a temperature of 60 degrees at night with a rise of 10 degrees during the day, but when the flowers are well opened they can be kept 10 degrees cooler. This will make the foliage firmer and the flowers will have greater durability. They should be given a light shade and so situated that they will get a requisite amount of air without draughts. The seedlings started early in the year will now be of good size for 3-inch pots. These young plants will flower by the late summer. Treat them throughout the season with shade but give plenty of light and moisture. Be very careful not to wet the foliage any more than is absolutely necessary as they get scorched.

Hardy Roses

The weather this year will prevent very early planting but we should get them in as early as possible. Hybrid Perpetuals should be replanted or replaced with young two-year-old stock every eight or ten years. It is better to plant a new bed every five or six years as hybrids give very poor results the first season after being planted. Then you can have the old beds to cut from. Trench the ground thoroughly, working in a liberal application of barnyard manure. I think it is wise to give them plenty of room between the rows—say three feet or more and from 15 to 18 inches in the rows. This enables you to work through them during the summer and gives room for winter protection. Now is the time to prune roses. Frequent hoeing among the plants to keep the surface loose is especially beneficial in and during dry spells. On old beds give additional stimulant such as fertilizer, pure bone meal or liquid manure. This should be applied about the end of April and on through May.

Lily of the Valley in Cold Storage

Pips not used up to this time, or only temporarily stored in frames for the winter must go into cold storage proper. Repacking for cold storage is not absolutely necessary in the case of valley wintered over until now in cold frames but to be on the safe side with that which is to be held back until late in the season, the bundles if in any way dry, should be dipped up to the crowns in water, and then be stood upright and close together in boxes, and instead of sand or soil, dampened moss should be used in repacking. After the middle of March frames cease to be a safe place for lily of the valley. The stock to be forced soon will be all right in from 26 to 28 degrees, while that to be held longer keeps best in from 23 to 25 degrees. Of more importance than degree is steadiness and while the temperature should never be more than 28 degrees or lower than 23 degrees, the mark most easily maintained between these two extreme points should be held to right along with unwavering regularity so the pips will retain their strength.

Plants for Vases, Etc.

The florist who does a retail plant business adjacent to town or near some leading cemetery, will have many vases to fill. Many growers have only a vague idea as to the amount of stock required. Now is a good time to sum up. If plants are required for a shady situation the following selection is good: Fuchsias, begonias, Cyperus alternifolius, Ficus elastica, aspidistras, Farfugium grande, selaginellas and ferns. For centers use Phoenix rupicola, Latania borbonica, Areca lutescens and cordylines. For trailers use German ivy, tradescantias, Kenilworth ivy, and Asparagus Sprengeri. Where they will be exposed to the sun the following are very satisfactory: Geraniums, coleus, ageratum, acalypha, petunias, and dwarf nasturtiums. For the center Dracaena indivisa, Chamaerops humilis or any of the Phoenix family. For trailers, Vinca major variegata, Solanum jasminoides, Abutilon vexillarium, nasturtiums, verbenas, German ivy, ivy-leaved geraniums and many others. As you get room give all these plants a good place so they will grow.

Reminders

There is yet ample time to root an abundance of coleus, alternanthera, achyranthes and similar foliage plants. The early batches will now give plenty of nice tops.

Do not be in too great a rush to remove winter protection from hardy plants. Better take away a little of the coarser material only. We may yet have some really cold, biting winds.

A sowing of Cobaea scandens, Ipomoea grandiflora alba or moonflower, Kudzu vine, maurandia and Kenilworth ivy or Linaria cymbalaria, should now be made. The two last named are useful for hanging baskets and vases.

Next Week:—Care of Gardenias; Nephrolepis; Odontoglossums; Poinsettias; Ramblers for Easter, 1918; Reminders.

Butt of a million newspaper jokes, pitied and scoffed at by turns for these many years by his supercilious city dwelling friend, here comes the "commuter" as the man to be envied now. Doff your hats to him, all, as he proudly struts up the street to the railroad station with his new garden tools and bundle of seeds. He's got you on the run for once, together with the H. C. L. The suburbanite is king.

lines

We undoubtedly have plenty to complain about and to endure under protest, but just consider what our brethren in Great Britain are "up against" in the recent Government Orders and Regulations, which prohibit the distribution of business catalogues either by hand or post except to such individuals as may actually make a direct request for a copy. Another bit of evidence that General Sherman knew what he was talking about when he gave his famous definition of war.

The great flower show drive of March, 1917, has been safely carried through and all hands have come out without even a scratch. For all of this we should feel duly thankful and rejoice. The result in St. Louis is especially significant and gratifying for it seems to remove all question as to the success of the National Flower Show in that city next year, assuring one more in the unbroken line of triumphs since the National Flower Shows were inaugurated.

The
advertise

A few days more and the great Easter hustle will be on for everyone in any way connected with the flower business. There will be trade enough for all—as much as can be handled to advantage and profit, probably. But what about the days to follow? We often think, and have even dared to print it, that the money some florists put into Easter advertising could be spent to better purpose in the period directly following Easter. Who will have the courage to try it?

About pictures

We have on hand a number of other handsome photographs taken in the large flower shows which we shall publish in later issues of HORTICULTURE. Restrictions as to the use of flash lights, outrageous prices by "official" photographers and other conditions beyond control, often interfere with the securing of pictures that adequately show up the strongest and most attractive features of these big exhibitions. At best, the engravings can convey but an indifferent impression of the objects in a scene where color is the main feature. Until the art of color photography has advanced far beyond its present possibilities the only way to know what a flower show looks like is to go and see it.

The course of events shows plainly that the present executive board of the Society of American Florists, like its immediate predecessor, has a large measure of revolutionary daring in its make-up and very little regard for traditions. The time-honored August convention custom is due to suffer a blow next year which may be its finish. The shifting of the office of secretary from an elective to an appointive position will, we presume, have to run the gauntlet yet of the Convention at New York next August but the all-pervading propensity for turning things topsy-turvy which seems to be the ruling passion over all the earth in these ruthless times has probably not yet got through with the S. A. F., so watch out for periscopes from now on.

After Adjournment

In our last issue the line "St. Louis Show Notes" became "St. Louis Shoe Notes" after it left our control. We only wish we knew how to "make the punishment fit the crime" but that is one of the places where editors and publishers are helpless.

A New Jersey horticulturist, after long experiments in hybridization, has produced a purple carnation and offers cuttings for $100 each. Some day will science produce a purple cow?—Boston Globe.

That's nothing, New Jersey already has Charlie Totty and Woodrow Wilson, not to mention orchids and hens on which she is invulnerable, and we came near forgetting Barnegat.

We shall be greatly interested in the outcome of that proposed new retail florists' organization in Toronto. If they succeeded in finding a way to confine the public sale of flowers to the "exclusive retail stores" and educate the public so as to get the "cut-rate dealers'" goat, then the millennium must be near at hand.

Estimating that the expenditure for flowers at Jewish funerals in New York amounts to $163,500 a year, men prominent in Jewish charities recommend that the practice be modified or abandoned and the money spent "to assist the living." But what of the florists who would lose the business? Who'd assist them?

—Worcester (Mass.) Post.

Right you are. The florist evidently has a sane friend in the Worcester Post. If some people had their way the human being would be simply mouth and stomach like some of the strange things we sometimes pull up out of the sea when we go fishing.

Just as modestly as the first violet, and without the least notice, the spring show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society is upon the city. It opened in Horticultural Hall, Broad street, below Locust, and will have its last day for the public today. All the spring flowers from the hothouses are represented, and all the usual Main Line greenhouses are represented with the standby friends from all about Philadelphia.

—Phila. Record, Mar. 27.

The shows of the Penn. Horticultural Society are always noteworthy, but the day has gone by when this alone will awaken needed public interest in a flower show. This venerable organization will have to follow suit and adopt modern ways if its wants to stay on the map.

EXCLUSION OF CURRANT AND GOOSEBERRY PLANT IMPORTATION.

The secretary of agriculture deems it necessary, in order to effectively prevent the introduction into the United States of the white pine blister rust (Peridermium strobi Kleb.), to extend the provisions of notice of Quarantine No. 7, issued May 21, 1913, to forbid the importation of all currant and gooseberry plants from Europe and Asia.

In compliance with Section 7 of the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, (37 Stat. 315), a public hearing will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., Room 410 Bieber Building, at ten o'clock A. M., on April 10, 1917, in order that all persons interested in the importation of currant and gooseberry plants from Europe and Asia may be heard either in person or by attorney.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS

Meeting of Executive Board

The mid-Lent meeting of the executive board of this Society was held at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, on Friday and Saturday, March 16 and 17. The following officers and directors were present:

R. C. Kerr, Houston, Texas, president; A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., vice-president; John Young, New York, secretary; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., treasurer; Wm. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; Wm. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.; William F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Charles L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.; Frank X. Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.; George W. Hess, Washington, D. C.; George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; George E. M. Stumpp, New York; A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco, Cal.; Paul R. Klingsporn, Chicago, Ill.

Ex-President Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass., was present on the invitation of President Kerr. William H. Amling, director through his office as president of the Chicago Florists' Club, through illness, was unable to be present and the Club's credentials delegating Paul R. Klingsporn as a substitute director were, on motion, accepted. Credentials from the various affiliated bodies covering the directors appointed by them were presented and, on motion, accepted, and the directors duly seated. President Kerr announced that he had exercised the privilege of inviting the members of the National Flower Show Committee to sit at the meetings of the Board.

Secretary Young reported that O. J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn., had agreed to act as chairman of the committee on "Mother's Day." He also read a letter from E. J. Fancourt, a member of the committee, reporting an interview recently had with Miss Jarvis in Philadelphia, and she had arranged to consider the matter of the best assistance the committee could render to advance the Mother's Day movement. Mr. Fancourt expressed the opinion that if a proper campaign was started, at least $5,000 could be raised for the work, and suggested that the Society might be willing to advance the sum of $1,000 to start such a campaign. Some discussion ensued, which very generally endorsed the idea of supporting Miss Jarvis in her work, and finally the Board directed that an advance of $1,000 be made to the committee, or as much thereof as might be necessary.

The project of the establishment of a National Credit and Collection Bureau was discussed at some length and, in order that the committee in charge of the project might have something definite upon which to work, the president was directed to appoint a committee of three to draft suggestions in the matter, to be endorsed by the Board, if found acceptable. President Kerr appointed the following as such committee: S. S. Pennock, W. J. Keimel and G. E. M. Stumpp, with the latter as chairman. There was no report from the Committee on Development of American Products. The Committee on School Gardens reported progress.

The report of the committee on Tariff and Legislation was presented by James McHutchison of the committee, who was introduced by Mr. Gude, the chairman, in an address in which he appealed for prompt action by the Board on the recommendations embodied in the report. (This report appears elsewhere in this paper.)

The following resolutions were then offered by Mr. Gude:

WHEREAS, It has come to our notice that an effort is to be made to introduce legislation into Congress, seeking to prohibit at some future time the importation of plants, bulbs, plant products and nursery stock of all kinds from every source; and

WHEREAS, The Executive Committee of the Society of American Florists' and Ornamental Horticulturists consider such measures not only unnecessary but injurious to the welfare of its members and of the whole horticultural trade of the United States; therefore

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the S. A. F. & O. H. be empowered, and he is hereby empowered, to oppose the proposed legislation, to act according to his judgment in the interests of our organization at the forthcoming conference, to get what assistance he can from any of its members, and to share with the Nurserymen's Legislative Committee the expense of employing a trained man to help protect our joint interests.

The foregoing resolutions were, after a hard discussion, adopted without change.

Secretary Young presented correspondence regarding movements in Ohio and Maine requiring the licensing of firemen employed in greenhouse establishments. Mr. Gude criticised such requirements as absolutely nonsensical and believed they should be opposed by the Society. Maine was following the precedent set by Ohio, and a bill was before a committee of its legislature seeking the licensing of firemen in charge of low pressure heating plants. He offered the following resolution, which was passed:

RESOLVED, That the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists absolutely oppose the legislation proposed in the State of Maine compelling the employment of a licensed fireman for the firing of greenhouse boilers carrying less than ten pounds pressure, as being injurious to the welfare of the horticultural trade; and that this Society deprecates the laws already passed in Ohio or other states, as highly detrimental to the horticultural interests affected by them.

Mr. Gude also offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, Several of the States of the United States have enacted statutes relative to the inspection of stock, which renders it practically impossible to send commercial shipments into such states; it is therefore

RESOLVED, That the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists through its Tariff and Legislative Committee use its power and influence to secure the enactment of uniform inspection laws throughout the United States.

This resolution was also carried.

The report of the committee on Trade Directory which, at the Houston

Convention, was referred to the Executive Board for action, was taken up for discussion, and the Board decided that the matter should be deferred until after some system had been established by the proposed Bureau of National Credits and Collections.

Secretary Young presented his financial report for the year 1916. The report showed that $7,794.63 had been received during the year, and the accompanying report of the auditors showed that this money had all been properly accounted for. It was seen that 293 new annual members had been secured and 41 life members. A financial statement for 1917, to March 10th, showed receipts of $2,714.75; the addition of 59 new annual members and 32 life members. The secretary also presented the report of the auditors on the National Flower Show accounts, covering receipts, as shown by the secretary's books, amounting to $62,301. The secretary stated that the Society had more members in good standing than it ever had, as could be seen by the records, which spoke very well for the conventions held in the west and south.

The secretary then made a report on the arrangements made for the convention to be held in New York next August. The main hall of the Grand Central Palace had been secured for the trade exhibition, at the low rental of $500, and the meeting hall for $100; a total of $600. As a comparison, he instanced the cost of similar accommodation at Minneapolis, which was $1,200. Orders for space in the trade exhibition already booked approximated $3,000, but the floor plans showed available space to the amount of $8,000, all of which space he believed would be disposed of. The floor plans had been sent out, and copies could be sent to anyone interested.

Through the kind offices of the New York Botanical Society, the Convention Garden had been laid out in the Botanical Garden, Bronx Park. Blueprints of the planting space had been prepared, and would be distributed within a few days. Already about twenty applications for planting space had been received. The members of the Board, later, inspected the Convention quarters.

A petition from the St. Louis Florists' Club asking that the Executive Board change the Convention date for 1918 to the period in spring when the National Flower Show would be held, was considered, and the change, by motion, approved, in accordance with power conferred under the amended by-laws. Mr. Gude stated that he had obtained the opinion of counsel in Washington on the legality of this procedure, and it was confirmed.

It was decided to recommend to the incoming president the reappointment of the entomologist for the next ensuing year, in order that he may complete the special work enumerated in his report to the Houston Convention. Dr. Britton, on whom the superintendence of the Convention Garden devolved, was authorized to draw upon the Society for money required for the prosecution of the work on the garden, as needed, to the extent of $1,000; the same to be deducted from the income from space.

A letter from Theodore Wirth, chairman of the Convention Garden Committee, asking that, in the event of National Flower Show dates being adopted for the St. Louis Convention, he be authorized to arrange, if possible, for an "inside" garden, was discussed and the required authority ordered to be granted. After votes of thanks to the Secretary, Botanist, Pathologist, and Entomologist, adjournment was taken for the luncheon tendered by the New York Florists' Club.

The Board reconvened at 2 P. M. Appreciating the greatly increased duties of the Secretary in connection with the work of the Society, the Board ordered an increase in his salary amounting to $500. On the question of a stipend to be paid the chairman of the National Flower Show Committee for his services in connection with the Fourth National Flower Show, Philadelphia, referred to the Board at the Houston Convention, it was directed that the same be $1,000. It was also resolved that such officer hereafter be granted ten per cent of the net proceeds of a National Flower Show, and that members of the Committee be allowed $5.00 per day as subsistence from the time they leave home until they return, when on National Flower Show business.

Thomas Roland, of the National Flower Show Committee, was in attendance at the Saturday morning session. Treasurer J. J. Hess presented his report covering the period July 15th to December 31st, 1916; also the auditor's certification of audit. The Board authorized the treasurer to invest as much of the general and permanent funds, and all other funds he could consistently spare at this time in gilt-edge first mortgages on real estate; such investments to be made with the approval of the president and the secretary. The bond of the treasurer was increased to $30,000, and that of the secretary to $10,000.

The appropriations of last year were continued, excepting that the appropriation for the stenographic report of the convention was left in the hands of the secretary.

A prolonged discussion took place as to the advisability of so amending the by-laws that the secretary be elected by the Executive Board instead of by the convention as at present. Pros and cons were very carefully considered, and there appeared to be much unanimity of opinion. Finally, the following resolution was passed by a unanimous vote:

WHEREAS, This Executive Board is held responsible for the government of the affairs of the Society; and

WHEREAS, The Constitution and By-Laws have been amended that all Directors be elected to office by the members at-large instead of appointment by the President; therefore

BE IT RESOLVED, That Section 2 of the Constitution and By-Laws be amended so that the Secretary be elected by the Executive Board for a term of one year at the mid-lent meeting of the Board.

The term "mileage" employed in the Constitution and By-Laws was discussed and it was decided that the definition of "mileage" should be the nearest distance between the place where a director lived and where a meeting was to be held; and that the compensation or rate be seven cents per mile one way. The convention programme is left in the hands of the vice-president and secretary. An appropriation of $1,000 was made to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery for publicity purposes.

The balance of the morning session was devoted to a discussion of the working conditions of the National Flower Show Committee, the individual efforts of its members, the absence of a proper appreciation of the time expended on the project by them, and the sacrifices of personal interests incurred during the progress of such work.

At the afternoon session Patrick Welch was appointed chairman of the standing committee on National Credits and Collections.

The board, at the request of Chairman Asmus, of the National Flower Show Committee, authorized payment of mileage of representatives of the Rose and Carnation Societies when called to meetings of the committee. The committee on final resolutions, George W. Hess, chairman, William R. Nicholson and Daniel MacRorie, then presented the following resolution, which was adopted by a rising and unanimous vote:

WHEREAS, At the mid-lent session of the Executive Board of the S. A. F. & O. H., the visiting members and others in attendance have enjoyed the greatest courtesy and hospitality at the hands of the New York Florists' Club; therefore

BE IT RESOLVED, That we tender to our hosts our most heartfelt thanks for all the attention paid to us. We also thank the management of the International Flower Show for courtesies extended. We further desire to heartily thank Vice-President Miller for his kind invitation to visit the Long Island florists on Sunday.

After further discussion of a few matters informally, the Board adjourned sine die.

The members of the board in the evening were again the guests of the New York Florists' Club, at the Club's banquet at the Hotel Biltmore.

JOHN YOUNG, Secy.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA.

The monthly meeting of the Horticultural Society was held Tuesday evening, March 20th. There was quite a display of Easter plants. Neil Forsyth received a cultural certificate for finely grown Formosum lilies. Mr. Labossii received a cultural certificate for lilies and Mr. Tyler was awarded a certificate of culture for carnations Belle Washburn.

The members of this society have decided to open the April meeting to the public. All members present at the March meeting have promised to come ready to answer any practical question that may be asked and we hope all members who read this will also come prepared to do the same.

Members who attended the New York and Philadelphia shows gave us some very graphic accounts of the various exhibits and also told us we would have to put our best work to growing the material for the Pittsburgh June Show if we wish to keep the prizes in this city.

ERNEST R. BOLTON, Secy.

At the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, of Boston, on April 17, there will be an illustrated lecture on Artificial Irrigation by George N. Barrie.

BOSTON SPRING SHOW

VIEW OF THE "FINNISH GARDEN," BY R. & J. FARQUHAR & Co.

This beautiful exhibition, of which we gave a general account last week, seems to have the unanimous approval of everybody as the finest show ever staged by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Universal satisfaction with such an affair is an unusual thing but it has for once been attained, judging from the opinions of visitors, exhibitors and newspapers. This of course, does not include prize awards. In the nature of things these can never please all and the finer the show the more to be expected are the award kicks.

Chester I. Campbell was the business manager of the affair and it is asserted that this astute publicity manipulator got the lion's share of the credit. But even so the lesson was worth all it cost to the Society as showing how the public will respond when the right chord is touched. Never before has the capacity of Horticultural Hall been so taxed by a flower show multitude.

But the show itself was exceptional in its quality and arrangement. James Wheeler was responsible for the latter and displayed Napoleonic ability in the way he handled the overwhelming mass of material which came in at the last moment. Gradually, too, the exhibitors of large groups are coming to show greater skill and intelligence in the placing of their plants and the arrangement of colors.

Once more the commercial element predominated in the extent and quality of exhibits, reversing the situation existing a few years ago when the spring show was made almost exclusively by the large private estates. The latter were, however, creditably represented and by none better than by E. B. Dane, whose orchid display was a galaxy of rare gems, and A. W. Preston and Weld Gardens, both of whose spring bulb displays were very extensive.

An innovation much appreciated by the public was the appointment of a staff of expert gardeners by President Saltonstall to circulate about the hall and give information to visitors concerning plants and flowers exhibited and their culture.

Julius Roehrs Company, Rutherford, New Jersey, sent their big shipment of orchids by auto truck, fearing that it might get tied up on the railroad.

The arrangement of the Edgar plant group was generally commented upon as a great advance over the stereotyped solid bank of plants. Next year we shall see more of it.

'HAMBURG LATE WHITE' CHRYSANTHEMUM

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT AWARDED BY CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

Above picture was taken Nov. 26, 1916, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late White" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

Rooted Cuttings, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

2 inch pots, $15.00 per 100; $125.00 per 1000

WILLIAM F. KASTING CO.,

568-570 Washington Street
BUFFALO, N. Y.

"Hamburg Late White" is pure white under all weather conditions and is a sport of Maud Dean white, but has no trace of pink, as the original.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late White" has been grown for the last four years and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late white, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November, by taking an early bud; but by selecting later buds, most of the flowers are cut during December and we would advise to select a late bud, as the later buds come somewhat fuller, and by selecting late buds, flowers can be had as late as the middle of January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a light, graceful white flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late White" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late White" will be disseminated in the Spring of 1917. Plants will be ready for April delivery, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

OILING THE MACHINERY.

The members of the working committees, judges and press representatives of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were entertained by President R. M. Saltonstall at luncheon at the Hotel Somerset on Friday, March 23. There was a very earnest interchange of views as to what course should be pursued to increase the public value of the exhibitions and maintain for the society that prestige which it has hitherto held as an active force in the advancement of Horticulture in America. President Saltonstall emphasized strongly the necessity for all interests to pull together and the splendid results that can be accomplished by thorough organization and business methods. The remarks that followed, by James Wheeler, manager of the spring exhibition; Ex-President J. K. M. L. Farquhar; Chester I. Campbell, publicity promoter; President James Methven, of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club; C. S. Strout, vice-president of the American Carnation Society; Henry Penn, of the local retail florists' organization and W. N. Craig, secretary of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, were all enthusiastic and ringing with assurance of a great concerted movement, the purposes of which is to pull all together and hustle for Boston's flower show supremacy. The outdoor show to take place next June, the Ter-centennial of the Landing of the Pilgrims now near at hand and the Centennial of the organization of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society soon to follow were mentioned as occasions for which preparedness is now in order. The atmosphere of the meeting was decidedly stimulating and the sentiments expressed were full of vim. Boston proposes to hold her place on the horticultural map.

PHILADELPHIA ROSE FESTIVAL.

The Robert Craig Co. made a good showing of their new fern, Nephrolepis "Norwood."

Wm. K. Harris had an excellent display of Easter plants in variety covering some 200 square feet.

Wm. Kleinheinz added a touch of variety to the exhibition with his collection of specimen acacias, cricas, and other ornamental flowering plants.

By special request the rose show was kept open on Saturday, making five days instead of the four planned originally. All the exhibits were kept freshened up every day so that a creditable display greeted visitors to the last.

At the windup when the exhibits were being removed some skunk florist stole three plants of Dreer's wonderful new hybrid tea "Golden Emblem," one of the features of the show.

MADISON, N. J.

If any one can put the society on the track of the villain he will be doing a commendable act. Address in strict confidence, Samuel S. Pennock, President, 1614 Ludlow St. It is not the money value. Such skulduggery throws mud on all of us. So it's up to all of us to help remove the stigma by finding the malefactor.

One day later: Through clever sleuth work on the part of E. J. Fancourt, the three plants of Golden Emblem have been recovered—and returned to Messrs. Dreer. So the incident that looked like a blot on our trade escutcheon is now happily closed. We mention no names; but are glad to say that they were not in the trade.

A well deserved compliment was paid to the floor manager of the show, William Kleinheinz, by the presentation on Saturday night of a pair of gold sleeve links in recognition of his splendid service. For first-class efficiency gratuitously contributed, the rose show owed a debt to Mr. Kleinheinz that money could not buy and all that could be done was to show appreciation in public approval.

The Rose Festival did not figure out a financial profit; on the contrary there will be a moderate deficit. But there was no space available for trade displays and consequently this source of revenue was not possible. Had it been so, the undertaking would unquestionably have been a money making proposition. The total attendance was over 28,000. In addition to the officers listed as elected, in our issue of last week, members of the executive committee were chosen as follows: George C. Thomas, of Philadelphia; Aaron Ward, of Roslyn, N. Y.; Jesse A. Curry, of Portland, Ore.; W. J. Keimel, of Chicago, and John H. Dunlop, of Richmond Hill, Ontario, Canada.

THE NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club, Monday, April 9, will be Sweet Pea Night and the exhibition committee is desirous of making a good display, and ask growers of sweet peas to kindly send an exhibit. The committee would also like an exhibit from growers that are not sweet pea specialists to send along any other novelty in the flower line that they may specialize in; that would be of interest to the club. All exhibits shipped by express should be addressed to John Young, No. 53 West 28th street, New York, and must reach him not later than 6 P. M. on Monday, April 9.

The exhibition committee will be on hand to arrange all exhibits and see that they are properly staged.

C. W. KNIGHT, Chairman.

ASSOCIATION OF KEW GARDENERS IN AMERICA.

The above association held its second annual banquet and reunion on March 16 at Shanley's, New York, when members, their wives or lady friends and horticultural friends spent a very enjoyable evening. The evening was divided into three sections, business, banquet and entertainment. During the business meeting there were some important plans laid before the members regarding the organization of the association on a permanent basis, which met with the approval of all present. These plans will be submitted to all members in the different States of the Union and Canada. The same officers were re-elected: President, Montague Free; vice-president, James McPherson; secretary and treasurer, S. R. Candler.

There were nearly thirty who sat down to a very enjoyable dinner which was served in a very nice way by the famous house of Shanley's.

Before the dinner a very interesting time was spent when most of the members helped to make the time enjoyable. The members and friends who assisted were J. Jennings, C. W. Lider, Mr. and Mrs. Montague Free, F. Cane, H. E. Downer, Harrison Dick, Mrs. Candler, Robert Barton, Robert Cameron and Edward Canning. The meeting broke up at a late hour when all joined in and sang Auld Lang Syne, all eager for the next reunion to come around.

S. R. CANDLER, Sec.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Aristocrats of the Garden, by Ernest H. Wilson, Arnold Arboretum, Boston. Author of "A Naturalist in Western China." Published by Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y. Edition limited to 1200 copies. This book is largely a reprint from the notable contributions by Mr. Wilson to the columns of The Garden Magazine. These articles have awakened widespread enthusiasm of the most progressive kind and their appearance in book form marks a mile post, so to speak, in the advancement of American horticulture.

It is sterling from start to finish. Mr. Wilson's narrative style is very captivating and we have taken a keen delight in reading its pages. The type used is large and altogether it is a book that will prove a real treat to the lover of the hardy garden.

The chapters are as follows: The Story of the Modern Rose, "Consider the Lilies," Midsummer Flowering Trees and Shrubs, The Best of the Hardy Climbing Shrubs, Ornamental Fruited Trees and Shrubs, The Glory of the Autumn, The Best Hardy Conifers, Broad-Leaved Evergreens for Northern Gardens, New Chinese Trees and Shrubs, Early Spring-Flowering Trees and Shrubs, Japanese Cherries and Asiatic Crabapples, In "Lilacdom," New Herbaceous Plants from China, "Hardy" Rhododendrons, The Story of the Davidia, Epilogue. The full page illustrations: The Mountain Laurel, The Sargent Rose, Liliun Sargentiae, Gordonia altamaha, Clematis montana var. rubens, The Snowberry, The Silver Birch, The Concolor Fir, Yucca flaccida, Evonymus radicans var. vegetus, Chinese Pistach Tree, Magnolia Soulangiana, The Crabapple, Lilacs, Senecio clivorum, Primula pulverulenta, Rhododendron caucasicum, Davidia involucrata.

There are 312 pages and the enormous amount of plant mention they contain is shown in the index, which fills over 22 columns of fine type.

The Monthly Bulletin of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station for March 1917, published at Wooster, Ohio, contains a very useful and commendable article on Ornamental Windbreaks, by W. E. Bontrager, showing how evergreens may be grouped with small trees and flowering shrubs to produce cheerful and attractive results as compared with straight-row windbreaks.

PERSONAL.

C. W. Ward of Eureka, Cal., has been ill in bed for the past six weeks and is recovering now, but slowly.

W. G. Woodger, recently at "The Gardens," Pocantico Hills, N. Y., has accepted the position of superintendent on the Booth estate, Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y.

The Elm City Nursery Company, Woodmont Nurseries, Inc., of New Haven, Conn., inform us that they will now be able to proceed with the development of their extensive new nurseries at Woodmont, Conn., as the New Haven Railroad's plans which would have taken all their nursery properties, have been so changed as to make this possible.

ANOTHER INDIANA TORNADO.

Another tornado swept over Indiana on Saturday, March 24th, ten days after the one that played such havoc at New Castle, Ind., and wrecked the Benthley greenhouses. The loss in this second storm was even greater than that of the first and the Rasmussen range of 175,000 sq. ft. of glass, at New Albany, was almost totally destroyed, the carnation range escaping.

Pawtucket, R. I.—Mayor Easterbrooks designated Saturday, April 21, as planting day in Pawtucket, in a communication issued March 20.

A VISIT TO WAVERLEY, MASS.

The annual visit of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, of Boston, to the W. W. Edgar Co., greenhouses at Waverley took place on Saturday, March 24. There was a goodly number of members present, also Fred Lautenschlager, of Chicago, and Robert Kift, of Philadelphia. The inspection of the greenhouses disclosed the usual high-class Easter stock for which this establishment has long been noted, the pot roses and the lilies being especially admired by the visitors. Lilacs, Darwin tulips and new astilbes are also extensively grown here for the Easter trade this year. A nice lunch was enjoyed after which President Methven briefly expressed the thanks of the visitors for the hospitality extended and Mrs. Edgar responded. Other speakers followed, including Herman Bartsch, James Wheeler, W. N. Craig, A. K. Rogers, W. J. Kennedy, Wm. J. Stewart, Robert Kift, Robert Cameron, Fred Lautenschlager, Peter Fisher and J. F. Briery. A plan of the proposed new buildings and other contemplated improvements was shown and was pleasurably commented upon as evidence of the continued prosperity of this popular establishment.

NEWS ITEMS

BOSTON.

Ed. Welch of Welch's wholesale florists, is sick at home with the grippe.

N. F. McCarthy & Co., are seriously disappointed in their spring plant auction business by the holding-up in Holland of large shipments of nursery stock which should now be on its way to this country.

A triple flag raising in which Boy Scouts of many nationalities took part attracted much attention in Winthrop square last Saturday. The flags were raised from the two entrances of the Boston Flower Exchange at 1 Winthrop square and 32 Otis street and from the Co-operative Flower Exchange at 260 Devonshire street. Saint Vincent's Boys Band played patriotic music.

John Duguid, supt. for H. S. Hunnewell, at Wellesley, Mass., who was one of the delegates sent by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, to the Davey Tree Surgery Convention has written a very interesting account of his trip for the Natick Tribune. Of the Davey organization he says:

"The Davey organization is the most complete system that could be devised and only the years of practical work has brought it to the high efficiency it has attained. With its schools, professors, students, foremen, library and office force makes it the most interesting place of its kind I ever expect to see. I was surprised to see so many fine young men so deeply interested in the work. It seemed they were each a part of the organization. The young man who is lucky enough to enter and study under such a system learns that which eventually will bring the country back to where it belongs.

"I believe more publicity should be given Arbor Day in the public schools and outside and laws ought to be enacted that for every tree cut down one should be planted."

PHILADELPHIA.

Commodore Westcott made his first spring visit to his farms in Waretown on the 29th inst. Grass seed, early peas, onion sets, plows, harrows and so forth will be the text for a while and the natives will brace up from their winter sleep and roll up their sleeves.

The Pennock-Meehan Co. have opened an annex for their Easter plant trade in the big new store, 1638-40 Market street. Mr. Liggitt, the manager, reports that for quantity, quality and variety they have never been so well equipped for serving the retailers. Give them "the once over."

Because of the habit of flower vendors thrusting bouquets in the faces of passersby in an effort to make sales, the police have forbidden them to peddle their wares on Chestnut, Market and Walnut streets from Tenth to Sixteenth. Many women shoppers have complained of being annoyed by the vendors, it was said.

The Wholesale Florists' Exchange calls our attention to the fact that one of their growers took eight firsts and one second out of ten entries at the recent National Rose Festival. Another had two entries in the double white Killarney class and took both first and second on these, which is a straw which shows how the wind blows for buyers looking for high quality in roses in this market.

CHICAGO.

M. B. Hirsch, 346 E. 51st street, has sold out to Mrs. King, who takes possession at once.

Arnold Ringier is no longer with the W. W. Barnard Co., 231 W. Madison street. The relationship was severed March 23rd. Mr. and Mrs. Ringier lately returned from a trip to California.

Robt. Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., has returned from St. Louis where he made an exhibit of novelties handled by his firm, and says the flower show was a great success. He

During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Graham in the East where they went to see old friends and visit the flower shows, burglars made an attempt to enter their apartment but were evidently frightened away before they could secure anything.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has returned from the East bringing fine reports of the great eastern flower shows. Speaking of his trip through the wholesale markets, he says he cannot see that the stock offered for sale is in any way superior to that of Chicago.

PITTSBURGH

Frank P. Smoller, who saw three months of National Guard service and a month in the hospital last fall on the Mexican border, is preparing for active work again at the call for his regiment.

Miss Gertrude Renziehausen, a designer for the Ludwig Floral Co., had a serious accident last Saturday evening, when she was struck by an automobile just as she alighted from a trolley car en route home from work.

Walter A. Faulk has the sympathy of his friends and acquaintances in the death of his mother, Mrs. Elizaeth B. Faulk, which occurred on Monday of last week at the home of a daughter in Marienville, Pa., whom she was visiting.

Under the auspices of the Audubon Society of Western Penn. there was an interesting exhibition last Tuesday at the Fort Pitt Hotel. In connection with the exhibition was the second annual dinner of the society together with the Audubon Society of Sewickley.

Cincinnati—Mr. and Mrs. Gus Adrian, Jr., recently purchased a home on Wood avenue in Clifton. The house immediately adjoins the Adrian greenhouses.

Obituary

John G. Barker

John G. Barker, superintendent of Riverview Cemetery, South Bend, Ind., died on February 7 after a brief illness at the age of 73 years. Mr. Barker was a native of Huntingfield, Suffolk County, England. At the age of 14 he came to this country with his parents and assisted his father, who became superintendent of Forest Hill Cemetery, Utica, N. Y. He was afterwards engaged in gardening in Springfield, Mass., Philadelphia, Pa., and Cambridge, Mass., having charge of the Gardiner G. Hubbard estate in the latter place. From there he went to Pine Grove Cemetery in Lynn, then Forest Hills Cemetery in Boston, the park system of Newcastle, Pa., and thence to South Bend, Ind. While in Massachusetts Mr. Barker was very active in the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, serving faithfully on important committee work. He has long been an active member of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents. He leaves a widow, two sons and one daughter.

Lawrence Cotter.

It is our sad duty to report the passing away of Lawrence Cotter, manager of the Lakeview Rose Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., who died on Saturday, March 24, after a long and painful illness. He was a native of County Cork, Ireland, coming to this country when a young man, since which time he has been active and prominent in commercial horticulture in America. We are awaiting confirmation of certain statistics regarding his life history and consequently will withhold until next week's issue these records of his career.

Lawrence Cotter was a man of force-

LAWRENCE COTTER.

ful character and intelligence much beyond the ordinary. He was an untiring reader and being possessed of a remarkable memory he was at all times well equipped to converse on any subject that came up. As a gardener and flower grower he displayed abilities of the first rank. In manner he was trenchant and outspoken and never lacked for incisive words to express his views but he possessed a keen sense of humor and a ready wit which made him a welcome companion among a large circle of acquaintances. At heart Lawrence Cotter was kindly disposed and generous and in his passing the trade has lost a worthy representative, and his family an indulgent husband and father.

David J. Roche.

David J. Roche, one of the best-known residents of Quincy, Mass., died Wednesday night, March 21, at his home, 23 Carruth street, aged 81 years. Mr. Roche was for many years in the nursery business, and was also well known as a landscape gardener.

Rae L. Friedman.

Mrs. Rae L. Friedman, a florist, died at her home, 253 Grand street, New York City, on March 23, aged 34 years. She was born in New York.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Z. D. Blackstone, Fourteenth and H streets, Northwest, is reported on the sick list suffering from la grippe.

A large number of Washington florists were present at the flower show in Philadelphia last week. Among those known by the HORTICULTURE correspondent to have made the trip were D. J. Grillbortzer, I. W. Staalman, F. W. Mulford, William F. Gude, Adolph Gude, George W. Hess, Ernest F. Gude, Adolph Gude, Jr., Hardy Pritchard, John Cooke, John Henry Small, Jr. and Albert Small.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The wholesale trade here is in a bad predicament with an enormous accumulation of stock far beyond any possibility of disposal. The flower markets are loaded down with daffodils, sweet peas, tulips, carnations, violets and roses for which a bidder at any price cannot be found. There is no likelihood of a change for the better, either, until the welcome Easter call begins to come to the front. We see but few cattleyas but there seems to be no other flower common to the market at this season which is not "in the doldrums."

Stock has been coming in quite freely for the past two weeks. There has been a heavy supply of roses, carnations and sweet peas and business has fallen backward. Design work, which has been lightly distributed, is about the only thing that has kept things moving. The surplus has been heavy and is carried along from day to day. Lilies, too, are very plentiful also violets and all bulbous stock. Trade has been very uneven, but a change is looked for soon.

Chicago wholesalers are facing the proposition of moving a great quantity of stock at this time and they are doing it in a way that speaks well for their salesmanship. Of course a very large proportion of the stock is sold at concessions far below quotations and the nearby retailers find it very much to their advantage to visit the market in person, but a much better feeling prevails than if prices were held at a higher figure and much stock lost thereby. Even in this case of sell at any price, totals have reached a good mark the past week. Southern daffodils, tulips and poeticus in quantity are flooding the market, with home grown ones still coming. Roses are so plentiful that it is feared by some that with the probability of warmer weather the Easter stock may be shortened.

Carnation conditions have not changed any and the market is weak. Sweet peas and violets are both moving slowly. Green is not ahead of demand which has been uniformly good all the season.

Supply is sufficient and demand generally is steady and active. The supply for Easter promises to be large. Among others some particularly excellent Ophelia roses are coming in. The carnation cut promises to be good for Easter. Lilies are excellent and plentiful, also good bulbous stock.

Watchful, wistful waiting is the wholesalers' lot nowadays unless he handles Easter plants as a side line. The retail stores give the most of their attention to the plant growers' products and the plant growers are not worrying for they are all about cleaned up on Easter stock. In the meantime the buyer has the matter of cut flower prices pretty near as he chooses, except in the case of the aristocratic Hadley rose and the elusive cattleya. A better layout next week—perhaps.

There has been PHILADELPHIA little change here. American

Beauty roses were slightly more plentiful and the prospects for a good Easter crop seems excellent; but buyers should not put off their advance bookings for all that. Other roses are in good supply but no glut. Carnations remain of excellent quality and are moving well at normal prices. Orchids are on the scarce side but not enough to show an advance in prices so far. Sweet peas plentiful and very good. From the south we are receiving lots of daffodils and Mayflowers. The latter are finer this year than usual—dainty, fresh and fragrant. The season seems to have been unusually favorable to them. Greens of all kinds are scarce.

Business continues
PITTSBURGH fair, considering the pre-Easter season.

Retailers are now pushing plants to the utmost, which is interfering more or less with the cut flower trade. Last week one small retailer took a temporary lease on an entire lower floor of a big down town building, starting out with three salesmen. Cut blooms of all kinds are of good quality, sweet peas being exceptionally fine.

The market is holding
ST. LOUIS up well and luckily we have experienced no positive glut at any time this year. Roses and carnations are in good supply and are selling at fairly good prices. Violets are on the wane, the sage of their blooms and their keeping qualities under these conditions do not impress the retailer. Sweet peas are increasing in supply and good Spencers are selling satisfactorily. Greens are in demand.

Business last week
WASHINGTON was an improvement and there was a good demand in the local market, although prices continued very low. The price on carnations took quite a drop and they could be had at as low as $1 per hundred. There has been quite an overproduction of sweet peas also for some time. Easter lilies are in oversupply and the sale of daffodils has been hurt by the influx of outdoor stock from the South. Tulips have been selling better, however. There is a fair demand for orchids, but little call for gardenias. Violets and mayflowers are being sold on the streets in great quantities at very low prices. Lily of the valley stands at $6 per hundred, but is not in as large a demand as could be desired. There has been a considerable scarcity of greens, due to the heavy frost which hit the South recently.

MISCELLANEOUSPlant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice

By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and half-tone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information.
It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

The wind-up of the bowling season was celebrated by the members of the Boston Florists' Bowling League and their friends, to the number of 135, at a banquet on Thursday evening, March 22, at Young's Hotel. The handsome trophies which had been provided by friends in the trade were duly presented to the winning teams and individuals.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The next annual meeting of the Railway Gardening Association will be held August 7, 8 and 9 at Atlantic City, N. J. The following committee was appointed to arrange program and make hotel arrangements: J. K. Wingert, F. W. Vail and J. E. Smith.

The Park Institute of New England had a meeting in Hartford, Conn., on Wednesday, March 28, at the Hotel Hueblein. The subject of Consolidation of Parks and Playgrounds was discussed by G. A. Parker, supt. of parks of Hartford, Ernst Hermann, supt. of playgrounds, Newton, Mass., and others.

The next convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association will be held in Montreal on August 7-8-9, 1917. The executive committee had a meeting in Montreal, March 19, at which a complete program for the three days was laid out. A banquet at the Queens Hotel tendered by the Montreal members brought the session to a close.

The March meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held in the Public Library, Providence, R. I., on Wednesday evening, March 21. Prof. S. C. Damon, of the Rhode Island State College Experiment Station, lectured on the Cultivation of Potatoes, paying particular attention to the cultivation of potatoes on small areas. There was also a discussion as to the proper classification of Chrysanthemums for exhibition purposes.

Service

Metropolitan Greenhouse Service

and — results

No matter what the initial cost of a greenhouse amounts to, it is in every instance a good investment, provided the revenue results are proportionate, and the cost of maintenance remains at a minimum. But no matter how little the initial cost, it is far too much for unsatisfactory returns, with constantly increasing upkeep and repair expenses.

Therefore, as the quality of materials used in the construction of all greenhouses is, after all, a matter of contract specifications, this organization bases its claim upon the high character of its labor and its constant endeavor to render a service which is at all times the utmost in efficiency, economy and results.

The reliability of this organization has been conclusively proven by the fact that it has not merely sustained, but heightened its prestige for so long a period.

Other Flower Show Echoes Or What Was Heard Over a Lunch Table Last Week at the Biltmore

THERE were six of us: Mr. Bohannon, of Bohannon Fl. Co., Chicago; Mr. Brown, of J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland; Mr. Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit; Mr. Max Schling, New York; Mr. Arthur Langhaus, of Wheeling, W. Va., and our company representative.

We were there as Max Schling's guests to talk over the question of forming a definite organization of one or two retail florists from each state, with the idea of doing some national advertising to broaden the sale of flowers. Also with the aim of an intimate co-operative service between members. Already Ads. have been issued reaching over six million readers.

After the organization business was over, the talk turned towards business methods.

Mr. Bohannon, of Chicago, said that with every basket of flowers they sent out, a card was enclosed stating that "if the flowers were not fresh and entirely satisfactory when received, to immediately let them know, and a fresh lot would promptly be sent."

Mr. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, said he didn't like that word "if." It at once put a person in a needlessly critical frame of mind.

Their method was to enclose a card saying: "These flowers are fresh. If not satisfactory, let us know at once."

Mr. Breitmeyer then spoke up in his quiet sunny way, carrying indisputable conviction with it: "I don't care what you print on your cards boys,—the thing is to make good, and do it promptly and cheerfully."

Mr. Schling mentioned that when he was asked to re-fill a basket that was not fresh and clean; or the color scheme out of all harmony with the flowers; he first had it understood that his name card would not accompany it. Said he could not afford to have his reputation risked.

Right then and there, I would like to have spoken up and said that for exactly the same reason Lord & Burnham often refuse to build certain houses, certain ways, for possible customers. We simply cannot afford to build houses we know are not practical. Neither will we lower quality, to cut down costs to meet competition.

The only way we meet competition, is in giving a man a better house for his money.

If you want to talk over that kind of a house, say when and where, and we'll be there.

COLDWELL WALK TYPE MOTOR MOWER

The Coldwell Walk-Type Motor Mower cuts the grass and rolls the lawn. Rapid, thorough, tireless—it consumes little fuel, cuts an acre an hour.

Does all the work of cutting the lawn, requiring nothing but guidance.

A sturdy little Motor Mower of the walk-type will negotiate any grade that a horse mower would be used on.

It is made in three sizes—30", 35" and 40" cut, with rolling weights ranging from 900 to 1100 pounds.

The Coldwell Ride-Type Model J is the "clipper-built," long-distance machine. It is equipped with latest improved four-cylinder Continental Motor, Mayo Radiator, etc. Will cut two to two and one-half acres per hour. The real machine for making and keeping a healthy, green, beautiful lawn.

1917 Coldwell Threesome with one man and one horse will do the work of any three individual mowers. Cuts a swath 87 inches wide. This type of mower is particularly suited to cutting on dry, settled ground where rolling and fine cutting is a secondary consideration. Write for descriptive catalogues.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Gardenias

Keep young stock growing right along. The plants do better when plunged in ashes on some bench well up to the glass where somewhat high degrees of heat combined with a rather close moist atmosphere can be steadily maintained. On all bright days syringe twice a day, in the morning and right after dinner. Keep the soil in the pots moist, but not soaked. You can keep shifting until they are in 4 or 5-inch pots which makes a good size to be planted out on the benches. A good compost to use is fibrous loam four parts, leaf mold and cow manure one part each and a good dash of sharp sand. Give ventilation to keep the atmosphere right. They do best in a temperature of from 65 to 70 degrees at night and from 15 to 20 degrees more with sunshine.

Nephrolepis

There are few ferns so easy of propagation as the nephrolepis, and they still enjoy a marked popularity. Those who are thinking of raising a stock of young nephrolepis for next year can from now up to July start to propagate. First, see that they have the drainage perfect so that the bench will let the water through freely. Then put in some light, sandy soil and plant the ferns out and you will get an abundance of runners that will root and lift without losing a single frond. A light shading and frequent sprinkling and a moderate degree of mixture at their roots is about all that is needed in the way of care through the summer. As they become large enough pot off and plunge pots in another bench.

Odontoglossums

Give the odontoglossums a judicious syringing overhead once a day and always allow a free ventilation. The crispum section requires quite a supply of water during all seasons, but the grande section does not need so much water at the roots, but should be allowed to dry out frequently. Now that the hot weather will soon be with us culture becomes very difficult. In their native habitation a maximum of 65 degrees is very rarely exceeded, but cultivators are now having much better success than a decade ago for they have broken away from the old way of keeping them in a north house from start to finish. They should be moved before the arrival of warm nights to a house of northern exposure that has rolling shades elevated about 20 inches above the glass as this admits an abundance of air, which helps to keep the house cool.

Poinsettias

Do not wait too long before overhauling the poinsettias. Old plants that have been resting since the new year can now be started, the stems shortened back and repotted in as small pots as the roots will permit. Remove all stock plants to a well-lighted bench where there is a temperature of about 65 degrees at night.

When cutting in, you can use the old wood cuttings, by placing in a warm frame and keeping the temperature from 65 to 70 degrees. In about three or four weeks they will be rooted. Pot them into 3-inch pots, using a good loam to which has been added one-fourth of rotten manure. Those propagated in July and August are fine for making up pans but the earlier ones will give the finest cuttings. Cuttings can be rooted at any time from now until the middle of August.

Ramblers for Easter 1918

Now is the right time to start some two-year-old plants. They can be potted in 6, 7 or 8-inch pots. Use fibrous soil three parts, and one part well-decayed cow manure, adding about an 8-inch potful of bone meal to each wheelbarrow load. Pot firmly and give a good watering. They should be cut back quite hard, which will make them break into five or six strong growths. Give them a cool bench where they can have plenty of light and ventilation. When they have made enough of growth to indicate the strongest canes, leave five or six of the best, rubbing off all the other ones. Syringe on all good days, for if this is neglected red spider will very soon assert itself. Keep them under glass until July during which time they will want careful watering, syringing, ventilating and fumigation.

Primulas

These plants love plenty of fresh air, so whenever it is possible see that they have it. In six or eight weeks they can be potted into 2-inch pots using fibrous loam four parts, well rotted cow manure and leaf-mold one part each. Give them a light shelf or bench where the temperature will not run over 50 degrees at night, allowing it to rise with sunshine about 15 degrees more. It is still seasonable to make sowing of primulas up to the first of May. These will develop into nice sized plants from December on. When the earliest sown primulas are big enough they should not be kept in flats but potted up before they begin to grow. A good compost is equal parts of new soil and leaf-mold with a little well decayed cow manure mixed through it. They will want some shade during the middle of the day. They should have a light syringing twice a day on all bright days.

Reminders

Keep young ferns moving and never let them get hard in the flats or pots.

Watch the seedling begonias closely and give them more room directly as they need it.

Fumigate at the first sign of green fly on the pelargoniums or the plants will soon be overrun.

Leave a little air on at night for a short time after mulching rose or carnation benches with fresh manure.

Watch the firing very carefully. Overheating the pipes in the morning not only wastes fuel but is productive of weak growth and insects.

Next Week:—Begonias for the Holidays; Carnations; Care of Seedlings; Chrysanthemums; Cyclamen; Reminders.

Consider carefully We see in the widespread campaign for the utilization of a much larger area of land for the production of food crops, big business for the seed trade, a boom for the family table, and an effective blow against the H. C. L. But we see no great necessity yet for the American florist to abandon his accustomed cultures and substitute food crops as has been found desirable in England, where the members of the wholesale florists' trade have pledged themselves "to devote at least 50 per cent of their open ground to food production, to grow only sufficient flowers and plants to keep the florists' trade alive and preserve the stocks which will be necessary for immediate development at the close of the war." Such a course might prove profitable here as a business proposition but that is open to doubt, at the present time.

A matchless rose

The Hadley rose, as it finds its bearings in various sections of the country, is demonstrating qualities which make it the rose wonder of the day. Born and brought up in Massachusetts, it has rapidly forged to the front in New York until it ranked with the American Beauty in market value and the flowers exhibited at the show by A. S. Burns, Jr. swept everything else before them. We thought they had then reached their limit but along comes Joseph Heacock in Philadelphia with blooms of marvelous size and quality which are declared by those who were privileged to see both to have distinctly outdistanced New York's presumably invincible achievements. What next? The two growers above mentioned have not yet to our knowledge faced one another for a test of supremacy. It will be a battle royal when they do. And there are others.

The June shows

With the several special flower shows now planned for next June there will be afforded a good test of the possibilities in public exhibitions at a season of the year not hitherto regarded with much confidence as to financial results. The ardent enthusiasm in horticulture recently developed in "society" circles in this country, due in part to the discontinuance of European travel, has done much to open up a new relationship between the public and the flower show as a standard institution and, as impressively demonstrated in the recent March exhibitions, turned a new light on these enterprises from the standpoint of the big daily newspapers. The open air flower show to be given in Boston under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is a decided innovation as planned and will be watched with countrywide interest. It will be interesting, too, to note the outcome of the Pittsburgh venture which also is scheduled for June but on different lines from the Boston proposition.

A hint to plant growers

In the progress of events as they now shape up one can find but very little to justify confidence in any nearby restoration of former established conditions as to horticultural importations from abroad and it seems expedient that the trade should take cognizance of the opportunity thus presented for a larger investment and keener industry in the production of home-grown ornamental material. We refer here not alone or directly to the much discussed possibilities in the production in this country of azaleas and the many other goods for which we have heretofore depended upon foreign sources but to such things as primroses, cyclamens, ericas and a host of other plants which we are already accustomed to produce at home and for which in the absence of azaleas, etc., the sale at Easter or otherwise should henceforth be largely increased. There is every encouragement in the situation for gardeners to keep on the lookout and to try out a much greater variety of forcing subjects than are now used. The field untouched as yet is practically limitless.

The Peony--Its Marvelous Advance

Twenty years ago it was hard to sell a peony. Now the call for them is yearly on the increase. Not long ago one nursery had to turn down a call for 35,000 from one firm. Many leading growers write me that they are nearly sold out and when they come to renew their plants they find peonies, like everything else, have gone up.

New and rare varieties are being developed. France has given us superb ones. A Mr. Ruff, a real estate man in St. Paul, Minn., had an ideal sheltered place with rich sandy loam, and having ample means he secured a large collection of as fine ones as money could buy. They multiplied so fast that he soon had quite a quantity. I used frequently to visit him. "Why don't you sell them," I asked. He took the hint and got out a circular. Progressive growers found he had what they Ruff had his foreign favorites and the Brands showed wanted. Some parties even went out from Chicago to see them in bloom and he has sold thousands of dollars' worth. He spares no money in selecting them, nor do his customers spare in buying. Our American growers seem to keep up with the French in originating new sorts. We all know what Richardson of Boston accomplished. Rosenfield has given us some fine ones, and he has now twenty acres of peonies growing near Omaha.

Years ago I visited my dear old friend, T. C. Thurlow of West Newbury, Mass. How he did love flowers; their beauty entered into his very life and he was a man of the sweetest soul I ever knew. He had thousands of seedling peonies in full bloom. The field was "like a sea of glory." But he was exacting in his taste and 999 had to go on the rubbish pile for every one saved. The sons are now putting one on the market called "Cherry Hill" at $30 a root.

At the summer meeting of the Minnesota Horticultural Society there was the finest display of peonies I ever saw. The glorious Junes of our northern states give ample compensation for the rigors of their winters. Ruff had his foreign favorites and the Brands showed their new creations which did not seem a whit behind. They had been quietly and patiently at work for twenty years. Their gardens have been a mecca for lovers of the beautiful. There was Mary Brand, which is probably the finest and largest red of all. Martha Bulloch is a radiant pink. Elizabeth Barret Browning is an immense glistening white. Richard Carvell is a deep red and fragrant peony which will bloom with Eduli's Superba or Decoration Day in our latitude. Prince of Darkness and Midnight are dark red.

Prices of extra fine ones seem high, but it is a question of thoroughbreds or scrubs. Peonies double every year or two and so cut down the initial cost in a short time. It costs no more to grow the thoroughbreds than it does the scrubs, so it always pays to have the best.

There are Eldorados and Golcondas in the floral as well as in the mineral world. Diamonds do not grow but your flowers do. You have read of the famous Persian garden of gems, 400 feet by 90—gems so arranged as to imitate flowers—a tribute of the mineral world to the beauty of the floral world. And the flowers of those days bore no comparison with the flowers of our gardens. So for weeks we can outrival that marvelous garden of gems, and they will be our own. And beside their superlative beauty, billows of fragrance will float over and around and we can breathe their sweet breath while we feast our souls on their splendor.

Centaurea

CENTAUREA MONTANA ROSEA.

The popularity of the genuine cornflower is world-wide. We all love the clear bright blue of the annual Centaurea cyanus. When successful in growing the beautiful Centaurea imperialis to perfection I believe we have reason to feel proud. The white-leaved "Dusty Millers," Centaurea candidissima and C. gymnocarpa are standard bedding plants in use for ages and our stately tall growing native Centaurea americana, the "Basket Flower," we have learned to treasure as an effective border plant and, in a cut state, as a splendid material for domestic indoor decoration. But it is not my intention to dwell at any length on the annual class today. What I have in mind at present are the various garden species of hardy herbaceous cornflowers more or less known as valuable subjects for the mixed perennial border. As a rule we seldom find them free enough for a real floral mass-effect, but as most of them bloom during July and August and their flowers not only prove excellent for cutting but also perceptibly add in the total midsummer display of our gardens, it is evident that they merit general attention. Thriving best fully exposed to the sun in a rather light garden soil with ample drainage, perfect development depends entirely on sufficient watering. Unsatisfactory showing is usually due to lack of the necessary irrigation during hot and dry weather.

In regard to species and varieties I begin with the early blooming European form Centaurea montana. Attaining 2 feet in height, the original flowers blue, montana alba, white, and montana rosea, the subject of our illustration and by far the best of the three, produces large flowers of a beautiful rosy-red color admirably adapted for design work. Centaurea dealbata, a species from Asia Minor, and C. rigidifolia are the most desirable rose-pink colored for midsummer displays, while Centaurea macrocephala and the tall very decorative C. ruthenica represent the most conspicuous of the yellow types. The latter is distinguished by loosely built feathery flowers of a beautiful light sulphur, born on tall slender stems averaging 4 feet in height.

Perennial centaureas may be raised from seed sown in cold frames early in spring or propagated by divisions of old plants. For winter protection they require a light covering of manure, straw or leaves.

Richard Rothe

CHRYSANTHEMUM CLASSIFICATION

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the R. I. Horticultural Society there was a heated discussion regarding certain classifications of chrysanthemums as used in the premium list. The premium list reads as follows:

"Class 399, chrysanthemums. Best three vases three distinct Japanese varieties, ten blooms to a vase."

"Class 400, chrysanthemums. Best three vases of three distinct incurved varieties, ten blooms to a vase."

The discussion was as follows: "A" maintained that Japanese incurved and reflex varieties were distinct forms just as much so as cactus, peony and show dahlias are distinct forms. "A" also maintained that Japanese varieties should not compete in the same class with incurved varieties or reflex varieties except, of course, in general collections of flowers.

"B" maintained that all chrysanthemums were Japanese varieties and that the term Japanese was misapplied in the premium list. He held that in class 399 incurved or reflex could be exhibited as they were all Japanese varieties. "A" maintained that "B" was giving the word Japanese in this connection an entirely wrong meaning. "A" maintained that in exhibitions the word Japanese referred to a class of blooms in chrysanthemums just as much as peony flowers referred to a class of blooms in dahlias and that the term as used in the premium list bore no relation to the origin of the plants.

Will you please give me the best decision on these points that you can? I shall esteem it a favor also if you will refer this discussion to some of your most interested exhibitors and get an expression of opinion from them.

Could you give me also the names of three distinct popular varieties of Japanese chrysanthemums, three distinct varieties of incurved, and three distinct varieties of reflex, and the names of any other varieties which represent a distinct class of flower?

We had another heated discussion which we would like you to settle for us at the same time, if possible. The premium list reads as follows:

"Class 208, chrysanthemums, cut flowers. Twelve white in one vase."

There were other classes following this, calling for twelve pink, twelve yellow, and twelve of any other color, etc. The discussion is on the following point. "A" maintained that in class 208, which calls for twelve white, an exhibitor could enter three vases each containing a distinct white variety for this prize. "B" maintained that no exhibitor could enter more than one exhibit for the same prize. "B" maintained that if an exhibitor was allowed to enter more than one exhibit for the same prize it would be unfair to the other exhibitors who had entered only one. "A" maintained that if an exhibitor had raised three varieties of white chrysanthemums and that if he was unable to decide which was the best for exhibition purposes, he had a right to enter all three and let the judge decide which was the best. "B" maintained that this was very unusual and wrong and that if "A" wished to get the judge's opinion, he could enter one variety in the class and bring the other two varieties for exhibition purposes but not for competition and then get the judge's opinion on them as an exhibition flower.

Yours very truly,
E. K. THOMAS, Secy.

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of the communication addressed to you from the Secretary of Rhode Island Horticulture Society in regard to certain chrysanthemum classifications.

To get a clear perspective of this matter one should go back to the early days of the chrysanthemum as an exhibition flower. The early forms were known as Chinese and pompon varieties but the latter need not be considered in connection with the present matter.

The Chinese varieties were so called from the fact that the plant was first introduced into Europe from China and the flowers were characterized by comparatively short petals and smooth and even form. As they developed under cultivation two distinct types appeared, one with petals all turning inward and exposing the under surface to view and the other with the petals all turning backward and downward, thereby exposing only the upper surface. These were called the incurved and reflexed Chinese varieties.

After the opening up of Japan, varieties of the same species began coming from there, but these were characterized by a multitude of odd forms, mostly with petals much longer in proportion than those produced by the old Chinese forms. But here again many of the varieties divided themselves up in the same two classes as the earlier Chinese varieties did, but as the flowers were much more artistic in build they soon drove the Chinese varieties to the wall and now it is hard to find a plant of the old Chinese kinds. The terms incurved and reflexed still survive but as there has been so much intermixing of the Chinese and Japanese types in raising new varieties it is impossible to say where the Chinese leave off and the Japanese begin and this coupled with the fact that the pure Chinese varieties are no longer grown would make the use of the term "Japanese" practically superfluous if it were not for another fact that there are certain varieties which can be classed as neither incurved nor reflexed, so must be thrown into a class which will admit any form that is not of the old Chinese character. So looking at it in this way we would have three classes, incurved, reflexed and Japanese, for want of a better term. As a type of the incurved flower of today I would give Mrs. Jerome Jones or Merza and of the reflexed, John Shrimpton. Any flowers which do not conform to these standards would fall into the miscellaneous Japanese class. I say "Japanese" because all our large varieties today partake more of the original Japanese characteristics than of any other.

In selecting varieties for exhibition in the classes for the different types, individual flowers should be selected which adhere as closely as possible to the type of the class, without reference to names, for it is well known among growers that many varieties will sometimes develop an incurved flower from one kind of bud and a reflexed flower from a different bud. So looking at the matter in this way class 399 referred to in the letter could include any variety which showed any characteristics of the original Japanese varieties, and class 400 should be confined to such varieties as come the nearest to the accepted incurved type of today. Strictly speaking the class could include all incurved varieties of either the Chinese or Japanese types.

In regard to class 208, the matter rests entirely with the rules of the Society. In the Massachusetts Horticultural Society an exhibitor may put up as many exhibits in competition as there are prizes offered. That is, if two prizes are offered he may have two entries, and so on, according to the numbers of prizes offered for that particular class.

ASSORTED SPRINGTIMES

(Ted Robinson, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.)
Our morning's milk is full of icy splinters,
But the robins are a-hopping on the green;
This month is full of disconcerting Winters
But we love the little Springtime, in between!
So as often as the weather seems propitious
In the soggy, boggy woods we start to roam,
And we find the vernal vision quite delicious,
Till the sneezy, breezy blizzard drives us home!

There is something far superior to the senses
In determining the time for buds to blow;
I am sure that Sanguinaria canadensis
Is a-blooming over there beneath the snow;
And the sleet is sharp as tiny mites of mica,
And the wind is keen as memories of sin—
But I'm certain that Claytonia virginica
Only needs a little courage to begin!

The hepaticas are hardly hesitating—
They are moving bravely upward through the mud!
And unviolated violets are waiting
Just a word to burst in beauty from the bud!
In the Wintry woods there's surely something doing,
For as plainly as a flower ever spoke,
I have heard a lot of pussy willows mewing,
And it's almost time for crocuses to croak!

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

LANCASTER COUNTY FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

Having a notification from the Reading florists that they were coming over to visit us, we had been hoping for good weather and good roads, but dame nature would not have it that way and instead of the delightful automobile trips we had planned we were reduced to trolley service. Messrs. J. Stanley Giles, John Downing, J. C. Bauder, Fulmer Lauck, Layton Butts, Frederick Frank, Alfred Loundon, Lee P. Arnold were the visitors. After lunch they were taken to the M. J. Brinton establishment in Christiana with some eighteen Lancasterians as company. Mr. Brinton grows some 50,000 Spanish iris, about a quarter of a million lily bulbs and other stock in proportion. A batch of 3,000 gladioli produced less than 100 spikes. They were cold storage stock and the small percentage of bloom is ascribed to this fact. They did, however, make excellent bulbs, but the production of bulbs in a greenhouse is an expensive proposition. Mr. Brinton in addition to his bulb houses has a block of Lord & Burnham houses devoted to carnations. We had to jump from Christiana to Chas. M. Weaver's at Ronks, where sweet peas were to be seen in houses that made you tired to walk from end to end, the houses being planted at different times, coming along in succession. A house of mignonette is now being torn out to make room for early asters. At Elmer Weaver's we found a fine lot of seedling carnations. One of their carnation houses is not a carnation house but is a sweet pea house with carnations between; the carnations did fairly well before the peas reached their six-foot height, but are now beginning to suffer from the shade.

Getting back to Lancaster a hurried trip was made to the B. F. Barr greenhouses. The new packing and warehouse building came in for its share of approval.

After dinner we repaired to the Chamber of Commerce rooms where the regular meeting was held. Thomas Fries gave a very instructive talk on bulbs and other stock for Easter. Albert M. Herr gave a resume of the proceedings of the Philadelphia Club at their express meeting. The question of coal prices was brought up and there is not anyone who has contracted at a less price than twice what he paid for this season's supply—many paying even more than double. When you tell the coal man, he says, "I'm sorry, but this is the price for next

If they really want the plant or flowers they will readily pay the slight increase the same as they are doing all along the line, and if they do not, you are better off not to sell at a price that represents actual loss.

The regular monthly meeting of the Mount Kisco, (N. Y.) Horticultural Society was held in Firemen's Hall, on March 13th. Business was gone over quickly owing to our having a lecture on Poultry Raising by Mr. Sewell, of Dellwood Farm. Mr. Connolly had some fine exhibits of carnations, sweet peas, lily of the valley and mushrooms. Doors were opened at 8 P. M. for the public and there was a fine attendance. Mr. Sewell gave an able and instructive address. At our next meeting on April 9th James Scott, Elmsford Nurseries, will give a talk on Out Door Roses.

NEW YORK FEDERATION OF HORTICULTURAL SOCIETIES AND FLORAL CLUBS.

A meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs was held at 101 Park Avenue, New York City, Monday, March 19th, at four o'clock. President F. R. Pierson presided at the meeting. The following organizations were represented by delegates: New York Florists' Club, New York Horticultural Society, New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association, Albany Horticultural Society, Rochester Florists' Club, Buffalo Florists' Club, Tarrytown Horticultural Society, Syracuse Florists' Association.

President F. R. Pierson reported regarding a joint meeting of delegates from the Federation and from the New York Vegetable Growers' Association, which was held in Albany on February 22nd. This joint committee had a conference with the Lieutenant-Governor, the Chairman of the Finance Committee and the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee regarding an appropriation for a Horticultural Building at the New York State Fair Grounds. President Pierson reported that the Governor was keenly interested in the building and that the committee was anxious to do everything possible to obtain it, but changing the race track and the necessity for new buildings for horses and swine, together with the financial situation in the state this year, seemed to make it impossible that an appropriation be made for the whole amount. It was hoped that a sufficient appropriation at least might be made to have the plans drawn and the construction on part of the buildings begun. The committee discussed plans with the state architect and these plans provided for a building large enough to accommodate the exhibits of fruits, vegetables, flowers and farm crops.

President Pierson also reported that his committee had decided that because of the financial situation in the state this year, the money for the investigational range of greenhouses at Cornell University should not be asked for.

Charles H. Vick of Rochester, Anton Schultheis of College Point and Fred Danker of Albany, were appointed on a committee to confer with the Commissioner of Agriculture and the superintendent of the flower exhibit at the New York State Fair regarding the adjustment of a more satisfactory premium list for flowers and plants.

FLORISTS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA

On account of the near approach of Easter, the regular monthly meeting of the above club on the 3rd inst. was but moderately attended. The absentees missed a treat, as the orator of the evening was J. Some day he promises to give us the pictures in addition to his splendid word portrayal, and we may all look forward to even a still greater treat in the future. Other matters taken up by the club were mostly rou-

THE CLEVELAND FLOWER SHOW.

The fifth annual Cleveland Flower Show will be held at the Hotel Statler, November 8 to 11, in connection with the annual meeting and exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and fall meetings and shows of the American Rose Society and American Carnation Society, which will be held in Cleveland during the same dates and as a part of the Cleveland Flower Show. The preliminary premium list carries about $1,500 in cash besides some forty valuable cups, vases and medals. The executive office is at 402 Leader-News Bldg., Cleveland.

H. P. Knoble, general chairman of show committees, sends the following note of explanation:

It was our plan to conduct a big show this fall, in fact we had our preliminary plans about complete by January 1st, when we were informed by the owners of the Wigmore Coliseum that their building would not be available for the use of shows after March 1st, 1917.

We spent much time endeavoring to persuade the owners to change their plans but were unsuccessful and after considering all the other buildings available for shows, finally decided to accept the offer of Hotel Statler to use the entire mezzanine floor and proceeded to readjust our premium list to fit the space, 12,500 square feet.

This will explain the long delay in issuing this list.

H. P. KNOBLE,
General Chairman Show Committees.

A CORRECTION.

Dear Sirs:

Will you please make the following correction in the list of awards submitted to you from the recent New York Flower Show. Class 310, calling for Climbing Pink Specimen Rose was won by A. N. Pierson, Inc., 1st prize, and F. R. Pierson, Inc., 2nd prize; instead of vice versa as it appeared in the last edition of your paper. This was a mistake on the part of the jurors judging the class and not caused by either of the exhibitors involved.

Yours very truly,
CHARLES H. TOTTY.

"Get them at Dreer's"

Hardy Perennials

For many years one of our most important specialties, our stock this season is again in prime condition, more extensive than ever, with a complete assortment of both standard varieties and novelties.

Roses, Two Year Old Plants for Outdoor Planting

Our Roses are all field grown plants which were dug in the fall, and which during the winter months were potted into 5 and 6 inch pots. They are stored in cold houses and frames, being retarded as much as possible, and are just the sort of stock that will please your retail customers. We are particularly strong on Hybrid Teas but carry also nearly all other types.

Aquatic Plants

Eight acres of Ponds are devoted to Hardy Nymphaeas and Nelumbiums alone, a large assortment of Tropical Nymphaeas, Victoria Regia, etc., as well as sub-aquatic plants for marginal planting. If interested in these, send for our book 'Dreer's Water Lilies.' It is not only descriptive, but gives full cultural directions.

Hardy Shrubs and Vines

A choice assortment of standard varieties—Altheas (including our own splendid novelty William R. Smith)

Azaleas, Callicarpa Purpurea, Hydrangea Aborescens Grandiflora, and Paniculata Grandiflora, Cotoneasters, Buddleias, Deutzias, Forsythias, Prunus, Philadelphus, Spiraeas, Viburnum, Weigelas, Ampelopsis, Akebia, Aristolochia, Clematis, Honeysuckles, Wisterias, etc.

Decorative Plants

Palms and Ferns, Aspidistra, Crotons, Dracaenas, Ficus, Pandanus, etc.

Amaryllis, Tuberous-Rooted Begonias, Caladium Esculentum and a splendid assortment of Fancy-Leaved Caladiums, Golden Yellow and Spotted-Leaved Callas, Hyacinthus Candicans, Gladiolus, Lilies, Montbretias, Tigridias, Tuberoses, etc.

All of the above and many others are fully described in our current Wholesale List, January to June, which will be mailed upon request only to persons engaged commercially in Horticulture.

CONCERNING THE PROPOSED PROHIBITION OF IMPORTS OF PLANTS.

At the regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club, March 12th, the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"That the New York Florists' Club protests against the proposed legislation which seeks to stop imports of plants, plant products, and bulbs, as being injurious to business—without giving any benefit to the public welfare, and that it looks to the Legislative Committee of the S. A. F. and O. H. to oppose it.

"And that the Secretary be instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the Executive Committee of the S. A. F. prior to their meeting on March 16th, asking them to give full power to the Legislative Committee."

On March 12th, at their regular meeting the New York & New Jersey Plant Growers' Association adopted practically the same resolution as the above.

At the special meeting of the Legislative Committee of the S. A. F. & O. H., held at the Hotel Biltmore, March 15th, the subject was discussed from all angles. A few representative growers such as Julius Roehrs, J. D. Elsele, Wallace R. Pierson, A. L. Miller, Adolf Gude and others were invited and a course of action was decided upon, one of the members being delegated to present the matter to the Executive Committee of the S. A. F. & O. H.

On March 16th, the Executive Committee of the S. A. F. & O. H. adopted unanimously the following resolution:

"Whereas, it has come to our notice that an effort is to be made to introduce legislation into Congress, seeking to prohibit at some future time the importation of Plants, Bulbs, Plant Products and Nursery Stock of all kinds from every source, and Whereas, the Executive Committee of the S. A. F. & O. H. considers such measures not only unnecessary, but injurious to the welfare of its members and to the whole horticultural trade of the United States, therefore be it Resolved, That the Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the S. A. F. & O. H. be empowered, and is hereby empowered, to oppose the proposed legislation, to act according to his judgment in the interests of our Organization at the forthcoming conference, to get what assistance he can from any of its members, and to share with the Nurserymen's Legislative Committee the expense of employing a trained man to help protect our joint interests."

The Legislative Committee of the S. A. F. & O. H. is now empowered, and prepared, to meet the committee in charge of the proposed measure at a conference which will probably be called late in June.

J. McHUTCHISON,
Member, Legislative Committee.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The April meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held Monday, April 9th, at Hotel Gibson.

The Newport, R. I., Horticultural Society is making plans for a ladies' night in Music Hall, Tuesday evening, April 24, and preliminary plans for the annual fall flower show, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 5, 6 and 7, in the convention hall at the beach, the annual ball to be given on the night of the closing day of the show. The preliminary schedule of prizes for the show will be ready for the consideration of the members at the next meeting.

Wintzer's Colossal Canna As Big as a Man's Hat

WINTZER'S Colossal Canna is not only the largest Canna in commerce, but is without even a near rival. To say that it is as big as a man's hat is not exaggeration. Its flowers are over 8-inches across. Its color is a strikingly vivid scarlet that retains its brilliancy. It is far and away the most prolific of its class.

It is the result of years of tireless hybridizing and experimenting on the part of Antoine Wintzer, Vice-President of this Company.

Mr. Wintzer has been well called the Canna Wizard. He has probably done more to make the Canna the thing of beauty that it is today, than any other man in America. For twenty years, he has patiently worked with his "Canna children," continually and persistently striving to improve the type.

The Colossal Canna and our other Swasteeka Brand Cannas bear convincing witness as to the measure in which he has succeeded. Our prices to you for Wintzer's Colossal are 10 for $2.50, 100 for $18.

PITTSBURGH FLOWER SHOW.

Pittsburgh is to have a notable flower show on June 13-16, inclusive, and has shied its hat into the ring by securing as manager that past-master of flower show managers, Arthur Herrington of Madison, N. J. The final schedule is out and is a model in its way. Close to $3000 is offered in prizes besides cups, medals, etc., and commercial and private growers are well cared for. The show is given under the auspices of the Garden Club of Allegheny County and practically all of the premiums are contributed by amateur friends of horticulture, clubs, etc. The show will be held in Motor Square Garden, Baum Boulevard, and a liberal space has been reserved and is offered for sale for trade exhibits.

Obituary

A. M. Kirby.

Arthur Martin Kirby died suddenly at his home in Montclair, N. J., on March 26th.

Mr. Kirby entered the employment of Peter Henderson at the greenhouses in Jersey City in 1876 and remained in the employ of Peter Henderson & Co. until his death. He was given charge of the flower seed, bulb and implement department many years ago and for a number of years attended to getting up the catalogue of the firm, at which work he was an adept, probably unsurpassed in the United States.

He was a ready writer, full of imagination, and so the descriptive matter which he wrote, particularly on flowers and bulbs, was very effective for catalogue purposes. He was also the author of the work, "Narcissus Daffodils, and How to Grow Them." He was passionately fond of flowers and always maintained a very interesting garden at his own home, where he tried out new varieties from all sources.

Mr. Kirby was born in Ohio in 1859, but his family moved to Martinsburg, W. Va., shortly after the civil war. He was married and leaves twin daughters and one grandchild. He was a genial, companionable man although he did not mix to any extent with horticultural bodies. He was very popular with his fellow workmen.

In 1914 he was elected vice-president of the American Sweet Pea Society. He was very partial to sweet peas and was considered an authority on varieties.

THE LATE LAWRENCE COTTER.

Supplementing our Obituary Notes in last week's issue.

Lawrence Cotter was born in Midletown, County Cork, Ireland, on February 14, 1855, and died at Jamestown, N. Y., March 24, 1917. He worked during his early youth on some of the large estates in Ireland, notably Lord Donerail's estate at Cork. He emigrated to this country at an early age, and after working in various places took charge of the Rosemere Conservatories at Dorchester, Mass., in 1888, where he continued until 1900, when he leased the Galvin Conservatories at Dorchester. Here adversity dealt him a blow when during the coal strike of 1902 he vainly attempted to operate under the high cost of coal, and he went to Danville, Pa., to take charge of the fine range of glass J. R. Bennett had built at his magnificent estate, Castle Grove. Business prospered and plans were drawn for the largest and most modern range of glass in the United States. These plans were never executed, as Mr. Bennett was killed in the wreck of the 20th Century Limited near Kent, Ohio, when en route for Dansville to go over the ground for the last time before advertising for bids. Mr. Cotter later leased the greenhouses, but after operating them for several years accepted an offer to take charge of the Rosemere Conservatories in Dorchester which had been purchased by Eugene N. Foss, later governor of Massachusetts. He continued there for three years and then left to take charge of the Lakeview Rose Gardens of Jamestown, where he remained until his death.

Mr. Cotter's illness extended over three years. Throughout all that time, with the indomitable will that marked him as a personality extraordinary during the whole of his life, he fought bravely against the assaults failing health was making on his vitality and he met death with the same courage he met all other life problems and passed out into the sea of mystery unafraid and with a smile. He died as he lived; courageous and philosophical.

He is survived by one brother, William Cotter, of Dublin, Ireland, his widow, Mrs. Johanna Cotter, three sons, Wm. of Montreal, Chas. N. of Jamestown, N. Y., and Jeffry of Baltimore, Md., and four daughters, Catharine, Julia, Johanna and Mary.

Mt. Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me.—New and Desirable Hardy Trees and Shrubs. A list of unique interest to the hardy garden enthusiast. Quite a proportion of the new things listed are Wilson introductions from China, which thus far cannot be found at other nurseries. These novelties have all been given a thorough test for hardiness and other desirable qualities in the extreme climate of Mt. Desert and it is gratifying that so many of these beautiful introductions have stood the test satisfactorily. There will be a large call for this list.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Help Hints. Published by Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J. A pocket size pamphlet with dainty cover illustration in colors. Gives useful advice to the amateur in garden arrangement and planting.

Prospectus of the College of Agriculture, University of California, 1917-1919. Bulletin Vol. X, No. 8. An 80-page publication, illustrated with many plates showing the various activities of the college in the phases of research, education and public welfare.

"Newton—the Garden City of Massachusetts." Report of Forest Commissioner for 1916. W. W. Colton is Forest Commissioner for the city of Newton. This 52-page report with its many impressive pictures shows that Newton's trees are well cared for under his management.

Manual of Agricultural Laws. Issued by the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture. Compiled and edited by R. Edwards Annin, Jr., A. B. An invaluable book, giving the various enactments complete, now operative in Massachusetts, together with indexes and cross-references of great value.

The Year Book of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of the Massachusetts Agricultural College for 1917 is a handsome publication of which the students may well feel proud. Paper, type and illustrations are all high class and the reading pages tell much that is interesting about the students and their work.

The Missouri Botanical Garden Bulletin for February 1917, contains an excellent special article effectively illustrated on "Window Boxes, a Type of Floral Decoration Applicable to Down-town Districts. Among the illustrations is one of the Filene building in Boston, with plant boxes arranged by John D. Twombly.

The first number of Volume IV of the Annals of the Missouri Botanical Garden has been issued with the following contents: "Hybrid Nymphaeas," G. H. Pring; "Monograph of the North and Central American Species of the Genus Senecio—Part II," J. M. Greenman; "A Spurless Variety of Habenaria psycodes," Mary M. Bryan; "A Systematic Study of the Genus Trilium, Its Variability and Its Relation to Paris and Medeola," R. R. Gates.

Nebraska Horticulture, published by the Nebraska State Horticultural Society at the State Capitol Building, Lincoln, Neb., and edited by J. R. Duncan, secretary, is a book of 300 pages, which is well filled with interesting and instructive matter and is finely illustrated with 28 full page views and diagrams. Apples and grapes and truck farming are given much attention, but ornamental horticulture, good seed and other important departments of horticulture are not neglected.

The American Sweet Pea Bulletin and Schedule for 1917 has been received and will be cordially welcomed, we feel sure, by the sweet pea lovers. This bulletin is the official organ of the

WEED KILLER

THE VERY NEWEST AND QUICKEST METHOD OF DESTROYING WEEDS, GRASS AND OTHER GROWTH IN GARDEN WALKS, GUTTERS, TENNIS COURTS, DRIVEWAYS, ETC.

This fluid absolutely destroys all weeds and other growth wherever applied, and its effect on the ground prevents the growth of fresh ones for a year and thus saves a great deal of time and labor, as no cutting, hoeing or hauling away of the weeds is required.

We manufacture the strongest line of DISINFECTANTS on the market.

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

P.-L. CHEMICAL CO., 507-509 W. 19th St., New York

American Sweet Pea Society, published by the society under the direction of the secretary, William Gray, Newport, R. I., and edited by J. Harrison Dick, New York. This issue contains cultural articles and notes by Wm. Gray, Geo. W. Kerr, Wm. Sim and Ed. Jenkins, and reminiscences by the late Rev. W. T. Hutchins.

SPRAY IRRIGATION, by Milo B. Williams, Irrigation Engineer, is the title and subject of Bulletin No. 495 issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Complete information regarding the proper use of spray irrigation, the types of various systems, procedure for installing such, cost, data, etc., is given and the text is fully illustrated. This is a 40-page pamphlet which everyone contemplating the introduction of stationary spraying equipment should carefully peruse before giving an order for such an outfit to anybody.

"Apple Growing," being Bulletin No. 2, Nov., 1916, Fifth Edition, Revised. Issued by the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture, Wilfred Wheeler, secretary. This is a very complete manual on Apple Growing and will be found full of interest and reliable information for anyone engaged in or thinking of engaging in the apple growing industry. Apple growing in Massachusetts has received a great stimulus within the past ten years and this book will do much towards invigorating and extending the movement. There are 258 pages, fully indexed and illustrated by many plates.

The American Rose Annual, published by the American Rose Society, edited by J. Horace McFarland, an advance copy of which is received at the office of HORTICULTURE, is now ready for distribution to the members of the society. Progressiveness is stamped on every page of this publication and its effect will be very stimulating for American rose growing in and for America, both in the raising of new varieties and the production of plants for the general trade. The articles and illustrations have all been focused on this aim. That the importation of roses is regarded as of major importance and that the promotion of amateur rose exhibitions is a paramount duty is well set forth and valuable suggestions regarding the management of such shows are made. In addition to the continuance of the careful survey of rose troubles—begun last year—the start of an accurate catalogue of roses has been made in this year's Annual. The membership list shows an increase in associate or amateur members beyond 2,000 per cent and the membership as a whole, including trade and life members, has more than quadrupled within the year.

FOR BLIGHT-IMMUNE CHESTNUT TREES.

The possibility for continued growth of chestnut trees in the United States, in the face of the rapid spread of the destructive chestnut blight, may depend mainly upon replacing of the susceptible native trees by disease-resistant strains and hybrids bred from Asiatic stock. This is pointed out by plant pathologists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture who have made exhaustive studies of the disease in field and laboratory during the last five years. Four generations of cross-bred Japanese chestnuts of a very early bearing type, producing nuts when two or three years old, have already been grown, and the varietal characters appear to be well fixed. Some of the Chinese chestnuts are said to grow nearly 100 feet high in their home forests, and it may be possible by their use to replace in some measure our vanishing native chestnut stands and perhaps develop superior varieties during the process of acclimatization.

Home Grown Seeds.

Many county asylums and poor farms in Wisconsin are fast becoming noted for the production and distribution of improved varieties of corn, grains, and forage crops. One of the most successful county farms in this line of production is that of Chippewa county at Chippewa Falls, F. O. Bible, superintendent.

In a letter to the officials of the field crops department, College of Agriculture, Mr. Bible says that within three weeks ending Feb. 15, the Chippewa 4,000 bushels of Wisconsin pedigree

No. 1 oats and 750 bushels of Golden Glow corn, to be used for seeding purposes this spring.

"Being unable to fill these orders ourselves we must turn them over to other growers of Wisconsin pure bred seeds," states Mr. Bible, adding that it is the intention of the Chippewa county farm managers to plant 200 acres of Wisconsin No. 12 corn this spring, together with a hundred acres each of Pedigree No. 1 oats and Wisconsin Pedigree, or Oderbrucker, barley.

Establishing these local centers for home grown seeds of tested vitality and guaranteed purity is one of the most important results of the extension activities carried on during the past ten years by the College of Agriculture, through its field crops staff. County farms at Peshtigo, Marinette county, Richland Center, Richland county, Reedsburg, Sauk county, New Richmond, St. Croix county, and Wyanocena, Columbia county, have become of direct service to neighboring farmers in this way. The State School for Boys at Waukesha, the Indian school near Tomah, and the Northern State hospital at Winnebago are also in line with the project.

Of Interest to Retail Florists

Worcester, Mass.—The new store of Harry I. Randall at 22 Pearl street is a beautiful and impressive conception. The handsome window arrangements form wings for a pergola which starts at the entrance and extends to the rear wall. There are swinging gates, arches and latticed partitions over which vines and roses clamber. The walls and interior fittings are in subdued colors and the cut blooms and plants supply all the brilliancy. The walls are done in a flat white finish with dove gray panels set in below the ceiling line. The pergola, trellis and other fittings are white with birch runners under the pergola for the display of flowers. Mirrors panel the pergola walls and oval mirrors are used for wall decorations in other sections of the store and the work tables and counters for display purposes have black onyx tops. Urn-shaped globes of white onyx shade the lights which are suspended from the ceiling with wrought iron chains. The store furniture is in keeping with the fittings.

CHICAGO.

Miss Ida Sellinger of A. Lange's is quite ill. She has the important position of taking the telephone orders.

Lincoln Park, almost down town, is called the People's Park, and here every foot of the conservatories is filled. Probably more people visit this place than all the others together and last Sunday was no exception to the rule.

The new wholesale commission house of Wiltgen & Freres is getting a good start. Both young men are much respected by the trade and they will receive a fair share of patronage. Easter orders are showing up well on the books.

Fred Lautenschlager, sales manager for Kroeschell Bros., returned Saturday from the East where he saw the various flower shows and incidentally talked business with prospective builders. He says it will be very difficult to surpass the shows just given.

Frank Oeschlin's entire stock of blooming plants was booked three weeks before Easter, although his supply was larger than ever before. Truck difficulties were numerous during the Easter delivery, causing annoyance but no delay, as the disabled cars were quickly replaced.

Philip McKee has returned from a business trip in the interest of the American Greenhouse Manuf. Co. An order for a new range has been booked for Ed. A. Humfeld, of Kansas City, Mo. The houses which will be 36' x 150 ft. and devoted to growing roses and carnations, will be erected at Independence, Mo..

Kennicott Bros. Co. are finding their predictions of a banner Easter already fulfilled, for advance orders are footing up away ahead of previous years. As soon as Easter is over they will move to their new location on the opposite side of the street where a much larger place on the ground floor, with plenty of light will give them further opportunity to expand.

The Freres Windler Co., Inc., is now the sign on the door of Room 218 Ashland Block, where formerly it read Dominick Freres. The new member is R. J. Windler, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., where he was in the wholesale and retail flower business. He has lately taken the management of the range of greenhouses on Ridge Ave., owned by Adam Zender, his father-in-law, and will grow stock for the new concern.

The J. C. Moninger Co. has the contract for rebuilding the Rasmussen greenhouses at New Albany, Ind., which were destroyed last week by a tornado. They are old customers of J. C. Moninger whose good work heretofore made it an easy matter for their representatives, who lost no time in getting to the scene, to secure the new order. The greater part of the 175,000 square feet of glass was destroyed.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., sold out completely in their plant department before Easter week began. This looks as if plants were even more popular than ever for each year the big plant growers raise more stock. In the downtown store, business will be facilitated by having the office and samples of the supply department brought to the same floor as the cut flowers. This has been done by cutting a door to the adjoining building and all will be ready for use after Easter.

The spring flower shows at the park conservatories opened last Sunday. Great preparations had been made for this annual event and it was a disappointment to the managers that the day was cold and wet and attendance comparatively small in consequence. At Garfield Park Conservatories the Easter lily was the center of attraction of course, but it shared honor with beds of roses, masses of baby rambles, great beds of cinerarias, amaryllis and Dutch bulbous stock and some splendid specimen rhododendrons. Opposite the entrance of this immense conservatory is the gold fish pond, its banks of rock covered with rare plants and from this position one looks across a mass of green shrubbery and tall trees into the tropical house beyond, where a sunken garden of ferns and palms, encircled by a walk, give the idea of distance not often found in conservatories. It is a place for rest and quiet and real communion with nature.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Paul Bauer, son of Otto Bauer, manager of the Pennock-Meehan store, has been seriously ill with pneumonia.

An extension of the work of conducting investigations on injury to plants by frost and by action of poisonous gases, is to be carried on in Chicago under the direction of Dr. William Crocker. Rodney B. Harvey, microanalyst of the Bureau of Plant Industry, of the Department of Agriculture, has been directed by the Chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry to go to Chicago to assist Dr. Crocker.

The last day of March saw the passing of one of Washington's oldest establishments, for on that day the J. R. Freeman store at 612 Thirteenth street, Northwest, was closed. In its day, it was one of the largest and handsomest establishments in the city. There were in addition greenhouses on Georgia avenue and the large place in Georgetown, the former now controlled by a Mrs. Martin, while the latter was discontinued some time ago. The business was founded over fifty years ago by the late Joseph R. Freeman, who passed away in 1910. Since that time his sons have been running the business. During thirty-five years of this time the store has been largely looked after by Walter F. Payne. Mr. Payne is now going into business for himself and has opened a store at 1303 F street, Northwest.

Roy Rudolph, of Cincinnati, and Miss Irene Wachters are to marry on Wednesday, April 18th. The ceremony will take place at the Evanston Presbyterian church.

PITTSBURGH.

George Crosby, formerly a greenhouse attache for G. P. Weaklen & Co., has been promoted to the designing department.

Rambler roses, Pink Pearl rhododendrons, French hydrangeas, heather and azaleas predominate in the retailers' Easter displays. Baskets of plants festooned with ribbon with dainty effect are shown in brilliant array.

The Pittsburgh Vacant Lot Garden Association has announced the provision of a garden for every deserving family in Pittsburgh under the direction of superintendent J. H. Wiesman. This is the first measure taken towards economic preparedness in the event of war.

Webster T. Ammerman, who has been connected with the landscape department of the A. W. Smith Co., has resigned to accept a similar position in Akron, Ohio. He is succeeded by James W. Phillips, Carnegie Institute of Technology, '06, and Paul Klingensmith of Indianapolis, Ind., who will graduate from Carnegie "Tech." in June.

BOSTON.

Last Saturday afternoon the members of the Houghton Horticultural Society visited the greenhouses of Thomas Roland at Nahant to view the Easter display.

A free lecture on the cultivation of city gardens was delivered by John K. M. L. Farquhar in the Uphams Corner Municipal Building, Monday evening, April 2.

The members of the exhibition committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were the guests of the Horticultural Club of Boston at the Parker House on Wednesday evening, April 4. There was a very interesting discussion on Flower Show problems. The decorations were vases of splendid Darwin tulips by William Sim.

PERSONAL.

F. R. Pierson is laid up with the grippe at his home in Tarrytown, N. Y.

T. J. Nolan, of the King Construction Co., of No. Tonawanda, N. Y., is now associated with Henry S. DeForest in the New York office, 42nd street and Broadway, where visitors are always welcome. Both gentlemen are well known to the trade and the gardening fraternity.

George W. Foulsham has resigned as superintendent of Highlawn farm, Lenox, Mass., and will go to Bethlehem, Pa., to engage in the florist business. He was appointed superintendent of William B. O. Field's place at the time the place was being created in 1907, having previously been in the employ of Spencer P. Shotton at Shadow Brook and at Savannah, Ga. The employees at Highlawn farm presented a purse of gold to Mr. Foulsham.

A VISIT TO CLIFTONDALE.

On Saturday, March 31, the committee members of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and other invited friends visited William Sim's greenhouses at Cliftondale to see his polyanthus primroses and other crops and were rewarded with a sight the equal of which could not be found anywhere in this country at least. Twenty-five thousand polyanthus, enormous plants loaded with bloom were worth going a long way to see. Then there are extensive houses of single violets, from which Mr. Sim estimates he will pick no less than 150,000 flowers for Easter. Through the centre of each bed a line of sweet peas has been set to follow the primulas and violets and these plants are now about three feet high. There is also a splendid house of carnations.

Mr. Sim is giving the auricula a try-out as a florists' spring flower. There is one full-length bed of these plants well flowered with their characteristic "art-colored" blooms. They are somewhat difficult to grow in this climate and require the protection of a cheese cloth shade in the summer.

D. R. Craig, chairman of the garden committee, presided at a little "talk fest" where refreshments were served and appreciative remarks were made by Wm. J. Stewart, W. N. Craig, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, James Wheeler, Robert Cameron and Mr. Sim.

A brief visit was also made to the Revere place of Thomas Roland, nearby, where a 600-ft. house of Christmas Pink Orchid sweet peas was viewed with delight. The vast rose houses were in equally admirable condition, including one lot of 12,000 Richmond, now four years old. Mr. Roland does not try for the big grade of roses. 9 in., 12 in. and 15 in. are his standards and he regards these grades as the most useful.

Lexington, Mass.—An old ice house on the property of the Breck-Robinson Co., was destroyed on Tuesday morning, April 3, by fire supposed to have been incendiary. The nursery stock was not damaged.

A TABLE DECORATION.
"Dutch" Dinner Table at Boston Spring Show, by A. S. Caplan.

Providence, R. I.—W. E. Chappell, secretary of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, is slowly gaining strength and is looking forward to complete recovery in the near future. Mr. Chappell was taken ill on the twenty-third of February and for three weeks was at home so critically ill that the doctor gave no hope of his recovery. Congestion of the lungs and then a gripe complication that affected the heart, with a high run of fever caused him to be delirious and necessitated his removal to the Capitol Hill Hospital. His business has been cared for by his wife.

Flower Market Reports

The market is slow and BOSTON has been slow all week and there is nothing at the time of going to press to indicate what effect the Easter trade will yet have on the heavy surplus with which the market is flooded. Only one item has changed since our report last week—that is carnations. Where they have disappeared to is not in evidence but they are out of sight and the market price has doubled for the time being. Callas have advanced slightly. Other than that nothing has transpired. There are many lilies of inferior quality and they are hard to move at any price.

Trade has been fairly CHICAGO good for the closing weeks of Lent and it is generally conceded that that event now makes little difference with the sale of flowers. Stock is still too plentiful for prices to be high and every one expects more or less to go to waste, but by far the greater part is sold and to fairly good advantage. The street vendors are again at the corners and the ten-cent stores are doing a thriving counter business with flowers, while great trucks of lily plants are seen going to the department stores for the special Easter sales. There is so much offered that is not good enough for shipping trade that every avenue is needed to move the stock coming into this market, and there are flowers enough to supply all branches of the trade, the high grade stock not being lowered in price because of the poorer grades. Southern shipments now coming are confined to poeticus narcissi, daffodils and tulips and tend to lower the prices of corresponding home-grown stock. Common ferns now sell for $3.50 per 1,000 to out of town customers and $3.00 for local trade.

Easter business

CINCINNATI promises to be good.

The supply is large and is meeting with an active demand. Roses are fairly plentiful, also sweet peas and carnations. The Easter lily cut is very large. A fair amount of daffodils, tulips and hyacinths is available and gladioli now are regular factors in the day's market. Excellent snapdragons are coming in. Blooming plants for Easter are in an unusually good condition this year and the supply is large.

There has been very little business done this week in comparison with the heavy receipts of flowers in the wholesale district and the consequent congestion makes the booking of local Easter orders on anything except the rarer specialties a slow process. The retailers are not worrying much about their cut flower stock for the big day but are giving their attention and their store space almost exclusively to the plant business, which promises to be fully up to previous records. A scarcity of plants at the wind-up is looked for by many but he would be a bold optimist who would predict a cut flower famine or talk advanced prices on general stock.

Stock came in in greater abundance during the past week but the demand is pretty good and everything moved off well although at moderate prices. The quality all around is high grade. In roses the Russells, Hadleys and Shaws are especially fine. Ophelia is also very good. The carnation market is in healthy condition but prices are not very high. Recent bright warm weather is bringing them along rather too freely. Sweet peas were never better and while they dragged a little early in the week trading improved later and good prices were realized. Cattleyas are still on the scarce side and have reached the dollar mark on Easter bookings. Lilies are rather too plentiful and are going a little slow, but the demand for callas is excellent. The quality of the latter is unusually good at present. There are lots of bulbous flowers especially tulips and daffodils. The southern grown daffodils are very redundant indeed and much of these arrive in rather poor condition.

PITTSBURGH All augers well for a highly successful Easter. Everything now points to the best of flowers and plenty of them. Roses and hyacinths especially, are of surpassingly fine quality.

ST. LOUIS This market was well supplied during the past week but trade was quiet. War excitement seems to put a damper on business. Transient trade fell off considerable. Easter prospects are that with bright weather a big supply is assured, with perhaps a shortage in fancy stock of roses. Bulbous material is expected to be enough to go around.

WASHINGTON The advent of hot weather has brought a large quantity of stock of all kinds into the market during the week before Easter and to some extent prices were more or less broken. There were far more good Easter lilies than could be normally absorbed. Roses have improved in quantity and quality and are quite good. So many carnations came into the market that the price dropped far below normal. Sweet peas are coming in in enormous quantities and they can be had for little or nothing. Orchids have been scarce and the price has advanced to $12 per dozen. The situation with respect to plumosus is somewhat easier and all ferns now are fairly plentiful. On the other hand, green galax leaves have advanced to $20 per thousand.

The committee of the Connecticut legislature on appropriations was asked at its hearing on March 15 to favor a measure appropriating $1,150,000 for the state park commission for the purpose of acquiring more lands for state parks. The bill also provides for an appropriation of $15,000 for expenses. Lucius F. Robinson of Hartford, a member of the park commission, said Connecticut had lagged behind in the matter of preserving park areas. This state, above all others, should take the initiative in park development.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice*By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and half-tone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

King Greenhouses

KEEP SUMMER WITH YOU THE WHOLE YEAR ROUND

On account of their sturdy special construction which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

Ask us for any of the following: Catalogue showing Commercial Type Greenhouses, Catalogue showing Greenhouses for private estates, Catalogue showing Garden Frames and Sash for private estates.

"Our Greenhouse Is a Model of Perfection." — A. M. Robertson

We erected this Metropolitan Greenhouse for Mr. M. Burrill on his estate at Jericho, L. I.

The contract for this Metropolitan patented best eave, full iron frame greenhouse with bent eave vestibule and stucco service house, also included the masonry, flower box and trellis work.

Being partitioned in the middle, this greenhouse has two compartments, which can be heated and controlled separately.

Mr. A. M. Robertson, superintendent of this estate writes that "it is a model of perfection."

Metropolitan service goes far beyond the mere mechanical process of construction. It strives constantly to increase the producing power of the owner's investment in his greenhouse.

"Upper level" view of Geo. Marshall Allen's house at Convent, N. J.

Lower level, showing the valuable storage space gained.

Erected for A. H. Bull, Elizabeth, N. J.

PRIVATE

Two Interesting Houses

QUITE one of the most unique houses we have built in many a day, is the one with the shingle-thatched workroom, on the grounds of Geo. Marshall Allen, at Convent, N. J. Frederick Parker is the gardener. You may happen to know him and his wire hair dog.

Being located on a steep grade, it was possible to have an upper and lower level.

The lower one was ideal for the boiler-room, and ample space under the greenhouse for storage.

The reason the gable entrance is left up high and dry, is because of the intention to later on add another compartment, same size.

The one erected for A. H. Bull, at Elizabeth, N. J., we show because it is one of those thoroughly practical houses 18 feet wide by 50 feet long, that so many want.

It is our new Semi-Curvilinear Construction, which accounts for the attractive curve of the roof.

It overcomes all the disadvantages, and takes advantage of all the advantages of the curvilinear and curved eave houses.

Our new Private Catalog is filled with interesting subjects. Glad to send you a copy.

For many years one of our most important specialties, our stock this season is again in prime condition, more extensive than ever, with a complete assortment of both standard varieties and novelties.

Roses, Two Year Old Plants for Outdoor Planting

Our Roses are all field grown plants which were dug in the fall, and which during the winter months were potted into 5 and 6 inch pots. They are stored in cold houses and frames, being retarded as much as possible, and are just the sort of stock that will please your retail customers. We are particularly strong on Hybrid Teas but carry also nearly all other types.

Aquatic Plants

Eight acres of Ponds are devoted to Hardy Nymphaeas and Nelumbiums alone, a large assortment of Tropical Nymphaeas, Victoria Regia, etc., as well as sub-aquatic plants for marginal planting. If interested in these, send for our book 'Dreer's Water Lilies.' It is not only descriptive, but gives full cultural directions.

Hardy Shrubs and Vines

A choice assortment of standard varieties—Altheas (including our own splendid novelty William R. Smith) Azaleas, Callicarpa Purpurea, Hydrangea Aborescens Grandiflora, and Paniculata Grandiflora, Cotoneasters, Buddleias, Deutzias, Forsythias, Prunus, Philadelphus, Spiraeas, Viburnum, Weigelas, Ampelopsis, Akebia, Aristolochia, Clematis, Honeysuckles, Wisterias, etc.

Decorative Plants

Palms and Ferns, Aspidistra, Crotons, Dracaenas, Ficus, Pandanus, etc. Amaryllis, Tuberous-Rooted Begonias, Caladium Esculentum and a splendid assortment of Fancy-Leaved Caladiums, Golden Yellow and Spotted-Leaved Callas, Hyacinthus Candicans, Gladiolus, Lilies, Montbretias, Tigridias, Tuberoses, etc.

All of the above and many others are fully described in our current Wholesale List, January to June, which will be mailed upon request only to persons engaged commercially in Horticulture.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Begonias for the Holidays

Begonias should be kept growing right along. Be careful that they do not receive any check by careless culture. Early propagated plants of Cincinnati and Lorraine should now be well rooted in 2½-inch pots and ready for a shift into 3½-inch or 4-inch. Continue to use a compost largely composed of not too much decayed leaf mold and sand, with a little old manure. Stand them on a bench where they will continue to get some bottom heat and have a night temperature of 60 degrees. On all good days spray overhead and see that they do not become dry at the roots. A last batch of leaves can now be put in, but after this date we cannot get so steady bottom heat as during the winter, and propagation becomes more difficult. Propagation from shoots, however, can be successfully carried out until June. Pot off leaf cuttings as soon as they are nicely rooted.

Carnations

The control and prevention of insects and carnation disease depends much upon ideal cultural conditions from first to last. Successful passing over of the critical periods depends largely on correct temperature, ventilation and watering. We are coming now to the season when the plants are attacked by aphids, thrips or red spider. Look them over carefully and fumigate at least every ten days. The best growers regard a night temperature of 50 to 52, 10 to 15 degrees higher during sunshine, and during dark or cloudy days 55 to 57 degrees, is high enough. When outside conditions will permit keep the air sweet by plenty of ventilation. Do not let them dry out too much at the roots, as with the increased length of the day and stronger sun they will dry out quite soon. A good syringing on all good days will keep down red spider and thrips.

Care of Seedlings

When the seedlings are in rough leaf they should be pricked off immediately. Procrastination is abhorred by practical and successful growers. Deprive them of air and they will turn yellow. Give them too much water and they rot off. All these conditions can be avoided if the seedlings have ample room in which to grow. The temperature should be 65 degrees. This will give quick grown but sturdy seedlings providing they are not neglected. In transplanting be careful not to injure the primary root, and avoid crushing the stem. Allow a distance of at least two inches from plant to plant and three inches from row to row. Air space and light help to grow strong healthy plants. When seedlings have a nice quantity of roots and three or four well developed leaves they should be potted into 3-inch pots.

Chrysanthemums

Where you are short of stock keep up propagation without delay. The chrysanthemum is a cold blooded plant and cuttings will root in the sand without any bottom heat whatever. The best success can be had in a north house on which the direct sunlight does not fall. Cuttings will have to be sprayed and watered to keep them from wilting. If allowed to become badly wilted two or three times the tissues get hard and the cuttings will never make satisfactory plants. When cuttings are rooted in an average greenhouse where a mixture of plants are grown and air is applied, different conditions will prevail. Pot off just as soon as they are nicely rooted and keep shaded for a few days, when they will stand full sun. When they have taken a good hold on the soil place them out in a cold frame, which will answer better for them at this time of the year. Keep nicely watered and sprayed during bright weather. When the pots become well filled with roots shift into larger size.

Cyclamens

The glass must now be shaded and do not use any more fire heat than is necessary. Dampen floors and below the benches freely when the heat is on to guard against thrips. Continue to keep the plants in a fairly warm house; 52 or 55 degrees at night will be a good temperature. Young cyclamen plants are still mostly in flats. Keep the surface soil stirred and the plants will grow much better than when you allow a coat of slime or moss to cover it. Shift into 3-inch pots before they are too much crowded in the flats. Use plenty of leaf-mold not too much decayed. This should form half the potting medium. Add a little dried manure and sand; let the balance be loam, light rather than heavy. Keep well up to the glass so they will grow short and robust. On all good days give plenty of ventilation.

Reminders

Keep fuchsias on the move; if allowed to flower now they will not be so free in growth.

A little bottom heat is useful for starting cannas, but is not necessary after they are rooting freely.

Never allow green fly to obtain a hold on young smilax plants; fumigate lightly on its first appearance.

Heat is the worst enemy of chrysanthemums at any time, especially in the earlier stages. The cuttings strike readily without it.

Reduced imports

We understand that some of the leading importers of European azaleas, bays, araucarias and similar florists' nursery stock have cancelled orders previously booked for this spring's delivery, despairing of being able to get the goods over in fit condition if at all. The wise florist, thus forewarned, will take measures to supply himself for next season with a sufficiency of homegrown material and not count upon the foreign supply until he sees it.

Helpful bulletins

The series of popular home gardening bulletins issued during the past few weeks is one of the most directly useful things the U. S. Department of Agriculture has done for the people. These bulletins give evidence of careful preparation. They are simple, easily understood and reliable. Any seedsman or any florist dealing in seeds and young vegetable plants should send to the Office of Information of the Department of Agriculture at Washington and procure copies of these documents and print them for distribution among his customers as a business proposition.

Community spraying

The necessity of spring spraying of fruit and shade trees becomes more apparent every successive season and probably will continue to increase. The expense of a serviceable spraying outfit is considerable and in quite a number of places a plan of community spraying and pruning has been adopted in order to make the cost as low as possible to the owners of small places. This is something that the local florist should not allow to pass out of his hands. Possessed of an adequate outfit and doing the work with scientific proficiency and at a reasonable price he can control the situation indefinitely and make the spraying adjunct a very profitable department of his business.

Seed prices and demand

A New York publication in an otherwise well-written article intimates that the high price of seeds this season will be a potent factor in preventing the raising of greater food crops this year. We would question whether the theory will so work out. The disproportion between the first cost of seeds and the present market value of all farm and garden produce is such that the initial cost should deter no prospective gardener from buying seed—indeed it is more likely to whet his appetite and develop a keener realization than ever before of the indispensability and value to him of good seed. There can be no question that the demand will exceed by far the available supply of all the principal vegetable seed stocks, so it is futile to begin complaining. Better, rather, make a quick move and secure needed supplies regardless of cost. Otherwise it will be a case of go without any.

To increase food crops

As the situation now looms up the food crop question takes on a very practical aspect for many of HORTICULTURE's readers, especially those who are identified with the seed and small fruit industries. It is stated that there are approximately ten million potential home gardeners in this country—including four million boys and girls between the ages of nine and sixteen years who have access to back yards and vacant lots where they might devote a part of their spare time out of school to garden work, and six million older boys and girls and adults who also could give an hour or two daily through the summer to similar pursuits—who under intelligent direction and oversight would be able to add considerably more than half a billion dollars' worth of the very best food of the nation's yearly supply. Gardenless homes have hitherto been the eyesore of our American settlements. Perhaps the grave emergency which now confronts us and practically compels us to cultivate our unoccupied ground may yet turn out to have been "a blessing in disguise." Let us hope so. It is quite obvious that the nurseryman and seedsman will be called upon to work this season as never before. "He that runs may read."

CHRYSANTHEMUMS FOR EXHIBITIONS

A Paper Read Before the Stamford Horticultural Society by Adam Patterson.

The successful grower of fine chrysanthemums for exhibition purposes is not developed in a day, week or year. He must commence at the bottom and learn by experience and practice the fundamental principles which underlie the profession. While the good derived from listing, or reading what another has to say on any subject cannot be overestimated, one must first obtain a good deal of practice in this line before he is in a position to understand what the other fellow is doing. The chrysanthemum grower should take delight in the study and cultivation of his plants as well as in the admiration of the beauty of their form, bloom and foliage.

In order to start right do not leave anything to memory; keep a record of your different operations and at the end of the year you will be able to find out the good and bad points practiced. But of the different varieties started set aside a few plants to be experimented upon. Here you will have an opportunity to test your composts, fertilizers, the taking of the buds, etc. If for any reason you do not succeed there will be no serious loss. Experimental work is of tremendous importance to the chrysanthemum grower and when intelligently pursued will not fail to pay for all the efforts put forth in this direction.

In regard to taking the cuttings I have found it best to propagate as near as possible the last week in February. When selecting the cuttings avoid long weak growths or hard woody cuttings. The best cuttings are those of a moderately soft growth. The cuttings should come out of the sand when they have made roots about half an inch long, as they only deteriorate if left there longer.

Before I go any further I will take up the question of compost. The beginning of all success is to a greater or less degree in having good compost. I always make it a point to get my compost made up early in the autumn. This gives you a chance during good weather to get soil and manure together, and yet leaving plenty of time to work it up into a desirable condition before storing. Compost consisting of two-thirds turfy loam to one-third of decomposed cow manure put into a pile, and then turned over and chopped up at intervals of about every two or three weeks until you have it in good condition, will make the foundation for the growing of fine chrysanthemums later on. It must be remembered that good soil and manure is the first general item to be considered under the head of cultural methods.

Doing things on time and when they need doing applies to the growing of chrysanthemums perhaps with more force than in growing any other plant. When your cuttings have made enough of roots get them out and pot up, for the sooner you can get them into the light and air and the cooler and harder you can grow the young plants the better flowers they will produce. I always pot them into 2½ inch pots and when they are well established place out into a cold frame on sifted ashes, hereby keeping the frost away. They will appreciate this condition by showing a dark green foliage and sturdy growth not to be had in the house. About the end of March or just as soon as they have made a fair amount of roots, I shift into 3 inch pots. From the 10th to the 15th of April I shift again into 4 inch pots. Always remember as the shift becomes larger you will want to use more drainage. This is very important, so you will secure good and effective drainage in every pot. The next shift is into 6 inch pots, and about the 10th of June I shift into their last pots which are 8 inch. When shifting into these pots leave as much space as possible for feeding and top dressing as they may need it. After they are potted into these pots they can be placed where they are to grow in the house. These pots should be placed on a bed of sifted coal ashes, which will keep the worms out and also keep them cool and clean. When they have had every care and attention up to this you are on a fair way toward success.

The next thing of importance is staking and tying. I stretch a wire about 4 feet high over the bench so as to give the stakes some support. During their period of growth they should be kept nicely tied up from time to time.

In producing fine chrysanthemums it should always be remembered that they will need plenty of ventilation at all times, but the growth must be guided entirely by the condition of the weather, as two successive days at any season of the year may demand a difference in the management. It must be remembered that ventilation, which causes a direct draft of cold arid air through the plants is sure to make them suffer, so use judgment at all times. It is in the autumn that requires the greater care for it is then that the weather conditions have to be taken into account. When the flowers begin to open a drier atmosphere is called for so it is always better to have a little heat run through the pipes during September as we are sure to have cool and damp weather, but always keep air on night and day.

Every grower frequently finds it difficult to keep his temperature right. It is quite natural for the inside temperature to be affected by the prevailing outside temperature, but it is to the grower's advantage to reduce these extremes as much as possible. I generally like to keep my house as near 50 degrees at night as the conditions will allow. During the dark and dull weather I let the temperature run up to 60 with air on. This helps to dry the atmosphere of the house, which is important during the fall months.

From May and up to the end of August the plants should be syringed frequently, two or three times a day, but always do the last syringing early enough to have the plant dry off before nightfall. During September you can reduce the syringing to once a day. When they begin to show color discontinue altogether.

During all their growth chrysanthemums will require care as to watering. When the pots show signs of being dry give them a good watering, but never allow them to become bone dry, or on the other hand excessively wet. Watering is one of the most particular points to watch in chrysanthemum culture. In pot culture watering ought to be attended to two or three times a day, watering only those that are dry, using a can if the time permits.

As the plants become pot-bound artificial feeding will have to be resorted to. Watch the plants carefully, and one will soon be able to judge when to start feeding. Aim to have ripe wood and good foliage, and then you can feed safely. Feeding can continue until the blooms are half developed.

Taking the bud is the one thing that will require care and study. It is very hard to fix dates for bud taking. This will have to be governed to a large degree by the climatic conditions. Most buds can be taken after the 15th of August, with fair results.

Chrysanthemums, like all other plants, are subject to disease, but this appears most frequently where a wrong course of treatment in their culture has been followed, or by neglect in any way. Always make it a point to start with nothing but healthy stock. If any of them show the least trace of disease discard just as soon as you discover it. The presence of some species of fungi is a direct reflection upon the skill or care of the grower, as mildew and rust and certain diseases may frequently be traced to the lack of suitable cultural conditions, such as proper ventilation, watering, overfeeding, etc. On the other hand when such conditions are favorable to their growth, fungus diseases will more or less be absent. Where mildew appears there is nothing better than blowing sulphur through your plants. For rust, on its first appearance, spray with ammoniacal mixture every ten days. This will help to check it; also, keep plenty of ventilation on and see that the atmosphere is kept dry even if you have to use fire heat.

In order to keep down the aphids you will have to fumigate at least once a week. When the flowers begin to open there is nothing better than Nico fume paper.

Before chrysanthemums are exhibited they should be placed in water at least 36 hours in a cool dark place where the temperature stands at about 40 degrees. This will help to give substance in every way.

Ex-cavated from the mud,
Up above our purse so high

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The April meeting of the New York Florists' Club held last Monday evening was an enthusiastic one and well attended considering that it was on the day following Easter, 75 members being present. Seventeen new members were elected as follows: Arthur F. Bloodgood, Hawthorne, N. Y.; F. E. Conine, Stratford, Conn.; Daniel Coughlin, Glen Cove, N. Y.; August J. Stotz, Clifton, N. J.; John J. Marquardt, Middle Village, N. Y.; Joseph Trepel, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Henry Baldwin, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; James A. Sullivan, Jersey City, N. J.; A. M. Merian, Rye, N. Y.; William Koehler, Astoria, N. Y.; S. Entracht, New York, N. Y.; Adolph Kruhm, New York, N. Y.; Victor Alzen, New York, N. Y.; Samuel J. Heming, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Theodore Malandre, New York, N. Y.; Henry Rudolph, Essex Falls, N. J.; Ayres Booth, New York, N. Y.

Committees reported as follows: Flower Show Committee—Gross receipts, $44,000; space sold, $15,438; trade tickets, $6,044; adv. in program, $4,000; net results will be about the same as last year. The next show will be March 14-21, 1918. Executive committee on S. A. F. convention—Much progress being made. Dinner Committee—Affair a success in every way. A resolution was passed requesting the Board of Trustees to look into the matter of club funds—i. e., to invest some of it in good safe bonds, as savings banks now refuse to take deposits from clubs such as this.

The new Flower Show Committee was appointed as follows: Chas. B. Weathered, chairman, W. R. Pierson, P. W. Popp, C. H. Totty, F. H. Traendly, John Young, Harry Weston, L. J. Reuter, Max Schling, G. E. M. Stump. J. N. Hoff was not present to give the promised lecture on "Humus," but John Scheepers, at short notice, gave an illustrated lecture on "Tulips."

Exhibits and awards were as follows: Sweet peas by Jas. F. Barclay, Black Hall, Conn., highly commended; Spanish iris and Darwin tulips "Matchless" by P. W. Popp, highly commended; sweet peas by Roman J. Irwin, variegated antirrhinum, by Chas. W. Knight, sweet peas by S. van Riper, Dundee Lake, N. J., carnation "Lucy" by Floral Hill Nurseries, Chatham, N. J., vote of thanks to each.

NORTH SHORE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The North Shore Horticultural Society held its regular meeting on April 6th at Manchester, Mass. Prof. Scherer, head of the Scientific Research Department of the Davey Institute of Tree Surgery, gave a very interesting lecture on the White Pine Blister Rust. By request he also spoke briefly on the chestnut blight and the fungus of the horse chestnut. A good discussion followed. It was voted that the Society offer at once to the National Government their new building for

The building commissioner reported splendid progress. Lord & Burnham Co. have presented the Society with two boilers for heating the building.

It is planned to hold one general exhibition on August 8 and 9, and probably several special exhibitions later in the fall. The following gentlemen are on that committee: Martin H. Warner, chairman, William Canning, Murdo MacKay, Martyn Eyberse and Gustave Ericson.

A vote of thanks was tendered Prof. Scherer for his lecture and to Herman Sanford and William Till for their report as delegates to the Davey Convention.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the National Flower Show Committee was held at the Hotel Biltmore, on the afternoon of Saturday, March 17th, with the following members present:

George Asmus, chairman, Chicago, Ill.; Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Penn.; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; John Young, secretary, New York City; J. J. Hess, treasurer, Omaha, Neb.; R. C. Kerr, Pres. S. A. F. & O. H., Houston, Texas.

There were also present: A. L. Miller, V. P., S. A. F. & O. H., Jamaica, N. Y.; William J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.; William R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; J. F. Ammann, President American Carnation Society, Edwardsville, Ill.; S. S. Pennock, President American Rose Society, Phila., Penn.

The business of the meeting was confined to a discussion of a proposed closer affiliation of the Rose and Carnation Societies with the work of the National Flower Show Committee, looking to an increase in the interest attaching to National Flower Shows. After a thorough threshing-out of various questions the following resolutions were passed unanimously:

"That the American Rose Society and the American Carnation Society be asked and be empowered to send a delegate to attend the regular called sessions of the National Flower Show Committee to assist in arranging for the coming National Flower Show in St. Louis.

"That the American Rose Society be permitted to underwrite the schedule for the rose classes to the extent of $2,500.00; that they be responsible for same, and, in return, will participate in any possible profits from the Flower Show on a pro-rata basis, after the balance of the premium list and expenses are paid. Should the exhibition show a loss, the American Rose Society will assume a pro-rata share of said loss.

"That the American Carnation Society be permitted to underwrite the schedule for the carnation classes to extent of $1,000; that they be responsible for same, and, in return, will participate in any possible profits from the Flower Show on a pro-rata basis, after the balance of the premium list and expenses are paid. Should the exhibition show a loss the American Carnation Society will assume a pro-rata share of said loss."

JOHN YOUNG, Secy.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY

The eighth annual exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society will be held under the auspices of the New York Botanical Society, New York Horticultural Society, and New York Florists' Club, at the Museum Building, Botanical Gardens, Bronx Park, August 23, 24, 25, 26, 1917.

Through the energy and influence of Vice-President T. A. Havemeyer, the

The accompanying picture shows the Holland bulb garden arranged by J. Scherpers & Co., at the New York Spring Show. The hyacinths and tulips comprised quite a few rare varieties and the color scheme was exquisite and much admired by visitors.

Society meets in New York for the first time. The premium list is the largest and most liberal ever issued by any gladiolus society in the world and it is earnestly hoped that gladiolus growers, both commercial and private, will show their appreciation by taking part in the exhibition. Preliminary schedules, comprising 94 regular and special classes, are now ready and copies may be had by addressing H. Youell, Secretary, 538 Cedar Street, Syracuse, N. Y.

HOLYOKE AND NORTHAMPTON FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

The regular meeting was held on April 3, with E. J. Canning, Northampton, a goodly number of members being present. A letter was read from a preparedness committee of Holyoke inviting the co-operation of the Club, and President Strugnell was appointed to represent the Club on that committee. (It looks like working overtime with the hoe this summer.) Alex. Haeseler, of the Smith College greenhouses, read a paper on Cinerarias and Primulas, which brought out a good discussion. We were pleased to welcome an old member in the person of Clark Thayer of the Department of Floriculture of Cornell, who has temporarily succeeded Prof. Nehrling at the M. A. C. Mr. Thayer gave an interesting account of the trials of hardy phlox which have been conducted at Cornell for the past three years. Some very fine spikes of Silver Pink Snapdragon were exhibited by G. H. Sinclair & Son. H. E. Downer showed pots of Narcissus King Alfred and Tulip Wm. Copeland. H. E. D.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The recent flower show held under the auspices of the Toronto (Ont.) Gardeners' and Florists' Association in St. George's Hall was a great success.

Des Moines, Ia.—A guarantee fund of $1,500 is being subscribed among the florists of Des Moines for the big flower show next November, to be held under the auspices of the Iowa State Florists' Association. The Auditorium has been selected and all committees have been appointed. J. S. Wilson is chairman of the executive committee.

Governor Holcomb of Connecticut has named Friday, April 20, as Arbor and Bird Day in that state.

AN IDEAL GARDEN ROSE.

J. D. Eisele, of Dreer's, Riverton, N. J., says that the biggest seller in a new rose that they have ever handled is Los Angeles, and this he regards as good judgment on the part of the public because there can be no question of the success of this new comer as a garden rose. If it were only a forcing variety it would make a record run.

NOW READY FOR DELIVERY

CYCLAMEN GIGANTEUM

Strong transplanted seedlings, 4 to 5 leaves, ready for 2½ inch pots: Glory of Wandsbek, Christmas Cheer, Daybreak, Rose von Marienthal, Pure White, White-Pink eye. For the past 7 years we have been improving the Cyclamen, so we feel confident that you can get no better strain anywhere; $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

BEGONIA GLORY OF CINCINNATI: Strong young plants for growing on, ready for 3 inch pots; $15.00 per 100.

BEGONIA MELIOR (something better): This begonia was introduced by us in 1914; it is "better" as its name indicates. No other flowering plant will last so long in bloom as this variety; strong young plants ready for 3 inch pots, $20.00 per 100.

FLORICULTURAL PATHOLOGY IN THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS.

The work in Floricultural Pathology is directed along three lines,—the diagnosis and suggested treatment of diseases of floricultural plants, the diagnosis of plant diseases other than floricultural ones upon a request for such information, and the experimental investigation of those diseases which at present are causing the most serious loss to the grower. A report upon some phases of this work which may have its practical application follows below.

CARNATION YELLOWS. Much of the conflicting evidence upon this disease among growers and pathologists is due to the similarity between "Yellows," "Bacteriosis" and "Stigmonose." In fact, at certain stages of development it is almost impossible to distinguish between the three without recourse to the microscope and the pure culture methods of the pathologist. A report of the work upon "Yellows," giving the characteristics which distinguish this disease from Stigmonose and Bacteriosis, may be found in The Florists' Exchange, Vol. XLIII, No. 6, and will also be found in the proceedings of the American Carnation Society for 1917. Since the preparation of that paper, the data which has been assembled has resulted in additional information.

If the forcing of the carnation in the early part of the season has resulted in "cropping," and the removal of all flowers has left only the basal portions of the stems, the young shoots developing at this time have always come in yellowed. The tendency to come in yellowed seems to be especially marked if cloudy weather prevails when the young shoots are making a rapid growth, although the results of this may be seen by none except the most careful observer until after the flowering buds start to form weeks after. The reason for this is that at first the yellowed areas are very inconspicuous and can hardly be seen except when held between the eye and the source of light. Later, as the leaf grows and becomes thicker, these spots do not grow in thickness with the leaf and, consequently, appear sunken and are conspicuously yellow or almost white. With an abundance of sunlight the tendency to come in yellowed seems reduced. Yellowed plants have been produced experimentally by the removal of all flowers from plants which have been allowed to crop. The removal of the flowers has resulted in the removal of a great area or leaf surface which is necessary for plant growth. The few leaves remaining on the basal portions of the branches are not sufficient to perform the normal functions of the plant. On the other hand, plants which have never cropped and have always been permitted to retain an average amount of foliage have never become yellowed. The evidence seems to indicate that yellows is an "indication" of improper treatment. The improper treatment mentioned above has produced badly yellowed plants. Other improper conditions are probably capable of producing it.

Suggestions offered for the prevention of this disease are the discarding of unusually susceptible varieties, the taking of cuttings from perfectly healthy and vigorous plants, an early and frequent pinching rather than an occasional severe pinching, the prevention of the cropping of the individual plant as well as of the plants as a whole, an evidence of vigorous forcing during the early part of the season, and, individual attention to each plant to prevent the loss of an undue amount of foliage upon the removal of all flowers.

It is thought, from the observation and the experience of many of the best growers, that an excess of water in the soil and atmosphere at a time when plants are severely or partially cut back will result in the forcing of water, intended for a large leaf area, into the reduced area and result in injury. This may be partially responsible for the more pronounced appearance of yellows during cloudy weather. This point, while suggestive, remains to be proven experimentally, but might well be kept in mind by the grower. While the work upon yellows is by no means completed, it is deemed wise at this time to give whatever information we have to the grower. One thing to be emphasized is that a plant must receive proper treatment, both in regard to soil fertility and methods of culture, at all stages of growth if it is hoped to keep it in a healthy condition. Disease prevention is always more logical and satisfactory than disease cure.

THE FUSARIUM WILT OF CARNATIONS. This disease, known as "dry stem rot" and "branch wilt," varies in severity in different sections of the country and often becomes epidemic in nature. In the southern states this is a serious disease which, when once started, shows up year after year, being responsible for the death or failure of plants to develop after benching. In the North and East, the disease is more spasmodic but often becomes epidemic. Work, here, in connection with a survey of the fungi present in greenhouse soils, has shown that this Fusarium is present in abundance in all carnation soils. Infection, however, seldom takes place if the temperature is held as low as is consistent with the full development of the carnation and if the spacing allows ample circulation of air around each plant. The fungus is most active at high temperature,—a condition to be avoided. Soil sterilization is impractical, for the fungus may be brought into the houses anew on the soil clinging to transplanted plants. However, if the disease has once become serious in a house, it is recommended that the plants transplanted to the field be placed in soil which has not been grown to carnations for some time, and that the

Every Reader of "Horticulture" Needs
DR. L. H. BAILEY'S BRAND NEW
Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture

Six large quarto volumes. More than 3,600 pages. 24 full page exquisite color plates. 96 beautiful full page halftones. More than 4,000 text engravings. 500 Collaborators. Approximately 4,000 genera, 20,000 species and 40,000 plant names

THE New Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture has been freshly written in the light of the most recent research and experience. It is the fullest, the newest, the most authoritative of all works of its kind and constitutes the most conscientious attempt that has ever been made to compress the whole story of our horticultural thought, learning and achievement into one set of books. It is both an Encyclopedia and a Manual.

A Few of the Many Important New Features

Key to Identification of Plants This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

Synopsis of Plant Kingdom This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders, and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters; the number of genera and species and the ranges; a list of the important genera; brief statements in regard to the useful plants; and diagrammatic illustrations.

Illustrations There are 24 colored plates; 96 full page halftones; and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

The Glossary This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works. It comprises botanical and horticultural terms with brief definitions.

Translation and Pronunciation of Latin Names In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

Class Articles Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling. Here are some of the titles of these articles: Ants; Autumn Gardening; Bedding; Diseases; Drainage; Floral Designs; Formal Gardening; Hotbeds and Coldframes; Insects; Landscape Gardening; Lawn Planting; Orchards; Rock Gardening; Subtropical Gardening; Tools and Implements; Village Improvements; Window Boxes, etc.

General Index The final volume contains a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind.

The complete set of six volumes, bound in decorated buckram, will be delivered to you for only $3 down and $3 a month for 11 months, until the full amount of $36 has been paid. Cash price $35.

houses and benches be thoroughly sterilized with a strong fungicide before bringing in fresh soil which has never been grown to carnations. Absolute cleanliness and the destruction of all dead parts of plants are essential for the holding of this disease in check.

This fungus is often serious as a cause of damping off in the propagating bench, as it is quite common to find 95 per cent. of the dead or undeveloped cuttings attacked by this fungus. Ordinarily, it need not be feared if fresh, clean sand is used in the propagating bench.

At present, work is being done to determine if the Fusarium which cause the wilts of tomatoes, potatoes, etc., will attack the carnation. The application may be seen, but until we have complete results, no recommendations in this direction are offered.

In addition to the above, work is being continued upon aster wilt and yellows, and an attempt is being made to produce a rust resistant snapdragon. Now diseases in the form of a bacterial decay of Cyclamens, a crown blight of Ligustrum, and a disease of Canna root stock have been under observation. Serious diseases, other than floricultural ones have also come to our attention.

We wish to remind you, at this time, that the Division of Floriculture of the University of Illinois is always ready to examine any diseased plants which you may send in and to suggest remedies whenever possible.

PITTSBURGH'S EASTER DISPLAY.

Easter signalized the opening of Pittsburgh's three Easter shows, each of which had its own unique distinctive qualities of beauty and originality. The Phipps Conservatory celebrated its twenty-fourth natal anniversary in the midst of many thousands of admirers. Special attention was given the orchid exhibition, which, of course, also included the rare collection recently presented to the conservatory by Dr. John Fremont Shafer. As usual, the lily and rose houses were favorites.

As far as the youngsters were concerned the piece de resistance was "The Springtime of Life," involving a playground with a complete miniature reproduction of the American national game with peopled grandstand, "fans," and all complete. As usual, Mr. Moore's French hydrangeas at West Park were of surpassing quality, while, if possible, the rose, azalea and lily houses were even finer than in previous years. Both the Phipps conservatories are under the regime of Superintendent George W. Burke.

The Henry J. Heinz conservatory in the far East End of the city was again the Mecca of thousands of floral pilgrims. The show house was converted into a beautiful sunken garden effect. There was also a delightful display of orchids and other flowers of the various department sections.

MASSACHUSETTS AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE NOTES.

The total enrollment in the classes in Floriculture for the new term is 37. The following courses in floriculture are to be given this term: Greenhouse Management, Commercial Floriculture, Garden Flowers and Seminar. The latter course is the preparation of a thesis and is open only to seniors specializing in Floriculture.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice

By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and halftone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

FLORICULTURE AT IOWA STATE COLLEGE.

A Floral Art Exhibit and Spring Flower Show was held at the Iowa State College, at Ames, Iowa on Friday and Saturday, March 30th and 31st. This was the first exhibit of its kind ever held at the college and it was well received, making a distinct impression upon people as to the real value of flowers in our daily life. Many were the expressions of delight made by the numerous visitors and among the many comments were heard such remarks as "the finest thing ever done on the college campus," "the most novel exhibit of flowers ever seen in the state," "a truly artistic exhibit."

The various ways in which cut flowers are used, also a great many different flower and color combinations were on display at the exhibit. The object of the exhibit was not only to make a beautiful display but also to educate people in the use of flowers in the home and for personal adornment. There were to be seen all types of flower arrangement from the simple bud vase up to large bridal shower bouquet of valley and gardenias. The numerous novel exhibits proved to be of great interest to the visitors and gave a characteristic uniqueness and originality to the show.

Among the exhibits there was one which attracted the attention of both young and old; it was a complete set of wedding arrangements including the bridal shower bouquet, bridesmaids' shower bouquet, maid-of-honor bouquet, flower girl basket, boutonnières for bridegroom and ushers, and the bridal table. Other exhibits on display were numerous vase and basket arrangements, flower bowl arrangements, corsages, trellis boxes, floral art frames, table decorations, stork baskets, presentation baskets, plant baskets, fern dishes, and also vases, pottery and other ornamental accessories. A large group of spring flowering plants arranged in bank-like form occasioned much admiration and many were the questions asked as to the names of the different plants used in the group.

The exhibit which was a display of the floral work of the students assisted by C. J. Polity of Des Moines, was under the direction of Prof. A. S. Thurston who is in charge of the floricultural work at the college. The class in amateur floriculture showed the various ways in which flowers might be used in the home, while the professional students were responsible for the exhibits of more specialized character.

DES MOINES AUTUMN FLOWER SHOW.

Several of the florists of Iowa met in Des Moines, March 27, for the purpose of discussing the staging of a fall flower show. At this meeting committees were organized and plans were laid for the Des Moines Autumn Flower Show which is to be held Nov. 8, 9, and 10. Another meeting will be held April 11 to hear reports of committees and to take up further business. A guarantee fund of $2,000 or more is being raised among the florists of the state. The premium list will carry about $3,000 in prizes as well as several special prizes.

The preliminary schedules will soon be ready for distribution. It is hoped that a great many of the florists of the middle west will plan to enter in the various classes. It is the hope that this will be one of the biggest and best fall shows that the middle west has seen, but it all depends upon the co-operation of the florists of this section as to the fulfillment of this hope. These dates should be put down by the florists of the middle west as their red-letter days, and furthermore they should plan to be there with their exhibits.

The members of the executive committee are J. S. Wilson, chairman and manager; A. S. Thurston, vice-chairman; Wesley Green, secretary; A. J. Zwart, treasurer; M. J. Wragg, James Denmead, H. E. Lozier. The chairman of the other committees are: Finance, A. J. Zwart; premiums and rules, John Reardon; publicity and program, J. S. Wilson, Jr.; trade display, J. N. Albright; guarantee fund, A. J. Zwart; decorative, Alfred Lozier; growers' and nurserymen's display, H. J. Wragg; special premiums, A. J. Zwart; lectures, A. S. Thurston; music, A. H. Wilson; reception, A. S. Thurston; admission, Wesley Green.

A JUNE OUTDOOR SHOW FOR BOSTON.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for an outdoor flower show such as London is accustomed to see, but which Boston has not seen since 1873. That year the society arranged a modest one on the Common, the third of its kind up to that date, and, although it proved a popular and financial success, it has had no place among the horticultural events of the city for forty-four years. A guarantee fund of about $10,000 has been pledged to cover any possible deficit, so that no liability attaches to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in the event, which is remote, that the admission fees should not cover the expenses.

The site selected for this June Garden is the three-acre triangular lawn in front of the Wentworth Institute on Huntington avenue, bounded on the other two sides by Ruggles street and Parker street. There will be huge tents along Huntington avenue, Ruggles street and Parker street and a large water garden pool and rock garden in the centre, with an orchestra stand and tea tent at one end.

Growers from practically every part of the State and from localities outside, will exhibit orchids, roses, rhododendrons, rock plants, aquatics and azaleas.

There will be no money prizes except such special prizes as may be offered by members or friends of the society. No expense of any kind will fall upon the society. The loss, if any, is to be borne by various subscribers, a dozen or more having already signed a promise to this effect. The exhibition will be open for two weeks.

Manhattan, Kan.—C. A. Scott, state forester, has resigned his position, and has purchased the greenhouses of Henry Moore.

E. B. Grinnell.

E. B. Grinnell, for over fifty years engaged in the evergreen business, died at his home at 776 Elmwood avenue, Providence, R. I., Sunday, April 1st, at the age of sixty-nine years.

Patrick F. Conheeny.

Patrick F. Conheeny, a former employee of the late Thomas Galvin, at Newport, died on March 25. He had charge of the Newport Casino grounds for many years. He is survived by his widow and four children.

Thomas Martin.

"Tommy" Martin, many years in the employ of Traendly & Schenk, New York, as a salesman in their wholesale flower store, died last week after a long decline. He was well known and well liked among the frequenters of the wholesale district.

W. C. LANGBRIDGE.

D. P. Kerrigan.

Daniel P. Kerrigan, an employee of Wagland, the florist, died Tuesday evening, March 27, at Lawrence Mass. Deceased was born in Lawrence. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Kerrigan, and two sisters, Miss Sadie Kerrigan and Mrs. Catherine Morrison.

A. J. Philips.

A. J. Philips West Salem, Wis., died at a hospital in La Crosse, Wis., on March 22, aged 83 years. Mr. Philips was a pioneer horticulturist and fruit grower of Wisconsin and served as secretary of the Wisconsin Horticultural Society from 1892 to 1898. A widow, three sons and two daughters survive him.

Peter L. Bogart

P. L. Bogart, for many years a prominent florist of New York City, died on Monday morning, April 9, after a lingering and painful illness. The funeral services on Wednesday night were attended by a large and representative number of the local florists' trade and floral tributes were many and beautiful. Mr. Bogart was a man of integrity and sterling character and enjoyed the respect of the trade in the fullest degree. He was one of the few left of the old school of florists. The accompanying portrait was photographed a good many years ago but it is the most recent one available.

Henry K. Spence.

Henry K. Spence, for many years head gardener for Mrs. Harold Brown at Newport, R. I., was found drowned on Friday morning, April 6, off the stone pier on the south shore of the harbor by his son, William Spence, and Chief Yeoman William Vincent. He had suffered from stomach trouble for some time and probably left his home near where he was found at 5 in the morning. Mr. Spence was a Scotchman and stood high with his employer and among Newport people. He leaves a wife and six children, one boy being in the navy.

Mrs. H. C. Blewett.

Mrs. H. C. Blewett passed away at Desplaines, Ill., after a very brief illness. Mrs. Blewett was born in London, Eng., coming to this country with her husband 28 years ago and settling at once in Desplaines, where they bought a home and erected a range of greenhouses. Mr. and Mrs. Blewett won the respect of the community by their real worth and it was with keen regret that their friends learned of the death of Mrs. Blewett, who was ill with pneumonia but three days. Three sons and a daughter survive. Interment was in Park Ridge, Ill.

W. C. Langbridge.

Just as HORTICULTURE is about to go to press there comes a telegram announcing the death this Thursday morning, April 12, of W. C. Langbridge, traveling representative of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y. Mr. Langbridge has been critically ill for some time with diabetes and hardening of the arteries and his death was not unexpected. His was a splendid personality and no man in the trade had more sincere friends than did this lovable man. The news which we are now called upon to send out will bring poignant sorrow to many and his passing away is an irreparable loss to the American seed trade.

William C. Langbridge first saw the light of day some time during the year of 1860 on the island of Jamaica, West Indies, and as the climate later was found not suited to his state of health, he, together with his father and younger brother emigrated to New York. Mr. Langbridge was eleven years old when he came to New York and a few years after his arrival there became a member of the Shaker Community founded at Mt. Lebanon, N. Y., where he remained until 1888, filling many positions of trust. During the last four or five years of his career among the Shakers he was sole manager and the traveler for what was then known as the Shaker Seed Company, and besides had complete charge of the seed gardens and trial grounds carried on by that concern. It was here that Mr. Langbridge gained his first knowledge of the seed business and on leaving the Shaker Community associated himself with the Jerome B. Rice Seed Company.

Personal

Edward H. Goldenstein, Chicago, has left the firm of Langhout & Co., Sasenheim, Holland his interest having been purchased by W. Langhout.

Thomas Howden has resigned his position as gardener for Oliver Ames, Prides Crossing, Mass., and will go on a farm at Marlborough, Mass. Archie McDonald of Manchester, N. H., succeeds Mr. Howden.

George Foulsham, who has been superintendent on the W. B. O. Field place in Lenox, Mass., and is leaving to go into the florist business in Bethlehem, Pa., was given a farewell surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Norman last Friday evening. There were present the superintendents of the different Lenox and Stockbridge estates and a number of friends from Lee and Pittsfield. Mr. and Mrs. Foulsham were present under the impression that the gathering was a surprise for one of the young ladies of their acquaintance, and not until Edward Jenkins began to get serious and personal in his remarks, which seemed only a matter of a little fun making at start, did they realize that the gathering was in their honor. Mr. Jenkins did an excellent job concluding with handing Mr. Foulsham a purse of $125 in gold. Mr. Foulsham was very much affected but gathered himself and responded in a pleasing manner, and later, when speeches were being made again referred to the surprise of the occasion, his friendship with the Berkshire men and love for the region.

EDITORIAL EFFICIENCY THE MEASURE

Here's something interesting for advertisers who believe that the way to test the value of a medium is to glance at the paper stock, flip through the advertising section, and let 'er go at that.

E. J. Walker, president of the Walker Bin Company, of Penn Yann, N. Y., one of the largest manufacturers of bins in the country, says that he was "stung" through advertising by using a lot of publications that were not read—and were not read because they were not giving their readers helpful, constructive stuff.

Nowadays he selects his papers according to the appeal they have for readers, rather than according to the surface appeal they make to advertisers, and he is consequently getting results.

"Our experience of twenty years with trade papers," Mr. Walker wrote to Class, "had been expensive and most unsatisfactory.

"Being gluttons for information we attempted to analyze the failure to draw inquiries, for we had

1. Copy prepared by the trade papers, who should have the pulse of their readers under their thumb.

2. Copy prepared by expert writers, the specialists capable of analyzing blood pressures of readers.

3. Copy prepared by ourselves, using a line of arguments that had never failed, even in desperate cases.

"All failed to get results.

"Then a personal canvass among subscribers, with the searchlight of inquisitiveness, disclosed the real trouble.

"The subscribers were not readers.

"The reason was then analyzed and we found that some subscribers re-subscribed through habit—through the subtle influence of a premium—through the cleverness of a canvasser—through an appeal to vanity.

"No effort was being made by the publishers to ascertain why readers failed to read.

"Waste baskets were a veritable morgue for publications incased in their original shrouds, with none but the junkmen to claim the remains.

"Pick up the average trade paper and you'll find that the copy reads like an obituary. Instead of printing a limited amount of readable stuff, an attempt is made to cram it full of senile piffle to increase 'reading matter' so as to make the gullible advertiser clamor for space 'next to' this rubbish."

Class does not believe that this is a fair picture of the trade papers at large, nor even of those in the grocery field, to which Mr. Walker has special reference, as his experience was with publications in that line. The modern trade paper is well edited and actually develops reader interest.

The point for advertisers to consider, however, along with analyses of circulation and other purely technical and mechanical features, is whether the paper contains material which will justify its being read; whether the advertiser, if he were in the position of the subscriber, would spend time in going through the publication. This is a simple, easy test of publication value which few space-buyers think worthy of using—and yet use of it would enable advertisers to select winners every time, because every paper which is worth being read actually is.

Mr. Walker is not an opponent of trade paper advertising, as he is at present running a campaign in half and full pages in The Seed World, Chicago, in which he has secured fine results.

SEED TRADE

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

Washington, D. C.—The seed stores are doing a land office business incident to the campaign fostered by the Department of Agriculture, the newspapers and civic associations for the planting of back yards and vacant lots to reduce the high cost of living. In some instances the business has doubled itself over the same period of last year and at all stores the amateur trade has more than doubled. F. W. Bolgiano, Russell G. Balderson, P. Mann and M. Frank Ruppert are each quoted as of the opinion that the garden seed business is better than at any time in the history of the trade.

NEW CHICAGO FIRMS.

Geo. Fisher & Bro. opened their new store at 181 N. Wabash, Mar. 31st.

The Freres-Windler Co. succeed Dominick Freres in the wholesale cut-flower business at 30 E. Randolph St. Stollery Bros., 1046 Wilson Ave., have made an advantageous sale of their lease and moved across the street.

Emil Reichling, who recently left his position as manager of the Peter Reinberg greenhouses, has gone into the retail field for himself, with a store at 5123 North Clark St. The sign reads, "Emil, The Cut Rate Florist."

Several new ventures have been launched just in time to make a bid for Easter and general spring trade. Apparently Chicago always has room for more and this year is no exception. The Albany Nurseries have filed incorporation papers with capital stock of $10,000. Members of the firm are D. Jacobson, H. H. Stridiron and A. R. Phillips with seed store at 225 W. Madison St. There are already two flower stores here under the name of Albany Florists.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

A. Miller calls attention to the shortage of good lilies for Easter and advocates "preparedness" for next season by placing orders for bulbs with his firm now.

Kennicott Bros. Co., whose house has the distinction of being the oldest cut flower commission house in Chicago, reports one of the best Easters in its history.

H. C. Blewett has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife Mar. 23, at their home in Desplaines, where they have lived 28 years. A more extended notice will be found in another column.

Another member of the trade was relieved of his auto by thieves last week but the car has been recovered. Edward Leonard of the Leonard Seed Co. was the owner and the car was taken from in front of the store.

Anton Then, one of the stock holders of the Chicago Flower Growers' Assn., and Mrs. Then left Friday for the South, where they will spend some time at Magnolia Springs, Ala., where Mr. Then hopes to regain his health.

The new addition to the salesroom of the Poehlmann Bros.' city store is now ready for occupancy. It practically doubles the floor space, is light and will give customers a very convenient place to trade. Accessories have become such an important part of the retail florists' business that it needs almost or quite as much attention as the cut-flower stock, and this new room affords the opportunity of doing all the buying in one place. E. J. Warren is now in charge of their credit department.

Wm. J. Smyth reports an Easter business that exceeds anything in recent years. Their extremely large show windows sold the fine stock before customers came into the store, and they had only to indicate the particular hamper or basket of plants they desired. This method may not make so artistic a picture of a window, for it must necessarily be constantly changing, but it does facilitate sales. The upper half of the windows were trimmed with apple blossoms, so the artistic features were not wholly lost sight of.

Another Easter has become history. Every one connected with the trade is tired and a little glad that it is all over. Few have their books in shape now to make comparisons, but the general impression prevails that it was a splendid harvest time with plants again running ahead of cut flowers. In the retail stores hundreds of hampers were ready for the order of the customer and their attractiveness made them move quickly. Quantities of cut flowers were sold, prices keeping up much better than a year ago, though there was little tendency to go to extremes. The great question seemed to be good lilies, and right here reports will differ. Some firms had just enough first class lilies to supply their customers and so report no shortage, while others were disappointed in not receiving all they had expected and so had to cut short in their shipping trade. On one point all agree and that is, that good lilies were not in over supply.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

President Wilson has just issued a proclamation under the provisions of which the German insurance agencies in the United States will be permitted to continue in business. It is understood that a number of florists have sought fire protection with these companies. It was at first feared that because of their being branches of German companies they would be forced to suspend business. In view of the fact that they keep their assets in this country and that large sums of money are involved, they will not be molested.

Postmaster General Burleson has sent out a notice to postmasters throughout the United States informing them that all mail communication with Germany has been suspended and that all mail matter addressed to people in that country must be held up and sent to the dead letter office in Washington for return to the senders. In another order Postmaster General Burleson directs the suspension of the exchange of postal money orders between Germany and the United States, and postmasters are instructed to refuse the payment of all orders drawn against their offices by offices in Germany on and after April 6.

EASTER IN ST. LOUIS.

In Wm. C. Smith's wholesale mart there was an unusually high class supply. Best of all, the stock was cut right, not hoarded up, and keeping qualities were of the very best in consequence.

All the wholesalers report a rushing Easter business in all lines. Geo. H. Angermueller was especially busy in florists' supplies. A heavy shipping trade was done by C. A. Kuehn and H. G. Berning.

C. Young & Sons' windows were superbly decorated with blooming plants and cut flowers. This house did an immense trade in blooming plants, many orders coming from a long distance away from town.

F. H. Weber's store was a scene of great beauty. Cut flowers were staged in ornamental vases in very artistic fashion. The greenhouse adjoining was filled with a splendid supply of blooming and decorative foliage plants. The beautiful effect produced was entirely without artificial material, ribbons or other accessories.

PHILADELPHIA.

Some half-witted boy burned up Commodore Westcott's hay shipment at Waretown Station the 2nd inst. It will take a hundred to pay for the hay, the platform and the tires and the R. R. Co. refuses to settle because they had not yet loaded and receipted for it.

I just received my copy of the American Rose Annual for 1917. It is so full of good things that it is imperative to say a word even if I am not a rose man except as an adherent. J. Horace McFarland has certainly done himself credit. Send in your name and your dollar. The American Rose Society is the liveliest proposition on the footstool today.

Some of the ill-advised critics of the late National Rose Festival here are making comments on the fact that a lot of money was not made out of it. What do these people suppose a guarantee fund of five or six thousand dollars was put up for? To make money? No. To make an artistic success regardless of gate receipts. We wish in this connection to correct our own dear paper against calling this the "Phila" Rose Festival. It was truly national in its scope.

G. C. WATSON.

MOTHERS' DAY PUBLICITY.

The Publicity Committee of the Chicago Florists' Club has been instructed to carry on a national co-operative advertising campaign to stimulate and create a greater demand for flowers and plants of every description for Mothers' Day, Sunday, May 13, 1917. This movement is strictly a national co-operative advertising proposition, whereby this committee plans to devote the net proceeds of this campaign to the purchase of a full-page advertisement announcing Mothers' Day in one of the leading magazines with a national circulation of 600,000 or over.

To carry out the plan as formulated will be quite an undertaking, and to do so it will be necessary to dispose of a very large number of stamps and window posters. Now then, if every florist in this country does his share to support this movement, this committee will be able to make an announcement of this kind.

TIME IS SHORT—ACT AT ONCE—State amount of money you wish to subscribe for stamps and window posters; forward your check immediately to F. Lautenschlager, 440 W. Erie Street, Chicago, Illinois. Make all checks payable to O. H. Amling, Treasurer, Chicago Florists' Club.

The stamps and window posters to be used in this campaign will be printed in two colors with a border of forget-me-nots. They are a work of art, and should be used by every one in the florist business. The stamps will measure 2½ inches high; the window posters, same color and design as stamps, 7¼ inches high; stamps

An attractive folder in colors has been sent out from the office of Secretary Pochelon to members of the F. T. D., urging a more vigorous exploitation of Mothers' Day as a floral occasion, as follows:

F. T. D. Members:

Advertising out of town floral service has helped many of us to make extra sales for Easter, now let us all advertise the F. T. D. Service for Mother's Day, and advertise it with every chance possible.

Not alone do everything in your power to give publicity to Mother's Day, but be doubly sure that every order from out of town florists to F. T. D. members is taken the best care of.

Yours for a better and more efficient floral service to the public, as well as from florist to florist.

Sincerely yours,

ALBERT POCHELON,

Sec. F. T. D.

Glenwood Springs, Col.—Mrs. and Mrs. Lewis have purchased the Glenwood Greenhouses, and have leased their retail store, the Charlsen Flower Shop, Emporia, Kan., for two years.

BOSTON This year gave Boston the third stormy Easter in succession. Easter Sunday itself was a beautiful day but the "florists' Easter"—Friday and Saturday—could hardly have been much worse as to weather and naturally it had a dispiriting influence on the flower market. Stormy Easters are getting rather monotonous. Nevertheless, Boston reports a splendid record for both flower sales and plant sales. Lilies ran short of the call early in the game. Some of the growers were late with their lilies apparently and had tried too late to drive them in on time, the result being a lot of green half-developed stuff that in ordinary times would be unsalable but on this occasion found plenty of buyers. There were, however, many very fine lilies in the hands of those retailers who had secured their supply well in advance. Roses were plentiful except in the case of the red varieties, of which more could have been sold. Carnations made a surprising record. Violets did likewise, only more so, bringing prices not touched since Christmas. We refer to the single ones; doubles were moved with difficulty. Yellow narcissi were a burden too gigantic for this market. Never before have so many been in sight and they were not southern but local greenhouse grown. Snapdragon was not strongly in evidence but it had a very cool reception. Yellow primroses were had in unprecedented quantity but all were disposed of and at good prices. The same is true of sweet peas except the holdovers from the early part of the week. Fine pansies brought $2.00 per hundred readily. The retailers are all well satisfied with their experience and the wholesalers are jubilant. It is safe to say that more flowers changed hands than at any previous Easter in the history of this market—and all this in spite of war excitement and inclement weather!

CHICAGO Wholesalers are having a breathing spell. Ever since shipping trade began, the steady stream of business has kept all busy and the quiet that has come with the Monday after, is most grateful to all. The market was well supplied with flowers for Easter and with some few exceptions there was enough for all and but little to spare of choice stock. Retailers had a splendid trade that kept them buying well into Sunday with the result that when night came many had sufficient stock left for the light trade that naturally came Monday and Tuesday. Out-of-town trade was good and used up a large proportion of the best the market afforded. More short and medium American Beauties could have been used and the same can be said of Mrs. Russell roses. At this writing counters and ice boxes hold quantities of stock and unless some unforeseen demand comes for them they are not likely to all find sale. One good thing this Easter was the absence of last minute telegrams. Whether the out-of-town trade has awakened to the fact that belated orders cost as much or more than early ones and do not have the chance of being filled so carefully or whether the cry of preparedness has taken hold of them is not known, but certain it is, more early orders and less late ones was the experience of many.

CINCINNATI The Easter business was one of the best for that day that this market ever has had. All of a good supply cleaned up quickly. Shipping business was excellent. Roses were in a good supply but were not quite as plentiful as was anticipated previous to Easter. Carnations were in a good supply. Easter lilies were in abundance and generally of a high quality. A limited amount of tulips, daffodils and hyacinths were available. Sweet peas, lily of the valley and orchids sold well. Among other offerings were callas, gladioli, snapdragon, violets and stocks.

Easter week began

high temperatures of

Saturday and Palm Sunday was responsible for a large cut of roses and general stock and with a weak demand kept the market depressed during the week. The retailers were in anything but a cheerful mood up to Friday when their plants began to move and Saturday cleared up that situation for them in a generally satisfactory manner. Cut lilies were all cleaned up rapidly and there were probably more of these sold during the week at good prices than for many years previous. Callas also found a lively market. White carnations moved slower than usual Wednesday, when it was expected an extra demand would develop for use in the churches, and for the balance of the week they were in generous supply and did not clean up at all satisfactorily. The carnation end was distinctly disappointing. As the week wore on dark weather and lower temperatures reduced the supply of roses and they cleaned up well on Sunday morning. Beauties were more plentiful, proportionately, than any of the other varieties, much too plentiful to maintain a staple price and some were carried over. Some fine Hadleys out-sold the Beauty. There were some excellent Brunners and they brought good prices. Ophelia sold well and led the teas in popularity and there were some fine flowers of these in the market with stems 2-foot and over. Fine stock in all varieties of roses was in demand and averaged up well. Cattleyas were very scarce. All week long there was a deluge of daffodils and jonquils and there were enormous quantities of them sold, also much that was not. The South contributed to make the situation difficult. The better sorts of tulips were towards the end of the week readily marketed at fair prices but many were poor, both as to color and quality. Cattleyas were scarce and brought good prices when of satisfactory quality. Lily of the valley was scarce and generally poor and good prices were realized this year for stock which would be discarded formerly as culls. Sweet peas were a factor for a day, were in ample supply, and generally of excellent quality. The supply of iris was rather more than the demand. Gardenias did as well as could be expected considering the ample supply; there seemed to be plenty of the inferior grades for the street boys. Violets worked off fairly well when good, but many were kept hanging too long on the plants only to lose their fragrance. Of miscellaneous flowers, snapdragons, stocks, primroses, daisies, etc., there were plenty—rather more than was wanted. As the South has begun shipping asparagus there was plenty and to spare of that and accumulations remained unsold. On the whole, considering that the country had declared war only the day previous, results should be considered satisfactory, for the bulk of Easter business done was no less than in previous years. There were very few novelties in plants but practically all good plants found a market, the moderate priced stock being generally preferred.

PHILADELPHIA From all accounts the Easter week cut-flower trade in this city was ahead of the good record of last year. Some say "fully as good," others say "ten per cent. better," still others "twenty-five per cent. better." There was no great boom in prices (with possibly the exception of cattleyas), and nearly everything could be had at reasonable figures to satisfy the purses of all—which is as it should be, and showed a healthy ratio between supply and demand. There was an unexpectedly good clean-up on lilies which are usually liable to be a drug at the wind-up. The late Saturday cuts of American Beauty roses hung fire for the simple reason that the retailers had already bought all they could use. Hadleys were a great feature. Never have we seen finer flowers of these. Russells were also very fine. Carnations were excellent and there was a big demand especially in the dark colors, one of the best being Belle Washburn, which topped the list in popularity. Its one fault is a rather brittle stem. Sweet peas were all that could be desired both in quantity and quality, and the sales of same were immense. Usually violets are in the doldrums at Easter, but this year was a most gratifying exception. They cleaned up splendidly at good prices. Daffodils were in large supply, especially Southern, and fine as the market was it could not absorb all of them. The same may be said of tulips. The plant men so far as we have heard to this writing have had the best Easter ever. Everything salable cleaned up clean. All the growers are sending praises aloft that the big snowstorm held off until Sunday night.

ST. LOUIS Easter business was from all accounts very good and wholesalers, retailers and plant men seemed to be well satisfied. The supply was good. Easter Sunday morning there was a regular blizzard with high winds, snow and sleet which continued to fall all day. This greatly impeded transient trade, also the delivery of plants, but notwithstanding these handicaps the Easter of 1917 will be known as a good one for all concerned.

WASHINGTON Rapid climatic changes were of the features of the market last week, starting with hot weather on Monday that brought flowers of all kinds into the market by the thousands, growing cold on Wednesday and slackening up the supply materially and finishing on Easter Sunday with a snowstorm the equal of any of the winter. Sweet peas were the hardest hit, as enormous quantities were received early in the week, and these the wholesalers were unable to move because of their soft condition. The cold weather materially lessened the supply and at the last minute they started to pour in again. Double violets from Hudson River points also came in heavy the first of the week, and these could not be moved at hardly any price. The condition later changed and on Sunday they cleaned up. Lily of the valley sold up close at $8 per hundred. American Beauty and other red roses, also carnations, were in very good demand. There was an oversupply of Easter lilies and other potted plants and enormous quantities of daffodils, hyacinths and other spring flowers were sent in to be disposed of. Considering the bad weather, both wholesalers and retailers did very well.

MASTICA

For Greenhouse Glazing

USE IT NOW

F. O. PIERCE CO.

12 W. BROADWAY
NEW YORK

Mastica is elastic and tenacious, admits of expansion and contraction. Putty becomes hard and brittle. Broken glass more easily removed without breaking of other glass as occurs with hard putty. Lasts longer than putty. Easy to apply.

Evans 20th Century Arm

Most up-to-date arm on the market. Proof that it is better than any other is that others tried to imitate it. Write for our 1916 catalog just out.

The Florists Hall Association rate of insurance from Nov. 1st, 1916 to Nov. 1st, 1917 will be twenty cents per hundred square feet of single thick glass and eight cents per hundred square feet of double thick glass. For particulars address JOHN G. ESLER, Sec., Saddle River, N. J.

Metropolitan Greenhouse Reorders

Reorder customers, are, after all, the greatest assets any business can boast of. Reorders are absolute, undeniable proofs of satisfaction, in every respect—quality, economy and service.

The first greenhouse (the one in the foreground) is a portable house, which was erected for the Hicks Nurseries, Westbury, L. I., for experimental purposes. The results obtained therein were so surprising that a second one of our patented construction was erected, and now their third greenhouse (the one in the background) has just been completed. Notice that provision has been made to extend this house to larger proportions when desired.

These reorders from so prominent a concern should be ample proof of this organization's satisfactory service.

Can you beat it for lightness and freedom from complicated trussings?

The 9 Space House

NINE, 16 inch lights, between rafters, instead of the old six.

Three more lights to a space, three less posts, columns and rafters in every 100 feet.

In spite of the fact that the roof bars, purlins and rafters are each made slightly heavier; you have a house of a noticeably increased lightness. What shade there is; is more widely diffused.

Very naturally, you would think increasing the rafter spacing, would make necessary either more columns across the house, or an elaborate complication of trusses.

Quite to the contrary.

So carefully has the entire frame been worked out, from an engineering standpoint, that we can build a house up to 78 feet, and only use two columns. The trussing, instead of being complicated, is by far the simplest we have yet used.

One thing this construction surely points out strongly, and that is: it's not so much a question of how much iron you use in a house; as it is how you use it.

So don't allow yourself to be side-tracked on a construction having a lot of criss-cross trussings and bracing, that look strong.

When you are ready to talk building, say when and where and we'll be there.

"Get them at Dreer's"

Hardy Perennials

For many years one of our most important specialties, our stock this season is again in prime condition, more extensive than ever, with a complete assortment of both standard varieties and novelties.

Roses, Two Year Old Plants for Outdoor Planting

Our Roses are all field grown plants which were dug in the fall, and which during the winter months were potted into 5 and 6 inch pots. They are stored in cold houses and frames, being retarded as much as possible, and are just the sort of stock that will please your retail customers. We are particularly strong on Hybrid Teas but carry also nearly all other types.

Aquatic Plants

Eight acres of Ponds are devoted to Hardy Nymphaeas and Nelumbiums alone, a large assortment of Tropical Nymphaeas, Victoria Regia, etc., as well as sub-aquatic plants for marginal planting. If interested in these, send for our book 'Dreer's Water Lilies.' It is not only descriptive, but gives full cultural directions.

NEW HYBRID-TEA ROSE, LOS ANGELES

Hardy Shrubs and Vines

A choice assortment of standard varieties—Altheas (including our own splendid novelty William R. Smith) Azaleas, Callicarpa Purpurea, Hydrangea Aborecens Grandiflora, and Paniculata Grandiflora, Cotoneasters, Buddleias, Deutzias, Forsythias, Prunus, Philadelphus, Spiraeas, Viburnum, Weigelas, Ampelopsis, Akebia, Aristolochia, Clematis, Honeysuckles, Wisterias, etc.

Decorative Plants

Palms and Ferns, Aspidistra, Crotons, Dracaenas, Ficus, Pandanus, etc.

Amaryllis, Tuberous-Rooted Begonias, Caladium Esculentum and a splendid assortment of Fancy-Leaved Caladiums, Golden Yellow and Spotted-Leaved Callas, Hyacinthus Candicans, Gladiolus, Lilies, Montbretias, Tigridias, Tuberoses, etc.

All of the above and many others are fully described in our current Wholesale List, January to June, which will be mailed upon request only to persons engaged commercially in Horticulture.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Asters

There is no doubt that the finest asters are raised on light, sandy soils, deeply plowed or dug and quite heavily fertilized with rough barnyard manure the year previous. I like to have the land well plowed, manured and thoroughly prepared in October or November. Where this was not done prepare the ground now by giving a large amount of barnyard manure and a good sprinkling of bone dust and wood ashes which should be thoroughly incorporated with the soil. It will always be more profitable to fertilize one piece of ground well than a larger piece imperfectly. Indoor grown plants should first be well weaned to open air conditions by placing in a cold frame where during good days the sashes can be removed. Prick out the stock as soon as they are ready.

Camellias

Those who grow camellias that are wanted in bloom by Christmas should by this time have them started into new growth. They should have abundance of water in their growing season, but soil must not be kept in a soaked condition. The plants require a shaded house during the summer. They are much more easily managed under glass than when put in the open. When they have just fully completed their season's growth, which can be easily known by the developed terminal leaf of each new shoot, withhold water until the new growth shows signs of flagging which will cause the forming of a fine crop of flowers instead of the buds dropping before opening. All through the summer keep them growing by giving plenty of water at the roots, with a good syringing during bright weather.

Place Stock in Frames

Get the cold and hot frames into shape at once, ready for business. A lot of stock can be brought out and do as well, if not a lot better than in the greenhouse. Almost anything will thrive in a congenial frame. As chrysanthemums come along these, too, can go out and are as well off in a frame; in fact all cold house stock can soon be moved and valuable space can be obtained in this way indoors. It wouldn't do to take freshly potted, rooted cuttings and place them into a frame at this time, but stock which has been potted up a month or more and has been kept in a well ventilated house can go out and will not suffer much if the temperature should go down near the freezing point.

Next Week:—Bougainvilleas; Compost; Tuberous Rooted Begonias; Pelargoniums; Phalaenopsis; Reminders.

Summer Climbers

If you haven't sown maurandia do so at once. This beautiful little trailing plant comes in handy for the filling of small hanging baskets and window boxes. Thunbergia is another. Where a mixture of plants can be used in a window box or vases it should be included. Sow now and let the plants come along in a house with plenty of moisture. It is time to sow Cobaea scandens. We can't do without this useful summer climber. The plants toward the end of April and early May will grow six inches over night and it keeps one busy tying them up. When the seedlings are large enough to handle pot into 2½ in.; pinch back and shift into 4 in. or 5 in. pots and give each a good stake. The variegated glechomas which have been overwintered in a frame or cold house, should now be brought to a carnation house temperature, divided and planted into 3½-in pots.

Swainsonas

Where you have some pot plants give them a temperature of from 55 to 60 degrees at night. Plants that have been growing thrifty will have a lot of material fit for propagation. The best cuttings are those selected out of the axil formed by the leaf and main stem. These can just be pulled out sideways and will not need any trimming. Place in a moderately warm propagating bench and by keeping them shaded and watered for about twelve to fifteen days they will root nicely, after which they can be potted into 2½-inch pots using a compost of fibrous soil three parts, leaf mold and well rotted cow manure one part each. Keep shaded and moist for a week or ten days and they will be all right. Shift as they may require it so as to keep them moving.

Reminders

Keep spreading out the bedding geraniums, as you can afford them more bench space.

Sow cornflowers, annual chrysanthemums, mignonne and other hardy annuals in clumps and lines.

Smilax that has been cut down for Easter and has been kept on the dry side since, should now be in good shape for mulching, restringing and starting again.

Water pansies in frames freely. Remove the sashes during the daytime and on warm nights. To keep them stocky take away the last of the mulching from outdoor plants.

Horticulture coming into its own

Prof. A. S. Thurston's account of what they are doing in the Iowa State College to teach practical horticulture, which appeared in last week's edition of this paper, shows that they are working on right lines and are "getting there" and the course being pursued will go far to strengthen the tie that binds commercial floriculture and the more progressive and wide awake of the state agricultural institutions. The methods of training now prevalent in such places as Ames, Cornell and Amherst gives promise of a particularly high class of intelligence and ability in the coming generation of florists. This somewhat tardy recognition has been worthily won by the men engaged in floriculture. They had to go it alone for many, many years.

Misrepresentation

The ignorant and "irresponsible" newspaper reporter is certain to break out somewhere when Easter or any other floral day comes around and his statements are made with a reckless disregard of their authenticity or of the injury their publication may inflict upon the florist business. This time he seems to have got loose in Pittsburgh for the Easter season for after telling the readers of one of the leading dailies of that city that "nine out of every ten persons on the streets had some kind of a plant or bloom in their arms or on their clothing" he goes on to state that violets were $3.00 a bunch in the high-priced shops and 25 cents on the street corners" and that "sweet peas that brought $2.50 a bunch in the larger shops could be purchased for 15 cents in the market district"! A pretty strong indictment, surely of the methods of the Pittsburgh markets and of the "larger shops."

By permission of the publishers we have the pleasure of presenting to the readers of A tree hunt HORTICULTURE some very interesting extracts from one chapter in the new book by E. H. Wilson entitled "Aristocrats of the Garden." The engrossing story of how Mr. Wilson found Davidia involucrata in the wilderness of China fills twenty pages in the book, and our available space would only admit a small part of it. Enough is given, however, to deeply interest any tree lover and show them how our gardens came into possession of one of the most beautiful and remarkable of all trees. Without any of the overdrawn features which orchid collectors and others have sometimes indulged in and told in Mr. Wilson's simple narration of the difficulties which confronted him should awaken a better appreciation of the men and the means whereby our gardens become enriched with the multitudinous gems from distant lands; of the time and money spent in the quest and of the toll paid in human energy and life. It has been truly said that "if the denizens of our gardens could give speech their story would be more engrossing and romantic than that told or conceived by authors of the "best sellers."

THE STORY OF THE DAVIDIA

In the year 1899, under instructions from Messrs. Veitch, E. H. Wilson set out from Liverpool for the interior of China in search for Davidia involu-crata. In the new book, Aristocrats of the Garden by Mr. Wilson, published by Doubleday, Page & Co., is given a description of the voyage and the subsequent adventurous land journey—a most entertaining narrative of travel by primitive means, through many perils, at a period of insurrection and riot. A country about the size of New York State was laid out for the search which happily resulted in the introduction of every known seedling plant, but one of this remarkable tree. Our readers' will be interested in the following brief portion of Mr. Wilson's narrative.

Ichang, where I arrived on Feb. 24, 1900, was to be my headquarters for two years so I made plans accordingly. I purchased a boat of good size in which to live and to serve as a base of supplies, and engaged some countrymen to assist me in collecting. The all-important arrangements completed, a series of short prospecting trips up country from Ichang were undertaken for the purpose of getting some acquaintance with the flora and for testing and training my men. By the middle of April (one year after the start from Liverpool) everything was ready to start in quest of the Davidia. On a half page of a notebook Dr. Henry had sketched a tract of country about the size of New York State and had marked the spot where he had found growing a single tree of the Davidia, the only example he had discovered in a trip which extended over six months and the only one he had ever seen. The place was among high mountains in the sparsely populated region bordering the provinces of Hupeh and Szechuan and south of the mighty Yangtsze River. This locality was my destination and this solitary tree my sole objective.

On the morning of April 15 I left Ichang in my boat, to ascend the Yangtsze as far as the district city of Patung where I arrived on the 21st idem. The journey was exciting, for the rapids which are very numerous were at that season difficult to negotiate. Twice we ran on rocks and had to repair damage. At the worst rapid the boat all but capsized and there were other and numerous incidents which space will not allow me to mention in detail. At Patung the head official did his best to frighten my men and begged me to abandon the enterprise. Finally, his efforts proving of no effect, he promised an escort of six soldiers and washed his hands, as it were, of the business. The man was in earnest and genuinely afraid for my safety. Some two years before there had been much trouble in this region. Rioting between anti-Christian and Christian villagers had taken place; hundreds of lives had been lost and whole villages burnt to the ground, and a Roman Catholic priest—Pere Victorin—brutally murdered and his corpse barbarously mutilated. A feeling of bitterness and hate still rankled and there was grave danger of some untoward incident causing the smoldering anger to blaze out afresh. Of all this I was fully aware, but my mission was to obtain Davidia involu-crata and in furtherance of this I did not think of causing trouble of any kind.

Having arranged for my boat to journey some fifty miles upstream to Paishih I left Patung on the morning of April 22nd, and followed a paved steep road. On the evening of the 23rd idem I reached the Roman Catholic Mission station at Hsi-sha-ho and found I was the first foreigner, save Roman Catholic priests, to visit the place since Dr. Henry. I found here a Belgian priest, on a visit to his converts. He—courteous and scholarly, like all his class—made me welcome. He had been the companion of the priest murdered two years before and he gave me a full account of the whole tragedy. In his Bible he carried a set of photographs of the late Pere's remains—gruesome, nauseating and horrible to look upon. The affair had taken place some fifteen miles from Hsi-sha-ho and my host said he expected trouble again this year, as, two weeks before, a party of outlaws had tried to burn down his house but, luckily, had failed.

Leaving the priest to his work, his gloomy forebodings on the future, and the tragic memories of his lamented companion, I took a cross-country road and on the afternoon of the 25th reached the hamlet of Ma-huang-po and the house where Dr. Henry had stayed when he found the Davidia tree on May 17, 1888. Did the people remember Dr. Henry? Did they know the K'ung-tung (local name of Davidia)? To these and similar questions they pleasantly answered in the affirmative. Would some one guide me to the tree? Certainly. We sallied forth, I in the highest of spirits. After walking about two miles we came to a house rather new in appearance. Near by was the stump of Henry's Davidia. The tree had been cut down a year before and the trunk and branches formed the beams and posts of the house! I did not sleep during the night of April 25, 1900.

On the first of May I was back at Ichang with my mind made up to collect all the plants I could in western Hupeh during the year, and in the late winter journey westward a thousand miles, and there hunt for the Davidia in the region where it was first discovered by Pere David in 1869. With this resolution made I let the subject drift from my mind. On May 19th when collecting near the hamlet of Tawan, distant some five days southwest of Ichang, I suddenly happened upon a Davidia tree in full flower! It was about fifty feet tall, in outline pyramidal, and with its wealth of blossoms was more beautiful than words can portray. When figuring Henry's fruiting specimens in Hooker's "Icones Plantarum" [XX. t. 1961, (1891)] the Keeper of the Kew Herbarium wrote: "Davidia is a tree almost deserving a special mission to western China with a view to its introduction to European gardens." On beholding this extraordinary tree for the first time I no longer marvelled at the Keeper's strong language. And now with a wider knowledge of floral treasures of the Northern Hemisphere I am convinced that Davidia involucrata is the most interesting and most beautiful of all trees which grow in the north temperate regions. The distinctive beauty of the Davidia is in the snow-white connate bracts which subtend the flower proper. These are always unequal in size—the larger usually six inches long by three inches broad, and the smaller three and one half inches by two and one half inches; they range up to eight inches by four inches and five inches by three inches. At first greenish, they become pure white as the flowers mature and change to brown with age. The flowers and their attendant bracts are pendulous on fairly long stalks, and when stirred by the slightest breeze they resemble huge butterflies or small doves hovering amongst the trees. The bracts are somewhat boat-shaped and flimsy in texture, and the leaves hide them considerably, but so freely are they borne that the tree, from a distance, looks as if flecked with snow. The bracts are most conspicuous on dull days and in the early morning.

Later, I found two other trees in the same neighborhood and, in localities varying from fifty to one hundred miles apart, eight others. These eleven trees were carefully watched through this anxious year of the Boxer trouble; they fruited freely, and in November I gathered a rich harvest of seeds which were despatched to England, where they safely arrived in due course. In 1901, when on an expedition through the northwest of Hupeh, I discovered the Davidia in quantity and more than a hundred trees became known to me. From these hundred trees I did not secure a hundred seeds, and during subsequent visits to China extending over a decade I never again saw Davidia fruiting in the manner it did in 1900. The fruit may be likened to that of a walnut, but is more or less ellipsoid, or, more rarely, roundish in shape and about one and one fourth to one and three fourths inches long. The color is greenish russet and slightly reddish on one side and the flesh is very thin and gritty. The "nut" consists of a number of seeds arranged around an axis and embedded in woody tissue as hard as flint and absolutely unbreakable. On their arrival in England in the early spring of 1901 the "nuts" were sown in various ways—some in strong heat, some in boxes and pots and placed in various temperatures, others (and the larger quantity) out of doors in a prepared seed-bed. Some were soaked in hot water, some in cold, others were filed down—in short, everything that a skilled and resourceful propagator could think of was put in operation. Weeks passed, months passed, and nothing happened. When I reached England at the end of April, 1902, not one seed had germinated and grave fears were expressed—failure almost anticipated. I made it my first business to examine the seeds. Those indoors under various conditions, save for being blackened, exhibited no apparent change and no signs of germination. Those in the seed-bed out of doors had been subjected to the winter's frost, and on digging out, a few signs of change were apparent. Some of the "nuts" exhibited slight longitudinal cracks from the summit to about two thirds down; in others a narrow valve-like shutter was forced back slightly and the tip of a root showed clearly. All was well. In a month or so thousands had sprouted, and from this bed an assistant and I potted up more than thirteen thousand plants, of which nearly every one grew. Of the seeds sown indoors scarcely a single one ever germinated.

I brought home with me, in 1902, three or four living plants and these were planted in various positions in the Coombe Wood nursery and in the summer grew amazingly. So, too, did the seedlings, and Davidia immediately made itself at home in England. The first to flower in England was a seedling plant in the Coombe Wood nursery in May, 1911, and a cut branch was exhibited by Messrs. Veitch at the famous Temple Show on May 23rd, and received a First Class Certificate—the Royal Horticultural Society's highest award. Since that date many have flowered in various places and fruit was produced in 1915. In Kew Gardens there are now trees nineteen feet tall and thirteen inches in girth of stem.

TWO WILSON LILIES

During the year it has been possible to set at rest all doubt as to the specific distinction between two Western Chinese Lilies, L. Thayerae and Willmottiae, concerning the relationship of which there has been a good deal of doubt since Wilson put them into Western hands some years ago.

Though there has never been any difficulty in distinguishing typical plants one from the other, a general and superficial family resemblance is probably responsible for the notion that the two plants are but forms of the same thing. If all else failed, however, it seems clear from an examination of the capsules that the two lilies should be kept apart.

L. Thayerae originally came into cultivation from Messrs. Veitch's nursery as L. sutchuenense (Franchet), under which name it is grown at Kew, and it has always been a little difficult to understand how the robust and floriferous plants one may see in bloom at Kew ever came to be regarded as identical with Hooker's dwarf and lax-stemmed L. sutchuenense of the Bot. Mag., t. 7715.

The identity of L. Willmottiae (Wilson) is even now not certain, and Wilson inclines to the view that it may be the true L. sutchuenense of Franchet, not to be confused with L. sutchuenense of the Bot. Mag. around which a fog of uncertainty and doubt has gathered. The point will doubtless be cleared up ere long, and, however that may be, there is no question but that L. Willmottiae, as we must continue to call it for the present, is a remarkably fine garden plant, distinct from any others of the pseudotigridium section which have come under our notice up to the present. —A. Grove in Gardeners' Chronicle, London.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice

By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, clones, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and half-tone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

DINNER OF THE "INTERNATIONAL" FLOWER SHOW COMMITTEE.

The labors of the joint committee of management of the 1917 International Flower Show, New York, were brought to a close with a business meeting and banquet at the Hotel Biltmore, on Thursday evening, April 12th. There was a full attendance, and the only guests were Messrs. Kerbel and Colwell, the publicity agents, Arthur Herrington, exhibition manager, and William Delano, the well known architect and landscape artist.

The menu was excellent, and the spirit of the success of the Show was manifest in the discussion of this most important feature of the function. Chairman T. A. Havemeyer presided, and in the early course of the proceedings singled out Chas. H. Totty, Chairman of the Board of Jurors, by pressing upon that gentleman the acceptance of a beautiful diamond pin, a mark of appreciation by his fellow members of his work in connection with the flower shows generally, and especially of his great ability shown in the organization of his co-workers in the difficult task of making awards. Mr. Totty, taken by surprise, made a feeble but heart-felt response, assuring the committee that his efforts had resulted from a sense of duty to his fellows and the objects of the shows, sentiments which, without doubt, actuated also the work and interest of all the other members of the committee. Record of the work of individual members of the committee was not wanting. A vote of thanks to the Secretary was unanimous, as was a similar vote to Treasurer F. R. Newbold for his interest and influence, strong factors in the success of the show, also a standing vote of thanks to Chairman T. A. Havemeyer who had devoted so much time to the work of the show.

Everybody seemed happy over the reported financial success of the Fifth International Flower Show, and several made speeches expressing their feelings in this respect, promising their best efforts to promote the 1918 show and carry it to a successful termination.

The arrangement of the next show was the prime object of a discussion which amply supplied the entertainment feature of the dinner. Each member of the committee was ripe with suggestions, and Mr. Delano capped them all with some that might be considered ultra professional. If all the ideas formulated at the dinner, as to fountains, grottoes, gardens, hanging gardens, winding paths, secluded nooks, and the like, take shape, the next show will be, indeed, a "PARADISE."

Richard Holloman, who is nothing if not original, declared that he would have a model of the next show prepared beforehand so that there should be no danger of an idea going astray. He also announced that by the time of the next show there would be a subway station at the entrance to the Grand Central Palace, from which

Department of Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that William E. S. Griswold, Wyndhurst, Lenox, Mass., Alfred J. Loveless, gardener, offers for registration the new Laelia-Cattleya described below. Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed name is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration the same will be made three weeks from date.

Description: — A hybrid between Laelio-Cattleya Gigris and Laelio-Cattleya Myra. Petals and sepals a rich golden yellow with dark purple lip. Flower four inches in diameter. Bulbs of medium height, slender, dark green in color. Received from England as an unnamed variety, possibly raised at Westonbirt, Col., Halford's estate. Name: — Adela Griswold.

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The regular monthly meeting of this society was held in Glen Cove, N. Y., on Wednesday, April 11th. First prizes were awarded as follows: John W. Everitt for pan of well grown tulips, Couleur Cardinal, and Lilium Formosum, also special mention for Lady Hillingdon and Ophelia roses. Robt. Jones, chairman of the executive committee read the schedule for the Annual Tulip Show to be held in Neighborhood House, some time in May. The schedule for the Annual Rose Show in June and the Annual Sweet Pea Show in July was also read and adopted. An essay by Prof. Arno H. Nehrling, entitled "Herbaceous Perennials We Should Grow" was read by Harry Goodband and a letter of thanks was ordered sent to the author. Exhibits for our next meeting, May 9th, are: 12 gladioli, 3 heads of lettuce and a vase of out-door flowers.

HARRY GOODBAND, Cor. Secy.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President John Watson of the American Association of Nurserymen has prepared and is distributing to those nurserymen who are not yet members of the Association a circular letter setting forth in a very exhaustive manner the excellent purposes of the Association, its many lines of activity for the welfare of the American nursery trade and the reasons why everyone engaged in the nursery business should avail themselves of the valuable privileges it offers. The Association of Nurserymen certainly has a "live wire" in President Watson.

GARDENERS' & FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the club Tuesday evening, April 17th, 120 members being present. Six new members were elected.

F. W. Fletcher exhibited a collection of antirrhinum, also a new form of Asparagus Sprengeri, for which he was awarded honorable mention. S. J. Goddard showed a fine vase of a new pink snapdragon. Charles Cooper, gardener for Miss Amy Lowell, exhibited Cattleya Thayeriana and was awarded a cultural report of merit.

There were several communications from the Governor of Massachusetts and various committees in regard to increased food production. These were discussed at length by many of the members, and the club pledged itself to assist food production in every possible way by speaking to people about it and giving advice at all times.

George N. Barrie, Chestnut Hill, delivered a stereopticon lecture, with about 75 pictures, on Artificial Irrigation. It was a most interesting and practical lecture, and at the conclusion was followed by quite a lengthy discussion.

Another somewhat lengthy debate was entered into by many present as to the proper preparation of the soil for vegetable and flower growing and if the regular barnyard manure for fertilizing was the best to be used, and it was the consensus of opinion that where this can be procured, barnyard manure is the best.

At the next meeting, E. I. Farrington will lecture on "What's new in the garden," both flowers and vegetables, illustrated by stereopticon.

The meeting adjourned at 11.15.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

The Chicago Florists' Club held its regular meeting Thursday, April 5th, at the Quincy restaurant, at the corner of Randolph and La Salle streets. In the absence of the president and vice-president, W. J. Keimel presided. The subject of Mothers' Day and how to make the most of it, was the chief topic for discussion. Fred Lautenschlager, chairman of publicity committee submitted a poster and posterettes which met with the hearty approval of the club. The sentiment expressed, "Remember your mother with her favorite flower," seemed to appeal to all. The committee reported that the idea is not to make money for the club but that all in the trade should be benefited. T. E. Waters introduced the subject of a July picnic and in spite of the chilly weather the matter was received with some enthusiasm. The trustees were instructed to secure a permanent meeting place for the club. Anton Then spoke in favor of the club taking immediate steps to secure coal for next year, believing that by buying in a body better terms might be secured. The matter was referred to a committee consisting of Anton Then, Chas. Hunt and H. G. McClellan. Paul Klingsporn reported the meeting of the directors of the S. A. F. in New York, to which he was delegate from the Chicago Florists' Club. New members admitted were H. C. McClellan, E. A. Bebb and E. C. Bowen.

WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the monthly meeting of this society, held in Greenwich, Conn., on Friday evening, April 13th, there was a very good display of exhibits, for which the judges awarded cultural certificates to A. Bishkie for French hydrangeas and to Wm. Graham for a display of schizanthus; high commendation to Robt. Gruenert for carnations and for tulips, to Fred Metzler for chrysanthemum Seven Oaks, and to Jas. Linane for calceolaria; thanks of the society to C. Hakanson for sweet peas, John Andrews for begonia, Robt. Gruenert for chrysanthemum Frank Wilcox, Wm. Whitton for schizanthus and carnations, and to P. W. Popp for standard rhododendron.

First prize for the most meritorious exhibit was awarded to A. Bishkie for hydrangeas; 2nd to Wm. Graham for schizanthus and 3rd to Robt. Gruenert for carnations.

H. B. Read of Conyers Farm, Greenwich, gave a very interesting lecture on "Fruit Farming."

RHODE ISLAND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The April meeting was held in Manning Hall, Brown University, April 18, 1917. Carl Bannwart, secretary of the Newark, -N. J., Shade Tree Commission, gave an illustrated talk on the "City Beautiful," showing many beautifully colored slides. The Providence Chamber of Commerce and the Rhode Island State Board of Agriculture co-operated with the society in making arrangements for this lecture. Much practical information was given regarding the beautifying of towns and cities through planting-day campaigns.

Every Reader of "Horticulture" Needs
DR. L. H. BAILEY'S BRAND NEW Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture

Six large quarto volumes. More than 3,600 pages. 24 full page exquisite color plates. 96 beautiful full page halftones. More than 4,000 text engravings. 500 Collaborators. Approximately 4,000 genera, 20,000 species and 40,000 plant names

THE New Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture has been freshly written in the light of the most recent research and experience. It is the fullest, the newest, the most authoritative of all works of its kind and constitutes the most conscientious attempt that has ever been made to compress the whole story of our horticultural thought, learning and achievement into one set of books. It is both an Encyclopedia and a Manual.

A Few of the Many Important New Features

Key to Identification of Plants This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

Synopsis of Plant Kingdom This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders, and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters; the number of genera and species and the ranges; a list of the important genera; brief statements in regard to the useful plants; and diagrammatic illustrations.

Illustrations There are 24 colored plates; 96 full page halftones; and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

The Glossary This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works. It comprises botanical and horticultural terms with brief definitions.

Translation and Pronunciation of Latin Names In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

Class Articles Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling. Here are some of the titles of these articles: Ants; Autumn Gardening; Bedding; Diseases; Drainage; Floral Designs; Formal Gardening; Hotbeds and Coldframes; Insects; Landscape Gardening; Lawn Planting; Orchards; Rock Gardening; Subtropical Gardening; Tools and Implements; Village Improvements; Window Boxes, etc.

General Index The final volume contains a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind.

The complete set of six volumes, bound in decorated buckram, will be delivered to you for only $3 down and $3 a month for 11 months, until the full amount of $36 has been paid. Cash price $35.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The regular monthly meeting of the Mount Kisco (N. Y.) Horticultural Society was held on Tuesday, April 10. Mr. Gordon and Mr. Connolly exhibited. The former received 90 points for lily of the valley and 80 for schizanthus, the later for sweet peas 80 points, carnations 75, stocks 60 and mushrooms 80. James T. Scott, of Elmsford, talked on Roses, which was certainly enjoyed. Mr. Scott accorded a standing vote of thanks. All exhibits of flowers were sent to the local hospital. In May, Miss Martha H. Miller will talk to us on some topic, probably in the afternoon.
A. G. Ross, Sec'y.

At the monthly meeting of the Sewickley (Pa.) Horticultural Society on April 10 the Constitution was changed to read, "Persons who have furthered the interests of horticulture in connection with our Society, may be elected honorary members, and it was resolved to invite a number of residents of Sewickley interested in the Society to become honorary members. M. Curran, J. Barnet and A. Etherington were appointed schedule committee for the coming September show, and a motion was carried that the Society would finance the purchasing of seeds for the school children competing at the same show. It was agreed to send the monthly exhibits to the Sewickley Valley Hospital. There was an interesting discussion on the best varieties of apples and other fruits.

INSECT AND ANIMAL PESTS OF THE GLADIOLUS

From Cornell Extension Bulletin by Alfred C. Hottes.

It seems safe to say that there is really no insect that is seriously injurious on the gladiolus. Dombrown (1873) reports serious damage in England due to wireworms. He believes that freshly turned-up sod should not be used, and writes as follows: "Three years ago I planted mine in a part of my garden which had up to two years before that been a meadow, and the previous season had potatoes in it. Half my roots were devoured by wireworms, the destructive little things eating through the shoot just as it appeared above ground." W. P. Wright also mentions wireworms, in Popular Garden Flowers. He states that the grubs fasten on the corms in myriads, and soon make short work of a large collection. He recommends that if the corms are planted on new land from pasture, the turf should be taken away, not turned in, however deeply, and in the spring before planting Vaporite or Aporite should be dug in nine or ten inches below the surface.

The writer has seen no reference to injury from wireworms in this country. Weather (1911) recommends trenching three feet deep in autumn, burying the topsoil containing the worms, and perhaps other grubs, at the bottom of the furrow. By this practice the worms are completely stifled and deprived of their vegetable diet; the subsoil will thus be free from the pest, and if well manured and exposed to the weather it will be in a good fertile condition in the spring. The writer has noted a slight amount of injury due to the small wiry millepede, Chilognatha. This may be the "wireworm" already referred to. The millepedes may be observed in the ashes under pots of gladioli grown indoors, and many of them are also noticed on the outdoor corms at the time they are being overhauled for winter storage. The condition known as scab may be due to these millepedes, but this is not definitely proved. If the corms are left to dry in a barn for some time, the holes bored by the millepede are filled with a jelly-like substance which one might at first think is frost. The injury due to these millepedes differs from diseased corms in that the areas of their attack are of regular shape and are metallic in appearance.

Most of the damage to gladioli caused by insects is on the parts of the plant above ground. The black aster beetle seems troublesome to many growers, the damage being to both buds and flowers. This is especially true late in the season.

H. A. Richardson reports the occurrence of arctiid moths, undoubtedly a species of the genus of tiger moths, Eyprepia. These moths are gregarious in habit, and they injure the flowers and spikes, but mostly the cuticle of the leaves. Grasshoppers and katydids have been reported as eating the blooms.

The red spider (Tetranychus telarius Linn.) is especially troublesome in a very dry season. This is a small mite, one-fiftieth of an inch long, which spins minute threads that are scarcely perceptible to the naked eye but that when very abundant give a grayish appearance to the leaves. The insects

SPECIMEN TRAINED CHRYSANTHEMUM PLANTS.

By John Canning, Supt. for Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley-on-Hudson, at Fall Show, New York, 1916.

In presenting the above picture it is almost needless to say that the exhibit portrayed was the work of that master of chrysanthemum training, John Canning, superintendent of the Lewisohn estate at Ardsley, N. Y., for the marvelous products of Mr. Canning's skill are known far and wide. We show them at this season of the year as an incentive to those ambitious growers who are now nursing the young material for next autumn's exhibitions, giving them an ideal to aim for, even if they cannot hope to equal the wondrous achievements of John Canning.

are rather reddish, though somewhat orange-tinged. Their principal injuries are to indoor plants, but they are also found in the open. When only a few are present they are not noticeable; but when they are abundant, the leaves become pale in color and stunted. They effect their injury by sucking the juices from the leaves. Indoors they are more resistant to fumigation than are aphids or thrips. As they are very sensitive to moist conditions, the main method of control is by a thorough syringing with water. Sanitary methods of keeping down all weeds harboring them, and burning infested parts of the plants, are of prime importance.

A number of cases of injury by a black blister beetle have been reported. This is no doubt a beetle of the genus Epicauta, or possibly Meloe.

Van Fleet and others report the occurrence of a Diabrotica beetle. These are yellowish green, much like the cucumber beetles. On the trial grounds at Cornell they caused some injury by eating the unopened buds.

If very plentiful they may be shaken on to sticky paper, as recommended by the California State Commission of Horticulture.

In Success with Flowers (Anonymous reference, 1901), a subscriber who inquires as to effective treatment for a root aphid, or root louse, which it is difficult to reach with insecticides, is answered as follows:

The piece of ground to be planted with gladioli may be cleared of the insects by the use of coarsely ground tobacco that can be purchased at about ten cents a pound. A heavy dressing of the tobacco can be spread on the ground and forked in immediately before planting, or it may be dug in between the plants later in the season.

Potash salt in the form of kainit has been found to be injurious or destructive to the insects; nitrate of soda produces similar effects. If, therefore, these substances should be used as fertilizers, they would at the same time destroy the pests, or at least lessen their number to the extent of rendering them harmless.

Cutworms have been especially abundant of late. They are the nocturnal larvæ of owl moths, and according to Powell (1915) "start their depredations early in May, or even in late April, and continue, until about the middle of June." The best remedy seems to be a poisoned bait made in one of various ways. For small garden spots a little paris green is mixed with some bran, the mixture then being made into a thick mush by the addition of sufficient molasses and water. This is sprinkled along the rows of gladioli. Munroe (1915) states that when large fields need to be treated, it is best to spread the bran, perhaps about a hundred pounds, on a barn floor, and sprinkle it with sweetened molasses water (enough to make it crumbly); over this is then scattered a pound of paris green, and the whole is mixed together thoroughly.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Thirteenth Annual Report of the Massachusetts State Forester, Frank W. Rane, has been received. It contains 124 pages of valuable information concerning State nursery work, reforestation, moth thinning and forestry problems generally and should be widely disseminated.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has just sent out two bulletins of timely interest—No. 304 on Aphids Injurious to Orchard Fruits, Currant, Gooseberry and Grape, and No. 313 on The Small Vegetable Garden, with Suggestions for Utilizing Limited Areas. Both bulletins are freely illustrated.

Cornell Extension Bulletin, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.—Gladiolus Studies II. Culture and Hybridization of the Gladiolus, by Alfred C. Hottes. This is a splendid publication which should be in the hands of every gladiolus grower. The "Bibliography" which forms an important place is not so complete as a feature of this character should be.

Addenda to Sander's List of Orchid Hybrids, 1915-1916. Some faint conception of the extent to which orchid hybridization is being carried on is conveyed in this list of two years' accomplishment which fills fifteen pages in small type and fifteen pages more of cross-reference. The original volume was published in 1915. The renowned orchid specialist of St. Albans, has placed the orchid lovers of the world under everlasting obligations by compiling this elaborate list, a service which surely was "a labor of love" and not for any possible emolument. The price is two shillings and sixpence.

GLADIOLUS DISEASES*

Dr. L. M. Massey, of the Department of Plant Pathology, Cornell University, contributes the following brief résumé of the gladiolus diseases:

There are at least three important diseases of the gladiolus, namely, hard rot, dry rot, and scab. The first two are characterized by necrotic lesions of various sizes in the corms, the diseased area blending more or less gradually into the healthy tissue. Scab lesions have a sharp line of demarcation, a distinct ridge being formed around the border of the depression. The surface of the depression has a somewhat metallic luster. In the older scab spots there is a cavity beneath the metallic film, appearing as if eaten out by some insect.

The lesions of hard rot and dry rot are usually small in the autumn, when the corms are dug. The diseases advance while the corms are in storage, until by spring many corms are reduced to dry mummies. Scab lesions do not enlarge after the corms are placed in storage.

Hard rot and dry rot are caused by fungous pathogenes whose life histories do not materially differ. The two fungi live over winter in the corm and are thus carried to the soil at planting time. The fungi do not grow from the old corm directly into the offspring, but either grow out into the soil, whence they attack the corms, or else work along the sheathing leaf bases. In the majority of cases a diseased corm may be expected as a result of planting one that is diseased.

The cause of the scab disease is unknown. Attempts to connect some fungus with the diseased areas on the corms have failed. The lesions may be due to the attacks of certain insects, such as wireworms or millipedes, but no experimental data are at hand to prove or disprove this suggested possibility.

Various soil and corm treatments have been used in an effort to control the hard rot and the dry rot of the gladiolus. Corms have been treated with formalin, corrosive sublimate, hot water, dry heat, and so forth, at strengths as high as the corms would permit without injury. None of these treatments have proved effective. Soil has been treated with lime, acid phosphate, sulfur, lime and sulfur, and iron sulfate, in strengths as high as the grower could afford to use them, without protecting the corms from the attacks of these fungi.

The selection of healthy corms, which are planted in soil in which no gladioli have ever been grown, is the one process that has unfailingly resulted in the production of healthy offspring. This requires a rigid selection. No corms should be planted which show any signs whatsoever of disease after the husks are removed. Care should be exercised during the growing season to see that no infested soil nor diseased plant parts are carried to the soil in which the healthy corms are growing.

The Late W. C. Langbridge

WM. HENRY MAULE, INC.
GARDEN SEEDS.

Philadelphia, April 13, 1917.

I am deeply grieved to learn of the death of my old friend, Billy Langbridge. I have known him for more than thirty years, and there is no one in the seed trade who was more welcome in my office than he; and I have always looked forward with a great deal of pleasure to his calls, four or five times a year. He always was well posted on matters pertaining to the seed trade, and there was one good thing about him—he was always willing to impart knowledge to others. He certainly will be greatly missed all over this country among the seedsmen.

E. C. DUNGAN.

W. ATLEE BURPEE & Co.

Philadelphia, April 13, 1917.

Wm. C. Langbridge, who died in a New York hospital after a long illness, on Thursday, the 12th instant, had been a very close friend of mine for more than a quarter of a century, and not only did I see a great deal of him during the seed selling season, but we also traveled many miles together inspecting crops and visiting growers, therefore, I feel as if I knew him very well indeed.

Bill Langbridge, as we all loved to call him, I considered one of the best, if not the best salesman the seed trade has ever had, and I dare say this statement may be backed up fully by the number and size of the orders he annually turned in to Jerome B. Rice Seed Company. One could always depend on any statements he made, and as to supplies and proper values of seed he was invariably well posted, especially among the line of canners' peas.

Bill, during his travels around Philadelphia, almost invariably arranged to give me a week-end at my home, and in this way widened the number of his friends and acquaintances, and I know that his friends in my section of Bucks County are going to miss his genial calls and the delightful stories he would from time to time tell of his experiences on the road.

To me it seems that the loss of Bill Langbridge makes a void in the seed trade that will not be filled.

HOWARD M. EARL.

William C. Langbridge was a real man. He sized up to the highest standards in every walk of life. During the thirty years I have known and associated with him I have had constantly increasing reasons to admire his high qualities both in mind and heart. Staunch and true, honest and steadfast was the flag he always kept flowing to the breeze. He was a real seedsman, an honor and a credit to a profession, the highest exponent of which consider high aims and honorable dealing far above the mere commercial spirit of making money. From the day of his Shaker Hat, thirty years ago, to the present he kept on constantly endearing himself to all of us. A tried, true-trusted and genial friend was William C. Langbridge. A man among men.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

MISSOURI COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE STUDENTS TO WORK ON FARMS.

Owing to the shortage of food and the scarcity of labor, students in the Missouri College of Agriculture will be excused to work on farms. The faculty of the college took this action April 10. The faculty considers that actual labor in food production is as important and as much a patriotic duty as enlistment for military service. Only those students who have definite employment in view will be excused on the same basis as those who enlist in the army. The grade for work done in the college up to the time the student is excused will be the basis for awarding credit during his enlistment in food production.

Students will be placed on their honor that they will work on farms. In addition they will be required to submit a statement from employers that they are to be engaged in farm work. They must work at least until July 1 and submit a report from their employers to obtain credit for University work. The College of Agriculture recommended to the University faculty that students in other divisions be excused for farm work on the same basis as those excused for military service.

It is expected that practically every man in the College will take advantage of this opportunity to enlist in food production. Not more than 5 per cent of 500 students, who attended a mass meeting following the faculty's action, failed to stand when the body was asked if they desired to leave school and work on farms.

The women students enrolled in agriculture are considering what they can do to relieve the food shortage. A number of plans have been suggested and the women will meet to discuss them.

PROPER DEPTH TO PLANT BULBS.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir: A subscriber wishes to learn the proper depth to plant bulbs in border of shrubbery and rock gardens. A, claims they ought to be set 8 inches in order to get good, strong stems and large blooms. B, claims 4 inches is sufficient, especially as the land is late and cold. Kindly inform me through HORTICULTURE who is nearest to be right.

Yours very truly,

T. J. M.

Our correspondent failed to specify what particular class of bulbs he had reference to, so our answer must be generalized accordingly. The depth recommended for various bulbs by well-informed planters is as follows:

Crocuses, Snowdrops and Squills, 3 inches.

Tulips and Narcissi, 5 inches.

Hyacinths, 6 inches.

Lilies—tigrinum, superbum, tenuifolium, etc., 5 inches.

Lilies—speciosum, regale, candidum, 6 inches.

Lilies—auratum, Sargentæ, 8 inches.

Gladioli—6 to 8 inches.

Obituary

D. McIntyre

Daniel McIntyre of the McIntyre Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., died on April 8. He was 43 years of age, born in Nashville, the son of a prosperous florist and had built up a successful business. He is survived by a widow and four children.

A. L. Glaser

A. L. Glaser, well known and highly respected, first as a gardener and since 1901 as a florist in Dubuque, Ia., died on April 5, aged 67 years. He was a native of Stein, Germany and came to the United States when in his twentieth year. He learned the florist business in the employ of Peter Lambert in Des Moines, Ia. He leaves a widow, five sons and two daughters.

Mrs. Frank H. Wilson.

Mrs. Gertrude C. Wilson, wife of Frank H. Wilson, instructor in floriculture at the Independent Agricultural School, Danvers, Mass., died at her home, 53 Park St., April 13th, aged 29 years. Mrs. Wilson was formerly a school teacher in Nahant. She is survived by her husband and one son.

W. D. Burt, of Dalton, N. Y., is to erect two buildings, each five stories, to accommodate his seed business. One week recently he sent thirty-five tons of seed by express.

Book of Garden Plans

By STEPHEN F. HAMBLIN

Associate of Warren H. Manning,
Landscape Architect

The purpose of this book is to aid those who are planning gardens and country places to visualize problems similar to their own and to see how a landscape architect would solve them.

There are twenty plans of model gardens and places in the book with directions and planting lists for each. The plans are wide in their variety ranging from boulder walls, arbors, poppy beds, and special borders to the different kinds of formal and informal gardens, rock, water, woodland, Japanese, annual, and wild flower. Photographs illustrate the basic idea of each plan.

The author says of the book in his introduction:

"A rough plan, even if very incomplete, will often be far more helpful to explain arrangement and grouping than will pages of printed instructions. But so as to help make these plans more definite, an actual piece of property was in mind in each case.

"Supposing, then, that the main features on our imaginary piece of ground have been decided upon, he can refer to the blue prints and see how, by the arrangement of our garden material, we can best add to the natural beauties of the ground and give them the touch of human hands."

A final chapter gives information on the practical side of gardening—the trees, plants, shrubs, vines, etc., for various conditions, cost estimating, time for planting, and other details. 20 blue print plans. 32 pages of illustrations. Net $2.00.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

New Bills Before Congress.

The following bills have been introduced in the Sixty-Fifth Congress and are of interest to the seedsmen:

House Bill 2352 (Mr. Byrne of South Carolina). To regulate the movement of seeds in interstate commerce—an impossible bill.

H. R. 2780, appropriating $5,000,000 for the immediate distribution of valuable seeds to farmers, through the agency of the United States Department of Agriculture.

S. 1727, appropriating $250,000 for the distribution before June 1st, 1917, of seeds, shrubs, five-sixths of such distribution to be at the direction of senators, representatives, and delegates.

There have been several bills filed also of interest to nurserymen, as follows:

House Bill 1254, by Mr. Baker for the inspection of nursery stock sent through the United States mails. A very objectionable bill.

Senate Bill 1727, by McKellar, appropriating $250,000 for the purchase and distribution, before June 1st, 1917, of seeds, trees, shrubs, etc., five-sixths of such trees and shrubs to be distributed in accordance with the requests of senators, representatives, and delegates, in Congress.

CONTROL OF MUSHROOM PESTS.

Methods of controlling mushroom pests, such as maggots, mites, spring-tails, sowbugs, slugs and crickets, are described in U. S. Department of Agriculture Farmers' Bulletin 789. Prevention of damage to cultivated mushrooms by insects and other creatures, according to the author of the bulletin, C. H. Popenoe, Bureau of Entomology, begins with the construction of a mushroom house, which should be as tight as possible, with outlets capable of being tightly closed. The windows and ventilators should be screened with fine wire gauze, as this forms an excellent prevention against the entrance of the small fungus gnats or flies and the mites which they carry.

Mushroom spawn should be purchased only from reliable dealers, as otherwise insects may be introduced with the spawn. As gnats may also be brought into the house through the agency of manure, special attention should be cut off given to fermenting the compost uniformly to insure a heat which is sufficient to destroy maggots and other pests that may be present in the manure. Where soil is infested the author advises sterilizing the soil of the benches by heating to a temperature of 150°F., while fumigation with carbon disulphid just previous to spawning is productive of good results in destroying maggots in the compost. Carbon disulphid vapor, however, is very inflammable and even explosive when mixed with air and brought into contact with fire or sparks, or when heated to a sufficiently high temperature, and great care should be used in handling it. Destruction of the adults or flies in mushroom houses can be effected by fumigation with nicotine preparations or pyrethrum.

Sowbugs may be detected at night by the aid of a lantern and killed, or hot water may be poured along the cracks in the boards and in other places where the bugs may be concealed by day.

The bulletin also contains suggestions for poisoned baits which are effective against sowbugs and crickets, and remedies for slugs.

COVER ILLUSTRATION

Our cover picture this week shows a very pretty example of simple and tasteful floral arrangement; for which Max Schling, of New York, has kindly loaned the photograph. The bouquet was for a golden wedding and composed of Barberton daisies (Gerbera Jamesoni) acacia, white lilac, mignonette and cattleyas. We should like to publish more of such illustrations if the florist trade would only get into the habit of having photographic records made of their nice work. Uncouth attempts to represent clocks, guns, chairs, flags, hose wagons and the like are sent to us occasionally but we haven't the heart to impose such travesties on the class of florists who read HORTICULTURE. It is but fair to the florist trade, however, to say that in many instances it is the customer and not the florist who is responsible for the queer contraptions that sometimes figure as "floral designs."

Portland, Me.—Mabel I. Hayes, the surviving member of the E. J. Harmon Co., is the defendant in a suit brought by J. Frank Harrington, who bought out the florist business July 1, 1913. It is the claim of the plaintiff that because of misrepresentation he was induced to pay $10,000 for the business, he having been told by the late E. J. Harmon and his partner, Mabel I. Hayes, that the business was at the time of its purchase by him well established and capable of rendering an annual net profit of between $15,000 and $18,000.

BOSTON.

William Sim picked 200,000 single violets of first quality for Easter and all were sold at a big price.

Two of the bright young men, sons of Boston florists, who have enlisted for war service are Henry M. Robinson, Jr., who has joined the Coast Reserves, and Phil. Roland, son of Thomas Roland, who leaves his studies at Dartmouth to go into the Ambulance Corps in France.

Frank J. Walsh, a Malden florist, found a section of $50 last Sunday. He picked up two pieces of two $20 bills and a piece of a $10 note in Maple street, Malden, near his home. Small boys made a careful search of the vicinity, hoping to find the rest of the bills. The parts of the $50 which Mr. Walsh holds are no good. The bill numbers are missing and boys will continue to look for them.

The Committee on Public Safety, in connection with the appointment of April 19 as "patriotic" planting day, is doing some very effective publicity work in the campaign to increase the annual cultivation of food products in Massachusetts. Detailed information as to what is being done and what is planned may be had by writing to the Committee on Food Production and Conservation, State House, Boston.

J. G. Jack will conduct a field class at the Arnold Arboretum on Saturdays during the spring and early summer, to assist those who wish to gain a more intimate knowledge of the native and foreign trees and shrubs which grow in New England. The instruction will be given in informal outdoor talks and examinations of the plants. Different botanical groups will be examined at each meeting, although any trees or shrubs found may form subjects for study. No technical knowledge or special preparation is required in order to join the class as the instruction is intended to be simple in character, affording opportunities for questions and answers relating to the specimens under observation. The class will open next Saturday and close June 23. Applications or further inquiries may be addressed to Mr. Jack, East Walpole, Mass., or at the Arboretum.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Department of Agriculture is keeping right after cucurbit and other pond lily diseases, and Frederick V. Rand, assistant pathologist in the Bureau of Plant Industry, has gone to New York to continue his investigations.

A bill has been proposed that Colquitt, Ga., will have an experimental agricultural plant, shrub, fruit and ornamental tree, berry and vegetable station and farm, where the Department of Agriculture will be enabled to demonstrate the character of products best adapted to the soil and climate of that section.

The Kiwanis Club is the name of the latest organization of the Rotary type to be formed in Washington. It is the plan of the organizers to have two representatives of each line of trade, and George C. Shaffer is one of the florists selected. This is a so-called "golden rule" organization, with the name Kiwanis standing for price, service and quality.

J. H. McFarland last week delivered a lecture at the Public Library under the auspices of the Federation of Citizens' Associations. The Florists' Club was invited also to be present and those who availed themselves of the opportunity declared the lecture to be a most interesting one. He spoke approvingly of the production of "American roses for America," and told of what is being done at the rose test gardens at Arlington Farms.

ST. LOUIS.

J. J. Beneke is still confined to his room with rheumatism.

Famous Barr Dry Goods Co. and the Grand Leader will open up a regular floral department in the near future.

The Rosery flower shop has been opened up by John B. Barnard and Olga M. Maul. These gentlemen are well experienced and should make good.

The Ladies' Home Circle met at the home of J. J. Beneke, April 11th. Mrs. Koenig, Mrs. F. C. Weber, Mrs. Carl Beyer and Mrs. Theodore Miller were present.

The St. Louis Florist Club met at the greenhouses of W. A. Rowe at Kirkwood, Mo. There were 35 members present, including all officers, who motored out into the country. Resolutions were passed favoring publicity for Mothers' Day and for the National Flower Show, 1918. Secretary J. Windler is kept busy.

PHILADELPHIA.

Douglas and John Howard Earl, sons of Howard M., of Burpee's, have enlisted in the 6th regiment, N. G. P. If the spirit spreads as it is now doing we fear the seed trade will be very short-handed pretty soon.

The latest life member to join the American Rose Society is the Hon. John Wanamaker who is at present sojourning in Florida. President Penock seemed to be rather proud this morning in announcing this distinguished new recruit to the rapidly swelling list of membership. We think the feeling is justified and that the vaulting ambition to have seven thousand members like the National Rose Society of England may some day come true—even in crude and undeveloped America.

CHICAGO.

Clarence Enders, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Enders, has enlisted for six years in Co. L, 1st Cavalry, and leaves Friday for Springfield, Ill.

Walter Horn of Poehlmann Bros. store force, left today for his home in Carrollton, Iowa, where he will join his regiment and leave for the war.

The seed stores are getting a lot of free advertising this spring. Every paper in the city has its garden column and some of the schools are putting practical gardening on the school grounds as a part of the regular work.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. will open their annex next Saturday. The room is 40 x 160 ft. and is fitted up with new furnishings, making a splendid place for a sales and sample room for supplies. The fourth floor will be used hereafter for storage and shipping room.

Fred Lautenschlager, chairman of the Chicago Florists' Club Publicity Committee, is industriously sending circulars far and wide in exploitation of the co-operative advertising plan put into action for Mothers' Day by means of stamps and window posters. He states therein that the Publicity Committee has completed arrangements with one of America's foremost advertising agencies to prepare copy for a full-page advertisement which we plan to use in one of the leading magazines of this country. This magazine has a widespread circulation and will carry our message broadcast across the land. The copy of the advertisement will contain a suitable design announcing Mothers' Day, this design incorporating the theme of Mothers and Flowers; the text to exploit the theme in its broader sense. A cut of the stamp appeared in a recent issue of HORTICULTURE. One window poster, price list and order blank will be mailed without cost to anyone applying for same. Address F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie St., Chicago, Ill. Distribution of stamps and posters will commence immediately.

PITTSBURGH.

C. C. Phillips, of the McCallum Floral Company, left on Wednesday for a several days' trip in the interest of the firm.

Mr. and Mrs. De Forest W. Ludwig, who have been spending the winter in California (the former in the employ of the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago), are now in Seattle, en route home, and will spend next week in Portland, Oregon.

The A. W. Smith Company has taken large floor space near the entrance of Motor Square Garden for the June Flower Show of the Garden Club of Allegheny County. Their intention is to feature an exhibition of combination landscape and interior decoration.

There is now a movement afoot to utilize those sections of the city parks

The land, consisting of about twenty-five acres, has been donated for the purpose by the Pittsburgh Speedway Association, and will be known as Speedway Gardens.

HOW TO SAVE YOUR SECURITY ON A PROMISSORY NOTE.

Something now which may help some reader to save the security on a promissory note which he may have accepted in the course of business:

Williamsport, Pa.

You are aware that we are in the wholesale business. Last summer one of our largest customers got behind in his account, and upon our pressing him for payment, he stated that he was reorganizing his business, and in order to clean up our account he gave us a note for our entire account, having same endorsed by his brother, who is a man of means. We have just received word that the maker of this note, our customer, has failed, and that the estate is not likely to pay 10 cents on the dollar. The note will be due in about a month, and of course the signer will not pay it and we will have to look to the brother who endorsed it. We understand that when this note comes due and is not paid, the endorser must be notified in a certain way, or you cannot hold him. As there is considerable money at stake, we are desirous of not making any mistake, and we therefore ask you to tell us exactly how to proceed so that we shall not lose the endorser of this note.

W. M. R. & Co.

An amazing amount of security is lost in promissory note transactions because the payee, or the holder, doesn't pay the same attention to holding the endorser that the above correspondent is paying. The law is quite strict about what is due the endorser on a promissory note, for often the endorser goes on merely to oblige a friend, and while the law doesn't absolve him from liability, on that account, it does require the person who seeks to hold him liable, to be extremely thorough in the doing of certain things.

The rule is that when the person primarily liable on a note, that is, the maker, doesn't pay it, the endorser must be at once notified. This so he can have all possible chance to save himself from loss by getting at the defaulting maker at the earliest moment.

Furthermore, the endorser has a right to insist that the note should have been presented to the maker for payment on the very day it is due. If it isn't so presented, the endorser goes free, because one of the legal unwritten conditions under which he is to be liable is that the obligation should first be put up to the person primarily responsible. And the second condition, as I have explained, is that immediate notice that the maker has fallen down, if he has, should at once be given the endorser.

There are three main exceptions to the rule requiring a note to be presented to the maker on the day it is due. First, you don't have to present it to a maker whom you can't reach, as for instance, when he is absent. Second, you don't have to present it to a maker who signed it without anything for himself, and merely as an accommodation to the endorser. In that case the endorser is regarded as the man primarily liable. Third, you don't have to present the note to the maker when the endorser has told you in advance that you needn't. He does that when he puts the words "waiving demand and notice" on the note under his endorsement. When he has used those words you don't even have to notify him that the maker hasn't paid.

The laws of all states require notice to an endorser, where there is no exception in the case which makes it unnecessary. How and when must that notice be given? We will suppose that a note has fallen due. It is presented to the maker either by the holder personally, or by the bank which he has chosen to collect it, and isn't paid. If the endorser is in the same town, he should be notified at once of the maker's default. He can be notified verbally, or by letter, but the written way is the better. No special form is necessary—anything that tells him of the maker's default is sufficient, but it should also say that he, the endorser, will be looked to for payment.

Of course where the note is handled for collection by a bank, the bank notary who protests it for non-payment is supposed to notify the endorser, which he does by regular protest notice.

If the endorser is not in the same town, a longer time is given for the notice. The time allowed is always a reasonable time under the circumstances of the case. The uniform negotiable instruments law, which has been adopted in a large number of states, gives the time during which an endorser must be notified in different cases, but the foundation idea throughout is a reasonable time.

Touching the manner of giving notice, an interesting case was decided a few days ago by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. This would be the law in any state having the uniform negotiable instruments law, of which, as I stated, there are a large number.

In this case an endorser on a promissory note was endeavoring to escape liability, on the ground that he had not received notice that the maker hadn't paid. The holder proved that he had mailed a notice to the endorser, correctly addressed. The endorser, swore he never got it, but the court held that that made no difference.

The mailing of notice is enough; the sender of the notice is deemed to have given due notice notwithstanding whether or not it was received. The negotiable instruments law has changed the former law on this subject by providing that where notice of dishonor is duly addressed and deposited in the post office the sender is deemed to have given due notice, notwithstanding any miscarriage in the mails; due notice of dishonor is deemed to have been given when it is shown that the notice is properly addressed and deposited in the post office, whether it has been received or not.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON The flower market has been in deplorable shape for the past few days. At present writing, the day before Patriots' Day, a little more activity is noticed but the tables in the market are burdened with flowers, many of them showing unmistakable signs of tiredness. Roses have been hard hit—worse than anything else it would appear. Carnations average very good as to quality but they are not wanted. Bulb flowers still linger in large quantities. Violets are nearing their end but sweet peas are heavily accumulated on all sides and many of them are of excellent quality. Lilies sell very poorly and they are inferior as a rule.

The Chicago wholesale market is still a quiet place. Since the big business of Easter week, trade has been rather slow. Thursday and Friday there was something like the stir of the early part of the month but sales dragged again at the week end. This week opens in a discouraging manner. Roses are a drug on the market and some of the wholesalers report that the most unsatisfactory flower from a financial standpoint, just now, is the rose. American Beauties, so scarce all the winter, are now here in quantity but no one seems to want them. Orchids are very scarce with the prospect of remaining so for some time to come. Carnation sales are still lessened more or less by the vast quantities of bulbous stock which has flooded the market for months and probably will last some time longer. Sweet peas sell fairly well.

The demand has been fairly steady since Easter but has not kept pace with the supply of stock. The latter has become so large that the market is overstocked in every seasonable line. Roses are among the worst offenders. Their supply is greatly in excess of actual needs. Carnations are overly plentiful. Easter lilies are in a heavy supply and have a slow market even at the prevailing low prices. Sweet peas are plentiful. A supply of lily of the valley is available. Some excellent Darwin tulips are coming into the wholesale houses.

NEW YORK Conditions are very quiet with heavy shipments coming in and only a spasmodic demand. Roses are plentiful at reduced prices and the same is true of carnations. Not much change for the better is apparent in the bulb flower trade. Sweet peas are abundant and in all kinds of qualities—good, bad and indifferent—and prices range accordingly. Smilax is scarce. Lily of the valley is also a scarce item. Cattleyas still hold firm, as do gardenias if good. Antirrhinums are poor sellers as has been the case most of the season. Spanish iris are coming in plentifully and are very handsome but they do not move as well as they should. Lilies are a slow proposition.

PHILADELPHIA Last week there was a big increase in the supply of flowers consequent on the longer days and the bright weather. On top of that condition came the usual after-Easter slow-up in demand. Consequently prices receded and the buyer had it all his own way. Old "Iron Face" had it all his own way and wore a beaming smile. The only scarce item seemed to be lily of the valley. Everything else was super-abundant.

The market is proving a little quiet, following the heavy Easter season, and were it not for the plentiful funeral demands, conditions would not fall short of mid-summer dullness. Prices are not as good and, to quote one of the leading wholesale men, "It is a good deal of a buyers' market, as they are virtually naming their own prices." There is plenty of good material coming in day by day for which there is little demand. A number of spring weddings are scheduled for the coming week which will call into requisition the artistic skill of the fashionable florists, but from the wholesale viewpoint, "weddings don't count for much."

For the past week ST. LOUIS trade has been fairly good. All stock has been more plentiful. Lilies, roses, carnations, outdoor jonquils and other narcissi have been very plentiful. Greens are in demand. Ferns are quoted at 30 to 35c. per 100.

Market conditions WASHINGTON during the week following Easter were very good and Easter week itself is estimated to have exceeded the business of last year by from 10 to 25 per cent. Cold weather has continued and prices have remained good, with a dropping off in the heavy supply of all flowers. Roses and carnations are moving well and there has been a heavier demand for lily of the valley and orchids because of the weddings which immediately followed Easter. Southern daffodils are already off the market, a large part of the crop having been killed by the severe cold weather. There has been quite a cessation in the demand for bulb stock.

"Our Greenhouse is a Model of Perfection."—A. M. Robertson

We erected this Metropolitan Greenhouse for Mr. M. Burrill on his estate at Jericho, L. I.

The contract for this Metropolitan patented bent eave, full iron frame greenhouse with bent eave vestibule and stucco service house, also included the masonry, flower box and trellis work.

Being partitioned in the middle, this greenhouse has two compartments, which can be heated and controlled separately.

Mr. A. M. Robertson, superintendent of this estate, writes that "it is a model of perfection."

Metropolitan service goes far beyond the mere mechanical process of construction. It strives constantly to increase the producing power of the owner's investment in his greenhouse.

LUTTON Greenhouses at Wilkes-Barre

A GREENHOUSE in a city is like an oasis in the desert.

Think of the gloomy office buildings and paved streets, with scarcely a bit of green in sight, and you will then fully appreciate why the hustling city dweller takes such a deep interest in the greenhouses of his municipality. It is not nearly as difficult to satisfy the single owner of a private greenhouse as the thousands of owners of a municipal greenhouse.

As typical of the many greenhouses which we have built for city parks we refer to the range erected in the heart of the city of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The people of Wilkes-Barre entrusted the purchase of their greenhouses to their Board of Park Commissioners. The latter in turn authorized their Superintendent of Parks, Mr. Charles Seybold, to make a thorough investigation of the various types of glass structures and to select the best.

Mr. Seybold selected the LUTTON Greenhouse illustrated below. It is the judgment of such men of experience that really counts, as cite the opinions of those who speak from personal knowledge about the superior LUTTON construction.

PAT

An Irishman's Story With a Greenhouse Moral

PAT O'LEARY, writing to his brother Mike about the wonderful things of this country and his easy job, mentioned that "all I have to do is carry a hod of bricks up a ladder half the day, and gets me full day's pay."

His brother in Ireland, not quite convinced that there was any such thing as a half day job at full pay, wrote back: "And now tell me, Pat, and what do you be doing the other half of that day that you spend only half of it climbing up that ladder?"

Pat's answer was: "You blithering idiot, I works all the day; half the day I am going up the ladder wid the bricks; the other half I do be coming down widout them."

There are a lot of Pat's kind in the world.

Some of them are in the greenhouse building business. They are the kind who talk the price of a greenhouse and never mention detail construction points until forced to.

Never mention them because they haven't much to mention.

They tell just half the story.

What you pay for a house is one half.

What you get for what you pay is the other half.

You ought to know all there is to know about both halves.

Nothing gives us more down right satisfaction than to be asked to prove why our houses are worth more than other houses.

Step by step, point by point, we like to prove up, what experience has already proven to us.

Specifications are often rather "cleverly written."

They may mean much or little.

We don't write clever specifications.

We do however, write a specification that tells you exactly what you are going to get; and you will get exactly that.

You don't have to be a "Philadelphia lawyer" to understand it.

There's none of the foxy Pat method of telling only half.

If you think you would like the Hitchings way of doing business, we would like to do business with you.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

To whom shall you entrust your priceless trees?

A scientist's answer

A Letter from Dr. H. D. House, New York State Botanist and formerly Professor in the Baltimore Forestry School

MR. M. L. DAVEY, General Manager,
Davey Tree Expert Company, Kent, O.

Dear Mr. Davey:

I believe that I owe you many thanks for the opportunity which I have had just recently of seeing the Davey organization in convention at Kent.

I was deeply impressed by the mutual determination of your men to accomplish perfect work and to place quality above all other considerations. This and the trained ability and cooperation of your men are doing much to restore that confidence in the profession of tree surgery which has been greatly injured by poorly trained and unscrupulous workers. After an inspection of work accomplished by your men and a study of their methods, I am convinced that their work measures up to the highest degree of efficiency which training and experience can produce. I believe that owners of trees may expect service of the most reliable character from your men.

Very truly yours,

H. D. HOUSE,

State Botanist.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Bougainvilleas

Bougainvillea cuttings may be struck from half-ripened wood, cut into 6-inch lengths, placed in sand over bottom heat, and in a night temperature of 70 degrees, allowing it to rise 10 degrees with sun heat. Keep moist and shade from the sun and they will root in a few weeks. Give them a good watering; afterward frequent sprinkling or syring will afford the necessary moisture. When rooted they should be taken out of the sand and placed in small pots filled with good loam containing a liberal sprinkling of clear sand. When the young plants get established they will make roots rapidly, and should therefore be shifted frequently until they are in 6 or 7-inch pots. A good compost for these shifts is turfy loam four parts, well-rotted manure, one part and some sand; the last shift can be made richer.

Compost

Those who had their sod piled up last fall and exposed to severe freezing should have soil of fine pliable nature by this time. It is time now to prepare compost for all cut flower stock. For such crops as roses, carnations and chrysanthemums, there is plenty of time during May or June to have it in good shape for these crops. The preparation of all compost should be done in a thorough going manner. To be right it should be turned several times before it is used. If manure was added to it last fall in the proportion of one load of manure to three loads of sod, it will have changed the proportion by this time to one-fifth by the gradual decomposition that takes place with the manure. So all such soil would be better to have a load or two of barnyard manure added to every four of soil during these turnings, but the application of additional fertilizing matter should be deferred until later in the form of mulches or liquid stimulants as the plants may actually require it. Be sure and keep your piles clear of weeds etc., until all used up.

Tuberous Rooted Begonias

Prepare stock which will be showy and fit for immediate effect by the end of May and if short on these begonias don't delay a minute such preparation. There is still time for the tubers will not require the length of time they did in January to commence sending out their roots and start growth. Those that were started early and are now showing flower buds will take lots of water when their pots become filled with roots. See that they have enough of shade to keep their foliage from burning, but not too heavy. These will make excellent specimens for early flowering. Do not keep too warm; anywhere from 58 to 62 degrees at night will be high enough. They should have some kind of shade from 9 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon.

Next week:—Asters; Chrysanthemums; Ficus; Hydrangeas; Palm Seed; Reminders.

Pelargonium

There is no finer flowering pot plant during May and June, and every retail grower should plan to have a good number of these on hand. Many pelargoniums can be disposed of during the bedding season. Let each plant have all the space necessary for growing into good shape. If they have their final shift and are becoming pot bound feeding is in order. Light doses of liquid cow manure are of great benefit and will help to keep the foliage green. Plants on hand now should be planted in a liberal pot, in a good loam with good drainage. They want a light bench and plenty of ventilation. If the pots can be plunged into soil or ashes this course is to be preferred to a bench situation where they will dry every few hours. Give them a look over two or three times a day now for water. Give light fumigations every week so as not to let fly get a foothold.

Phalaenopsis

As these orchids pass out of flower they are always better for a short rest. They should be kept comparatively dry, but should not remain dry for any length of time as they have no pseudo-bulbs in which to store up nourishment. The best time to overhaul these orchids is just before they send forth their new roots when they should be repotted or fresh material given. Where the compost is good it is not necessary to remove it all every year. Just pick out some of the old compost and renew with chopped live sphagnum and fern fibre in equal parts. If there is any orchid that requires good care at all seasons it is the phalaenopsis. When the compost assumes a slight crispness to the touch it is time to give them some water. Phalaenopsis amabilis, Schilleriana and Rimestadtiana are good kinds to grow. Shade should be increased from this out, by whatever means seems best. Spray overhead morning and right after dinner and sponge often to keep them clean.

Reminders

Pot off any seedlings of Asparagus plumosus, smilax, grevilleas and Aralia Sieboldii.

Give the hydrangeas, spiræas and other Memorial Day stock an abundant water supply.

Look out for aphids on the calceolarias and pelargoniums. Never let up on the weekly fumigation.

Carefully watch the crops of ten weeks stock, candy-tuft and feverfew for Memorial Day. Air freely, water carefully and scratch the surface to prevent baking.

The issue and how to meet it

Judging by the frequency with which the topic is broached wherever one chances to be, the most vital subject demanding attention at the present time, with the horticultural as well as most other business interests, is the immediate direct effect upon our particular industry, of the war crisis in which our country has been so reluctantly involved and the consideration of how we may, individually and collectively, meet the emergency, forestall and prepare ourselves against whatever may appear ominous and take such advantage of any course or opportunity as may appear to be discreet. The oppressive advance in the cost of coal, iron pipe, glass and other material entering into horticultural construction and maintenance, the scarcity and insatiable demands of labor, increasing freight rates, lack of transportation equipment by either land or water, and resultant flower pot famine, and the many emergencies, real or apparent, which are blamed upon the war—all these crowd upon the mental vision of the earnest business man when he tries to peer into the future and find out or reason out something on which to base his plans and map out a course which he can adhere to and keep up with the situation. There need be no solicitude as to the final issue, but the horticultural interests are entitled to a square deal and should be given an equal business chance with other industries in their relations with the public.

 a square deal

There is nothing in the cautious procedure suggested in the foregoing that should necessarily impel a man to a pessimistic conclusion as to what the immediate future holds out for him in a business way. The burdens enumerated—the high cost of material which he must have, increased taxation, exacting labor conditions, etc.—these are all things which he has only in common with his neighbors in other fields of industry and which may reasonably be expected to fully adjust and balance themselves in due time. The war situation as reflected by these developments carries nothing with it that should permanently affect our business disastrously or imperil its stability. Perhaps we can't make the speed we formerly did but we can at least insist that nobody rocks the boat. Unfortunately, however, other influences are at work, outspoken and pitiless, with the confessed purpose of alienating the public from the support of the florist, spreading broadcast advice that is hostile to the florists' business, tending to impair his investments, bring him to face possible financial ruin and, in addition cause further hardship upon toilers of both sexes in all branches of floricultural work. Writers in some of the most influential newspapers in the country have carried their cold-blooded drives very far in the past few weeks and we wonder for how long the flower and plant trade are going to submit to it without protest. Land and greenhouses all represent money investment—often the hard-earned accumulations of a life-time; coal costs money, labor costs money and the man who conducts a greenhouse has had to stand for his full share of the enhanced expenditure which attaches to all these indispensable factors in his business and that newspaper or that clergyman or organization of any kind which takes deliberate advantage of its touch with the public to single out the floral industry for special attack under such conditions of economic stress as now prevail and thus attempts to cripple one of the most refined and elevating commercial industries, certainly displays a perverted and supremely selfish mentality. We submit that the flower industry suffers in greater or less degree every time that one of these soulless visionaries breaks loose. The flower business cannot and should not stand for it.

Salvia

Writing the name Salvia at the head of this note I know the thoughts of the majority of my readers will first of all turn to the popular scarlet sage. During the midsummer and early fall months the aspect of an overwhelming number of our home grounds would lack one of their at present very conspicuous features without the strong fiery red banks of the annual Salvia splendens varieties. Certainly, as a very convenient bedder for near and distant color effects scarlet sage is simply indispensable, but on the carefully blended borders of our flower gardens on account of the intensity of its red tints it is sometimes rather difficult to place. Here Salvia patens with its intense pure blue spikes would be invaluable, but, unfortunately, Salvia patens is not free flowering enough. Under such conditions our interest in the hardy perennial sages increases. Blue being the dominant color of the garden types they are at their best after the great floral May and June climax on our mixed garden borders is past. Therefore in keeping up a desirable variety in forms and colors at a time of obvious need they prove decidedly valuable. This applies to Salvia azurea, S. Pitcheri and S. uliginosa, averaging a height of from 4 to 5 feet in growth and in blossom from August until frost. As one of the best perennial sages I consider the subject of our cover illustration, Salvia virgata nemorosa, producing its beautiful dark blue spikes during the latter part of June and throughout the month of July.

Last, not least, the white and carmine forms of our native Texas species Salvia Greggii merit our attention. Like the species virgata nemorosa they are of medium height and handsome bushy habit of growth and begin to flower late in June. Knowing that at present the possibilities of employing perennial salvias for floral midsummer and fall effects among horticulturists are not fully realized I should like to advise early and more frequent trials.

Hardy salvias thrive best exposed to the full sun in a rather light soil. Propagation by spring sowings and divisions. Light winter covering.

Semi-Tuberous or Socotrana Begonias

During May, June and July they will need more shade from time to time but always avoid heavy shading. A very good shading is a lathe frame with cheesecloth. Overhead spraying should be more frequent and heavier in the morning preceding a hot day and right after dinner time. Keep the air humid by wetting down the paths and beneath the benches. Keep the flowers and buds removed and pinch any runaway shoots. Examine the stalk carefully and where they appear pot bound shift them without delay. You can use a compost now and on of fibrous loam, leaf mould, well decayed cow manure in equal parts, with a sprinkling of sand and give plenty of drainage to each pot. Better specimens are raised by timely, short shifts, gradually working up to the final size than by long shifts skipping several sizes at every potting. During these months of hot summer they will be slow of growth. During the end of August they should get their final potting. The best pots are azalea pots of 5, 6 or 7-inch according to the size and vigor of the plants. A good compost is turfy loam three parts, well-rotted cow manure two parts, leaf mould and sand one part each. Pot moderately firm, but not too hard. After August discontinue all pinching on those intended for early flowering. When September comes we are in the start of a season when these plants make their main growth. The temperature should be about 60 degrees during night. Use only enough stakes to keep them up neatly and in such a way as to be inconspicuous as possible. Give them room now from time to time. They do better set up on inverted pots, which allows them better air and light. Keep reducing the shading so by the middle of October they will be standing full sun. During October and November Gloire de Lorraine, Glory of Cincinnati, Florence Davenport, etc., will be sending up their flower spikes. As they become sufficiently well bloomed, they can be greatly improved by the careful use of liquid manure once a week. These winter flowering begonias are very sensitive to any sudden changes of temperature and should be kept as near 60 degrees at night as possible. Where large specimen plants are grown in 7, 8 and 10-inch pans they should have plenty of room now.

JOHN J. M. FARRELL.

Crazy Hysterics

According to the papers, as Sweeney would say, we mustn't do a thing any more but raise eats and fight. No more posy raising, no more song singing, no theatres, no pictures, no parks, no anything of the beautiful and lovely in life from now on! While the newspapers talked about cultivating the vacant lots, that was all right, but now when they are talking about ripping up parks, and turning the conservatories into potato and onion patches—when 95 per cent of the farms in the country are only half cultivated—that's turning common sense into crazy hysterics.

I talked yesterday with a farmer who owns a 500-acre farm within 20 miles of Philadelphia and asked him how much of it was in cultivation. He said about 10 acres. I asked why not all of it. Can't get the help said he. Can you beat it? What he meant was that he couldn't get the help at the old price of $30 a month, and his slow working mind will take some years to realize that labor is a commodity and subject to the universal law of supply and demand and not to custom and tradition. This is just a sample case. It is common everywhere, and yet they talk of ripping up our parks and squares!

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

LANCASTER COUNTY FLORISTS' CLUB.

A small delegation of this organization visited Lititz on April 19. Yellow daisies and snapdragons were found in heavy quantity at C. S. Loeffler's. Keystone and the Giant varieties of snapdragon have been cutting uninterruptedly since October and are still good. Silver Pink is just coming into crop and will be discarded for next season. A trial on forcing Spanish iris has turned out fairly well but he finds that about forty per cent do not bloom the first year. A new early lavender sweet pea here was one of the sensations of the trip. It produces very long stemmed flowers with, in the majority of cases, four flowers to a stem.

Enos Kohr's place was visited. Over 100,000 carnations are under cultivation here. Alice has proved so satisfactory that one whole house will be devoted to it next season. His house of young stock from which they have just commenced planting into the field is given to carnations only. They are planted into soil on benches direct from the sand bed and topped pretty low. Here as everywhere the coal and labor proposition is a serious one for next winter.

At 7.30 the club meeting was called to order with only a fair attendance. The matter of not getting our empty cut-flower boxes returned was brought up and it will be given to our attorney along with other claims against the express company. A general discussion on the inferior quality of the box sent out the past year was indulged in and Mr. Elmer Weaver of Ronks, Pa., was appointed a committee of one to get prices and samples from the different makers to make up a club order of a carload or more.

J. Wade Galey gave us a very interesting paper on carnations, one strong point he brought out being that he attributed his success to the fact that he tops often instead of trying to make a cleanup at one time, and believes in allowing the young plants to have some foliage for the production of roots.

It was decided to hold our picnic in June with time and place fixed at the May meeting. The President appointed Harry K. Rohrer, Lemon Landis and J. De Barry Heinitch a committee to arrange said picnic.

The Programme Committee reported having secured Richard Vincent, Jr. to give us an illustrated lecture on Dahlias for the May meeting, with an invitation to the ladies to attend.

Visiting trips are discontinued until next fall.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GARDENERS.

The winners in the assistant gardeners' essay contest, for which Ex-President William N. Craig offered three prizes in gold—$25, $15 and $10—have been awarded by the judges as follows:

1st—"Rock Gardening," by Marcel M. Twinney, second assistant greenhouse gardener to J. Ogden Armour, Lake Forest, Ill. 2nd—"Hardy Fruits," by Frederick W. Bateman, assistant in charge of greenhouses, Mrs. P. Boettger estate, Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y. 3rd—"Garden Chemistry in Soil Cultivation," by William S. Gillies, assistant gardener to R. H. Boggs, Sewickley, Pa.

The directors of the association have decided on the first week in December as the 1917 convention date. Chicago was voted the convention city at the annual meeting held in Washington last December.

President Thomas W. Head reports that much interest is being manifested in the first annual convention to be held in a western city among the members of the gardening profession located in the west, while a good-sized delegation from the eastern states is looked for. Many eastern members have already signified their intention of going to Chicago to the annual convention. President Head will shortly announce his convention committees.

LENOX HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

The monthly meeting of this Society was held April 11. J. Johnstone, of Blythewood Farms, Pittsfield, read a paper entitled "The Young Gardener." Mr. Johnstone was accorded a rising vote of thanks. The delegates to the Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, Ohio, made their report and a copy of which follows:

In making a report of my visit to Kent, O., to attend the convention of the Davey Tree Expert Co., as a delegate from this Society, I wish to frankly state at the outset that at no time was anything said or done at that convention which might compromise this society or its members individually. No soliciting for business was even hinted at, so that at the start we stand even.

Our outward trip in two Pullman cars was thoroughly enjoyed, going by way of Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, but as we traveled this distance during the night, any mention of the country we passed through is impossible, except that during the early evening the well-kept farms, and out-buildings all nicely painted and in good repair were conspicuous by their frequency while traveling between New York and Philadelphia. On Tuesday morning after breakfast we had a long wait at Hudson for a connection, but finally got away and soon reached Akron, our headquarters being at the Howes Hotel. We were met by a delegation of the Davey Tree Expert Co., who took care of us from the moment we arrived until our departure. After registering and having our rooms assigned, we left by special car for Kent, O., where we were taken to the Mason's Club, which we seemed to own during our stay. The first part of the arranged programme had to be somewhat modified on account of our late arrival, but a banquet to start with seemed to meet general approval, after which we were conducted to the Opera House, to witness a stereopticon lecture on Wild Flowers by Prof. House, of Albany, which proved most interesting and made a plea for the preservation of our wild flowers. This lecture brought home the fact of how few there are of these beautiful inhabitants of our woods and meadows with which we are on speaking terms, and only when they are projected on the screen do we realize how many beautiful things our feet trample to death, unknown and unappreciated. Wild flowers are most interesting, and I can but recommend their study to the young men of our society. After the lecture we had a general good time at the Mason's Club until a special trolley conveyed us back to Akron, where a banquet was given at the City Club in our honor, a splendid dinner was served and the president of the City Club was called upon to speak. He having been intimately acquainted with the Father of Tree Surgery for many years, during his talk he spoke very highly of Mr. Davey, who being a pioneer in his profession, had a lot of uphill work to contend with, until his son, Martin L. Davey, was through college and able to start the work of organization. His personality, business sagacity, and high ideals, has developed a wonderful organization, a credit to any man's genius. They have set high ideals of efficiency, and the whole working force is imbued with the same desire to do the best only. It was a great revelation to me, to see such unity of purpose between employer and employee, the magnetic influence of their president permeates the whole organization and they are endeavoring to work up into his ideals of perfect work, thereby creating satisfied customers, and increased business. Many of those who had seen the actual work of the company spoke very highly of the quality of the work done, and all spoke of the courteous and practical men who were sent to do the work. On Friday morning the special car which came to the hotel for us each day, took us out to Kent, where we spent the morning looking over the work of the students who are taking the course. They were studying everything in connection with plant growth, and causes of disease, insects which do injury to trees, and remedies for their extermination, and a very interesting time was spent among the students, and one could only be convinced that they were on the right track, in training their own men to perform the work which is in store for them later, and do credit to the company. By a process of elimination they only keep the men which come up to their standard, and I feel sure there are no drones in the Davey hive. Their working force consists of a bright, active lot of young men in fact one rarely meets with such a business equipment. After looking over the students' work we were conducted to see the offices, and found everything well up to their standard of perfection, even to the quality of the many fair stenographers all busily at work. After luncheon we again went to the opera house, and listened to a practical talk on Evergreens by H. Wild, of Greenwich, Conn., followed by a very interesting lecture by J. Horace Macfarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., who made a plea for the trees. This was to have been a stereopticon lecture, but the power having been shut off, the pictures were shown at the banquet in the evening. Following this we all had an opportunity to witness some of the tree surgery done by the students on the Ohio State Normal School grounds. The trees were very large oaks, magnificent trees, but decay has set in and only the scientific treatment given them by the Davey Co. can save them from absolute loss.

THE FAIRY ISLE LILY FIELD.

Many trees were cleaned and braced ready for filling, others had been treated, the cavities being well cut out, and some were finished, and looked perfectly convalescent. We also had an opportunity to see filling which had been done four years, still good, but the earlier work only served to show what great improvement had followed the closer study of the trees' requirements.

At the banquet on Friday evening we had an opportunity to meet Father John, and listen to his stirring appeal to his working force, which he addressed as My boys. His great love for trees was the impulse which has been the means of developing such an organization, but he forcibly remarked that success had not come through any individual effort, but by unity of thought and action applied to the whole working force, forming ideals, and working up to them. After his speech his force presented him with an enormous loving cup inscribed "Father John from his boys" which so deeply impressed him that he was unable to respond for some time. Many excellent speeches were made during the evening, which lasted until a late hour when our private car took us back once more to Akron. This was our farewell to Kent, as on Saturday morning we had an opportunity to visit the Goodrich Tire Factory, which proved a very enjoyable event. We also had a group photograph taken of the delegates, and after this we were once more entertained at luncheon by Mr. Martin L. Davey, and all spoke highly of the generous treatment we had received. A very pleasing duty devolved upon A. J. Loveless, of presenting to Mr. Davey a slight expression of our appreciation of what had been done for us, and for the very interesting time we had all enjoyed. This was expressed in the form of a pale green cut glass double ink stand, and Mr. Davey feelingly expressed his appreciation, and said that it should always be on his desk as a reminder of the sentiments which it conveyed. After being reimbursed for all our expenses we were conducted to the station, and once more started for home, all being of one accord in praise of the efficient outfit which comprised the Davey Tree Expert Co.

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY.

We have received from Secretary J. Harrison Dick, Bulletin No. 6 of the American Dahlia Society. It contains some good articles on dahlia topics, by J. Ebb Weir, Jr., W. W. Wilmore, J. P. Rooney, F. J. Aichle, Mrs. Chas. H. Stout, George L. Stillman, W. O. Wykoff and Pres. R. Vincent, Jr., as well as editorial notes, etc., and a complete list of members, all of which makes up a very useful and interesting publication for the dahlia lovers. The secretary has some ambitious plans ahead, among them being the publication of Prof. Hall's list of dahlia names which will fill the place of a standard reference list and be another accomplishment of permanent value to the credit of the society.

THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

The American Institute of the City of New York and the American Dahlia Society will hold an exhibition of dahlias in the Engineering Society Building, 25-33 West 39th street, New York City, on Sept. 25 to 27, 1917, also the Annual Chrysanthemum Exhibition will be held on Nov. 7 to 9, 1917, at the same place.

A SUCCESSFUL INNOVATION.

An innovation in the way of flower shows which met with considerable success was tried in New Brunswick, N. J., April 12 to 15, 1917. Instead of having the flowers all grouped together in one large building or room, according to the conventional method of holding flower shows, exhibits were placed in various store windows along George street, the main business street of the city. The purpose of employing this new and very novel method of displaying the flowers was to attract the notice, not only of those who would be willing to take the trouble to visit a show held in a special building, but also of those who are not interested in flowers or their cultivation and whose attention could be gotten only by placing the flowers where their eyes could not fail to fall upon them often during the walk to and from business or at other times during the day.

Judging from the number of people who might be seen gathered around the windows in which the different exhibits were placed, this original method of displaying flowers was very successfully introduced. And besides the success attending it as a flower show, another phase of it is worthy of note,—its advertising value. No difficulty was experienced in obtaining the use of store windows in which to place the exhibits, and it is certain that should another such event take place many more merchants would be willing and anxious to offer the use of their windows.

Another advantage of this method was that it gave one the opportunity of appreciating the beauty and attractiveness of the individual blooms. After visiting a flower show of the kind usually held one retains but an impression of a riot of confused and mingled beauty, with no distinct and vivid remembrance of individual flowers or plants. Seeing the various exhibits one at a time, however, with the name of each bloom plainly written on a card attached to it, one is able to remember those which appear most attractive, for reference when planning a home garden.

(The foregoing has just come to us through sources outside of the trade and as no mention is made therein of flower store participation in the enterprise so we are thus far quite in ignorance of the attitude of the local flower trade towards the affair or of the promoters toward the trade. But it reads good and is suggestive of things which we believe in and should like to see developed. Comments by our readers are invited.—Ed.]

A TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF GEORGE WASHINGTON.

When the gardeners met in Washington last December they journeyed to Mount Vernon and while there suggested to H. H. Dodge, superintendent of the estate, that it would be very nice to have an English yew tree planted there. He assented and accepted the offer of the gardeners to furnish such a tree. W. N. Craig, who was then president of the association, appointed a committee to arrange for the planting and so on April 23, Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, vice-president, and Martin C. Ebel, secre-

GARDEN AND CLUB WORK INSTRUCTION.

Instruction for those who are to organize and supervise garden and club work projects in Massachusetts, 1917, will be given at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, on Thursday and Friday of each week. All meetings in French Hall, Room E. Following is the program:

THURSDAY.

8.00 A. M. A general statement of the situation we are facing. Director, William D. Hurd.

9.00 A. M. Junior extension club work organization. Supervisor, George L. Farley.

10.00 A. M. Garden planting, etc. Professor A. S. Thomson.

1.00 P. M. Garden practice, implements, etc. Professor A. S. Thomson.

3.00 P. M. Demonstration, canning. Miss Marie Sayles.

FRIDAY.

8.00 A. M. Drying, evaporating, etc., fruits. Professor W. W. Chenoweth.

9.00 A. M. Dry storage of vegetables. Professor A. S. Thomson.

10.00 A. M. Garden pests. Doctor H. T. Fernald.

1.00 P. M. How to organize work in towns. Professor E. L. Morgan.

3.00 P. M. Garden practice, implements, etc. Professor A. S. Thomson.

IN THE LINE OF PROGRESS.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir.—During the week before Easter I visited the show-rooms in Grand Rapids of Freyling & Mendels, the florists. Never within my recollection have I seen such a delightful profusion of greenhouse flowers. The plants in the lower or main rooms were grouped with rare feeling for beauty, and careful regard for form and color. For example: pale primrose Azalea mollis with standard Wistaria near (lavender) with a foreground of Cinerarias in tones of bluish-violet. There were almost no clashes of color.

Then how far-sighted are they who dare in a smaller city to force and offer for sale such Daffodils as Mme. de Graff and Lucifer. How thoroughly I agree with a writer in the Florists' Exchange, who said lately that the sad lack in the New York flower shows is the absence of competition in new varieties of flowers. We shall never learn—we shall never teach—until the body of our florists and flower-show exhibitors act on such suggestions as this and upon such examples as I have mentioned above.

To speak of one other matter which should deeply concern the florists; it is now more important than ever before that the salespeople of the florist's establishment should be ready with the correct common botanical names of every flower shown. The last few years of gardening fervor in the country have created an educated flower-buying public and the time is here when a lack of intelligence on the part of those who sell flowers will surely be visited upon them by a falling off in their business. Very truly yours,

MRS. FRANCIS KING.

Plant Propagation, Greenhouse and Nursery Practice

By M. G. KAINS

We have had many inquiries from time to time for a reliable and up-to-date book on plant propagation, but were always at a loss to find any publication that we could recommend. The subject has been dealt with in fragmentary manner only in books that have come to our notice. So it is well that this new work has been issued, especially as it is both comprehensive and practical, and it should meet with a ready sale among plantmen, nurserymen and gardeners. There are nineteen chapters covering in detail topics of germination and longevity of seeds, propagating by buds, layering, cuttings, grafting, etc., fruit tree stocks, cions, etc., and there are eight pages of condensed cultural instructions in tabulated form, covering annuals and perennials from seed, woody plants, evergreens, vines, bulbs and tubers, greenhouse and house plants, ferns, palms, water plants, orchids and cacti. The illustrations are numerous, comprising 213 figures and half-tone plates. There are 322 pages well bound and on heavy paper, teeming with helpful information. It is a book which no cultivator can afford to do without. It is worth many times its price. Copies can be supplied from the office of HORTICULTURE at publisher's price, $1.50.

"Get them at Dreer's"

Hardy Perennials

For many years one of our most important specialties, our stock this season is again in prime condition, more extensive than ever, with a complete assortment of both standard varieties and novelties.

Roses, Two Year Old Plants for Outdoor Planting

Our Roses are all field grown plants which were dug in the fall, and which during the winter months were potted into 5 and 6 inch pots. They are stored in cold houses and frames, being retarded as much as possible, and are just the sort of stock that will please your retail customers. We are particularly strong on Hybrid Teas but carry also nearly all other types.

Aquatic Plants

Eight acres of Ponds are devoted to Hardy Nymphaeas and Nelumbiums alone, a large assortment of Tropical Nymphaeas, Victoria Regia, etc., as well as sub-aquatic plants for marginal planting. If interested in these, send for our book 'Dreer's Water Lilies.' It is not only descriptive, but gives full cultural directions.

ALTHEA WILLIAM R. SMITH

Hardy Shrubs and Vines

A choice assortment of standard varieties—Altheas (including our own splendid novelty William R. Smith) Azaleas, Callicarpa Purpurea, Hydrangea Aborescens Grandiflora, and Paniculata Grandiflora, Cotoneasters, Buddleias, Deutzias, Forsythias, Prunus, Philadelphus, Spiraeas, Viburnum, Weigelas, Ampelopsis, Akebia, Aristolochia, Clematis, Honeysuckles, Wisterias, etc.

Decorative Plants

Palms and Ferns, Aspidistra, Crotons, Dracaenas, Ficus, Pandanus, etc. Amaryllis, Tuberous-Rooted Begonias, Caladium Esculentum and a splendid assortment of Fancy-Leaved Caladiums, Golden Yellow and Spotted-Leaved Callas, Hyacinthus Candicans, Gladiolus, Lilies, Montbretias, Tigridias, Tuberoses, etc.

All of the above and many others are fully described in our current Wholesale List, January to June, which will be mailed upon request only to persons engaged commercially in Horticulture.

THE YOUNG GARDENER

An Address Before the Lenox Horticultural Society. By John Johnstone.

Young men—the enviable and universal reputation established by some of the older members of this Lenox Horticultural Society is of more than passing interest. Just after locating in Pittsfield last fall I wrote an old boss in England to the effect that I had now settled in Berkshire County, Mass. He replied to my letter as follows: "The names Berkshires and Lenox are familiar to me as being associated with horticultural giants. Is this the same Berkshire you wrote of. It must be." He thus put the question and himself answered in the affirmative. Here then is it exemplified that Lenox is no strange name to gardeners across the briny, and here too will the young man find an opportunity for development such as few other districts present. I would not, however, lead anyone to assume that the fact of his having worked in any one or more of these gardens guaranteed efficiency. Such influence, in British gardens, possesses material advantages. There, a young fellow's capabilities are estimated by the amount of influential power at his command, rather than by his knowledge of the craft. In democratic America men in our profession rest on their merit, and right here, I repeat, is an environment of unbounded opportunity for any young man to learn advanced gardening and the rudiments of estate management. Men of the rising generation, in my opinion, are sometimes prone to await the magic impulse of what might be called "luck." Having become specialists in one branch perhaps, and this usually under glass, we patiently, and with complacency rest our oars on the precedent that a knowledge of 'mums, or roses, or carnations are the necessary and absolute qualifications of an up-to-date gardener. Unfortunately the head men in their endeavor to procure efficient help encourage this attitude to some extent. Almost invariably in filling a berth they give preference to the young man who previously held a similar position. Thus instead of helping the rising generation to become proficient all-round gardeners, they do in some measure promote an undesirable state of affairs. Nevertheless, there are few head men who would deny an ambitious and conscientious young man an opportunity for development. So that reducing the question to a normal basis it must be admitted that the whole situation is in the hands of the individual most concerned—the young gardener.

Let me then, young friends, emphasize the fact that just as the strength of a chain lies in its weakest link, so a man's character, his general knowledge and initiative power are judged by the weakest points. If then we choose to hibernate in the greenhouses as horticulturists, alone, becoming oblivious to the three co-ordinate branches of horticulture, pomology, vegetable culture and landscape gardening, we naturally fail as practical gardeners. By landscape gardening I mean more particularly the planning and planting of herbaceous borders, shrubberies and the like, as to perspective and the employment of suitable varieties. These are subjects worthy of our attention, and if circumstances for the time being prevent our gaining practical knowledge, nothing hinders us from taking a lively interest in outdoor gardening and of at least becoming fairly conversant on matters pertaining to this department. However, one ounce of practice is worth a pound of theory and I, therefore, advocate practical treatment of the subject. Forget the greenhouse for a year or two during your career as an assistant. We put millstones about our necks when we confine our energies to one branch of gardening.

"The 'chip' of conceit will sometimes lodge on the shoulder of the young grower whose chrysanthemums, roses, or carnations win honor for his chief at the local show. Young fellows often overlook the fact that previously, maybe for years and years, this same head gardener has won for himself similar honors and is, therefore, justifiably entitled to his enviable reputation. We know of some old so-and-so happily situated and who, in our estimation, knoweth not the first thing about potting a chrysanthemum! Thus, unbridled, our ideas flaunt. How easy to overlook the fact that this same old so-and-so has years ago outgrown, so to speak, elementary gardening, and is now responsible for results of an order practically unknown to us of less ripe experience. That which is often uppermost in a young gardener's mind might be less interesting to the head man, and probably remote in the mind of an employer. Satisfied that we must now get out of the rut, our best intentions will stagger if they do not entirely succumb to an illusory dread of ridicule. We seem to be endowed with a natural timidity when confronted by an edifying proposition, and quite heedless of the old saying, "He who fears ridicule is at the mercy of every fool."

Nothing would give me greater joy than to have at these meetings each young member voluntarily give of his experience something to stimulate enthusiasm and evoke criticism. There is nothing derogatory in being criticised. Take notice, those who expose themselves to and can merit criticism are generally doing something of the worth while order. Let us then revolutionize our standard of preparedness. Apathy on our part cannot be too strongly condemned, and while the rut is hard to steer clear of, well directed energy will pull us through.

Don't forget that some of the old school hail from Missouri and my advice just now is that "when you feel in earnest seize the very minute; if there's anything you can do, or think you can, begin it."

Not all young men lack the incentive but oh! so many hate to get busy.

A PROGRESSIVE MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTION.

The Essex County Agricultural School finished its class room work April 18. This early date is in response to the "Increase the Agricultural Production" campaign and also is along the line of progress towards the time when Agricultural Schools and Colleges will be in session during the growing season when live material is available for the study of such subjects as Botany and Entomology and horticultural and agricultural operations are in progress. The student of these subjects should vacation when Mother Nature vacations—in the winter.

The school was not established as a stepping stone to a college agricultural education, although it may be so used but gives an opportunity to obtain a vocation High School education. True to the vocational idea, that is getting practical experience at the same time as learning from books and lectures the students carry on at their homes or at the school such projects as market gardening, poultry raising, fruit growing, floriculture, etc., or get experience at nurseries, private estates, market gardens, poultry, dairy or fruit farms and greenhouse establishments.

This school is in session twelve months of the year, the instructors supervising the projects during the summer and the students checking up by practical experience the book knowledge gained during the winter.

Horticulture is represented on the school faculty by the following instructors: Frank H. Wilson (Mass. Agri. College), formerly at N. H. State College, and with Thomas Roland of Nahant, instructor of Floriculture and Botany; Ellwood Allen, M. A. C., in charge of Landscape Gardening; Lothrop Davenport, instructor in Fruit Growing; James Salter, a well known North Shore gardener, and Robert A. Mitchell are responsible for Vegetable Gardening.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The following officers were installed at the annual meeting of the Florists' Association of Buffalo held in Kastings hall on the evening of April 17. President, Henry H. Elbers; vice-president, Mark Palmer; secretary, William Legg; financial secretary, Oliver Klingemeier; treasurer, Edward Stroh; directors, W. J. Palmer, W. H. Eiss and Louis Neubeck.

At the monthly meeting of the Stamford Horticultural Society last Friday evening eight new members were added. Alexander Geddes read a paper on "The Culture of Vegetables," which gave some very timely pointers to the numerous amateur gardeners present. Cultural certificates were awarded to Mr. Bische for collection of French hydrangeas, and A. Wynn for antirrhinums. J. D. Foster received high commendation for Spiraea rubens, and thanks were extended to A. Geddes for carnations and Gerbera Jamesoni and to A. Pederson for Yarrowa sweet peas.

A DEATH WAVE.

The past winter a death wave swept over a large section of Kansas and Nebraska. It killed the winter wheat and injured the alfalfa badly. In raising iris for 25 years I never had any trouble with winterkilling, but half of our iris was killed. The Foster hybrids were the first to go, Lohengrin, Mithras, Nibelugen and others of that class went under. Some of our own new creations of great beauty succumbed. The winter was very cold and the ground was very dry. All iris that happened to be mulched got through all right, except the great Mesopotamia, which went under notwithstanding generous protection.

A raised bed of iris, and good mulching will take them through. My new foliage iris with the most charming, long, deep green, pendulous leaves, came through all right. The foliage is the richest I ever saw. I got 90 from one 3-year-old plant and every one in full vigor, and glad to see the spring come. The seed pods are like a weaver's shuttle in shape. I have saved some seed well fertilized by the bees and hope for good results. This iris is certainly unique—a class by itself. I have great hopes for it.

Every Reader of "Horticulture" Needs

DR. L. H. BAILEY'S BRAND NEW Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture

Six large quarto volumes. More than 3,600 pages. 24 full page exquisite color plates. 96 beautiful full page halftones. More than 4,000 text engravings. 500 Collaborators. Approximately 4,000 genera, 20,000 species and 40,000 plant names

THE New Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture has been freshly written in the light of the most recent research and experience. It is the fullest, the newest, the most authoritative of all works of its kind and constitutes the most conscientious attempt that has ever been made to compress the whole story of our horticultural thought, learning and achievement into one set of books. It is both an Encyclopedia and a Manual.

A Few of the Many Important New Features

Key to Identification of Plants This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

Synopsis of Plant Kingdom This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders, and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters; the number of genera and species and the ranges; a list of the important genera; brief statements in regard to the useful plants; and diagrammatic illustrations.

Illustrations There are 24 colored plates; 96 full page halftones; and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

The Glossary This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works. It comprises botanical and horticultural terms with brief definitions.

Translation and Pronunciation of Latin Names In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

Class Articles Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling. Here are some of the titles of these articles: Ants; Autumn Gardening; Bedding; Diseases; Drainage; Floral Designs; Formal Gardening; Hotbeds and Coldframes; Insects; Landscape Gardening; Lawn Planting; Orchards; Rock Gardening; Subtropical Gardening; Tools and Implements; Village Improvements; Window Boxes, etc.

General Index The final volume contains a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind.

The complete set of six volumes, bound in decorated buckram, will be delivered to you for only $3 down and $3 a month for 11 months, until the full amount of $36 has been paid. Cash price $35.

OBITUARY.

James McClane.

James McClane, a prominent florist in the Southern section of Philadelphia, died on the 23rd inst. He had been in business there for 45 years, as a grower and retailer, and was one of the real "old timers." He was highly respected by all who knew him and he had hosts of friends, both business and social. He was a man of the strictest integrity, and so successful in his business that he left a good competence behind him for his family, when he passed on to his fathers at a ripe old age.

A. I. Philips.

The death of A. I. Philips of West Salem, Wisconsin, deserves more than a passing notice. There were seven of us old men—members of the Minnesota Horticultural Society. We were of nearly the same age, we seldom failed to meet at the horticultural meetings in December. What good times we had. Mr. Philips was one of the leading horticulturist of the northwest. He revolutionized apple growing by top grafting on the Virginia Crab. He brought out the fact that the stock controlled the scion to such a degree, that it made a tender variety hardy, and a shy bearer prolific. I suppose the orchard he planted at West Salem was one of the most prolific that ever bore. He was always in demand for after-dinner speeches at our banquets and his droll way of putting things, and his sparkling wit kept the audience in a roar. He was a year younger than myself. Charles G. Patten, one of the world's foremost pomologists from Charles City, Iowa, was another of our group. He and myself are of the same age—84. Association with such royal men is one of the pleasantest memories of my life. C. S. HARRISON.

A CHOICE SPRING BLOOMER.

The old favorite Chorizemas are coming again into popularity with commercial plant growers in the past nicely to any method of training either in large or small pots. The example few years. They adapt themselves shown in the engraving was in a 7½ in. pot at the establishment of A. L. Miller, who grows Chorizemas in quantity as an Easter specialty. The fine polished holly-like foliage and the racemes of odd orange and red flowers make a very pretty effect. In culture Chorizema requires conditions such as is given to heaths, azaleas and other New Holland plants—particularly hard-pressed firm soil when potted. During the flowering and growing periods they require water in abundance.

A CORRECTION.

Prof. A. C. Beal, of Cornell University, calls our attention to a line in our reading notice of Cornell Extension Bulletin No. 10, in a recent issue of HORTICULTURE, in which we say that "the bibliography (Gladiolus) is not so complete as it should be." Professor Beal suggests that the line in question might have been written without our having taken into account the bibliography which had appeared in Bulletin No. 9. On investigation we find this to be a fact. We had considered in our criticism only the pages of the second volume which were devoted to the "Bibliography" not realizing that same had been but a continuation from the previous publication. We should be very sorry to do an injustice to Prof. Hottes, who evidently has done a very painstaking work on these bulletins. Taking the two publications together the bibliography is the most complete ever published in an experiment station on any flower or crop. The bibliography in Studies 1 covers the botany, history and evolution of the gladiolus. That in Studies 11 covers only those particular phases of the work treated therein and that is where we went astray. We trust this explanation will be accepted as making amends.

WEED KILLER

THE VERY NEWEST AND QUICKEST METHOD OF DESTROYING WEEDS, GRASS AND OTHER GROWTH IN GARDEN WALKS, GUTTERS, TENNIS COURTS, DRIVEWAYS, ETC.

This fluid absolutely destroys all weeds and other growth wherever applied, and its effect on the ground prevents the growth of fresh ones for a year and thus saves a great deal of time and labor, as no cutting, hoeing or hauling away of the weeds is required.

We manufacture the strongest line of DISINFECTANTS on the market.

QUARANTINES ON FIVE-LEAFED PINES, AND CURRANT AND GOOSEBERRY PLANTS.

Two orders have just been issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, effective June 1, 1917, on account of the white pine blister rust. One of these orders prohibits the further importation of currant and gooseberry plants from Europe and Asia. The other order quarantines all the States east of and including the States of Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana, and prohibits the movement from these States to points outside the quarantined area of all five-leaved pines and currant and gooseberry plants. There is a further prohibition of the movement of five-leaved pines and black currant plants to any point outside the heavily infected region comprising the New England States and the State of New York. This additional quarantine is made for the purpose of protecting other quarantined States, as well as the remainder of the country, from possible infection by white pine blister rust by means of the plants mentioned.

While this domestic quarantine, as noted, does not become effective until June 1, the attention of all nurserymen is called to the fact that in the meantime their voluntary agreement of a year or more ago not to ship any white pines or currant or gooseberry plants into the Rocky Mountain and the Pacific Slope States is expected to remain in full force and effect, and the inspectors of these Western States have been notified of this understanding.

Production of Bermuda Onions in Texas.

The condition of the Texas Bermuda onion crop estimated by the Truck Crop Specialist of the Bureau of Crop Estimates in a report issued at Laredo, Texas, on April 4, 1917, at 68.5 per cent. of normal, forecasting a yield of about 246 crates per acre, or a total production of 2,964,300 crates, the equivalent of 6,388 cars of 464 crates each, and forecasting the production for Webb County at 2,520 cars.

From a large number of reports received from all parts of the Bermuda onion district, it appears that the condition of the crop on April 15 was 67.8 per cent. of a normal crop, a decrease of less than one point as compared with April 1, and the estimate of that date is, therefore, reaffirmed.

The Truck Crop Specialist personally inspected around 2,500 acres in Dimmit County on the 13th of April, where a failing water supply has caused many persons to fear an extreme shortage of the crop. He was convinced that the crop then made fully warranted the forecast of April 1.

Notes

A bill has just been introduced into Congress looking to an appropriation of $250,000 for the purchase of seeds, bulbs, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and plants. The purchase is to be made by the Secretary of Agriculture, and five-sixths of the purchase is to be allotted to the Senators, Representatives, and Delegates for distribution among their constituents.

Owing to the conditions prevalent in the commercial world, prospective bidders for the supply of seed as reported in HORTICULTURE on page 460 of the issue of April 7, are being advised that the Secretary of the Treasury has decided to accept proposals on the various items with the provision that contractors will not be required to deliver more than 20 per cent. over and above the figures named as representing the purchases during the corresponding period of 1916.

MOTHERS' DAY PUBLICITY

MOTHERS' DAY PUBLICITY.

The Mothers' Day Publicity Campaign inaugurated by the Chicago Florists' Club is well under way. Thousands of stamps and posters have been purchased by florists from every section of the country, and all orders are being delivered immediately.

F. T. D. Supports This Movement.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association has adopted the Chicago Florists' Club Mothers' Day Stamp and Poster as the official emblem for this campaign.

The F. T. D. has placed an order to supply each and every one of its members with a quantity of Mothers' Day Stamps and Posters, which will be allotted in quantities of 300 stamps and 2 posters, and 500 stamps and 4 posters, in proportion to the annual dues paid by each member.

Should any F. T. D. florist desire more stamps and posters than allotted by the F. T. D., same may be obtained by writing immediately to the Chairman of the Publicity Committee, F. Lautenschlager, 440 W. Erie St., Chicago, Ill.

Proceeds to be Devoted to the Purchase of a Full Page Advertisement in One of the Leading Magazines.

As stated previously, the profits derived from this campaign will be devoted to the purchase of a full page advertisement in a national publication which is estimated will be read by over five million people.

Special Attention Called to F. T. D. Out-of-Town Service.

One of the features of this advertisement will suggest that if your mother is in another city, no matter where you are, or what the distance, step into any flower store and leave your order, and fresh flowers will be delivered to your mother within a few hours through the organized and reliable telegraphic system of the F. T. D. with a guaranteed service. This will help the entire retail florists' trade.

Committee Places Contract for Page Advertisement.

Contract has been let to place this advertisement, and this committee plans to send proof copy of same to each and every one subscribing towards this fund. We suggest that immediately upon receipt, these proofs be displayed in some prominent place in your store. A good plan also would be to secure a copy of the magazine containing this advertisement and exhibit same in your show window. This will combine very well with our Mothers' Day Advertising Campaign.

As yet there are a great many florists who have not subscribed towards this movement, which is surely due to an oversight. This movement is a very big undertaking, and therefore requires that we dispose of a very large number of stamps and posters. Every florist can help us.

A special appeal is made to those who have not as yet subscribed towards this fund—send your order at once. In case you have no use for the stamps and posters you can at least help by donating a small sum towards the support of this National Advertising Campaign, and in consideration for same we will send you one of the proofs also—this will help all concerned.

Special Notice to Every Florist

Start putting Mothers' Day stamps on all correspondence, packages, etc., leaving your shop.

Thanking you again for helping to make this the greatest and biggest success for Mothers' Day publicity, we remain,

Sincerely yours,

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

F. LAUTENSCHLAGER, Chairman.

TO THE FLORISTS OF AMERICA

You are aware of the great benefits which every florist has derived from the establishment of Mothers' Day.

Last year the Board of Directors of the S. A. F. appealed for subscriptions to a fund to be placed at the disposal of the International Mothers' Day Association of which Miss Anna Jarvis, the originator of Mothers' Day, is the head. There was a very liberal response from a few of the more prominent members in the trade, but this appeal was not responded to as generally as it should have been. This year it is hoped that every one who benefits from the sale of flowers or accessories for Mothers' Day will evidence their appreciation of what has already been done and the big possibilities that Miss Jarvis has opened to the florists' trade by subscribing to this fund promptly.

We owe Miss Jarvis a great deal, as the Mothers' Day sale of flowers bids fair to surpass any other day in the year. Her work now is mainly to perpetuate and get Mothers' Day thoroughly established. Miss Jarvis has devoted her entire time and funds in the effort to make Mothers' Day universally recognized and to perpetuate it for all time. Miss Jarvis, by reason of being the originator of Mothers' Day, is in a position to command more publicity for Mothers' Day than money can buy, and it is for this reason that you should do your share, whether small or large, to help this united effort for a fund that will get results.

Subscription blanks have been sent to you which cover a period of three years. Kindly write in same the amount that you feel that you can give, sign and return to Mr. John Young, Secretary, 53 W. 28th St., New York, with check for the first year. If for any reason you do not want to subscribe for this period, you may cross out and send your subscription for the current year only. DO THIS NOW, as the committee desires to get as early results as possible, and if a sufficient fund is realized, the Mothers' Day committee has in mind a publicity campaign which will help eliminate some of the undesirable features which are experienced in the sale of flowers for Mothers' Day.

Your prompt attention to this will be greatly appreciated.

Yours very truly,

MOTHERS' DAY COMMITTEES S. A. F.

BOSTON.

Mayor Curley will retain an attorney for any person willing to contest in court the right of the police to arrest persons for working in gardens on Sunday. The mayor also is making every effort to have the Legislature repeal the old "blue law" before next Sunday. Governor McCall will favor legislation, if it is needed, to allow certain forms of gardening on Sundays. He is still of the opinion, however, that the courts will hold that gardening work on Sunday in the present conditions of war and high prices, is a work of "necessity" within the meaning of the old "Blue Laws," and as such is excepted from the provisions.

The Brookline public safety committee appointed Daniel G. Lacy supervisor of food products and conservation, and turned over to him and to a committee he appointed the work of the sub-committee on food conservation. Mr. Lacy is superintendent of the Brookline forestry department. His assistants, all expert gardeners, are William C. Rust of Mrs. Weld's estate, Duncan Finlayson of the Larz Anderson estate, George N. Barrie of the Ernest B. Dane estate, Basil Noyes of Mrs. John M. Longyear's estate, William Kennedy of the metropolitan water works, William Thatcher of Mrs. J. L. Gardner's estate, Nay Smith of E. C. Fletcher's estate, Patrick Burke of Mrs. A. Blake's estate, Martin Sullivan of William Whitman's estate, William N. Craig of Faulkner Farm (Mrs. Brandegee's estate), and Frederick C. Palmer, florist. The town of Brookline will plow, harrow, plant and fertilize the plots, and the cost will be borne by those who do the gardening, for all the crops they raise will be theirs. The cost of thus preparing the land will probably be under $10 an acre.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

A. L. Glaser of Des Moines, Iowa, whose obituary appeared in last week's issue, was a frequent visitor to this market for many years and he will be missed.

The committee appointed by the Chicago Florists' Club to try and make arrangements for coal for next year, have the matter in hand but so far have reached nothing definite.

Joe Eringe has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father, whose death occurred Friday, April 20th. His employers, Zech & Mann, and his fellow workers sent many handsome floral tokens.

After four months of "daily performance" the greenhouse grown daffodil is about to retire for a time. This is probably the longest run this flower has made in anything like such quantity and its disappearance will not be regretted by the carnation growers.

M. Bloy was calling on the trade last week on his way home to Detroit after spending a winter in California. Mr. Bloy says it is the first time in many years that he has not been actively in the rush of Easter week and enjoyed being an onlooker this year, seeing it from another angle in Denver, Colo.

The shortage in certain plant foods is attracting the attention of large dealers in other lines, and the possible advantages of taking up the handling of commercial fertilizers is appealing to them. One of Chicago's large mail order houses has just invested one million dollars in such a department.

The posterettes offered by the Chicago Florists' Club in the interest of flower sales for Mothers' Day are being secured by local florists, who have not forgotten what a stimulus the same kind of advertising was to St. Valentine's Day, doing much toward making that the best day of its kind on record. Mothers' Day needs only intelligent pushing to make it an equal success, and the florists are going after it.

A. M. Terrill of Calgary, Alberta, Can., visited Chicago last week. He reports trade in the northern city as having been very good all the past year. Mr. Terrill says the first year of the great war had a marked and depressing effect on the florists' business, but that this year the big wheat crop and the abnormally high prices they brought, has tended to boom business, notwithstanding the absence of the young men who have gone to war.

PHILADELPHIA.

Dr. Lane is around again. This will be pleasant news for his many friends in the horticultural world. As previously reported in these columns the doctor went under an operation for appendicitis about six weeks ago.

J. Horace Macfarland of Harrisburg gave a lecture on roses before the Penna Horticultural Society on April 18th. The meeting was attended by about 120 members, mostly ladies, and was very much enjoyed, being not only instructive but entertaining and in Mr. Macfarland's very best style.

Stephen Mortensen, Southampton, one of our most noted rose growers, is about completing a new addition to his extensive establishment 60'x275' of the latest Lord & Burnham construction. A few years ago a half acre of new glass was considered news. Today it is hardly worth mentioning. But Steve is a progressive and tries out all the new roses, so we love to mention him when we get a chance.

ST. LOUIS.

J. J. Beneke has suffered a relapse. He caught cold while attending the Florists' Club meeting in the county. It is sincerely hoped he will have a speedy recovery.

Walter J. Young of C. Young & Sons was married Saturday morning, April 21st, at St. Marguerite's Church to Cletus Ann Peet. The bride carried a muff of white lilac and lily of the valley. Two maids of honor had bouquets of Sunburst and Ophelia. Bridesmaids—Pink Killarney; flower girl—white sweet peas. They go to Chicago and other cities for a honeymoon. Walter belongs to Battery A and has recently returned from the border.

PITTSBURGH.

The advice given by George W. Burke, superintendent of the Bureau of Parks, that owners of lawn and street trees and shrubbery consult with his office before allowing a tree pruner to touch the growth, is being followed by many persons who have read his counsel in the daily papers. James L. Grimes, foreman of the Tree Division and former city forester; Robert Foley, foreman of Riverview Park; William Dole, of the Schenley Park nursery, and Charles Gettenbough, of the Highland Park nursery, have been busy inspecting trees and shrubbery and advising how they should be pruned.

A SINCERE COMPLIMENT.

Gentlemen:

I am a subscriber to more florist papers than I have money to pay for, but really you are so necessary I could not give you up. Enclosed please find small check for $2.00.

Respectfully,

N. H.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON We seem to have struck squarely into the season of low spring prices without the customary accompaniment of low spring quality. There has been no period of enervating heat thus far which probably accounts for the high quality maintained in so large a proportion of the flower receipts. The conditions here as above outlined are not much different from those prevalent in important markets elsewhere, judging from the reports received. Things which are most sluggish are lilies and bulb stock generally, roses, carnations, pansies, snapdragons and sweet peas. Snapdragons have been a drag all through the spring season although they are in most cases very fine. Street fakir trade has "come into its own" for the past two weeks.

CHICAGO Trade is very satisfactory. Even with the check which a return to cold weather has put upon the incoming stock, there is far too much to meet the demand. Very fine American Beauty roses are offered and the old question of how to get Beauties to bloom when they are wanted and not when the season is over, is again revived. Wholesalers say there seems to be a distinct time in the year when Beauties are wanted and too often that proves to be the time when they cannot be had, as has been the case this year. Darwin tulips are still with us and are fine but daffodils are about gone. Calendulas have been constantly on the counters for months and the stock offered today is very large. Snapdragons are hard to move at prices growers desire. All kinds of roses are much in evidence and the buyer with the persuasive tongue can get away with an armful for a small sum of money. The carnation grower hopes, with Mothers' Day just ahead, to do something to speed up the sales that have dragged discouragingly all the season through. There are sweet peas enough and to spare. In fact there is an excess of almost everything except cattleyas and lily of the valley. All the wholesale houses report many inquiries for flowers for Mothers' Day. Though carnations are in the lead, all kinds of flowers will undoubtedly be used as was the case last year.

Since Easter the New York flower market has shown very little in the way of enlightenment as to how the spring opening might finally develop. Dealers and growers alike, realizing the unusual conditions which confront us, are solicitously "watching the boards" from day to day and for so far, there is nothing in sight to indicate any material change from the drift which set in with the first of April, downward tending and continuing so with vexatious regularity. As compared with previous years the values received for standard stock show up quite favorably, we think, but the cost of producing the goods has probably been somewhat heavier. The quality of the material has been the best on an average that this market has ever seen. This applies emphatically to the roses. It is a source of delight to anyone to watch the opening up of the crates as they arrive from the many rose growing establishments of Jersey, Long Island and up-state and observe the wonderful finish and uniformity of bud and foliage and the skillful manner of their grading and packing as compared with the methods of a few years back. One cannot resist the conviction that these gems of the growers' skill are well worth all the dealer demands for them. And it goes without saying, in times like the present, that the dealers' existence is a continuous fight with his back to the wall, to hold the line of values from annihilation. Snapdragons of high degree are a feature of the market but they move slowly, as do also the lilies, many of which are of rare size and finish. The low-grade lilies, of which there also are plenty, find no takers. The only violets now coming in are the Gov. Herrick variety, rich purple in color but lacking in other qualities of appeal. There are lots of sweet peas, showing a higher quality than ever before, but they have to be sold at low figures. Lily of the valley is very limited in quantity. Price is established by grade but in no case is the demand very pronounced. Bulbous flowers are not so overwhelmingly abundant but there are still many more tulips and the various narcissi than the market can digest. Spanish iris is everywhere in attractive beauty but far in excess of any requirements. Conditions on all sides, in short, are most favorable to the "push-cart" brand of merchant and these gentlemen simply swam in all parts of the city.

Business continues in depressed condition; warmer weather and much more stock. The demand seems also to have slackened off considerably. Prices generally have been lower, except perhaps on lily of the valley and orchids. Cattleyas have held their own pretty well—some very fine flowers arriving. Oceans of roses, carnations, sweet peas, snapdragon, etc. Some very fine Spanish iris in white, blue and yellow are to be seen.

Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri has been scarce for several weeks past and still continues so, all through this section. Bulbous products are growing scarce and of more inferior quality each day; but other stock of all kinds is plentiful and of superb quality, lilies and callas especially. Seedsmen are reaping their harvest just now. Indeed, so busy are all, that they cannot stop work to report conditions, other than "better than ever."

Market is somewhat crowded and prices are low in all lines. Carnations are selling at retail 2 doz. for 15 cents, and roses 25 cents per dozen. Sweet peas are crowding in. Out door jonquils are arriving somewhat water-soaked. Violets are about done.

Lilac has made its appearance. The market can thus be summed up: the retailer to a great extent is working for the grower and the wholesaler at cut rate prices.Flowers of all kinds WASHINGTON have been over-plentiful and prices were low. The only shortages noticeable were in orchids, lily of the valley and single violets. The warm weather drove the latter off the market and it was a very difficult matter to fill the demands. Roses and carnations are very plentiful. Spring flowers are in heavy supply with the demand slackening daily.

"Our Greenhouse is a Model of Perfection."—A. M. Robertson

We erected this Metropolitan Greenhouse for Mr. M. Burrill on his estate at Jericho, L. I.

The contract for this Metropolitan patented bent eave, full iron frame greenhouse with bent eave vestibule and stucco service house, also included the masonry, flower box and trellis work.

Being partitioned in the middle, this greenhouse has two compartments, which can be heated and controlled separately.

Mr. A. M. Robertson, superintendent of this estate, writes that "it is a model of perfection."

Metropolitan service goes far beyond the mere mechanical process of construction. It strives constantly to increase the producing power of the owner's investment in his greenhouse.

Going Back to the Civil War for Conclusive Evidence That Wrought Iron is Better Than Steel for Side Posts

Lord & Burnham's guaranteed Wrought Iron post equipped with foot pieces, gusset plates, eave plate, and combined eave plate fitting and U-drip gutter bracket.

THE iron ore from which the big Parrot guns of the Civil War were made, was mined at Peddler Hill, fifty miles from New York.

The mine was abandoned thirty-five years ago.

Tramps soon burned all the buildings down.

Nothing is there now but the big yawning opening in the rocks.

But all the tackle guy eye irons, set in the rocks; and all the stay bolts that fastened the engine to its bed; are still there good as ever, after their years and years of constant exposure.

They are all wrought iron.

They have rusted but little.

So little in fact that the screw threads on the engine bed anchor are still plainly there.

We use guaranteed Wrought Iron for our posts, because it lasts.

It's one of the important points of our houses of Everlasting Lastingness.

Good houses cost more than poor ones.

But poor houses cost good money.

The growers who are making good; are putting their good money in good houses.

For your own good, build one of our good houses.

Pipe column with base plate and top cap. Note what a good rugged fitting it is. Six bolts secure it to the rafter. Two clamp it to the column. Two bolt it to the truss.

For ten years more than half a century, this Wrought Iron guy eye iron has been embedded on the weather exposed rock of Peddler Hill. From its looks, it will be there as good as ever for a century more.

A peep into the mouth of the famous old Peddler Hill mine where the high grade ore for the big Civil War guns was mined.

This engine bed bolt of Wrought Iron, has been exposed to all weathers for thirty-five years. Even the threads for the screw cap are still not rusted away.

"Get them at Dreer's"

Hardy Perennials

For many years one of our most important specialties, our stock this season is again in prime condition, more extensive than ever, with a complete assortment of both standard varieties and novelties.

Roses, Two Year Old Plants for Outdoor Planting

Our Roses are all field grown plants which were dug in the fall, and which during the winter months were potted into 5 and 6 inch pots. They are stored in cold houses and frames, being retarded as much as possible, and are just the sort of stock that will please your retail customers. We are particularly strong on Hybrid Teas but carry also nearly all other types.

Aquatic Plants

Eight acres of Ponds are devoted to Hardy Nymphaeas and Nelumbiums alone, a large assortment of Tropical Nymphaeas, Victoria Regia, etc., as well as sub-aquatic plants for marginal planting. If interested in these, send for our book 'Dreer's Water Lilies.' It is not only descriptive, but gives full cultural directions.

HARDY NELUMBIUMS.

Hardy Shrubs and Vines

A choice assortment of standard varieties—Altheas (including our own splendid novelty William R. Smith) Azaleas, Callicarpa Purpurea, Hydrangea Aborecens Grandiflora, and Paniculata Grandiflora, Cotoneasters, Buddleias, Deutzias, Forsythias, Prunus, Philadelphus, Spiraeas, Viburnum, Weigelas, Ampelopsis, Akebia, Aristolochia, Clematis, Honeysuckles, Wisterias, etc.

Decorative Plants

Palms and Ferns, Aspidistra, Crotons, Dracaenas, Ficus, Pandanus, etc. Amaryllis, Tuberous-Rooted Begonias, Caladium Esculentum and a splendid assortment of Fancy-Leaved Caladiums, Golden Yellow and Spotted-Leaved Callas, Hyacinthus Candicans, Gladiolus, Lilies, Montbretias, Tigridias, Tuberoses, etc.

All of the above and many others are fully described in our current Wholesale List, January to June, which will be mailed upon request only to persons engaged commercially in Horticulture.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil"—Pope.

Asters

In order to cover the entire aster season, reliance must be placed on the various types, early, midseason and late, the time of sowing counting for little or nothing in the hastening or prolonging of the cut. Several successive sowings of the best strains obtainable should be made from now until the middle of May and even later if a crop of flowers for the latter part of October is desired. The aster grower's busy season has begun. The seed of midseason and late can be sown in flats using a compost of new soil three parts, leaf mold and well rotted manure one part each, with some sand. Provide a temperature of 55 to 65 degrees at night. Keep moist and shaded until the seed begins to germinate, when they should be placed up near the glass in full sun. The seedlings should be transplanted once and allowed to become of sturdy size before going into the open field.

Chrysanthemums

Give them airy quarters and plenty of sun. See that they are kept clean by timely fumigations. Don't let them become potbound. As every flower grower knows, chrysanthemums are great feeders and soon draw all the plant food from the soil. There is nothing better for them than sod that was cut last fall and piled up. Use at least one part of well-rotted cow manure to three of chopped sod. As they advance they will take equal parts of sod and cow manure with a sprinkling of bone meal. Keep all chrysanthemums as cool as possible, giving ventilation, more or less, according to the outside condition. Do not neglect a couple of good syringings on all bright days.

Ficus

Whenever you have a little time you can place a batch of cuttings in 2½ or 3-inch pots. Tie up the leaves so that they can stand close together and plunge the pots in a propagating frame with a bottom heat of 80 degrees and keep moderately moist until they are rooted. A good compost is equal parts of loam, leaf mold and sand. Keep them in a frame where they will have a close heat until well established, after which about 65 degrees at night will suffice. They can also be increased by the mossing system. If kept constantly moist, in four or five weeks they will be fit to be cut off and potted. For a shift use three parts fibrous loam and one part of well-decayed cow manure with a light sprinkling of bone meal. When shifting pick away the drainage and as much of the old soil as possible and pot firmly. They will require quite a bit of shade from now on and they will stand lots of syringing and water at the roots. See that they do not become crowded.

Hydrangeas

There is no better time than the present to top some of the shoots from below and get them into the sand; they will root in three to four weeks. All of the plants which were either too late for Easter or are intended for Memorial Day should be given free room for development. If we crowd hydrangeas a spindly growth and loss of leaves is bound to follow. The new French hydrangeas made a fine showing last Easter. The newer sorts, some of which should prove excellent for summer use outdoors in pots and tubs for veranda or lawn decorations should be given a trial.

Palm Seed

It is during the spring and summer that the greater number of palm seed shipments arrive. Palm seed germinates very irregularly, the period varying anywhere from four weeks to six months. The seeds can be sown in a bench, flats, or pans, with a bottom heat of 75 to 80 degrees. Leaf mold, sand and loam in equal parts make a good compost for any variety. Give them 65 to 70 degrees at night. When they show one or two leaves pot off singly into 2-inch or 2½-inch pots. During their germinating period keep the compost in an even moist state, but not soaked, as that only tends to rot the seed. They will need close attention in this respect.

Reminders

After flowering cut the boronias back a little and wait until the stems break again before repotting.

Look to the hardening of all bedding plants. None should be taken direct from warm houses to be planted out.

That fine marguerite, Queen Alexandra, should be freely propagated. It is a fine grower and the flowers are of excellent quality and substance.

Many hard wooded plants will require to be lightly cut back to keep them shapely. The stronger growing kinds like acacias may be cut harder than heaths and similar subjects.

Next week: Antirrhinums; Bay Trees; Lorraine Begonias; Cemetery Vases; Gardenias; Reminders.

Improvement The Mothers' Day propaganda as conducted this year under florist trade auspices is to be commended as a vast improvement over the injudicious exploiting which it suffered from at the start and which tended to cheapen and degrade not only those who were responsible for the methods adopted but the entire floral industry. We hope to see still further improvement next year in the method of appeal to the public for patronage on account of this annual occasion and shall be pleased if the returns from its observance this year may substantially recompense the efforts that have been made to bring business decently to the florist, whose interests are already being jeopardized by the unwarranted interference of narrow-minded theorists and professional agitators who would have the flower business put under public ban as a wicked luxury in the present emergency.

Seed problems

The home gardening movement, under the stimulation of agricultural departments, societies, newspapers, governors, corporations, mayors and innumerable other influences, including the H. C. L. as a mainspring, has everywhere assumed gigantic proportions as evidenced on all sides where a piece of vacant ground is available and a visit to any one of the popular seed stores reveals a scene suggestive of a special bargain day at some department store. One disturbing thought in connection with all this scramble is that so much precious material in vegetable seeds is doomed to be wasted, for a large proportion of the people who are about to try their hand at vegetable gardening are profoundly ignorant of cultural requirements and the outcome of many of these first attempts, without expert supervision, is easy to imagine. It is a pity that the test should come at a time when every bit of seed in the country has a rare potential value and when so much uncertainty attaches to the replenishment of stocks for the following season. As is well known, there would have been difficulty in supplying even the normal demand for some of the most useful seed staples owing to short crops last year. A full seed supply for next year is a vital necessity and with every ounce of holdover stock used up, a crop failure this season will be nothing short of disastrous. A bumper yield of vegetable seed will be worth more than money.

Order out of confusion

We have received from Harlan P. Kelsey, secretary of the American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature, a copy of the 1917 Official Code of Standardized Plant Names which has been adopted and published by the committee for use in ordering, labeling and catalogue compilation. Represented in the joint committee are the American Association of Nurserymen, Ornamental Growers' Association, American Society of Landscape Architects, American Pharmaceutical Association and American Association of Park Superintendents. The compilation of this code is a big forward step for which the nursery and plant trade should be profoundly grateful and we hope to see its style of classification come into general use and its scope further extended and elaborated. The co-operation of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists would add much prestige and greatly help toward the standardization of such a document. In its present form it has been included as an important feature of the supplement to the last volume of Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture. The need for such a code or list of plant names will not be questioned. Its proper use should go far to reduce the confusion, inconvenience and losses which have hitherto beset buyers and dealers alike from the widespread use of different names for the same plant and identical names for different plants.

Among the various forms of "patriotism" which have been urged upon the public the proposition to put the florist out of business should be slated for a quick death.

Your Carnations

May is the best month of the year for the carnation grower. For Mother's Day, the second Sunday, and Memorial Day, the 30th, every bloom is readily sold at good prices and the cut 50 per cent. better than any previous month, customers pleased and looking forward to your goods next season. This figures out a good month. But to get this result a little thought was required and some study of other seasons. If one has kept a careful record of the cut of each variety grown for several seasons a selection may be made of such sorts as will give a steady yield of high grade blooms throughout the season and at the same time build up a plant that will give a large crop in May. These sorts must be able to stand high culture and forcing without showing disease. Matchless is a suitable subject and White Winsor and Pink Delight will stand the treatment without going soft. Since Mother's Day has come to be the best carnation day of the year the former plan of handling the crop has been modified and will be subject to still further change. Two holidays during May make prices attractive and the longer days and high rising sun make for a heavy cut if the plants are in condition. Right here is the text.

When the sun shows its power in March or so and fly, spider and thrips show up with renewed vigor the carnation man has his hands full. Blooms are coming into the market more freely, bulb stock is in evidence and young carnation plants are demanding more room and more care. Just at this time some decision must be reached. The same men in the same time can't do twice the usual amount of work and the plants will not thrive on neglect. Better get out the records of other seasons, do some close studying, then pull up what you cannot use and care for the rest. The plants from now on require twice as much water and salt and nicotine. Give it to them! Put on the extra wires on the south side of the benches to keep in the straggling shoots, keep the buds picked and all shoots leading straight up. Cut all blooms when cold and crisp in the early morning and in the right stage of development. Put your blooms into your customers' hands in perfect condition and get a living price for them.

One Phase of the Food Problem

To the Editor:

At this time let us fight the foe within. Who would feed a dog for less than 10c. a day—$36.50 a year? Multiply this by our five million dogs and you have one billion, eight hundred twenty-five million dollars for food alone. Trainloads after trainloads of provisions alone must go to feed worthless brutes while Europe starves.

Millions of acres east and west must be idle on account of useless curs. The president of the Sheep Growers' Association of Connecticut had to give up sheep growing on account of dogs. In the early days, one thousand sheep were mangled and smothered in a single night by dogs. In Nebraska, a friend of mine went out to bring in his three horses and found the dogs had driven them into a wire fence and they were so mangled they had to be killed. The poor man had to suffer the loss. A friend adopted a fine, hale looking boy with one arm. I asked what became of the other. It was so mangled by a vicious dog it had to be taken off. About the same time a dear old lady was almost torn to pieces by a savage brute.

The remedy.—Let the nation put a tax of ten dollars on every dog in the United States. That would eliminate useless ones. A dead dog would then be a fine national asset. He has learned to get along without eating and what he saves would be so much gain. We love a good dog and our eyes moisten as we read of his courage and fidelity, but a hundred worthless curs ought not to live on the reputation of one decent one. If a man has a good dog he can pay the tax which should go to feed the starving children of Europe. The sons of millionaires who get up dog feasts could pay. The woman who prefers a pup to a baby would gladly pay ten dollars for the joy of kissing the brute. Mark this. A live dog's bark is a nuisance. A dead dog's bark makes fine gloves. Give us the gloves. Two or three million dog skins thrown on the market at this time would relieve the leather famine.

C. S. Harris.

York, Neb.

THE LATE W. C. LANGBRIDGE.

It is one of the rich blessings in life to have the acquaintance and claim the friendship for a long period of years with a man of the ability, congeniality and thorough good will, all of which qualities were so richly implanted in William C. Langbridge, whose funeral was held at Albany, New York, his home, on Sunday, April 15th, 1917. Mr. Langbridge had been a traveling man for the Jerome B. Rice Seed Company for twenty-nine years, and in that period of time had, as a matter of course, seen the wonderful changes that have happened in the past quarter of a century in the seed business. He had a personal acquaintance with not only all the present day men of the trade, but could look back a generation and speak in affectionate terms of so many of the old gods in the business. He was a man bubbling over with good nature always, and pre-eminently the best acquainted man with the seed trade and with the canning trade in the United States. Friend Bill's congenial smile and bread humor was known everywhere by everybody, and his frequent visits will be missed greatly by his very, very, large circle of acquaintance in the canning trade and in the seed trade. Almost the entire official and established staff of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Company attended the funeral as did many others of his close associates in the seed trade and in the canning trade. The unusual array of floral tributes, gave mute testimony to the man who had become a national figure.

COVER ILLUSTRATION.

Rhododendron Vaseyi, which is the feature of our cover illustration this week, is a native of North Carolina and is perfectly hardy in Boston, where the photograph was taken from which our cut was made. The view shows one of the groups planted by the late superintendent of Boston parks, J. A. Pettigrew, who had a great admiration for this azalea as it was first called. The flowers are rose pink, some plants bearing much deeper tinted flowers than others, and it blooms in late April or early May, just before the leaves appear.

Serissa foetida, a pretty little plant with tiny foliage and thickly covered with starry white flowers is highly recommended as an additional Easter flowering plant by W. A. Manda.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

An Executive Committee meeting of the American Rose Society was held in New York, April 24th. A special vote of thanks was passed to fourteen retailers who put up attractive exhibits at the Philadelphia Rose Festival. The gentlemen so represented were: Pennock Bros., Gude Bros., Chas. Henry Fox, Harry Betts, V. I. Ride-nour, Julius Wolf, Jr., T. N. Geiger, J. J. Habermehl's Sons, Ira G. Marvin, John C. Gracey, John Kuhn, London Flower Shop, J. Wolf Moore, Chas. Grakelow.

The Secretary reported a large number of letters received commending the excellence of the Rose Annual for 1917. L. J. Reuter reported progress in regard to the outdoor exhibition of roses to be held July 4th at Newport, R. I.

President S. S. Pennock appointed as Rose Garden Comm.tees the following:

Central Committee—Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, N. Y.; Louis J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.; Geo. C. Thomas, Jr., Chestnut Hill, Phila., Pa.

Hartford (Conn.) Committee—J. F. Huss, Hartford, Conn.; Alex. Cumming, Jr., and Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.

Arlington Rose Garden Committee—Robt. Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; F. L. Mulford, Washington, D. C.; Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Dr. D. W. Shoemaker, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. C. W. Wetmore, Pres., Capitol Garden Club, Washington, D. C.

Ithaca (N. Y.) Committee—Prof. A. C. Beal, Ithaca, N. Y.; Rev. E. A. Mills, D. D., Syracuse, N. Y.; Prof. E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.

Minneapolis Committee—Theodore Wirth, Supt. of Parks, Minneapolis, Minn.; Olaf J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn.; Hugh Will, Minneapolis, Minn.

The Secretary reported several requests for medals for local societies, and it was suggested that a medal different from the official medal be used for this purpose, and the following committee was appointed to take charge of this: S. S. Pennock, J. Horace McFarland, Prof. E. A. White.

The question was discussed of making one uniform rate for membership, instead of the present associate and active members, so as to make it possible to keep up the publication of so good a book, and also occasionally send some other interesting matter to members.

A report on the Philadelphia Exhibition was given in part, and a final accounting will be rendered shortly.

monthly meeting of this society in Manchester, Mass., to listen to a talk by Dr. H. J. Wheeler on the all engrossing subject of food production and conservation. Dr. Wheeler made it very plain that in his judgment the question of cereal and vegetable food supply will become very acute during the coming year. He gave practical advice on the treatment of soil, seed and growing crops in order to secure the greatest possible quantity and quality of product.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

An exhibition of plants and flowers will be held, in co-operation with the New York Botanical Garden, on Saturday and Sunday, May 12th and 13th, in the Museum Building, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park. The exhibition will be open free on Saturday, from 1 to 5, and on Sunday from 10 to 5. Schedules are now ready for distribution, and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, Mansion, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, N. Y. City.

GEORGE V. NASH, Secy.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The Horticultural Club of Boston had a special meeting at the Parker House on Monday evening, April 30, to meet and enjoy the company of Theodore Wirth, superintendent of the Minneapolis Park System. Other guests were F. C. Green, superintendent of the parks of Providence, R. I., John H. Dillon, chairman Boston Park Commission, and Messrs. Albert Schelenberg and Andrew Kofer. Twelve vases of auriculas, declared to be the grandest display ever made in this country of this beautiful flower, the gift of William Sim, adorned the table.

The Syracuse (N. Y.) Rose Society will hold its annual rose show June 21 and 22. With the coming of many visitors to the annual meeting of the State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, it was thought best to select the dates early enough so that the visitors may plan to attend the exhibition. The show will be under the general direction of Dr. G. Griffin Lewis, and the committee which selected the dates is composed of James M. Gilbert, Hamlet Worker, John T. Roberts, W. R. Foster, Dr. Robert C. Scott and Dr. John C. Benz.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., was held last Tuesday evening. Considerable business was taken care of, included in this being the making of an appropriation of $100 for the Red Cross to be used as a part of its fund for hospital service in connection with the formation of our army and future possible hostilities. President Jenkins was authorized to appoint a committee of three to make arrangements for an entertainment in connection with the meeting for the month of June. The coming of the American Rose Society to Washington next month was also discussed.

HILL-BERTERMANN INDIANAPOLIS INTERESTS MERGE.

It is announced that Bertermann Bros. Co. will take over the interests of the E. G. Hill Floral Co. in Indianapolis. Mr. E. G. Hill believes that his firm's business in the new rose line will require all their attention in the future. The Bertermann firm is duly equipped for a much larger business in Indianapolis. The E. G. Hill Floral Co.'s interests consist of a model store and a first class business. The operation of the two stores will continue under the same heads, same equipment and same good service for an indefinite period. Much of the Hill rose stock will still be brought over from Richmond and this will be aided much by a part of the Bertermann output in E. Washington St. and Cumberland. With the combined patronage of both places the new arrangement will give Indianapolis one of the largest firms in the middle-west.

HOW TO RAISE ORCHIDS METHODICALLY

Most growers of Orchids, whether amateur or professional, have at some period or other made attempts to rear their own seedlings. A more fascinating or interesting work it is impossible to conceive. And as I have met with considerable success in this particular branch of Orchid culture, I have pleasure in submitting what I consider the best methods of procuring successful results.

I only intend to deal with those species which are most extensively grown; and as they all require more or less different treatment and methods, I shall deal with them separately, giving only those systems which have proved to be productive and reliable.

Cypripediums.

As Cypripediums have within the past few years become exceedingly popular with most of the leading connoisseurs—and the progress made by hybridization has been most phenomenal—I will commence with this species.

Numerous experiments have been made with the object of raising successfully and abundantly the seed of this Orchid, but the majority have turned out failures, or partially so. The following method, however, has yielded splendidly successful results.

Select a number of strong, healthy, well-rooted plants—the short-leaved ones for preference, such as Cyp. Harrisianum, barbatum, Lawrenceanum, callosum, and cananthum. Short-leaved plants do not rob the seed (and afterwards the young seedlings) of light and air—two essentials to successful germination.

After the selection has been made, every plant should be repotted in a mixture of good, fibrous loam, Osmunda fibre, sphagnum moss (with all heads removed), and a good sprinkling of silver sand and small crocks. About one-quarter of the pot should be first filled with broken crocks, taking extreme care to place them in an upright position, wedging one against the other to hold them firm. This will ensure them free drainage, and a comparatively clear passage of air. Thoroughly cleanse plants from old potting materials, and carefully wash all the old roots in clean soft water. Pot the plants firmly, but not too hard, and try to secure an evenness of surface. This should be about three-quarters of an inch from the top of the inside of the pot, and which will allow the plants to be watered without any fear of washing away the seed.

The plants, after potting, should remain for about two weeks before any seed is sown round them, giving them during this period an abundance of water so as to get them thoroughly soaked and settled. They should also always be watered about two hours before sowing.

To sow the seed, make a small aperture about the size of a pin head in the side of the seed-pod; then place the pod between the forefinger and thumb over the plant, and gently tap the pod from behind, gradually moving the pot until you have sown all round the plant.

November, December, January and February are the four best months for sowing. Care should always be taken not to have other plants near when sowing, as the seed is so light, and a small quantity may float about and settle on them, thus causing a mixture of seed which may afterwards perplex the grower.

After the seed has been sown, the plants should be placed in the position where they are intended to remain; and they should be slightly sprayed overhead and well syringed between the pots. They will not then require watering again for about a week or ten days. Then water very carefully with a fine rose, but on no account give more water than the pot will hold without flowing over the top, or the seeds may be washed away. Continue this treatment for about six weeks, by which time, and sometimes before—providing the seed sown was fertile and in good condition—tiny, almost white, seedlings will appear. They should not be disturbed for at least another six weeks, which will make it about three months from the time the seeds were sown.

Then place the strongest of them singly in thimble pots; and some of the rather weaker ones two or three in a pot, leaving the smallest ones until they get larger and stronger.

The removal of the seedlings requires great care and unlimited patience. A sharp pointed bone needle is very useful for this purpose, and each seedling must be lifted separately.

The compost for potting these may consist of loam fibre, Osmunda fibre, and sphagnum moss in equal proportions, shopped very fine, with all the dust removed; about two crocks in the bottom of the pot is sufficient.

Water very sparingly for two or three weeks with a fine rose. If the time can be spared, dipping is much safer. When once they have become established in these pots, the only thing to be done is to put them on as often as they require it. Never let them become root-bound or starved; and in three to four years the plants will be strong enough to flower.

The temperature should never fall below 60 deg. and never rise to more than 70 deg., except by sunheat. The house must never be allowed to get dry, and the syringe or sprayer should be used very freely. Admit air whenever the outside conditions will allow, and keep the glass clean, especially during the winter months. Give plenty of shade during the hot summer months; also fumigate regularly about every three weeks, and success is a certainty.

Cattleyas.

Years ago this species was considered one of the most difficult to secure from seed, and it was only by chance that most of the hybrids we then had were raised. However, since then tremendous strides have been made, and it is now only a matter of how many to keep and what to discard. Every year has brought forth new ideas, and after hundreds of experiments it is now possible to prick off small seedlings in just over a week from the time of sowing.

You do not require plants for the sowing of your seed as in the case of Cypripediums, and this is undoubtedly a great saving both of space and material. If one goes in for cattleya seedlings on a large scale, it is most advisable to have a small house specially erected, or an old house reconstructed for the purpose. On the other hand, if it is intended to only grow a few it may be done in any part of a house where conditions are favorable. To be successful in raising Cattleyas it requires plenty of heat, either natural or artificial—the former for preference.

Artificial heat can easily be obtained by having some cases or frames fitted up with extra hot water pipes inside the house, and the temperature may be regulated by means of valves, and a steady atmosphere kept. A dummy stage should be fixed up over the pipes, and may consist of small pieces of iron about a foot apart. Place some porous tiles on the irons, leaving the tiles about three-quarters of an inch apart, and cover to a depth of three inches with ordinary coke. This will allow free admittance of warmth from the pipes, but the coke must always be kept well damped so that no dry heat will ever reach the seed. All that now remains to be done is to make a stage, which may consist of either wood or perforated zinc. This may rest about four inches above the coke, then everything will be complete and in readiness for the seed.

The best time to sow is as early as possible in February, because the days are getting longer, and the sun has not sufficient power to necessitate the use of shading; and it also gives plenty of time to get the seedlings well established before the trying, dismal days of winter arrive.

The temperature of the cases should be kept up to 75 to 80 deg. by day, and not lower than 72 deg. at night, rising with sun heat to sometimes 85 or 90 deg. When it gets higher than 90 deg. a little shading might be used with advantage.

The next process is the sowing of the seed, and the ensuing method will be found an almost perfect one: Mix, in equal proportions, Polypodium fibre and sphagnum moss (carefully removing all heads and filth from the latter), and then put this composition in some four or five-inch pans or pots, with a few small crocks below. Over this stretch some moderately coarse canvas or linen, which has been properly sterilized. This will prevent any deadly fungus from germinating, as it may do if this rule is not adhered to. Place the pans or pots in the cases on inverted pans, and soak with soft water, letting them remain for two hours. By this time they will have seed. The sowing should be done in a shed, and only as many pans as is intended to be sown with one seed pod should be in the shed during the operation. Then take each one separately and sow sparingly, immediately placing them back in the cases. Put a glass over each pan for the first three days, and keep cases closed up. After the third day remove the glasses, and on the fourth day and henceforth a little air may be admitted into the case, increasing the amount day by day. Never for a moment let the seed become dry—an occasional spray will ensure against. The progress of germination may be closely watched as the seed is never hidden from view.

The first sign of germination is the swelling of the seed, which gradually turns green, and becomes almost globular. Then very fine hair roots make their appearance, and as soon as the latter appear they should be pricked off with a sharp-pointed bone needle on to some prepared pans, the compost consisting of peat and sphagnum moss, packed very closely and evenly. Place about a hundred of the small seedlings on each pan, still keeping them in the cases, and after a few days these will swell tremendously, pushing up minute leaves, and also sending out small roots. In a few weeks these should again be removed, and about seven or ten placed in a small pot, with a little coarser compost of the same material. As they continue to grow they can afterwards be potted singly, and subjected to a little cooler treatment. Extreme care must be taken at all times that these small plants never be allowed to become dry, or they will shrivel up and be lost. When once they are established, pot them on as often as necessary; but always encourage them to make their growths at the proper seasons. After the first year they will thrive on fresh air, warmth, plenty of light, and abundance of water when growing. After five or six years they will be sufficiently large enough to flower.

Lælias.

This is one of the easiest of all species to raise, the reason being the excellent quality of seed it invariably yields. The same system may be adopted as with Cattleyas, except in the material used for making up the pans, which may be superseded with oak leaves. The latter must be washed and cleaned, and afterwards dried in the open. Place them in an upright position, moderately tight, to a depth of an inch and a half in the pans, and then stretch the canvas over. Water the prepared pans heavily the day before it is intended to sow, and spray lightly about half an hour before sowing. Sow the seed much thinner than in Cattleyas, spray oftener, and splendid results will follow.

Cymbidiums.

The seed of this species is very much larger than that of the majority of Orchids, and can be watched very easily from the moment it is sown. Precisely the same method may be adopted as with Cattleyas, with a temperature of 65 deg. by day, and lowering to 60 deg. at night. Give an abundance of water with a fine sprayer, dip occasionally, and admit air when favorable.

Dendrobiums.

Here again the same system as with Cattleyas will give abundant crops. The following alteration only is required: Instead of Polypodium fibre, use Osmunda; pack very closely, leaving a rough surface, then stretch the canvas tightly over the compost, pressing it well down between the side of the pan and the compost.

Odontoglossums.

In former years this species was very difficult to procure from seed, but it is now being raised very freely by several different methods, of which I give two. Both of these produce excellent results. The first one is to select a quantity of well-rooted plants. Pot them in a mixture of Osmunda fibre and Polypodium fibre, with a small quantity of sphagnum moss and a slight sprinkling of silver sand. The surface of the material should be about half an inch below the rim of the pot, and the plants well watered. About a week after potting is the best time to sow the seed, taking care that the material is very moist before doing so. Sow thinly, and take care no other plants are near. After sowing, a slight spray will be of advantage, and then place the plants in a temperature of 55 deg. to 60 deg., which may lower to 50 deg. or 55 deg. at night. Give plenty of air, and protect from bright sunlight. January and February are the two best months for sowing.

The second method is to pot the plants in oak leaves, with a covering of clean sphagnum moss. The latter must have all heads and dead ends removed, chopped up very finely, and placed on the surface not more than a quarter of an inch in depth. This may be put on very easily if it is soddened with water. The seed may be sown the following day, and must never for a moment become dry, especially when germination has commenced. As soon as a minute leaf appears, they should be pricked off with great care, and placed into small pots or pans, about an eighth of an inch apart. The compost on which they are fixed must consist of three parts of Polypodium fibre, one part of finely chopped sphagnum moss, potted firmly, with an even surface. Place the seedlings in minute cavities, so that they do not get washed away when watering or dipping, either of which may be adopted. After the seedlings begin to throw out their roots, it is beneficial to again move them, and replace them further apart on freshly prepared pots of the same compost, extreme care being taken not to damage the roots. It is of extreme importance also that they should never become dry—a great many more die from drought than over-watering. When the leaves are about a half-inch long, they may be potted singly in thimble pots; and when once they become rooted and established, pot them on as often as they require it, until finally they push up their spikes and develop their blooms.

Sophronitis.

Although this is a cool species, it requires a much warmer temperature to mature from seed to perfection. The following method is a very recommendable one: Take some round blocks of wood about ten inches in circumference, and cut across the grain to a depth of about half an inch, leaving a rough surface. Make a hole about three-quarters of an inch in diameter in the centre; then place on a layer of crocks in a small pot or pan, making it secure by wedging a few small crocks round the side. Soak with water, and afterwards sow the seed very sparingly all around. Place a piece of glass (which may be supported by a small label on the rim of the pot) above the wood, being careful that the glass is about half an inch above the seed, the latter being kept moist by the use of a fine sprayer for the first three weeks, after which they may be watered with a fine rose. When germination sets in they must never be allowed to become dry, and when large enough to handle, they can be pricked off and placed into small pots, the compost consisting of polypodium fibre and sphagnum moss, finely chopped, with a small quantity of silver sand added. As the plants become stronger they can be removed into fresh pots of the same compost, and potted on as often as they require it until they reach the flowering stage. A temperature from 60 deg. to 65 deg. at all times is beneficial, and should be heavily shaded during the hot summer months.

Phaius.

Splendid crops of this may be obtained by sowing on the surface of pots containing healthy plants of the same species. The plants must be dipped for the first few weeks after sowing, so that the seed is not washed away; and the seedlings may be left where they grow until they are large enough to be placed singly in small pots. A temperature of 60 deg. to 65 deg. by day, and 50 deg. to 55 deg. at night is sufficient.

Sobralias.

Prepare small pans about three-quarters full of sphagnum moss, with all the heads carefully removed. Stretch some coarse canvas over, and water heavily so that it gets well settled. Then sow the seed, place in a temperature of 65 deg. to 70 deg., keep well sprayed, and when large enough to prick off, place into small pans of sphagnum moss with a little peat added. Repot them as often as they require it, each time giving them a little more peat and fibrous loam.

Zygopetalums.

If the seed is sown in pots containing good, healthy plants and the plants watered cautiously, a plentiful supply of seedlings will be obtained. These may be left undisturbed until they are large enough to be placed in thimble pots. A temperature of 55 deg. to 60 deg. during the day and 50 deg. to 55 deg. at night being sufficient. There are many other species, most of which may be obtained by the above-mentioned methods. For instance, Calanthes may be raised in the same way as Phaius; Brassavolas will come up just as freely as Lælias; Thunias or Vandas may be successfully dealt with by the same method as Sobralias. Anyone paying a visit to the extensive nurseries of Messrs. Sander & Sons, St. Albans and Bruges, may at various seasons of the year see most of the above modern methods in operation.

CLEVELAND FLOWER SHOW.

The question has been asked us several times recently regarding the possible change in our plans for conducting the Annual Exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, in connection with the Cleveland Flower Show this fall. In reply to these inquiries and for the information of the many private and commercial growers who are looking forward to exhibiting in Cleveland this fall, we wish to announce that the Cleveland Show will be conducted in the same manner as we originally planned early in the year.

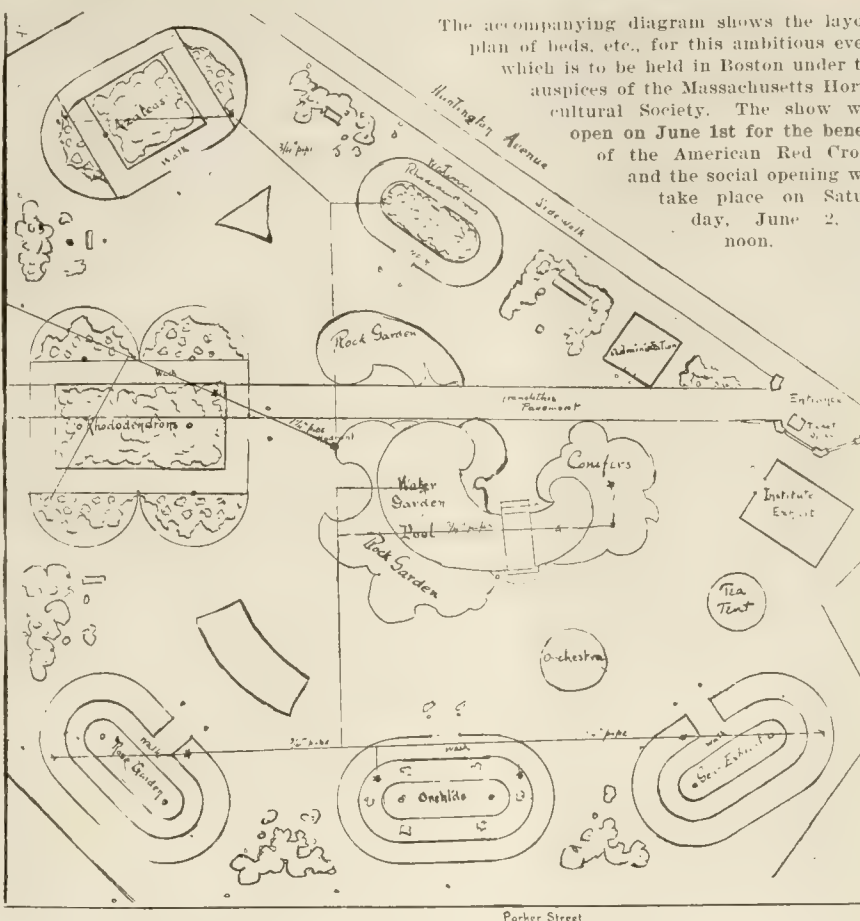

We see no reason at this time to alter our plans; in fact, there is all the more reason for developing flower shows and other activities. In event war conditions develop and are intense in November, at the time of the Cleveland Flower Show the committee will make arrangements with the Red Cross Society and hold the show for their benefit.

At this time the Executive Committee wishes to extend an invitation to all growers to plan on exhibiting in Cleveland. Premium lists may be secured by addressing M. A. Vinson, 402 Leader-News Bldg., Cleveland, O.

Worcester, Mass.—Leonard C. Midgley, formerly secretary of the Worcester County Horticultural Society, has been appointed to take charge of the home garden management for the city of Worcester.

BOSTON OUTDOOR JUNE EXHIBITION.

The accompanying diagram shows the layout plan of beds, etc., for this ambitious event which is to be held in Boston under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The show will open on June 1st for the benefit of the American Red Cross, and the social opening will take place on Saturday, June 2, at noon.

Every Reader of "Horticulture" Needs DR. L. H. BAILEY'S BRAND NEW Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture

Six large quarto volumes. More than 3,600 pages. 24 full page exquisite color plates. 96 beautiful full page halftones. More than 4,000 text engravings. 500 Collaborators. Approximately 4,000 genera, 20,000 species and 40,000 plant names

THE New Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture has been freshly written in the light of the most recent research and experience. It is the fullest, the newest, the most authoritative of all works of its kind and constitutes the most conscientious attempt that has ever been made to compress the whole story of our horticultural thought, learning and achievement into one set of books. It is both an Encyclopedia and a Manual.

A Few of the Many Important New Features

Key to Identification of Plants This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

Synopsis of Plant Kingdom This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders, and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters; the number of genera and species and the ranges; a list of the important genera; brief statements in regard to the useful plants; and diagrammatic illustrations.

Illustrations There are 24 colored plates; 96 full page halftones; and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

The Glossary This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works. It comprises botanical and horticultural terms with brief definitions.

Translation and Pronunciation of Latin Names In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

Class Articles Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling. Here are some of the titles of these articles: Ants; Autumn Gardening; Bedding; Diseases; Drainage; Floral Designs; Formal Gardening; Hotbeds and Coldframes; Insects; Landscape Gardening; Lawn Planting; Orchards; Rock Gardening; Subtropical Gardening; Tools and Implements; Village Improvements; Window Boxes, etc.

General Index The final volume contains a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind.

The complete set of six volumes, bound in decorated buckram, will be delivered to you for only $3 down and $3 a month for 11 months, until the full amount of $36 has been paid. Cash price $35.

Obituary

Mrs. Robert Potter.

Mary Jane Potter, wife of Robert Potter, a wholesale florist, died at her home, West Fifty-fifth street, New York City, on April 26.

Fred. Ponting.

Fred. Ponting, a well-known plant grower of Cleveland, Ohio, making specialty of geraniums, died on April 18, aged 53 years. He was a member of the Cleveland Florists' Club. A widow, four sons and one daughter survive him.

Augustus W. Boerner.

Augustus W. Boerner, an old-time retail florist located for many years at Broad and Fourth streets, Philadelphia, died on April 29th, aged about 80 years. He worked for Pen-nock Bros. in the seventies and after retiring from business some years ago lived at the Masonic Home at Elizabethtown, N. J. Interment was at Fernwood Cemetery, Delaware, Co., Pa., May 3rd.

John W. Fink.

John W. Fink of Chicago passed away suddenly in New York City, Thursday, April 26, where he had been spending a few days. A telegram was received by his brother Michael, who immediately left for New York and returned to Chicago with the body on Tuesday. John W. Fink was born in Pullman, Ill., Jan. 6, 1886, and spent all of his short life in Chicago and vicinity. He assisted his father, the late Joseph Fink, in the growing of plants and cut flowers, and at his death, eight years ago, succeeded to the business, at 2632 Herndon street, where he earned for himself the reputation of an excellent grower. He is survived by his widow, three small children, a mother, two brothers and two sisters. The funeral was held on Wednesday and interment was at St. Adalbert's cemetery.

NEWS NOTES.

Dover, Del.—The greenhouses of William Shaeffer were purchased by James H. Hughes at public auction.

Westerly, R. I.—Mark H. Cassidy of Providence has been engaged to supervise the school gardens of Westerly this year.

So. Norwalk, Conn.—The Crofut & Knight Co., hat manufacturers, have purchased the Comstock Dahlia Farm for the use of its employes for vegetable growing.

Northampton, Mass. The greenhouse property of Alexander and Annie Parks has been sold to George E. McIntyre for removal and re-erection at his place in Easthampton.

Westville, N. J.—A fire broke out on April 30 near the greenhouses of Louis C. Duncan, on the Almonesson road, about noon, and destroyed five of the greenhouses, two barns and several smaller buildings, with a loss that will probably reach ten thousand dollars. The fire originated in the barn and a high wind carried the flames to the greenhouses. Fire departments were summoned from South Westville and Gloucester City. Firemen saved the large dwelling.

Providence, R. I.—The Providence Housewives League is to have a model garden, to be used for demonstrating and instructing women in gardening. It will be about 25 x 50 feet and will be laid out in the most approved way to afford rotation of crops. Mrs. Harold C. Whitman will have charge of the garden, and will be there two mornings a week to give instruction and suggestions as to fertilizing, planting, and caring for crops.

Springfield, Mass.—Charles Adams, of the J. W. Adams Nursery Company, has been appointed a member of the Park Commission to take the place of Dr. Andrew J. Flanagan, resigned. Mr. Adams is treasurer of the J. W. Adams Nursery Company and a son of John W. Adams, who founded the company. Owing to his practical experience in the nursery business he is regarded as likely to be a valuable member of the Park Board and his aptitude in this capacity is shown by the work that he did in beautifying the North End Green, thus showing what the tract hitherto uncared for, was capable of from an artistic point of view.

BEGONIA LUCERNA.

This is said to be a hybrid and one of the finest of the fibrous rooted section, having exceptional merit as a winter bloomer of great beauty and freedom. The flowers are very large and appear in long pendulous clusters, said by Bailey's Cyclopedia to be often a foot in diameter. Our photograph came from A. L. Miller. Begonia lucerna was introduced in 1903.

PERSONAL.

Miss Elsie Alvilda Bistrup, of Waltham, and Charles Hartley Walker, florist, of Ware, Mass., were married at the bride's home, Saturday afternoon, April 21.

Frank Adelberger, of Wayne, Delaware Co., Pa., is at the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia. He went under the Xrays on the 1st inst. and there will probably be a surgical operation for stomach trouble in the near future. Mr. Adelberger has been a sufferer for about two years.

George Pitfield, who has been in charge of the herbaceous plant department and propagating for the Eastern Nurseries at Holliston, Mass., for the past thirteen years, has bought a farm in Greenwich, Mass., and will go into market gardening.

Malden, Mass.—At the annual meeting of the Park Commission, Wednesday evening, May 2, Commissioner David F. Cosgrove was elected chairman and John G. Tilden re-elected secretary. Daniel E. Connell is superintendent of parks and play grounds. Mr. Cosgrove is a landscape gardener and tree specialist, a valuable man for the board.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Bulletin of the New York Botanical Garden, Vol. 9, No. 35, has been issued under date of April 10. It includes complete reports of the work of the various departments of activity in the garden for the past year, lists of members, etc., all showing commendable progress in the work of this great institution.

Proceedings of the Sixty-Second Annual Meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society, held at Rochester, N. Y., January 24-26, 1917. This is a 168-page pamphlet edited and compiled by Secretary John Hall in his usual thorough manner. A portrait of the late president, Wm. C. Barry is used as a frontispiece. A number of very practical papers by eminent pomologists are included and the fruit grower will find this a most readable and instructive book.

STRAWBERRY GROWING. By S. W. Fletcher, Professor of Horticulture at the Pennsylvania State College. The Macmillan Company, publishers, and L. H. Bailey, editor, have placed the horticultural people under further obligations by the publication at this opportune time of this very practical book on a very important and rapidly growing branch of the small fruit industry.

This work is not only a practical guide to strawberry growing but also a sketch of the evolution of the strawberry in North America, from the wilding of Colonial days to its present position as the most cosmopolitan of American fruits, second only to the apple in commercial importance. The volume includes chapters on the early history of the strawberry in the old world and the new, the botany and origin of the cultivated strawberry, the rise of strawberry culture and the different ways in which it is practiced in different parts of the country, with something of an attempt to elucidate the principles that underlie these practices.

The volume adds one more to the popular Rural Science Series which have been issued from time to time. 325 pages, well illustrated. Price, $1.75 net.

MANUAL OF FRUIT DISEASES. By Lex R. Hesler, A. B., Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Plant Pathology, New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, and Herbert Hice Whetzel, A. B., M. A., Professor of Plant Pathology, New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University. This is the sixth publication in the series of Rural Manuals, under the editorial supervision of Dr. L. H. Bailey. It comprises 462 pages of indispensable information with reference to the common diseases of fruits, prepared primarily for the modern agriculturist, the farmer, the thinking fruit grower, but also of inestimable service to all who have an interest in plant diseases. The fruits are taken up in alphabetical order. The discussion of the diseases proceeds in order of their importance and prominence in the United States. Particular attention is paid to the description and illustration of the symptoms, to the causes and to the generally accepted measures of control.

Technical details are omitted as far as possible and an effort has been made to present the matter in a popular fashion. The price is $2.00 net. Three more volumes in this series will soon appear—The Manual of Milk Products, which is in press, and the Manual of Home-Making and the Manual of Cultivated Plants, which are in preparation.

THE JOYOUS ART OF GARDENING. by Frances Duncan. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons. The author was for several years garden editor of The Ladies Home Journal and is the author of the popular story, "My Garden Doctor." The book is designed for the use of the amateur in gardening, a most convenient compendium of useful and absolutely reliable information for the owner of a small place who requires instruction and advice in the planting, culture and general care of garden annuals, perennials and shrubs.

We can see how the nurseryman, florist or seedsman could do much toward promoting horticulture in their neighborhood and increasing in a very practical manner the knowledge and demand for garden material among their customers by recommending and offering for sale at all times a book such as this, for it answers the myriad questions that perplex the would-be home gardener in a way that is thorough and readily understood.

There are 27 chapters, some of them written from rather unusual viewpoints, and thus presenting the subject in a fresh and unique light. Up-to-date lists, charts and calendars present in convenient condensed form for ready reference a vast amount of cultural knowledge and this is illumined by 48 line engravings. The book sells for $1.75 net and it should be a good seller if properly pushed by the retail trade.

STANDARD CYCLOPEDIA OF HORTICULTURE. By L. H. Bailey. Macmillan Company, New York, publishers. This greatest of American horticultural works is at last complete and the sixth and final volume has been delivered. During the several years since the appearance of Volume 1, extended notices have from time to time been given in HORTICULTURE as each successive volume was issued. Author and publisher have faithfully kept their promise made at the beginning and he who has a set of the Standard Cyclopaedia on his book shelf may well feel proud of his possession. Volume 6 includes S to Z alphabetically, pages 3043 to 3639, figures 3516 to 4056, 19 full page plates of which 4 are in color; also supplementary lists of additional species recorded since the work was begun, list of collaborators, cultivators' guide to the practice articles, new combinations in Latin names, finding—list of trade names and an index to the six volumes, of synonyms, vernacular names, and others not in regular alphabetic sequence. Nothing has been left undone to bring this work as near perfection for its purpose as human effort could make it and its author has done an inestimable service for American horticulture. In order that the Cyclopaedia may be within the reach of everyone the publishers have arranged a plan for payment by installments. This privilege will also be extended to those desiring it who may order the Cyclopaedia through the office of HORTICULTURE. Price, $36 for the six volumes.

THE BOOK OF THE PEONY, by Mrs. Edward Harding. 44 illustrations in color and black and white. Octavo. Handsome cloth. J. B. Lippincott Company, Net, $6.00. "The Book of the Peony" appears in response to the large demand for authoritative information—historical, descriptive, practical—on this foremost flower. The peony has grown in popular favor in recent years, and today boasts two national organizations devoted to its cult. This is the first book of its kind ever published and it will undoubtedly enjoy a large sale. It is thoroughly up-to-date in every detail that the grower of peonies, whether amateur or commercial, should know.

Mrs. Edward Harding, the author, is a practical gardener, and her peony garden ranks among the finest in this country. Her thorough knowledge as to the flower is set out in a way at once exact, practical and helpful. She writes with the convincing enthusiasm of the flower-lover, and the complete and detailed information of the expert. Her lists, covering every desirable variety, contain a storehouse of authentic information.

Charmingly written, the book will beguile the flower-lover into giving some portion of the garden to the wonderful effects described and pictured by the author. The preparation of soil, selection of colors and varieties for desired effects, the characteristics of each variety, when and where to plant, cultivation, propagation, how to purchase, extending the period of bloom, are among the topics treated with fullness and exactness. The tree peony is given special attention, also an entire chapter has been devoted to the mythology, ancient and modern history of the peony. References are made to articles on the peony and to books on subjects connected with the peony. A lecture on diseases of the peony delivered by Prof. H. H. Whetzel before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is reprinted, with his permission, as an appendix.

The volume leaves nothing to be desired in make-up, binding and illustration. It might well be classed among art publications, despite its intensely practical nature. Our garden literature is greatly enriched by this notable addition.

The Page Company, of Boston, always on the spot at this season of the year with light vacation fiction for the young people, present this week an attractive story entitled, "Virginia of Elk Creek Valley," by Mary Ellen Chase, author of "The Girl from the Big Horn Country," to which story it comes as a sequel. It is a story full of life and absorbing interest and abounding in exhilarating wholesome entertainment. The heroine is the same breezy, frank-hearted girl from Wyoming who made so many friends in the previous story. The young lady who has worked faithfully at the flower counter or cashier's desk all winter would enjoy reading this book when she goes on her vacation, as a change from wiring carnations and mousing funeral wreaths. Why not buy it for her? Only $1.50 postpaid. 298 pages. 7 full page illustrations, frontispiece in colors. Messrs. Page have also just sent out a nice little book in the Cosy Corner Series by Alice E. Allen, entitled "Rosemary," just right for the twelve-year-olds. 96 pages. Price 50c.

And lastly comes a novel for the more mature ladies to enjoy during their hours of leisure, "A Place in the Sun," by Mrs. Henry Backus, author of "The Career of Dr. Weaver," "The Rose of Roses," etc., has just appeared. The heroine is a very much alive young person with a zest for life and looking-forward philosophy which helps her through every trial. She is sustained in her struggles against the disadvantage of her birth by a burning faith in the great American ideal—that here in the United States every one has a chance to win for himself a place in the sun. She takes for her gospel the Declaration of Independence, only to find that, although this democratic doctrine is embodied in the constitution of the country, it does not manifest itself outwardly in its social life. Romance, sentiment and philosophy in liberal measure and enough adventure to make it fascinating, enter into this new novel of American life. Sells for $1.35 net.

The Outlook for Food Crops.

The Missouri College of Agriculture has issued a number of emergency publications within the last six weeks. As soon as war became evident, all forces of the college were directed to assisting farmers in meeting the demands for food. Two Experiment Station bulletins, two Extension posters, four Extension circulars, and thirteen emergency leaflets have been issued. Several bulletins and circulars have been reprinted and a number of new circulars and leaflets are in preparation.

According to Dean F. B. Mumford, over-production is exceedingly improbable this year. It has been agreed that this country's part in the war will be largely to supply food. "Our food resources have been depleted by shipments to Europe and by several poor crop years," said Dean Mumford recently, "and now with unrestricted export to the Allies, the small reserve which we have will be further decreased. Any surplus which the American farmers can produce will be quickly absorbed at war time prices. Millions of people in England, France and other countries at war with the German powers are in need of food. They must have food not only for their civil population but for their armies. They are too busy fighting to provide that food themselves. It then behooves the United States to supply food.

"But it is not alone for the Allies that we must produce maximum crops. If we should have a poor crop year throughout the country, our own people may actually suffer."

"If Germany is able to continue the ruthless submarine warfare unhindered, some food will be lost on its way to Europe. Consequently the losses will tend toward a further shortage and to absorb any surplus even if there were danger of over-production."

What would happen if peace should come within the next few weeks? Would not the markets be glutted? In answer to these questions, Dean Mumford said: "It is doubtful if there will be a great decrease in the demand for food immediately following the war. With commerce restored, every nation which is now at war will become a market place for American farm produce. Those countries have no food reserves left and they will turn to the United States to furnish food during reconstruction and until they can feed themselves."

As an example of the actual scarcity of food in America, Dean Mumford cited the condition of wheat: "In 1915 the United States produced 10 bushels of wheat per capita; in 1916 we produced 6 bushels per capita, but used 6½ bushels for seed and ordinary consumption and exported 2½ bushels per capita. The present condition of wheat in the United States is 63 per cent of a normal crop. This is 23 per cent below the average for the last ten years. The condition in Missouri is even worse—59 as compared with the 15-year average of 85 per cent. The latest reports are that the world crop of wheat is far below average."

Notes.

Tampa, Fla.—H. F. Reils, formerly vice-president of the Allen & Reils Seed Co., will enter the seed business in his own name in this city August 1.

St. Albans, Vt.—Nearly all the hotels and restaurants of this city have promised to save the eyes from potatoes so that they may be used for seed, the labor and purchasing committee of the War Relief Association has announced. Seed potatoes throughout the state are selling at present from $2 to $4 a bushel.

There is a tremendous demand especially in the eastern section of the country for soy beans for packing and planting. Only the yellow seeded varieties are used for food, taking the place of navy beans in baked pork and beans. Soy beans are now selling at $3.50 to $4.00 a bushel, double the usual price.

Charles J. Bolgiano, of the seed firm of J. Bolgiano & Son, has been appointed to serve on the Farm Labor Committee of the Maryland Preparedness and Survey Commission. The object of this Commission is to better the condition of the Maryland farmers and to finance their crops wherever necessary.

Of Interest to Retail Florists

THE FIRST FLORISTS' CLUB NATIONAL ADVERTISEMENT

The first co-operative florists' advertisement is off the press and it will occupy a full page space in Literary Digest, issue of May 5, 1917. A copy of the magazine containing this advertisement will be mailed to every one who has purchased stamps and posters issued by the Chicago Florists' Club.

This campaign of advertising involved a great deal of expense, and as same is for the general good of the trade at large, every one should subscribe towards this enterprise.

Florists who have purchased other Mothers' Day stamps should also contribute as our national magazine advertisement combines with every special form of Mothers' Day advertising, consequently every one in the trade will profit thereby, and, therefore, every one should subscribe.

Growers, wholesalers and retailers who have not as yet sent in their contributions, should do so promptly. Make all checks payable to O. H. Amling, treasurer, and forward same to F. Lautenschlager, 440 W. Erie street, Chicago, Illinois, chairman.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB PUBLIC-ITY COMMITTEE,
F. LAUTENSCHLAGER, Chairman.

Among the various forms of "patriotism" which have been urged upon the public the proposition to put the florist out of business should be slated for a quick death.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

PITTSBURGH.

Mr. and Mrs. DeForest W. Ludwig returned home last Sunday from Los Angeles.

Ernest R. Bolton has resigned from his position as first assistant to A. A. Leach of "Greenlawn," the residence of Henry J. Heinz, which he has filled for the past two years.

Thomas Edward Tyler, superintendent of Charles D. Armstrong's East End estate, has at present one of the finest private exhibits of calceolarias ever seen in this section.

Four trees were planted this week by the Woman's Civic Club of Wilkesburg around the Lincoln monument in Penn. avenue. One of the trees has been named for C. L. Coones, tree commissioner.

The Horticultural Society of Western Penn. is arranging for an open session on Tuesday evening, the fifteenth inst., in the interest of amateur gardeners, who are cordially invited to be present and ask advice on their respective problems.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert P. Weaklen have undergone the deepest grief that can come to parents in the death of their little two-year-old son, Norman Francis. They have the sincere heartfelt sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances in their sorrow.

Judging by the present prospects of the coal situation, there will be a number of small dealers forced out of business next year. In going from one place to another one hears little but coal talk, dealers only contracting until October, and at that for not less than four dollars per ton.

James Watt, proprietor of the Highland Floral Company on the Alexander R. Peacock estate, has engaged Albert A. Brown as foreman. Mr. Brown, who for some time has been with the John Bader Co., has had a wide range of experience in commercial work, having seen extended service with the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. and the McCallum Co.

Nicholas Cassalucia, long confined to the house with an attack of bronchitis, is again able to resume his work as supervisor of the landscape features for the Penn. R. R. between Pittsburgh and Scottdale. Owing to the scarcity of laborers and material, Mr. Cassalucia finds it impossible to carry out the improvements contemplated for this spring.

The War Farms Gardening Commission has been organized with headquarters at 541 Wood street. It is under the regime of Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman; William Price, treas.; Roy D. Schooley, sec.; the committee chairmen including Hon. William Flinn, executive; J. Dawson Calhery, finance; W. F. Ashe, agriculture; H. P. Hass, real estate, and Harvey D. Smith, publicity. Mr. Ashe has charge of the garden work for the Pittsburgh Board of Education.

Owing to the general unsettled conditions, the Garden Club of Allegheny County has decided to "call off" its June Flower Show in Motor Square Garden. The decision is a keen disappointment to those members of the organization who were in favor of continuing the work and devoting the proceeds to the American Red Cross. Many had already expended large amounts in preparation for the event and their gardeners were actively preparing to exhibit, as were also many commercial florists and landscape men.

David Fraser is spending a fortnight in New York supervising planting and other landscape improvements on the Fifth avenue estate of Henry Clay Frick. Hereafter throughout the season Mr. Fraser will make fortnightly trips to supervise the care of these grounds. Roderick Fraser, his first assistant on the Pittsburgh estate grounds, has resigned to accept a similar position on the Woodland Road estate of Andrew W. Mellon. James Stuart, formerly with Edward A. Woods of Sewickley Heights, is in charge of these grounds.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Conferences on drug plant growing are being conducted in Richmond, Va., by A. F. Sievers, chemical biologist in the bureau of plant industry. Mr. Sievers is also consulting with officials of the Richmond Pharmaceutical College in the matter of growing these plants.

Local growers are very uneasy concerning the existing coal situation, and all who can do so are putting in as much fuel as the dealers will sell them. Fear has been expressed that the existing shortage of coal may become more aggravated by lack of transportation facilities, labor disaffection, etc., and that possibly the florists may suffer heavy losses.

May 29 and 30 are the tentative dates set for the Brookland rose show. This is an annual event, a very creditable one, which attracts widespread attention throughout the city. Every effort is being made to have this exhibition the equal of those of preceding years despite various difficulties under which the members of the Brookland Society are laboring.

ST. LOUIS.

Planting out and opening of summer gardens will be late here this year.

The display of tulips at Missouri Botanical Garden was the feature all last week.

The monthly meeting of the Florist Club comes second Thursday in the month at 11 Mile House.

Mothers' Day is being advertised by the retailers, hangers in the windows and other places being liberally displayed.

The rare Cypripedium Boltoni Sanderae, a white-flowered type, has been donated to the Missouri Botanical Garden's orchid collection by D. S. Brown, of Kirkwood, Mo.

CHICAGO.

A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., is on a business trip in the east.

Frank Oechslin returned May 1st from a brief visit to Philadelphia and New York.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is finding the volume of business so great that an adding machine is about to be added to the necessary office equipment.

R. A. Brenton, publicity manager for various florists' enterprises, has enlisted with the machine gun corps. The two brothers of J. E. Pollworth are also among those who have enlisted.

Orders are coming in rapidly now for Mothers' Day. So far they are confined exclusively to carnations but all wholesalers expect a good demand for all kinds of flowers as the day draws nearer.

News of the sudden death of John W. Fink, 2632 Herndon street, which occurred in New York City, April 26th, was heard with regret by his friends in the trade. Obituary notice will be found on another page.

E. C. Amling Co. is specializing in novelties and his collection of anemones, ranunculuses and Shirley poppies is very attractive. There is always a call for something new and novelties are always welcome and sure to sell.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, who always lends a hand when there is anything to be done, has disposed of ten thousand Mothers' Day posterettes. This is the kind of men that keeps business moving both in peace and war.

Frank E. MacFarland enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps and left Chicago, May 1st, for a few days in his home town, down state, when he will report for duty in the east. Mr. MacFarland has been for some time with Frank Oechslin.

The American Bulb Co. has secured additional floor space and now have a large and conveniently arranged room with three entrances. Aside from their regular lines, they are selling Burpee's seeds at retail, in which field they are doing well. The attractive window display stops many passers-by.

J. E. Pollworth, manager of Kennicott Bros., has just returned from a trip to the south, which included stops in Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky and Arkansas. One special object of the trip was to look into the peony situation which he reports to be most favorable. The first cut of the season was received by this firm May 1st. Mr. Pollworth is looking for $50,000 worth of business in peonies in May for his firm.

Northampton, Mass.—Fifty students from the horticultural classes in the department of botany are to give four hours each Saturday for the remainder of the term to supervision of gardens cultivated by children of the public schools of the city.

NEW YORK.

R. M. Ward is on his way to Japan and expects to be away for six months or longer.

Smith & Hemenway Co., Inc., have removed to Irvington, N. Y. They will have a local sales office at 261 Broadway.

The International Garden Club is planning for a fete to take place May 12 at Pelham Bay Park. Provision will be made for flower and plant exhibits.

The New York Herald recently devoted quite a portion of the priceless space on its front page to the tale of a nursery firm in Dansville, N. Y., which offers 200,000 fruit at the bargain price of 10 cents apiece to the people. Some 113 nursery firms are listed in Dansville in the latest trade directory but none of them under the name so munificently advertised by the N. Y. Herald, so "the mystery deepens."

BOSTON.

The bill to authorize the incorporation, without capital stock, of agricultural and horticultural organizations was ordered to a third reading, 15 to 5, in the Massachusetts Senate.

The first consignment of potatoes to plant the gardens in Franklin Park, being conducted under the direction of city officials, has arrived in Boston. Large automobile trucks on hand at the North station freight yards carried the 700 bushels to the park for distribution.

"No expensive dresses for sweet girl graduates will be noted at the Cambridge school commencements this year, according to Superintendent of Schools Fitzgerald. The presentation of flowers will also be deleted from the graduation exercises, and the programme itself will be limited to patriotic numbers. This action has been taken because of the war and the necessity of practising strict economy."

It is computed that there was a deficiency in the rainfall in this section since January 1 of 2.95 inches as compared with the normal rainfall. The cherry trees, usually in full bloom May 1 are still bare and with several inches of snow blanketing parts of our neighboring states—Maine and New Hampshire on May day, the spring of 1917 seems quite determined to hold on to its record of a cold and late season.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Mrs. E. C. Armbrust has returned from New Britain, Conn.

Dewey Lester is again with the Rochester Floral Co.

James Vick & Sons Seed Co. report an enormous demand for vegetable seeds.

Highland Park Conservatory has a wonderful display of cinerarias, genistas, etc., which attracts a large number of visitors.

Seth T. Bush, president of the New York Horticultural Society, has been appointed director of the food supply and machinery control of New York state.

J. B. Keller Sons have a pretty table decoration in their store, including a fountain and table novelties. Edwin C. Kaelber, Inc., are displaying some very fine varieties of Japanese iris.

Florists visiting or passing through Buffalo will now have another irresistible incentive for staying a while, in the new store of W. J. Palmer & Son on Delaware avenue. It is a shining example of up-to-the-minute flower store equipment. With an area of 30 x 100 ft. floor space, supplemented by a 25 x 75 ft. conservatory with fountain and basin and every luxury and finish in equipment that liberality and ingenuity can possibly devise, Mr. Palmer has in this latest achievement added another lustrous page to the history of the good old house established by his father and so worthily continued by himself. W. H. Grever will have charge of the new store.

Flower Market Reports

There has been a considerable slump in business this week and trade is very quiet. Bright weather has brought along a great quantity of stock and prices are uniformly low with many sacrifice sales made in order to clear stock. Notwithstanding the general complaint of the high cost of living, roses and carnations are holding up well. The quality of the carnations is good. Bulbous stock is plentiful and includes some very good Darwin tulips. Fine hydrangeas are on the market and sell well. Bedding stock is moving slowly. The beautiful long spiked snapdragons sent in by David Scott of Corfu are very popular and sell quickly. Calendulas and mignonette are also very good.

WASHINGTON There was an oversupply last week and prices on some things dropped very materially. Roses, however, tightened up and prices on these jumped. The sale of orchids and lily of the valley has continued good. Lilies and gladioli cannot be moved. Some very good Spanish iris have sold well. Peonies in several varieties have already made their appearance, and because of their new arrival do not remain in the wholesale houses long. Business in both the wholesale and retail establishments has continued good, the cold weather being a great help.

With the slogan: "Help Your Country—Raise Your Own Crops," Governor Beeckman has launched again his successful prize garden contest for the mill villages of Rhode Island, in which he offers three prizes to be awarded during the fall of the year. The prizes are divided into three classes. For village improvement, a flag and flagpole are offered; for a home garden, a first prize of a silver cup and $10 and a second prize of $5; for a vegetable garden, the same.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Stocks shortened up materially at the close of last week and while there is no flurry on any line yet the situation looks more satisfactory and prices are much more stable than they were at the time of our last report when the tables in the wholesale markets were burdened with about everything in the line of flowers and no takers to be found. There are still large quantities of daffodils, pansies, snapdragon and sweet peas that hang fire and lilies are still a surplus but roses and especially carnations have distinctly graduated from the bargain counter class and we hope they will soon have company.

BUFFALO For the past two weeks this market has been in bad condition. The supply on everything along the line has been overplentiful and the outlets absolutely closed. The inclement weather on Friday and Saturday of the past week helped to check the heavy supply, and on Saturday, 28th, to Tuesday, inclusive, things have brightened up and sales and conditions are again quite satisfactory. Weddings have been stirring up a bit and other floral work has helped to consume a good portion of the surplus. It is hoped that better reports can be made throughout the month of May.

CHICAGO A great change has come over the market during the past week. Instead of a glut there is only enough of most kinds of stock to go around. The shortening up is especially noticeable in roses and carnations, and the buyer no longer is able to fix the price. The change is due to continued cold weather which is keeping stock back and also to the fact that many plants are beginning to be off crop. There are some of the best Mrs. Russell of the season seen in the market now. Lilies left from Easter are nearly through and few, if any, went to waste. Darwin tulips are still seen in considerable quantity but some of the largest growers are now through for the season. Sweet peas clean up well each day. A good collection of miscellaneous stock is offered, including snapdragons, iris, marguerites, calendulas, anemones, poppies, pansies, etc.

CINCINNATI Business has assumed a much firmer tone than it had for several weeks. Supplies are not as large as they were, while the demand is good. Prices, too, are better. Shipping business is excellent. The rose and carnation supply is much smaller and now sells up pretty well. Sweet peas meet with a pretty fair market. Lilies and callas, also snapdragons, are very plentiful. Some excellent poeticus, iris and outdoor tulips may be had. The first peonies were in last week. Other offerings include gladioli, lily of the valley, orchids, lilacs and marguerites.

NEW YORK This market, in accord with the rest of the country, shows a much healthier tone than it did for the past two weeks, and a continuance of the present cool and overcast weather will help materially to bring about a better balance between supply and demand. The reason for whatever improved conditions there may exist lies not so much in a better call for the goods as in a shortened supply, due in part to the backward weather and in part to the waning of the unprecedented shipments of bulbous flowers. This market has never before been so loaded up with narcissi of all denominations as it has been for the past two months and everything else has suffered to a greater or less extent in consequence. Prices generally have reached a better equilibrium with the shortening up of the surplus, but there is nothing in the situation to warrant any advance, the decrease in bargain lots at sacrifice figures being the principal qualification as compared with last reports. Sentiment among wholesalers and retailers alike leans strongly to the conservative side at the present time.

PHILADELPHIA Early in the week the business here was very slow, with flowers much too plentiful, but it picked up a little later and the wind-up was not so bad. This may have been partly on account of decreased receipts and partly from a little better demand. Perhaps both factors had something to do with it. American Beauty roses were one of the first items to feel the improved condition and by Friday prices on these had hardened up quite considerably. Russell continues of fine quality and is one of the best sellers, as it has been right through the season. Killarneys, Jonkheer and Ophelia are also holding their own pretty well in popular favor. The glut in carnations has eased up a little and things are now in more healthy condition. The best at present are Matchless, Mrs. Ward and Pink Delight. There is no really good red. Even our good standby, Belle Washburn, is not as good as it might be. Sweet peas continue a strong feature—a big supply of very fine flowers, but there has been a considerable let-up in the short-stemmed, low-priced stock. Snapdragon is plentiful and fine but selling only middling. Cattleyas, not many but enough; mostly Mossiae. Violets are over. Lily of the valley is on the scarce side. Peach, cherry, dogwood and other outdoor blossoms are in evidence from nearby points a little to the south. Lily market in bad shape.

PITTSBURGH Stock all around is rather on the scarce side, the crop of roses and carnations having been practically off for a week past, although everything produced is of fair quality. The demands also are fair, the wholesale houses keeping cleaned up right along.

ST. LOUIS There has been a glut of all kinds of flowers, roses and especially carnations. The dry goods houses had

King Greenhouses

KEEP SUMMER WITH YOU THE WHOLE YEAR ROUND

On account of their sturdy special construction which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

Ask us for any of the following: Catalogue showing Commercial Type Greenhouses, Catalogue showing Greenhouses for private estates, Catalogue showing Garden Frames and Sash for private estates.

WAGON

To What Are You Hitching Your Wagon A Kerosene Lamp Or a Star?

"F OOL question" you say.
"One that doesn't mean a thing."
But doesn't it?

Let's see.

When you were a kid, going to school, didn't your teacher every so often give talks on what the boys called "shove-along stuff?"

Talks that were intended to inspire you and me to do big things, when we grew big?

And don't you remember how that same teacher used to tell us, to "hitch our wagon to a star"; with the idea of inspiring us to aim high?

Count on your fingers right now, the number of school fellows who really have made a good sized business success.

Not so many are there?

Wonder why?

Don't you suppose it is because they hitched to a kerosene lamp or a candle instead of that star?

When you were building Iron Frame houses; they were still hanging on to the all wood, or half and half kind.

When you were building wide houses, they were still putting up that talk about, "plants doing better the nearer the glass they are."

Last year when you saw the prosperity wave coming and at once ordered another big Iron Frame house; they put up a "holler" about the high cost of materials, and stood still.

They just plumb lost sight of the fact, that if you get high prices for your stock; your materials actually cost you no more, than when materials are lower, and prices are lower.

Figuring it out so successfully for yourself, the way you did last year; of course you will do the same this.

Having hitched your wagon to a star; you can't stand still on the shelf with the kerosene fellows.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

Great corporation head is amazed at the skill & devotion of Davey Tree Surgeons Correspondence between W. W. Salmon, President of the General Railway Signal Company, and M. L. Davey, General Manager of the Davey Organization—a message of vital importance to every owner of trees.

GENERAL RAILWAY SIGNAL COMPANY

Principal Offices:

Rochester, N. Y., U. S. A.

W. W. Salmon, President.

New York City, Sept. 29, 1916.

Mr. M. L. Davey, Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, Ohio.
Dear Mr. Davey:

Enclosed herewith please find my check to your order for $1,081.33 in full for tree surgery on my property at Beechmont, New Rochelle. In making this remittance permit me to express my appreciation of the capable, interested service rendered by your organization. Your New York Office as well as your Westchester representative and your foreman, have one and all given the most painstaking attention to my needs, and I have been so much impressed with the efficiency of your organization as I have come in contact with it, that it would please me greatly if, when you can find time, you will have the goodness to furnish me with any data at your command, showing how you have built up and maintained it in such a way as to bring about the devotion and enterprise so evident in your representatives whom it has been my pleasure to meet.

Yours very truly, W. W. Salmon.

Kent, Ohio, Oct. 3, 1916.

W. W. Salmon, Esq., "Beechmont," New Rochelle, N. Y.
Dear Mr. Salmon:

Acknowledging your esteemed favor of Sept. 29th, I want to assure you that such a voluntary expression of satisfaction is more than a pleasure—it is an inspiration. The public as a whole has been very gracious to us in return for our conscientious efforts to give Quality First Tree Surgery and honest service.

I believe that most worthy things, especially along the line of organization, are the result of evolution based upon a fundamental policy. Our purpose from the beginning has been to give maximum service, which means perfected methods, high type men and an organization ideal.

Perhaps the thing of first importance is the men—the men who actually do the work. The people whom we serve are not particularly interested in my theories or my knowledge or my ability. They measure the Davey organization by the men whom they see, and rightly so. Consequently, we have endeavored to get the right kind of men.

We go on the theory that "A leopard cannot change his spots." If a man is dishonest, if he is lazy, if he is careless and indifferent, if he lacks intelligence, if he lacks the spirit of co-operation and devotion to his work and his employers—if he lacks these fundamental things, no argument and no appeal and no inducement will make him a good man. We, therefore, eliminate the poor ones as fast as we find them, keeping only those who have in them the qualities which have impressed you. The good ones we boost and encourage and try to inspire as soon as we find that they are good. We pay these good men well and pay them more as soon as they prove they are worth more. The foreman who had charge of your work will be given a raise immediately on the strength of your letter. Is it not reasonable to suppose that he will strive still harder to please every other client? Every man in the Davey organization knows that his advancement depends upon his service and upon no other thing.

While we pay well we demand much in return. If a man fails to live up to our high standard, we do not want him and will not have him. If our service at any time falls below this high standard, we let the offender go and make good to the client. Thus the process of elimination leaves us the good men, those who are intelligent, industrious, honest and devoted to their work.

Our men are all trained in the Davey organization. We take no man's recommendation of himself. He must go through the mill and show us. Every man is responsible to us for his work and his conduct, which is the measure of his service. Thus the client gets through us, the highest possible service—guaranteed service. We, who know values in Tree Surgery, select the man who is to handle your priceless trees and we stand back of it with the whole strength of our organization and reputation.

We have devoted ourselves unceasingly to the perfection of our methods, with the result that our work is in reality practically perfect both mechanically and scientifically. We maintain our own school at a considerable annual expense for the specific purpose of training our men according to the Davey methods and Davey standard.

Every year we have a Convention, when we bring all of our responsible men together, including foremen, special representatives, officers, students and school faculty. We had our usual Convention last March. We had more than sixty foremen in attendance. The average length of their experience was about five years, with the result that more than three hundred years of actual experience was concentrated, massed, on the problems of Tree Surgery. We had a week's demonstration work, during which time we discussed everything from the most important down to the seemingly trivial things. Everything was put to the test of experience. We wanted no theories. We demanded only the definite results of ripe experience. The result is not only a constantly rising standard, but a very gratifying and valuable uniformity of methods and policy.

We had with us during our last annual Convention, Dr. H. D. House, New York State Botanist, who was formerly Professor in the Biltmore Forestry School. We wanted him here so that he could look us over. He expressed himself as amazed at the character of our organization and said that he could now understand why we had made a success of our work. Among other things he said, "These men would do honor to any institution of learning in America." A thing which greatly impressed him was the fact that our men, these fellows of broad, practical experience, were absolutely unanimous on every vital point.

Then there is the question of organization spirit. Our men have been made to feel that they are engaged in a great work—a work which is altogether worthy of them and the best that is in them. They have been made to realize that their future success is inseparably interwoven with the future and the success of the Davey organization. We have appealed to their self-interest, their desire for success and for financial return. We have shown them that there is only one way for them to advance self-interest and that is to give devoted service to their Company and its clients. Without the right kind of men such an appeal would be as wasted as a single rain on a desert. With the right kind of men as we have, such an appeal finds ready response, which grows and grows in beauty and in practical utility.

You as a business man know the inspiration which comes from definite achievement, from approaching a fixed goal. I find more satisfaction in this achievement than in the profit which comes from it. I believe that a business ideal is a source of power and serves to draw success as a magnet.

Ten years ago the Davey organization was only a mere handful, doing a business of about ten or twelve thousand dollars per year. Today we have an organization of about three hundred, built along the lines which I have indicated. Our business this year will exceed three hundred thousand dollars and I am very glad to say it leaves in its wake an almost general feeling of satisfaction such as you have expressed.

Let me assure you that we very deeply appreciate the opportunity of serving you and the honor of your full confidence and esteem.

Sincerely yours, THE DAVEY TREE EXPERT CO.
M. L. Davey, General Manager.

From Mr. Wm. M. Wood, Pres.

American Woolen Co., Boston, Mass.
"Your work upon my trees bears the mark of expert knowledge, and I am looking forward confidently to the best possible results from your intelligent treatment. Your success in tree preservation makes you a real public benefactor."

From Mr. G. M. Palmer, Pres.

Hubbard Milling Co., Mankato, Minn.
"I was very much pleased with the work of your men on my trees. They seem to understand thoroughly their business and I am sure they have put my trees in first class condition."

From Mr. W. H. Mullins, Pres.

"The work done by your men on my trees has been very satisfactory and I hope will be the means of prolonging their life for many years."

"It is a pleasure to me, and I feel it a duty, to recommend any work that is done as intelligently as you handled my work here."

Davey Tree

FOR SAFE TREE SURGERY

Rochester, N. Y.,
Nov. 17, 1916.

Mr. M. L. Davey,
General Manager,
The Davey Tree
Expert Co.,
Kent, Ohio.

Dear Mr. Davey:

Please accept my sincere thanks for your most illuminating letter of October 3rd.

Your story, interesting in itself, is most admirably told, though in its telling it appears to me that you have failed to mention the one element without which the "perfected methods, high type men and organization ideal" would not have come into being. That unnamed element I suspect to have been Davey, who first conceived the idea, then determined the methods and later found and inspired with some part of his own enthusiasm the men who are actually carrying out the work.

Shortly after receiving your letter I read it to the department heads of the General

Fig. 1.—See the iron band around the trunk. The tree was splitting apart and a "tree patcher" tried to save it. Temporarily it prevented a catastrophe, but the band was strangling the bark. And the real trouble, which was the decay on the inside, had received no attention whatever and the condition was growing rapidly worse.

Fig. 2.—Davey Tree Surgeons got at the real trouble. They first tied the branches to gether with ropes to prevent accident while operating. The decay was removed to the last particle, the inside of the cavity was thoroughly sterilized and water-proofed. The mechanical bracing employed demonstrates the finished skill and complete mastery of Davey Tree Surgeons.

Fig. 3.—The filling of a crotch cavity is probably the most trying task confronted by a Tree Surgeon. The filling is subjected to tremendous twisting and strain; it must not only be held firmly in place by the most expert mechanical bracing, but it must also allow for the normal sway of the tree. The sectional filling method aids wonderfully in this accomplishment, but correct mechanical bracing is ultra-important.

From Mr. Henry A. Everett, Pres.
Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co.
Cleveland, Ohio.

"It is now six years since you first treated my trees at Willoughby and I am more than satisfied with results."

From Mr. Samuel G. Allen, Pres.
Franklin Railway Supply Co., New York.
"The work of your representatives on my place at Fair Haven is exceedingly satisfactory. I found your foreman not only a very capable operator but a very courteous and polite little gentleman."

Surgeons

Every real Davey Tree Surgeon is in the employ of the Davey Tree Expert Company and the public is cautioned against those falsely representing themselves.

Railway Signal Company, while at luncheon, and the interesting discussion that followed led me to show the letter to some of my business friends, who are at the head of companies employing a great many men. In each such instance I have been asked for a copy of the letter—in order that they may have their men read and profit by it.

Will you have the goodness to write me at my home address whether I have your consent to make and send out to my business friends such copies?

Sincerely yours,
W. W. Salmon.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Lope.

Antirrhinums

These make a very useful addition to our outdoor cut flowers during the summer as they are persistent bloomers and have excellent lasting qualities. Cuttings taken now from indoor plants will soon root if kept shaded and moist. A good way to get true stock to grow under glass is to sow the seed now and plant outside where they will show up true. Where antirrhinums are raised somewhat extensively, it is best to always have seedling on hand as a source for annual propagation. The blooms of the seedling are never quite so uniform in color as those raised by cuttings. The growth coming in the form of sturdy shoots from the base of the plants makes the best cuttings that will produce long large flowering spikes. It is time now to start stock for next winter. The seed should be sown in separate colors of white, pink, red and yellow.

Bay Trees

In order to keep these in splendid form they should be cut into shape in the spring just before the new growth starts and then the young growths pinched back as they develop. About every three or four years they will need more root room and some good new soil but they should be kept in as small tubs as possible. Bay trees want an abundance of water from now until autumn. During the summer they should be set out in a convenient place where the hose can be used on them freely. The tubs where convenient should be plunged in order to protect the roots from drying out. The bay can endure a few degrees of frost so the trees may be placed outdoors anytime now. They will be greatly helped by the application of some liquid manure during the summer months for the health and vigor of bay trees depends greatly on the care they have during the hot weather. They should have a good syringing about once a week anyhow. Those that are pot bound will be better for some liquid manure once a week.

Lorraine Begonias

With the rush of other work do not neglect these plants as they will soon show it. As they grow give them a spacing from time to time to let the light and air around them. Keep them in a temperature of from 55 to 60 degrees at night. Those in 2 or 3-inch pots that have advanced sufficiently in root growth to require a shift should have it before they become too pot bound. They like nice mellow soil. A turf that was piled up last fall four parts, well-rotted manure and leaf mold one part each, and some sand, will make a good mixture for them. See that good drainage is provided for every plant. Give plenty of ventilation in good weather. A little shade during the noon hours will help, but to keep them shaded all the time is wrong. Stop the points to induce them to a bushy growth.

Cemetery Vases

Many customers object, and rightly, to the miscellaneous mixtures usually palmed off on them when they ask to have a vase filled. Usually they are far better if planted with one solid color of geraniums and if some drooping plant is wanted, use green rather than variegated vinca, German ivy, English ivy or even one of the ivy-leaved geraniums of the same shade of color. Old geranium plants will make a better immediate effect than young ones and will bloom with greater freedom. Where large sized vases are used, at cemetery entrances, for instance, one plant of large size must be used in each. In addition to the ever useful Dracaena indivisa such palms as Latania, borbonica or phoenix can be used. These will of course be of a darker color where they can get shade from overhanging trees but they will stand full exposure.

Gardenias

Some growers think it pays to carry over old plants. Sometimes they can be pruned back and break nicely. The trouble, however, is that collar rot is liable to attack them. No matter how carefully they are looked after, once this appears the plants are useless. Rather than to run any risk of this kind, it is better to plant fresh each summer. Plant a new stock. Much of success of gardenia culture lies in having the compost porous so that water can pass readily through it. In fine soil which holds moisture long, the plants will inevitably fall a prey to the yellows. Good fibrous loam two-thirds and the other third of dried, rather lumpy cow manure, broken charcoal and coarse sand makes an excellent compost. A few shovels of soot, mixed through the pile before housing it, will assist materially in the keeping of the foliage a dark, lustrous green color. Do not use over five inches of soil; four inches is better than six. Allow the plants eighteen to twenty inches between the rows.

Reminders

Sow salpiglossis in rows where the plants have to remain as they dislike being disturbed.

Ericas, boronias, camellias and acacias, if properly hardened can be planted out by the middle of this month.

Iris hispanica is a useful flower for Memorial Day. If the spikes are pushing up by the middle of the month they will be in season. Try to hold a good batch of Gladiolus Colvillei, the Bride, Blushing Bride and Peach Blossom for the same festival.

A universal Memorial Day

It is said to have been proposed and the proposition seems to have been received with favor, that our American Memorial Day, May 30, be adopted by all the allied nations and reverently observed henceforth in memory of their heroic dead. Thus in all probability we shall see a world-wide floral holiday mighty beyond comparison in its influence on the using of flowers. The idea is one bright spot among the "Dire combustion and confused events

New hatch'd to the woful time."

A new job

The land tilling craze is already responsible for the creation of a new and quite important position in some cities—that of town supervisor of home gardens and there is plenty for the incumbent to do, the main difficulty in most cases being to find a competent man who thoroughly understands the work, to hold down the job. What a change from the time not long ago when there were gardeners, old and young, on all sides clamoring for work. After allowing for all reconcilable causes for such a situation it is still difficult to account for the vanishing of the surplus. Whither have they flown?

The big rush

Never in the history of the seed trade have the stores experienced anything approaching the clamorous rush for garden vegetable seeds now going on. So rampant has it been that several of the leading houses of Boston have been compelled to shut down their seed department, either partially or fully, so that orders for vegetable seeds and garden requisites already accepted may be filled. The situation as regards flower seeds is however, quite different—the demand being reported as much below normal. Many garden plots heretofore devoted to flower purposes are slated for sterner service this year it would seem. And flower seeds of many kinds are almost unobtainable, anyhow.

Garden thieves

People in many places are much disturbed over the possibility of having their home vegetable gardens looted about the time the crop is ready to harvest. There is a big difference in communities in this respect. Some places have a large class of people who appear to assume that anything growing in fields and gardens is common property. Other neighborhoods are fortunate in that thieving of this sort is comparatively rare. The Bridgeport, Conn., Telegram wants a Home Garden Guard and some 8-bore shells to check marauders in the city limits and suggests that the gardener in the country resort to the time-honored and effective method of hypodermic injections of rock-salt through a gun barrel! We understand that depredations of this sort are almost unknown in European communities where intensive home gardening is general. Perhaps we shall outgrow it when gardens become more common here.

Save the paeony

The carefully prepared paper by William Rollins on the malignant disease that so seriously menaces our noblest spring flower, which is the leading feature of this issue of HORTICULTURE, should and doubtless will be perused with close attention by paeony growers everywhere. This, we understand, is not a new disease in Europe, but, having got to America it has taken on a more sinister aspect here, and as there has been no attempt to describe and illustrate it in a way that would put paeony growers on guard, it has now become widely spread and is the most serious trouble in the paeony world today, and rapidly becoming more so, because American paeony growers are spreading it all over the country. Mr. Rollins describes the disease so clearly that by aid of the illustrations any one will be able to distinguish this from all other fungous diseases, a matter of great importance, as if radical and constant attempts are not made to stamp out this pest, the growing of paeonies will be a matter of great difficulty. We consider Mr. Rollins' paper a very valuable contribution to the literature of this noble plant which in the last few years especially has been making most astonishing progress in popularity.

ROSE GROWING UNDER GLASS

CONDUCTED BY

Arthur Ruzicka

Declare War, Too

Time flies, and since our last article appeared, many things have happened in the world and in the greenhouse. With war on all sides, growers will have to declare war, too, in order to hold their own should the bottom drop out of the flower market the coming year or two. The very first thing to attack will be all the leaks, the ones in the roofs first and all the rest of the leaks next. Rust on the iron work should be fought with red lead and oil first and white lead to re-enforce it. Rust on pipes should be fought with linseed oil and lamp black. There will be many insect enemies to be warred on, among them the one which spreads most rapidly now in the spring, greenfly. Keep the plants free from this pest, as it is hard enough to keep the plants growing without having them covered with fly to retard them. Spider will creep in the corners unless the grower is right on the job, and with the weather we have been having the chances for syringing are none too plentiful. Weeds will begin to creep in among the plants if liquid manure has been used. These are great for breeding spider and should be pulled out as soon as they appear. There will be many unlooked-for enemies seeking to ruin the roses which we are trying to grow. Let us be at war, and prepared for more war until we have won.

The Heating System

With all the defects in the heating systems still fresh in mind after the winter just passing away, it will be best to make note of all the little things and see that all is ordered at once so that when the time comes all the necessary repairs will be on hand to complete the work once the repair work is started. It will pay, too, to look over all repairs received to make sure that they are just what is wanted, as many manufacturers are forced to employ many new hands with the rush of work, and even with the best of care things sometimes get mixed up, or often it happens that the wrong numbers are stated when sending for repairs, and the fact is not discovered until after the parts arrive. It is therefore wise to go into details and see that all is right, and see that the parts are put away where they will be found when they are wanted next summer. As fast as the boilers are retired, see that they are cleaned fairly well so that they will not rust too much before they get their thorough cleaning next July or August.

Early Planting

Growers cannot start their planting out too early. Many of the large places have their planting well under way, in many cases half done, and it is well for them that this is so. It is cool, now, and although the frequent rains disturb the work more or less, it will leave the men free to get more work done later on in the summer, such work as painting and repairing. Do not let the place go unpainted because paint is high. It is not very likely to be a bit lower for some time to come and the chances are that it will be much higher, and labor will certainly not be any more plentiful or cheaper either. It is too early to cut back old plants except for summer flowering, but young plants can be set out very nicely now. Be sure to have everything done right. It will take longer but it is always better to be safe. See that all the old soil is removed from the benches and that the benches are washed out thoroughly with a high pressure hose after all the soil is wheeled out. After this a good coat of hot lime applied as thick as possible will go a great way to sweeten the old benches and help keep them from decay. All old earth that sifts through the benches while wheeling should be removed before the benches are washed out. This work should be well done, for if it is let go each year will fill up the houses more, and after a time there will be a layer of old greenhouse soil all over the houses. This will always be full of insects and disease germs, a regular breeding place. Therefore take time and clean out well. See that the bracing for the benching is spaced so that it would not interfere with the cleaning and see that all pipes are high enough to get under with the scrapers. If the benches are old and in need of repair use old lumber to do this if at all possible. If new lumber is put in, the bench will always be too good to throw out and rebuild and will never be any good. The only way is to patch to last so long and then throw out the bench, using the better lumber for patching other benches and building the one bench new. This will save time and money in the long run.

Depth of Soil

If the plants that are to be planted are very small it will pay not to fill up the benches too much, as mulch can always be applied later on to make up for any soil that may be missing. If the benches are filled with five inches of soil this will be plenty. It will settle to four, which will be just right, and when summer or early fall comes around the mulch the plants will receive will take care of them nicely, and they will dig into it far better than they would if they had plenty of soil in the benches. With proper care in feeding, plants that have all the roots confined in four inches of soil will do far better than plants that have too much soil to roam around in. See that the drainage is all right as the benches are filled, and if there are many boards that are too close together see that they are spread or that a little is chopped off one of them to make drainage. One-half inch will be about right and only six-inch boards should be used for the bottoms. Where solid beds are used see that the cinders, gravel or whatever is used for drainage is properly stirred so that there will be no dead spots to keep the plants very wet in one place and very dry in another. Also see that the surface of the cinders or gravel is perfectly level so that the plants will have an even depth of soil all over. This is very important if they are to grow evenly and well.

THE HOLLOW STEM DISEASE OF PAEONIES.

THE HOLLOW STEM DISEASE OF PAEONIES

BY WILLIAM ROLLINS, BOSTON.

Through roots received from a paeony specialist in Pennsylvania my paeony garden was threatened with ruin. It therefore seems desirable to furnish gardeners with data that will enable them to recognize this disease as soon as it appears in the garden. It is hoped also that the illustrations will enable them to detect the fungus in the roots before planting. Figure 1 shows the effect of Hollow Stem on a paeony root. It produced the small stems and buds. This root was chosen because it also showed another disease, Knob Root, which caused the nodular condition. The latter has been a not uncommon disease for some years, and its treatment is within our present knowledge.

Hollow Stem is a much more serious disease, and more difficult to recognize, and its treatment is not so well known.

When a box of paeony roots is received from the dealer open it on a piece of old sail cloth at a distance from the garden. If any of the stalks are dead and hollow at the level they were cut in preparing the root for shipment the plant probably has the Hollow Stem fungus. Look with a hand magnifying glass for small dark raised spots, especially inside the stems that are hollow. Figure 2 shows an affected stem cut half through, to show the inside surface. The picture is enlarged about as much as the stem would be with a hand magnifier, such as should always be used in examining every paeony root before planting. If black spots are found, cut off the stem low enough to be sure the stump is healthy and paint the cut surface with a fungicide. Make sections of the amputated parts and examine them. The paeony has many other diseases not so serious as Hollow Stem, and unless the microscope shows the Hollow Stem fungus, the subsequent treatment does not need to be so radical. I assume that every gardener has a microscope, for gardening is one long struggle with minute enemies. A very inexpensive instrument will serve. All the microphotographs used to illustrate this paper were made with an instrument the optical parts of which cost $14.50, or less than the price of a single root of many varieties of paeonies. If the fungus is found, destroy all the roots of the common varieties affected. With the more valuable roots cut until sound tissue is reached. Though the roots are divided into pieces each will grow if it has one healthy bud. Gather up all affected pieces and burn them with the packing case and contents. Figure 3 is from a mature root of the variety Therese, cut to show a hollow in the root caused by hollow stem fungus. From an ideal root it became a ruin in two years. The plant never showed the least sign of Knob Root, to which a number of paeony growers attributed its ill health. Observe the small buds at the bases of the former large stems. If this plant had been left in the ground, this year it would have produced only feeble stems, which would have developed buds that would not have opened. When in health this root produced flowers twenty-two centimetres in diameter. Figure 4 is a top view of the same root, with the hollow stems cut at the bases to show how little tissue remained to make new stems. The healthy tissue is white in the picture. In 1914 this was a perfect specimen of a paeony root.

Before planting the roots on which the surgical operations have been performed, immerse them in commercial formalin, or in a deep red solution of permanganate of potash and thoroughly brush all parts except the buds, with the solution. The next spring, if any of the stalks wilt, make sections and hunt for the fungus. Later watch for the new spores. The first sign will be a minute red spot, where the spore has turned the chlorophyll of the cells to an autumn tint. As the diseased spot enlarges, the centre becomes the color of dead wood. Figure 5 shows a paeony stem with the fungus in the early stages. It is enlarged about as it would be by a hand magnifier. Several points of attack are shown, from one the size of a pin head at A to others in more advanced stages at B, C, D. From A a single fruiting stalk of the fungus is arising. Figure 6 shows the fungus in the stage where it has sent up hundreds of fruiting stems from the bark of a stem. The spore heads are about a millimetre above the surface of the stem. At the left many of the stems have shed the spores, become black, and under the microscope look like bits of graphite. Figure 7 is a microphotograph of the fungus in the fruiting stage. In this and the following illustrations the real size of the subjects can be determined by the accompanying scale, which is a photograph of a Rogers micrometer, with divisions of one-tenth and one one-hundredth of a millimetre.

Each of the wide spaces in figure 7 is one-tenth of a millimetre. In all subsequent pictures each division of the scale is one one-hundredth of a millimetre. This picture is a thin bit of the outer tissues of the bark of the stem and the dark masses are the root clumps of the fungus from which the fruiting stems arise. The specks in the background are the spores that flew off in making the section. While too small to be individually seen by the unaided eye they are when ripe, so easily detached by a slight touch of the paeony stem, that they arise as a plainly visible cloud. This is the reason why the disease can spread over a large garden so rapidly, for being carried by the wind, even in wet weather they reach distant parts with ease. They are as transparent as glass. To study their structure they must be killed instantly and stained. When the wind blows a spore against a paeony it develops quickly. Figure 8 shows a spore that has penetrated the tissue of a paeony stem and is sending out the first bud. Figures 9 and 10 further development in the cellular tissue of the paeony stem. The nearly black bunches are the enlargements that come in the fungus roots at points where it will send up the stems into the air that will make fruiting plants. Figure 11 shows one of these stalks in an early stage before it begins to branch. Notice the tip where the first spore is beginning. Figure 12, an aerial stem that is branching and developing a few spores. Figure 13, a fully developed aerial stem with the spores in the mature state ready for the wind to send them flying over the whole garden.

Figure 14 is most interesting, as it shows a single cell of the stem of a paeony in perspective. The mottled snake like thing is a fungus root. It has pushed through the wall between the cell and the one next and after sucking out the life of the cell, destroying its structure, it is attacking the nucleus which is the most resistant of the tissues.

Figure 15 shows a similar cell where the fungus has nearly destroyed the nucleus. Figure 16 shows the stage where the fungus roots have destroyed practically all of the tissue of the paeony stem, the whole picture being only a mass of fungus roots running in every direction. When this stage is reached which may be in a week after the spore strikes the paeony, the stem wilts, and the gardener begins to wonder what is the trouble with his plant.

Treatment.

Soak the ground with a solution of permanganate of potash, and drench the plants with it from time to time. During the stage when the fungus is fruiting, paint every suspicious spot on the paeony with tar. Do not use a fungicide that is not sticky for in applying it the jarring of the plant will shake off the spores before they are killed. Remove all affected parts that are not necessary for the development of strong buds for the next season and steam them. A stock feeding outfit is suitable, if it has a boiler in which steam can be developed. From it run a pipe to a barrel and throw the affected parts of the plants into the barrel partly filled with water having a fungicide in it. Once in two or three days steam thoroughly and remove the steamed tops and stems to the compost pile. In the autumn when the tops are removed, cut them very low, gather them in iron bushel baskets, and burn them. After the stems are cut observe the stumps left on the plants and if any of them are hollow they probably contain the fungus in the resting stage already described. Dig down and cut off all such stem until you come to sound tissue. Paint the cut surface with a fungicide and cover with earth. Paeony plants should be six feet apart to allow a good circulation of air to promote dryness as the fungus grows best in damp air.

Obituary

John Davey.

John Davey, well-known as a plant grower and latterly in the employ of P. McGovern, died on April 30, at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., aged 60 years. Cancer is said to have been the cause of his death.

Charles L. Johnson, carnation grower, died at his home in East Sudbury, Mass., on Friday night, May 4, of cancer of the stomach. Previous to starting into business for himself last year Mr. Johnson had been in the employ of William M. Davis at Coolidge Farm, East Sudbury, for about five years and he had been on the Coolidge Farm in one capacity or another for 27 years. His age was about 45 and he leaves one son and one daughter. His wife died last August.

Joseph Amann.

Joseph Amann, 50 years old, for many years associated in the florist business with his father, a pioneer resident, in Middle Village, N. Y., died Wednesday night, May 1, after a long illness at his home, 14 Proctor street. He is survived by his wife and one son; two brothers, John and Jacob Amann, and a sister. Mr. Amann was born in the Eastern District, Brooklyn. The funeral took place Sunday from the R. C. Church of St. Margaret, Middle Village, and interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

A CORRECTION.

Rev. C. S. Harrison writes to say that he made a big mathematical error in his communication on the cost of feeding the five million dogs said to be kept in this country, which appeared in our issue of April 28. One hundred and eighty-two million, five hundred thousand dollars a year is the correct computation and that seems fully sufficient to justify Mr. Harrison's conclusions.

Hardy Perennials

For many years one of our most important specialties, our stock this season is again in prime condition, more extensive than ever, with a complete assortment of both standard varieties and novelties.

Roses, Two Year Old Plants for Outdoor Planting

Our Roses are all field grown plants which were dug in the fall, and which during the winter months were potted into 5 and 6 inch pots. They are stored in cold houses and frames, being retarded as much as possible, and are just the sort of stock that will please your retail customers. We are particularly strong on Hybrid Teas but carry also nearly all other types.

Aquatic Plants

Eight acres of Ponds are devoted to Hardy Nymphaeas and Nelumbiums alone, a large assortment of Tropical Nymphaeas, Victoria Regia, etc., as well as sub-aquatic plants for marginal planting. If interested in these, send for our book 'Dreer's Water Lilies.' It is not only descriptive, but gives full cultural directions.

HARDY NELUMBIUMS.

Hardy Shrubs and Vines

A choice assortment of standard varieties—Altheas (including our own splendid novelty William R. Smith) Azaleas, Callicarpa Purpurea, Hydrangea Aborescens Grandiflora, and Paniculata Grandiflora, Cotoneasters, Buddleias, Deutzias, Forsythias, Prunus, Philadelphus, Spiraeas, Viburnum, Weigelas, Ampelopsis, Akebia, Aristolochia, Clematis, Honeysuckles, Wisterias, etc.

Decorative Plants

Palms and Ferns, Aspidistra, Crotons, Dracaenas, Ficus, Pandanus, etc.

Amaryllis, Tuberous-Rooted Begonias, Caladium Esculentum and a splendid assortment of Fancy-Leaved Caladiums, Golden Yellow and Spotted-Leaved Callas, Hyacinthus Candicans, Gladiolus, Lilies, Montbretias, Tigridias, Tuberoses, etc.

All of the above and many others are fully described in our current Wholesale List, January to June, which will be mailed upon request only to persons engaged commercially in Horticulture.

SEED TRADE

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

The following notice published in the Boston daily papers by Joseph Breck & Sons shows the situation as it is in Boston at present.

"On Tuesday, May 8, our Seed Department will be closed for the first time in 95 years, in order that those who have already favored us with their valued orders for seeds, fertilizers and insecticides may not suffer.

This will enable our force, which cannot be augmented by inexperienced helpers, to execute orders in hand and clear the way for prompt service when the department is reopened later in the week, of which notice will be given.

Short crops, late harvest, and slow movement of freight, together with the agitation for increased planting on account of war conditions, have caused congestion in the seed trade beyond precedent.

Our other departments will not be interfered with and will be open for business as usual."

Notices have also been given by R. and J. Farquhar & Co., and Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., that their stores will be closed daily at 3 P. M. during the present emergency.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Rose Hill, N. Y.—F. B. Mills, seedsmen; liabilities, $100,000; inventory being made of the property.

Of Interest to Retail Florists

NATIONAL CO-OPERATIVE ADVERTISING.

A full page advertisement of Mothers' Day, on behalf of the florist trade, appeared in the Literary Digest for Saturday, May 5. This was the culmination of the campaign inaugurated by the Chicago Florists' Club and carried to a successful conclusion by their Publicity Committee under the management of Fred. Lautenschlager. The advertisement was given a very prominent place in the magazine and should bring some substantial results from the 700,000 representative families which The Literary Digest is said to reach.

A vignette of an elderly lady seated in a big easy chair and opening a box of flowers illumines the advertisement, which reads as follows:

MOTHERS' DAY,

2nd Sunday in May.

Send Her Flowers.

If possible, her favorite ones.

They will carry a double message.

If you don't remember her favorites, send yours.

If they are out of season, there is the lovely rose, the beautiful spring flowers and bright blooming plants.

The thought of your remembrance will make it one of her happiest days.

You Can 'Phone or Telegraph Them.

No matter where your Mother or you are; you can step into any flower store and leave your order.

If the distance is great they will telegraph the order.

The country wide Association, called the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, makes this guaranteed service possible.

To obviate the chance of forgetting Mother or Mothers' Day, attend to the ordering now.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

Wm. Van Dame, president of the Rapid Wrapper Co., is about again after an operation for appendicitis.

H. G. Maclellan, who was operated upon recently for appendicitis, is able to be at home but is still confined to the house.

Store and office furnishings are being rapidly installed for the new store of Kennicott Bros., to which they will move shortly.

Henry C. Dunn, formerly with Wm. T. Scofield, has opened a store for himself in the next block, at 807 N. State street.

Lord & Burnham Company have moved their offices from the Rookery Building to the Continental and Commercial Bank Building.

The formal opening of the new residential Parkway Hotel, facing Lincoln Park at Garfield Ave., called for the use of many flowers from the north side florists May 8th.

Chas. Schneider has for several years proved that a ground floor was not an absolute necessity for a retail flower store, but he is now showing that it is more desirable by moving to 6 W. Jackson Boulevard.

The Geo. Wittbold Co. has executed $25,000 worth of 6 per cent. serial first mortgage gold bonds which are now being offered for sale. This is to take up a loan now due on the Edgebrook property and to make further improvements.

The Foley Greenhouse Manuf. Co. is now building two fine private greenhouses, one for Mrs. C. H. McCormick on her Lake Forest estate and the other for W. L. Zelie at Moline, Ill. Both houses are of the curved eave iron-frame type.

There is a marked decrease in the amount of floral display, both natural and artificial, being used in the big State street stores this spring. Old Glory reigns supreme and beside the wide flag-draped aisles flowers seem almost out of place.

August Poehlmann, president of Poehlmann Bros., has been indisposed lately and went to Lake View hospital last week for rest and treatment. His son Earle has filed his application for admission to the officers' training station at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

A. Longren, who has just returned from a very satisfactory trip through the northwest, reports sales of florists' supplies away ahead of those of last year, and his opinion is that the war situation is not going to seriously injure the flower business, unless florists themselves bring it about by an undue amount of fear.

The effort to save the Dunes along the southern shore of Lake Michigan by making that section a National park, is having an uplift in the Memorial Day exercises there. The special feature is a Dunes Pageant with woods and lake for a setting, which will draw thousands of people who have never visited that spot before.

The prices for Mothers' Day are supposed to be in effect all the previous week and are so quoted in the column for that purpose. The market being rather quiet, buyers on the spot have not been held strictly to quotations. Orders are now on the books for a sufficient amount of shipping stock to make it sure that a good week is ahead.

There are very few blooming plants in the market at this time. The hybrid calceolarias have been making a fine showing in the windows of the loop flower stores where their beautiful brilliant colors gave a much needed brightness during the cold backward spring, but these plants are about through blooming now, leaving pelargoniums to take their place. The beautiful variety Easter Greeting with its sports have such masses of large blooms that a good plant closely resembles a well-grown azalea with its rounded top almost hidden with bloom.

ST. LOUIS.

Alex. Siegel is, we are sorry to say, pretty low and unable to get around.

J. J. Beneke is better and every one was pleased to see him at his post again at the Cut Flower Co.

A burglar attempted to ransack the office of C. A. Kuehn but only succeeded in breaking a window glass.

Walter Young, of C. Young & Sons, recently married, will leave shortly to join his regiment, Battery A, for the front.

The Plant and Flower Growers' Association met at Eleven Mile House, Wednesday evening, May 2nd. A good attendance was there. W. A. Rowe was elected president; A. S. Cerny, vice-president; Joe Deutchmann re-elected secretary; August Hartmas re-elected treasurer; Albert Scheidder, trustee.

PHILADELPHIA.

J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, will give an illustrated lecture in the auditorium of the Twentieth Century Club, Lansdowne, Delaware Co., Pa., on the evening of June 8th, under the auspices of the Lansdowne Flower Show Association. The public is invited. No charge for admission. Samuel S. Pennock is president of the society and asks that all his friends and their friends show up and give fitting greeting to a most distinguished flower enthusiast and at the same time pass a pleasant and instructive evening. The annual spring show of the society will be held at the same place on the following day—June 9th.

Hobart, Ind.—E. H. Kellon has purchased the business and greenhouses of A. Londenberg, who has left for Tampa, Fla.

BOSTON.

Edward I. Farrington will entertain the Gardeners' and Florists' Club next Tuesday evening with a stereopticon lecture on "What's New in the Garden."

At a meeting of the directors of the Boston Flower Exchange last Saturday, it was voted to send a check for twenty-five dollars to the Mothers' Day fund.

Robert Burns, of the Sutermeister estate at Readville, who was seriously injured by being run down by an automobile is said to be recovering satisfactorily at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Sixty-two separate lots 50 by 100 feet have been staked out on the new campus of Tufts College for the purpose of cultivating the land. These lots were assigned to the residents of Somerville.

Amid the crowing of roosters and the chatter of small birds, firemen fought a fire in a chicken brooder at the Stapler Seed Company, 261 Purchase street, last Tuesday morning. Three hundred and twenty-five small chicks inside the brooder perished when the kerosene heater exploded.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar gave a talk on Back Yard Gardens before a large audience in the Public Library lecture hall, last Sunday afternoon. There was enthusiasm unlimited and long after the lecture proper was over a crowd lingered around the speaker deluging him with questions.

More than 500 South End boys and girls under 15 years recently accepted the offer of Miss Mildred Champagne to provide an acre of land near her theatre on Berkeley street, which they will plant and care for and from which they will receive the harvest. Garden seeds and tools will be provided and an expert gardener will be in attendance during the summer.

Several members of the Women's G. A. of Boston have written to Mayor Curley and John H. Dillon, chairman of the Park and Recreation Department, requesting that the plowing and planting of the Franklin Park golf course be postponed until other opportunities for the raising of foodstuffs are exhausted. The letter was turned over to the sub-committee on food production of the Boston Public Safety Committee, of which Robert S. Peabody is chairman. Mr. Peabody says there will be no stopping and that all available land in the vicinity of Boston which can be used for cultivation will be taken for that purpose.

The officers-elect of the newly organized Binghamton (N. Y.) Florists' Association are as follows: President, William Baker, Suskana Flower Shop; vice-president, J. W. Beckwith; secretary-treasurer, A. M. Fancher. The new society starts with very promising auspices.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

George Prindle, of Salter Bros., is suffering with tonsillitis.

J. M. Keller, Will and Wilfred Keller are on a fishing trip to Wanakesia in the Adirondack Mountains.

According to a transfer tax affidavit it appears that the net value of the late Wm. C. Barry's estate is placed at $629,129.80.

In the recent window potfery display contest Rochester Floral Co. received third prize and Edwin C. Kalber, Inc., received fourth.

George T. Boucher is making a specialty of garden craft novelties, and also pushing garden and vegetable seeds as a department of his flower store.

George Rauchy, formerly with Frank Purrsell as rose grower for 18 months, has returned to Clifton as foreman in the rose houses of Robert Simpson.

Earl Schmidt, who has been connected with Geo. B. Hart's wholesale establishment, has joined the coast artillery, now stationed at Fort Banks, Mass.

PITTSBURGH.

Gilbert Ludwig has just completed serving two weeks as a juror in the Common Pleas Court.

Oscar A. C. Oehmler, grower and retailer of Washington, D. C., spent a few days on the North Side last week.

County Agriculturist, Norman S. Grubbs, returned last Tuesday from a several days' visit with friends in Sharon, Pa.

Karl Voelker, of The Arcade Flower Shop, has the heartfelt sympathy of his many friends in the death of his mother, Mrs. C. L. Voelker, on April 27.

John F. Zimmerman, formerly on Penn Ave., Pittsburgh, E. E., has removed to his new location in Emsworth. He will transact business in Emsworth but expects to keep his former trade in Pittsburgh. His mail address is now Bellevue, Box 347A., R. F. D.

Frank P. Smoller will leave next Tuesday with Battery E, First Field Artillery, N. G. W. S., which has been ordered to Mt. Gretna, with the expectation of later going to one of the coasts. Mr. Smoller is a designer and salesman for Walter A. Faulk of the North Side, and saw extended service including a month's hospital experience on the border.

NEW YORK.

The Skinner Irrigation Company has established a selling office at 131 Hudson street, under the management of Charles H. Allender.

The regular monthly meeting of the N. Y. Florists' Club will be held as usual on Monday evening, May 14. Important business, plenty of it.

The annual spring plant market is now well established under the Queensboro bridge, at East 60th St. The busy hours are from 2 to 6 A. M.

We are pleased to be able to announce that Percy Richter, salesman at J. S. Fenrich's wholesale flower store on 28th street, is in a fair way to recovery from a serious attack of pneumonia.

PERSONAL.

C. L. Brock, formerly superintendent of parks, Houston, Texas, was appointed chief of police May 1st.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Mabel Edythe Dickinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dickinson, of New Haven, Conn., to John Joseph Sokol, the florist, of the same city.

Antoine Leuthy, Boston's widely known plantsman, was married on April 23 to Miss Christina Matilda Anderson at Roslindale, Mass., and the happy pair has just returned from a two weeks' honeymoon trip southward.

ANTOINE LEUTHY

Mr. Leuthy's friends had long given him up as a confirmed old bachelor but at last he has done the right thing. The accompanying picture was published in these columns some time ago. He does not look at all like that now. That lonesome, wistful expression has gone completely. He has taken our advice and joy reigns.

NEWS NOTES

Woodburg, N. J.—Fire destroyed the greenhouses of Dennis D. Cuncun, near Westville. The loss is $10,000. The origin of the fire is not known.

Claremont, N. H.—Lester Merrill of New Hampshire College will act as manager of the Bugbee greenhouses on Maple avenue this summer, while Ralph Bugbee is occupied with his duties as assistant to the County Agent in the campaign for home gardens. Mr. Merrill is a junior at the state college and is specializing in garden work.

Rockville, Conn.—At the present time 126 plots of land, nearly a million square feet, that was never cultivated before, have been distributed to home garden farmers and there is still a big demand for more. The chairman of the public gardens committee secured fifty-five bushels of potatoes from the Connecticut Food Supply Committee. These potatoes have been over ordered by fifteen bushels.

A FIRST PRIZE DISPLAY OF FLORAL POTTERY.

The accompanying picture shows a window display by F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., of art pottery such as is now an indispensable adjunct to the regular furnishing and stock of a first-class flower establishment. Mr. Pierson writes as follows:

"We are mailing you under separate cover a photograph of one of our windows, which has just been awarded first prize, by the — Pottery Co., for display of their pottery. The competition was open to florists, and there were many entries. Mr. — writes us as follows: 'All the windows submitted were excellent,—adding to your credit of receiving this award.'

"The larger pieces in the picture were used by us in our display of roses at the New York Flower Show and for which we were awarded first prize. The two garden vases—a beautiful shade of cucumber green—were also used in our first prize rose garden at the New York Flower Show."

Second prize in this window competition was won by Butler & Ullman, Northampton, Mass.

Nashua, N. H.—Warwick Snow, for the past 11 years superintendent of Woodlawn cemetery, has resigned and will move to Hollis, where he has purchased the Colburn place with the greenhouses. Mr. Snow will devote his time to the raising of market produce and flowers. L. B. Colby, who was Mr. Snow's assistant, has been elected by the trustees to the position of superintendent, and Harry Gidge has been appointed assistant to Mr. Colby. These changes took place on May 1st.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON This market is quite bare of flowers and while there is not much advance in price quotations except on carnations and lily of the valley there are no bargain sales or "lump sums" and everything brings standard figures if of proper quality. Lilacs from the south and splendid candytuft and stocks in moderate quantities have been added to the general stock. With the exception of daffodils and pansies there is nothing that suggests a surplus, the dark weather of the past week having cut down the supply. Carnations are the only item yet affected by the approach of Mothers' Day but it is expected that other things will feel the impetus toward the end of the week. Last Sunday the thermometer in Boston was only four degrees shy of the freezing point for a minimum reading and barely reached 40 for a maximum. Unseasonably cold and dark has been the weather for May thus far and the question of flowers for Memorial Day begins to loom up as an uncanny spectre. It will require some pretty hot days to bring outdoor material along to its normal condition for May 30, but it is too early yet to venture on estimates.

CHICAGO Cold winds and cloudy skies are holding back stock which could be used to good advantage this week. The market is using up all the flowers which come in each day, but nevertheless the stir and hurry is wholly lacking and one has the feeling of a dull season even though this is not the case. Orders for Mothers' Day are coming in rapidly and some of the largest houses have reached their booking capacity and are turning down orders now, May 8th. Carnation prices will be high and it is expected that instead of the price breaking before Memorial Day, it is more likely to advance. It is gratifying to note that orders for the coming holiday include many roses. Instead of the over-supply of a short time ago, stock is on the short side and roses too will be quite likely to advance still more near the week end. Peonies are the latest arrivals but in limited quantities, and the buyers do not seem anxious to buy. Sweet peas are very good. Snapdragons of splendid quality and iris in three colors are all to be had in any quantity, while the supply of smaller miscellaneous flowers is good also. It looks now as if much business would be done for Memorial Day and that prices would hold up until the last.

Advance orders for Mothers' Day are exceptionally heavy and judging from their source it seems that there is a shortage of flowers throughout this section of the country. Wholesale prices have mounted to a plane unheard of heretofore for this time of the year, even for a special day. Stock is not very plentiful, having suffered somewhat of a setback because of the cloudy weather of the past week. The supply of roses is short of actual needs and more carnations could be used. Lilies continue plentiful and serve to help out the shortage in other lines. A good cut of sweet peas is coming in and snapdragons are fairly plentiful. Large quantities of outdoor lily of the valley and lilac have been coming into the wholesale houses. Other offerings include peonies, gladioli, iris and callas. New southern ferns may be had.

Weather conditions of NEW YORK late have relieved a bad market situation and made it possible with the help of a little extra demand to clean up in fairly good shape. This week a general appreciation in prices has prevailed. Roses were in better demand but carnations benefited mostly for they were in smaller supply and Mothers' Day is near. American Beauties and Hadleys are in particular favor and are going at prices above last week's quotations. Ward and red in carnations have sold best but white now takes the lead. Corn flowers have been in brisk demand of late, owing to a number of dinners requiring the national colors for the decorations. The market is very well supplied with lilies, snapdragon, tulip, jonquils and yellow and white daisies, all of good quality and meeting with only a moderate demand. Cattleyas are going well and lily of the valley is scarce. It is probable that there will be a good cut of white carnations for Mothers' Day as there have been more white carnations in the market this season in proportion to colors, but indications are strong that they will fall far short of requirements. Southern lilacs are coming in heavily and Spanish iris are in overstock.

Clearings last PHILADELPHIA week in the wholesale centers here were on an improved basis and general conditions have been more satisfactory from the growers' standpoint. This was especially the case at the finish of the market last week Friday and Saturday. The weather continues cool and cloudy, which has its effect in curtailing production. Carnations especially feel the effect of the improved conditions. Today the retail men are seriously considering shock absorbers across their chests to prevent heart disease. Six cents for the best carnations and worse to come. Highway robbery is mild. They are looking up time tables for New York. Look out Manhattan. You don't know our old "Iron Faces" yet!

As the days lengthen the flower crop weakens, which augers ill for Mothers' Day. There is a discouraging shortage of blooms. The demand is far beyond the supply and the wholesalers can not begin to meet the wants of their customers. They have several times as many orders as it is possible to fill.

Business has been ROCHESTER very quiet for several days, but Saturday saw a sudden spurt in business, which cleared up market stock nicely. Lilies, daisies, forget-me-nots, mignonette and snapdragons are very plentiful. The violet season is about ended. Bachelor buttons sell well owing to the demand for patriotic corsages and decorations of red, white and blue. Orchids and sweet peas are plentiful and in demand.

JOHN A. EVANS CO.
Richmond, Ind.

When writing to advertisers kindly mention HORTICULTURE.

J. W. Davis, the head of the Davis large interests at both Davenport, Iowa, and Terre Haute, Ind. With the completion of the last five houses at Terre Haute, he will have a balanced layout of Ten houses—five on each side of the Power House.

Do Some Tall Figuring Like This Man Did

HERE is a man who in the face of prevailing prices of material, took out his knife, sharpened his pencil, and did some tall figuring. As a result of that figuring, he ordered five houses 76 feet by 600 feet.

Mr. Davis figured that if he waited for materials to go lower, he would have a jolly long wait before building. Not only a wait, but a loss.

To say it another way: the profits on the houses will more than cover the difference in the interest on the money invested.

To say it still another way: by the time materials have gone down, the profits will have more than covered advance costs and some to spare.

But that isn't all—he will have gained a grip on the market that will protect him against the competition that is bound to come along when materials are lower.

It gives him a running start on the other fellow.

Why don't you do the same?

When you are ready to talk building—say when and where and we'll be there.

COLDWELL WALK TYPE MOTOR MOWER

The Coldwell Walk-Type Motor Mower cuts the grass and rolls the lawn. Rapid, thorough, tireless—it consumes little fuel, cuts an acre an hour.

Does all the work of cutting the lawn, requiring nothing but guidance.

A sturdy little Motor Mower of the walk-type will negotiate any grade that a horse mower would be used on.

It is made in three sizes—30", 35" and 40" cut, with rolling weights ranging from 900 to 1100 pounds.

The Coldwell Ride-Type Model J is the "clipper-built," long-distance machine. It is equipped with latest improved four-cylinder Continental Motor, Mayo Radiator, etc. Will cut two to two and one-half acres per hour. The real machine for making and keeping a healthy, green, beautiful lawn.

1917 Coldwell Threesome with one man and one horse will do the work of any three individual mowers. Cuts a swath 87 inches wide. This type of mower is particularly suited to cutting on dry, settled ground where rolling and fine cutting is a secondary consideration. Write for descriptive catalogues.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Amaryllis

Seedlings sown early in the year should be potted off singly into 2½-inch pots when they show their second leaves. Use a light compost containing two-thirds leafmold at the first potting. With a moist atmosphere and an abundance of syringing they will make lots of roots where there is a good bottom heat. When they are fairly well rooted they should be potted into 4 or 5-inch pots. Always grow as near as possible to the glass or they will get badly drawn. Take advantage of every bright day to give a good syringing both under and over the foliage. When a strong force of water is directed, especially against the under side of the leaves, you help to keep the many insects under control. Provide well enriched soil and be very careful about drainage in each pot as nothing hurts these plants as much as a poor drainage. When the weather gets real warm they can be plunged in frames near to water. Here they can be given lots of ventilation during the hot days.

Allamanadas

With the rush of the bedding-out season and Memorial Day these are liable to be neglected. If they have been somewhat crowded, spread them out and where necessary give them one or two short stakes. The night temperature may be kept at about 70 degrees with a rise of 10 or 15 degrees in the day. It is essential to give ventilation to keep the temperature at the right mark. Damp down two or three times a day to keep the atmosphere moist. Allamanada Williamsii is one of the most valuable of summer flowering pot plants. Allamanadas are easily propagated from soft wood cutting of this season. Place in sand over a bottom heat of 75 degrees. Probably the better method is that of putting each cutting into a thumb pot, first filling the pot with sand and peat, or sand and leaf mold in equal proportions. Shading will be necessary for a while. In about three weeks the cuttings will have rooted.

Chrysanthemums

Cuttings should not remain too long in sand but be potted off as soon as rooted. Ordinary good soil is all they want at present. The shifting into larger pots should not be delayed too long in the case of exhibition plants. Medium flowers net more money than the big ones. People may admire the latter, but they object to paying a price commensurate with their cost. We prefer cuttings which need no shortening back. Those three or four inches long are about right. It will be necessary to keep the cuttings well soaked a few weeks. In bright weather several dampings overhead will be required to keep them plump, and no good grower ever wants to see stock in the cuttings bench with a flaggy look. About 50 degrees is high enough. For general stock chrysanthemums may be propagated at any time until June, but for the production of high grade flowers and for exhibition plants and blooms early propagation is essential. The earlier rooted cuttings are of little use, however, to the average country florist.

Cibotium Schiedei

During the spring these will need lots of moisture both at the roots and in the house. Give them sufficient ventilation and do not keep the house too humid as it makes them very soft. These handsome ferns should always be given an elevated position so as to retain the graceful sweep of their fronds. Where cibotiums are quite pot bound give them a weekly dose of liquid feeding. There is nothing better than cow manure, using about a bushel in a barrel that holds about fifty gallons of water. Let it stand for about two days and if too strong dilute it some. They can get this about once a week. While these ferns like shade they do not want it too heavy. Shading nine times out of ten is overdone with all kinds of ferns. When they become pot-bound shift into larger pots. They like a compost of fibrous loam, leaf mold, well decayed cow manure and sand in equal parts.

Canterbury Bells

To get good plants for flowering next year, sow the seed at once, then transplant into flats and later plant outdoors in well manured ground, allowing twelve inches between the rows. A common mistake is sowing the seed of these beautiful biennials too late. Nice plants may be had in 7-inch or 8-inch pots. Canterbury bells are handsome border plants, but are even finer in pots, when grown cool and given the necessary space for their proper development. Some are each year seen at Easter, but never of the quality obtainable later in the season. When large enough they should be planted in a rich soil, and all through the summer given good culture and an abundance of water during dry weather.

Care of Spiraeae

Dear Editor:

I would like to get, through your Mr. J. J. M. Farrell, information on the proper care of Spireas Gladstone, Queen Alexandra have them in good condition for next blooming, so as to and others, after they are through season.

P. F.

All spiraeas such as Gladstone and Queen Alexandra should be planted out in rich ground about 18 inches apart in rows and left until autumn of next year to be in good condition for forcing. They would not have enough of time to be in first-class condition for the first season. Keep cultivated and clear of weeds.

Reminder

Plant out any left-over azaleas, acacias, ericas and epacris. Pick away all loose soil from the roots, remove the drainage and be sure to plant freely. Give them a sunny location, where you can readily reach them with the hose.

Next Week: Alocasias; Dracaenas; Forcing Lily of the Valley; Hardy Perennials; Primulas; Reminders.

A useful device

We have had inquiry repeatedly for information as to where a serviceable flower pot washing machine might be obtained and are glad to be able now to refer our readers to the advertisement which appears in this issue. We are informed that operators are turning out clean pots at the rate of 1,000 to 1,500 per hour with the machine and they are as clean as when they come from the kiln. In view of the difficulty experienced in getting new pots from the factories this season and the scarcity and cost of hand labor at present we feel justified in making this specific mention. All successful growers insist on the indispensability of clean pots if best cultural results are to be attained.

"Cold feet?" The announcement of the abandonment for this year by the Lenox (Mass.) Horticultural Society of its time-honored exhibition on account of existing economic conditions, brings home to us very impressively the seriousness with which the well-to-do and high society people regard the situation brought about by the world conflict into which our country has entered. Following so close on the throwing up of the Pittsburgh show plans this Lenox decision is something of a damper. We hope there will be no more cases of the same kind. It is worth recalling in this connection, that during the four years of awful civil strife, from 1861 to 1865, the weekly and annual exhibitions of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were continued without any interruption and the period was one of practically unabated interest in all departments of horticulture.

Mothers' Day reports and comments as received from different quarters indicate as wide a variance in experiences this year as there are diverse views as to the value of this annual observance to the florist in a broad way. One thing is sure—the project has not failed of wide publicity and whatever of weakness or objectionable characteristics may have been detected cannot be charged to lack of advertising. It is to be observed that while some of the trade deprecate the enhanced prices charged for some flowers on this occasion others are jubilant and look upon this feature as an achievement to be proud of. As far as our own individual observations go we are convinced that the frenzied jump from $2.00 to $10.00 and $12.00 per hundred for white carnations at wholesale for one day's use and the proportionate increase at retail does more injury directly and indirectly to the florists' reputations than all the more or less extra business done and cash taken in can offset. What do you think?

Unjustly accused

Mr. Richter's communication presenting the "seedsman's side," which we copy this week from the Philadelphia Record, imparts to the critics and the public generally some straightforward and convincing information as to existing conditions in the seed market. We know of no line of business which has done so much, and kept at it so persistently as has the seedsman to educate the public in the proper handling and care of the seeds they buy and to guide the amateur soil tillers towards success in their gardening efforts. Yet there are vast numbers of those who seek to raise kitchen crops this year whose net results will just amount to the destruction of good seeds and little more except, perhaps, arraignment of the man from whom the seed was purchased, as a rogue. Unfortunately, the loss of seed through ignorance and inattention will not be all, the inclement weather and inhospitable condition of the ground in many localities adding greatly to the destruction. In fact, we are informed that on some of the Long Island estates where lawns have been plowed up and planted to potatoes, the potatoes have rotted and the ground is being plowed over for the second time. When this happens to the gardener who is supposed to know, where can we expect the novice to get on?

Successful Growing of Cymbidium insigne Sanderii

New Campanula, var. Marion Gehring

CYMBIDIUM INSIGNE SANDERII.

I recently paid a visit to the extensive greenhouses of Mr. J. T. Butterworth, of Framingham, Mass., and was perfectly amazed at the remarkable culture of this orchid species. Most people in this country consider that Cymbidium insigne Sanderii can't be grown with any success, especially commercially; but here I saw plants growing far superior to any which I have ever seen in Europe. Plants from imported bulbs the size of a walnut have now bulbs at least six to eight inches in circumference, and there seems to be no limit as to what they will do in the hands of the same cultivator. He has now had them for a number of years and each year shows marked improvement. Some were in bloom and showed spikes six feet in length, bearing from ten to fifteen flowers each, which stood erect without the aid of any stick to support them. The hybrids from this species also were growing just as freely, and Mr. Butterworth informed me that, as a commercial orchid, he considered it was one of the finest acquisitions of recent years. The accompanying illustration shows only a portion of the spike.

Walter Gott

CAMPANULA, VAR. MARION GEHRING

Our illustration shows a new perennial Canterbury Bell featured this year by F. H. Horsford, Charlotte, Vt. He describes it as from two to three feet high, one to many stems from a single plant. Lower leaves round, heart-shaped, strongly toothed, 4 to 6 inches wide, on petioles 4 to 7 inches long. It spreads from subterranean stolons and does not bear seed. A single plant will form a strong clump 2 feet or more in diameter, and the pale lavender flowers are produced in loose racemes in great profusion. The flowering season extends over a period of from four to six weeks, after which there is a more straggling succession of bloom until frost. This form originated in the garden of Dr. J. G. Gehring, of Bethel, Maine, and was found growing near a colony of Campanula punctata, near which one solitary specimen of Campanula Medium was in bloom. Since it produces no seed, and has some of the characteristics of both the above-mentioned species, Mr. Horsford thinks it reasonable to suppose it a natural hybrid between the two plants.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

There was an attendance of about one hundred at the meeting Tuesday evening, May 15th. Eric H. Wetters of Manchester, Mass., showed six magnificent specimens of Giant White streptocarpus, the finest strain ever seen in Horticultural Hall, for which he was awarded a reward of superior merit. Wm. H. Judd of the Arnold Arboretum showed a collection of pressed and mounted early flowering shrubs.

Communications from the Governor and Public Safety Committee regarding food conservation were read, which brought forth considerable discussion. The question as to the best kinds of fertilizers for use on potatoes was again brought up at this meeting. There was also a lengthy discussion on the effect of the winter on evergreens, and it was the unanimous opinion that the broad-leaved varieties came through better than last year, but the common arborvitae, white pines, spruces, retinosporas and many of the small-leaved evergreens were killed in great numbers.

A lecture on the new varieties of roses, chrysanthemums, hardy herbaceous perennials and vegetables was given by E. I. Farrington, illustrated with one hundred stereopticon views. The lecture was very instructive and was much enjoyed. The slides showed several of the newer roses, including Los Angeles, Purity, Aviator Blierot and Wichmoss. In addition, many of the recently introduced perennials as well as some of the annual novelties like the double morning glory and crested cosmos were shown and described. Among the new vegetables pictured were Dr. De Lue's Golden Giant corn, which has been developed from a cross of Golden Bantam and Howling Mob; the new asparagus Martha Washington, which is soon to be put on the market, and a new Greek squash. A new device for evaporating garden vegetables and fruits mentioned aroused considerable discussion and it was thought the drying and evaporating of fruits and vegetables might become very common this year owing to the lack of cans and fruit jars.

It was announced that the June meeting would be Ladies' Night, with a collation and dancing, for which there would be a charge of 50c. for admission.

LENOX HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

The regular meeting of the Lenox Horticultural Society was held in the Town Hall, Lenox, Mass., May 9th. After the usual business had been disposed of the question of abandoning the holding of the exhibitions which had been previously arranged was the subject of much discussion. In consequence of the existing conditions and in order that the members may give more time and attention to the production of food crops, it was the unani-

SEWICKLEY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

The monthly meeting of the Sewickley Horticultural Society was held on Tuesday, May 8th. The schedule of the coming September show was adopted as presented by the committee.

The following motion was carried: "That we, the Sewickley Horticultural Society, view with hearty approval the efforts made by the Woman's Club of Sewickley, in the active work they have undertaken in connection with the cultivating of vacant lots in Sewickley and environs, and at the same time offer them our hearty co-operation in the undertaking if acceptable to that body."

M. Curran and William Thomson showed some fine specimens of herbaceous calesolaria and J. Barnett vases of persica in variety.

JOHN CAEMAN, Secy.

ST. LOUIS FLORIST CLUB.

The St. Louis Florist Club met at 11 Mile House and were received by the Growers' Club, many of whom are members of the Florist Club. There was a good crowd. Wm. C. Smith in speaking of the annual picnic to be held in July thought subscribers to the entertainment fund should receive so many tickets according to the amount of subscriptions, these tickets to be given to customers and friends. It was also proposed to get up a monster parade on the day of the picnic. This was favored by F. C. Weber, Jr., and others.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB

The attendance at the May meeting of the N. Y. Florists' Club last Monday evening was not far below one hundred. Dr. Henry Clay Lint gave an interesting talk on the topic of prepared humus as a substitute for stable manure which brought out a volley of questions from members who apparently were not quite prepared to agree that any humus proposition could take the place of the real old stuff. The lecturer was well versed in his subject and held his own valiantly and good naturedly. He said that of the 89 chemistry elements in the world there are but 10 that plants require. F. R. Pierson reported for the S. A. F. Convention ways and means committee that good progress has been already made and that "every man has got to do his bit" towards the $10,000 fund which has been started. L. W. C. Tuthill, for the souvenir program also made an optimistic report and promised a production worthy of the name. R. J. Irwin of the sports committee stated that it had practically been decided to rent Thum's alleys, two floors, on Broadway, for the bowling contests. Other committee chairmen made progressive reports. S. Van Reyper of Dundee Lake was elected to membership and six applications were recorded for action at next meeting. Committees were appointed to prepare suitable resolutions on the death of P. L. Bogart and C. G. Weeber.

George T. Schunemann of Rockville Centre showed some excellent Spencer sweet peas; Alexander E. Hogg, pelargoniums; P. W. Popp, pansies; M. van Waveren & Son, Darwin tulips and narcissi. All the exhibits received high commendation and vote of thanks. The tulip collection, grown by H. Langelier, New Dorp, Staten Is'and, contained the following varieties: Calypso, Rising Sun, Enchantress, McKinley, Queen of the Whites, Van der Neer, Rose de Hollander, La Remarquable, Princess Wilhelmina, Cottage Boy, Blushing Bride, Cerise Grisdelin, Jenny, Jeannette, L'Esperance, President Cleveland, Princess Helena, Sir Thomas Lipton, Pride of New Dorp, Queen Emma, Luminosa and Feu Ardent (breeder). The narcissi were Firebrand, Tom Titt, White Lady, Katharine Sparrell, Blood Orange and double Argent.

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The regular monthly meeting of this society was held in Glen Cove, N. Y., May 9th. The Chairman of the Executive Committee reported all ready for the annual Tulip Show on Wednesday, May 23rd, in the Glen Cove Neighborhood House. An interesting schedule, comprising 27 classes of seasonable spring flowers, has been compiled which will be mailed to any intending exhibitor upon request. Awards of the evening were as follows: Joe Marstroe 1st, for lettuce, Big Boston; Harry Goodband 1st, for vase of out-door flowers; special mention to John F. Johnson for salpiglossis.

The National Association of Gardeners' offer of a silver medal to be competed for by members only was accepted and is to be awarded to the most meritorious exhibit at the chrysanthemum show next November.

An essay by Edwin H. Costick, entitled "Distinctive American Plants," was read by Robert Jones, and a letter of thanks was ordered sent to the author. Prize exhibits for the next meeting, June 13th, are: 12 gladioli, 3 heads of cauliflower and a bunch of asparagus.

HARRY GOODBAND, Cor. Secy.

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY.

A meeting of the executive committee of this society was held at the Grand Hotel, 31st street and Broadway, New York City, on Thursday afternoon, May 10. President Richard Vincent, Jr., presided, and there were present Geo. L. Stillman, Geo. W. Kerr, Jas. Duthie, J. J. Lane and J. Harrison Dick, secretary.

The minutes of the March meeting were read and approved. Arising out of these it was proposed that a rule, making it essential that all flowers exhibited in the competitive classes at the society's exhibition must be grown by the exhibitor, said rule not to apply to non-competitive displays, be inserted in the rules of the schedule governing the next show. The statement of accounts was passed.

The New York Show was considered. This will be held in conjunction with the American Institute at the Engineering Building, Sept. 25 to 27. It was resolved that an appropriation be set aside for the use of the show committee for necessary expenses, show committee to comprise the president and secretary. It was agreed that seven silver and five bronze medals be struck for the needs of the society and its affiliated organizations, also that two silver and two bronze medals be offered as extra prizes to the New Haven (Conn.) Horticultural Society for its dahlia show on Sept. 19 and 20, in the name of the A. D. S.

The secretary was empowered to produce an eight page bulletin for publication in the middle of July. It was agreed that from June 1 all new subscriptions paid in would be credited to Sept., 1918.

An invitation from Prof. Hall to have the classification committee and interested members visit the dahlia trials at Geneva, N. Y., in September, was favorably considered. Discussion was taken on the desirability of publishing Prof. Hall's list of 6,400 dahlia names with classification and descriptions. An estimate for the printing of this as a 48 page pamphlet and cover, in seven point type, had been given, the figure being $350 for 1,000 copies. It was the expressed opinion that as the society's funds did not warrant this expenditure, and as such a list would require to be periodically revised, its publication was not justified by the society. Moreover, it had before it a proposition from Mr. Lane, representing the Doubleday Page Co., that there was a possibility of that company publishing a special dahlia color manual, an amplification of the June issue of the New Country Life, which will be largely devoted to dahlias, and Prof. Hall's list may possibly be included as part of such separate manual. It was resolved therefore that the society could not see its way to publish the list now.

This is the last committee meeting that will be held before the show.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

June 1st has been set aside for the annual outdoor meeting of the American Rose Society in the National Rose Test Garden at Arlington Farms, Washington, D. C. Appropriate exercises have been arranged, including addresses from J. Horace McFarland, from one of the head members of the Department of Agriculture, from an appointee of the Citizens' Association, which are federated, and others. All in the trade are cordially invited to be present, as the Rose Garden, containing now between four and five hundred varieties, promises to be at its best.

ROBERT PYLE, Chairman,
Washington Rose Garden Committee.

The Schedule of Prizes for 1917 of the National Chrysanthemum Society of London, Eng., has been received. Besides the 1917 prize list, the pamphlet includes the list of floral committee awards and audits of the 1916 show.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held May 10th. The most important matter under consideration was the coal situation. A note from Maclellan, who has been ill for some time, asked that he be excused from the committee of which he was the chairman. This was done and E. Ollinger succeeded him. Mr. Gage, of the Chamber of Commerce was introduced by R. Schiller, who talked upon the coal question and offered many interesting facts, all bringing light upon the florists' vexed question of next season's coal supply, ending with suggestions that a committee be appointed to keep in touch with the Chamber of Commerce. R. Schiller was appointed chairman with instructions to select from other members.

After a discussion of the garden question Fred Lautenschlager was appointed chairman of the garden committee and $10 was appropriated for seed to be distributed among florists who should be asked to plant the same and give the young plants to those persons who are working the vacant places in the city. A rising vote of thanks was given the speakers and also to the F. T. D. for their splendid service during the Mothers' Day rush.

Resolutions were adopted as follows:

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Chicago Florists' Club in the spirit of patriotism and civic duty does hereby heartily endorse and encourage the furthering of the work now being carried on under the name of the Garden Bureau of Chicago.

FURTHER, That this organization does hereby offer its assistance and co-operation by pledging itself and its members to raise plants for garden products of such kind and in such quantity as may be practicable, and to donate the same to the public to be distributed under the guidance and direction of the Committee, which shall be by this organization thereunto appointed.

This work will be in the hands of a committee of five:

F. LAUTENSCHLAGER, Chairman,
PETER REINBERG,
H. N. BRUNS,
PAUL KLINGSPORN,
GEORGE H. MOHN.

The plan of action is outlined as follows:

The growers who wish to help this movement should arrange at once to sow a few flats of vegetable seeds, such as lettuce, tomatoes, pepper plants, egg plants, beets, cabbages, and any other varieties of vegetable plants that are easily transplanted. When these plants are ready for replanting, notify F. Lautenschlager, 440 West Erie Street, Chicago, who will make arrangements to have these plants delivered to the Chief of the Garden Bureau of Chicago for distribution amongst the people who will plant community gardens. Every grower can help.

At the meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, held in the Providence Public Library, May 16, Phillip Wessels, of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the Rhode Island State College, lectured on "How to Fertilize the Home Garden."

ARBORETUM NOTES

Effects of the Winter.

The effects of the heavy rainfall of the past summer and of the hot dry autumn which thoroughly ripened the wood of trees and shrubs are now shown in the generally good condition of the Arboretum collections which promise abundant crops of flowers and fruit. A few flower-buds have been killed, and there are occasionally brown leaves on Rhododendrons and other broad-leaved evergreens, but not so many as usual at this season of the year. Exotic conifers, including the new Firs, Spruces and Pines from western China, are generally uninjured but the foliage of the native White Cedar (Chamaecyparis thyoides) is badly disfigured. For some reason not easy to explain this tree has never taken kindly to the Arboretum conditions, and suffers here more or less every winter. It is a late spring in eastern Massachusetts.

Winter-flowering Witch Hazels.

The flowers of these interesting plants have never been more beautiful and abundant than this year, although they appeared much later than usual. The flowers of Hamamelis vernalis, the species from southern Missouri, usually open late in December and in January, and those of the Japanese and Chinese species are usually fully open in January and February; but with the exception of a few precocious flowers on a branch of one of the plants of H. vernalis which opened late in December, none of these plants were in flower this year until the middle of March. In the size of the flowers and in the length and brilliancy of the bright-yellow petals Hamamelis mollis, a native of western China, is the handsomest of all the Witch Hazels. The pale green foliage of this shapely shrub is also attractive. It is very hardy and grows rapidly, and might well find a place in any garden or city plot in public view during the winter months. This Witch Hazel is one of the most valuable and interesting shrubs brought in recent years to the United States.

Prunus Davidiana.

This is the earliest of the Plum, Cherry, Peach and Apricot groups to flower this year. It is one of the wild Peaches of northern China, and is a small tree with lustrous red-brown bark, slender erect branches which form a narrow head, small flowers, narrow pointed leaves and small fruit of no edible value. The flowers are usually of the color of those of the common Peach-tree, and there is a form with pure white flowers. The two forms have been covered with flowers during the past week in the Peach and Apricot Group. As a flowering tree in this climate this Peach has little to recommend it for the flower-buds or the flowers are killed almost every year by late frosts, but just now pomologists in this country are interested in it as a possible stock on which to work the common Peach-tree, as it is hardy north of the region where the Peach thrives.

Early Rhododendrons.

Several plants of the Siberian and north China Rhododendron dahuricum have been in bloom during the past week. This shrub has been in European gardens for more than a century but is still little known in the United States. It has small dark green leaves which in this climate remain on the branches until late in the winter, and small bright rose-colored flowers. These are often destroyed by spring frosts, and this plant has never been so beautiful before in the Arboretum as it is this spring. There is a variety sempervirens with more persistent leaves and darker-colored flowers. This variety is not blooming this year. Usually Rhododendron mucronulatum is the earliest of the Rhododendrons to bloom in the Arboretum but this year it is a week later than R. dahuricum, and is only now opening its paler rose-colored flowers. This is a tall, perfectly hardy, deciduous-leaved shrub which has flowered freely every spring in the Arboretum for the last twenty years and is chiefly valuable for the earliness of the flowers which appear on the leafless branches and are rarely injured by spring frosts. In the Arboretum the leaves turn bright yellow before falling late in the autumn.

Early Magnolias.

The flower-buds of the Japanese Magnolia stellata have been nearly all killed in the Arboretum. This should not, however, discredit this beautiful shrub, for the plants here are in low ground and in a particularly trying position, and in other Massachusetts gardens plants of this Magnolia have not been injured and are now in full bloom. The flower-buds of the other early-flowering Japanese species, Mag- nolia kobus and its variety borealis, have not been injured and are now just opening. As flowering plants they are the least desirable here of the Magnolias which bloom before the leaves appear, for the flowers are not large and only exceptionally are produced in large numbers.

Daphne Mezereum.

A plant of the white-flowered form of this small European shrub has been in bloom for the last two weeks. The purple and the white-flowered forms are useful garden plants because they are almost the first shrubs to open their flowers in this climate and because the flowers are not injured by spring frosts. This Daphne is interesting to us in this country because it is one of the few shrubs native of Europe which have become widely naturalized in some parts of North America, as in eastern Massachusetts and on the Canadian side of the Niagara River above the Falls.

The Cornelian Cherry.

Which is a Dogwood (Cornus mas), is one of the earliest trees or tree-like shrubs with conspicuous flowers to bloom in eastern Massachusetts. The flowers are light yellow and are borne in clusters in the axils of the unfolding leaves and, although individually small, are produced in such profusion that the branches are covered with them. The flowers are followed by bright red, lustrous, oblong fruits the size of small olives. The flower-buds and the flowers of this tree are not injured by cold. The habit of the plant is good; the foliage is dark green and abundant, and the fruit, although somewhat hidden by the leaves, is handsome. The Cornelian Cherry, which is a native of Europe and western Siberia, has been an inhabitant of gardens for more than three hundred years. In the United States it was probably more often planted in the first half of the last century than it is at present, although there are not many early-flowering trees hardy in this climate which are better worth a place in the garden. The largest specimen we know in eastern Massachusetts is in the Public Garden of Boston.

Early-flowering Native Shrubs.

Two yellow-flowered native shrubs are in flower and are well worth the attention of the makers of American gardens by whom they have been generally neglected. These are the Leatherwood, Dirca palustris, and the aromatic Spice Bush, Benzoin aestivale. Their leafless branches are now covered with small yellow flowers, and those of the Spice Bush will be followed in the autumn by scarlet lustrous fruits. The leaves of these plants turn yellow in the autumn before falling.

Erica carnea.

In the Shrub Collection this Heath and its white-flowered variety are already in bloom. It is a common European plant which grows not more than five or six inches high but spreads into broad mats, and is the only one of the true Heaths which is really hardy in this climate. It is an excellent plant for the edging of beds and for the spring rock garden.

Alnus hirsuta.

To persons who know Alders only as they grow naturally in New England these plants are small or large shrubs, but the common European Alder, Alnus glutinosa, is at its best a large tree; there are two large tree Alders in the Pacific states and another in Arizona and Mexico, and in Japan and eastern Siberia some of the species are trees. One of these, Alnus hirsuta, should be better known for it is perfectly hardy here and has grown more rapidly than any other Japanese trees raised from the seeds brought from Japan by Professor Sargent in 1892. In the Arboretum it is a shapely tree already more than thirty feet high, with smooth, lustrous pale gray bark and spreading branches, and large dark green leaves. In Japan it is often a tree sixty or seventy feet tall with a trunk two feet in diameter, and there appears to be no reason why it should not grow as large in this country. Of all the tree Alders in the collection it has the most promise of long life and large size, and it should prove a good tree in the northern states to ornament the borders of streams and ponds. In Japan this tree furnishes wood used for many purposes.

The Cherries.

The Japanese Cherry-trees in the Arboretum promise a full bloom and will be in flower in about ten days when there will be an opportunity to see here some of the most beautiful of all spring-flowering trees.

FROST DAMAGES STRAW-BERRIES IN MISSOURI.

The Assistant Truck Crop Specialist of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, reports that a frost on May 8 injured a large area of the strawberry section in southwestern Missouri. It is estimated that the Aroma variety were injured 80 per cent. and the Warfield 20 per cent., and that the probable condition of the crop in the damaged area is about 25 per cent.

The acreage of strawberries in Missouri was estimated by the Bureau of Crop Estimates on April 24, 1917, to be 6,950 acres, and, based on the condition of the crop on April 1, a crop of 535,200 24-quart crates was forecast. The condition of the crop on May 1 was reported to be 73 per cent.

LEON M. ESTABROOK,
Chief of Bureau.

PROPOSED NEW QUARANTINE AGAINST GIPSY MOTH.

An extension of the area in the New England states under quarantine against the gipsy moth and brown-tail moth is being considered by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and a public hearing on this question will be held in Washington at 10 A. M., May 18, 1917, in Room 410, 1358 B St., S. W. It is proposed to quarantine the following towns in addition to the territory covered by existing quarantines. New Hampshire: Chatham, Bartlett, Waterville, Woodstock. Vermont: Hartford.

The result of this quarantine will be to restrict the interstate shipment from the quarantined area of nursery stock, coniferous trees, forest plant products, and stone or quarry products, or any other article of any character whatsoever capable of carrying gipsy moth or brown-tail moth infestation, except in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Lowell, Mass.—The New England Nurseries have been awarded the contract to furnish several hundred shrubs and trees to the park department for use at Shedd park. The bid of this concern was $417.17. Other bidders and their bids were: Bay State Nurseries, $500; Thomas B. Meehan Co., $455.11; Breck, Robinson Co., $446.56; William H. Moon & Co., $743.43; Robin Hill Nursery, $601.33, and F. W. Kelsey Nursery Co., $479.14.

Every Reader of "Horticulture" Needs

DR. L. H. BAILEY'S BRAND NEW Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture

Six large quarto volumes. More than 3,600 pages. 24 full page exquisite color plates. 96 beautiful full page halftones. More than 4,000 text engravings. 500 Collaborators. Approximately 4,000 genera, 20,000 species and 40,000 plant names

THE New Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture has been freshly written in the light of the most recent research and experience. It is the fullest, the newest, the most authoritative of all works of its kind and constitutes the most conscientious attempt that has ever been made to compress the whole story of our horticultural thought, learning and achievement into one set of books. It is both an Encyclopedia and a Manual.

A Few of the Many Important New Features

Key to Identification of Plants This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

Synopsis of Plant Kingdom This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders, and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters; the number of genera and species and the ranges; a list of the important genera; brief statements in regard to the useful plants; and diagrammatic illustrations.

Illustrations There are 24 colored plates; 96 full page halftones; and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

The Glossary This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works. It comprises botanical and horticultural terms with brief definitions.

Translation and Pronunciation of Latin Names In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

Class Articles Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling. Here are some of the titles of these articles: Ants; Autumn Gardening; Bedding; Diseases; Drainage; Floral Designs; Formal Gardening; Hotbeds and Coldframes; Insects; Landscape Gardening; Lawn Planting; Orchards; Rock Gardening; Subtropical Gardening; Tools and Implements; Village Improvements; Window Boxes, etc.

General Index The final volume contains a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind.

The complete set of six volumes, bound in decorated buckram, will be delivered to you for only $3 down and $3 a month for 11 months, until the full amount of $36 has been paid. Cash price $35.

Further Particulars Sent On Request

Obituary

Tortus Graffstrom.

After a sickness of but three days with pneumonia, "Tot" Graffstrom, a well-known gardener of Hartford, Conn., died on Wednesday, May 2, while being carried to the hospital.

Dr. Loyld

We regret to announce the death of Dr. Loyld of the Shackelford Nursery Co., St. Louis, after a short illness. Dr. Loyld was a grower of out door bulbous stock and other flowers for the St. Louis market.

Jean Stafford.

Jean, the five-year-old and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Stafford, Pittsburgh, Pa., died on Tuesday of last week, of heart failure, superinduced by an attack of diphtheria, last March, from which she had seemingly recovered.

Mrs. F. F. Benthley.

F. F. Benthley, 2323 Cullom Avenue, Chicago, connected with the wholesale flower market for many years, has the sincere sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife. Mrs. Benthley passed away May 9th as the result of a recent operation. Besides her husband she leaves several sons and daughters.

William McRae Thompson.

W. McR. Thompson died at the University Hospital, Philadelphia, Thursday, May 10th. He was an employee of the Pennock-Meehan Co. for many years and previous to that was in the retail florist business on his own account at 13th and Walnut streets. He had been a sufferer from spinal trouble for a number of years but remained on duty up to within a week of his death. He was a faithful, upright, honest man in all his relations and was held in the highest respect by all who knew him.

Charles G. Weeber.

Charles G. Weeber, formerly a partner with the late A. L. Don in the seed firm of Weeber & Don on Chambers street, New York City, died suddenly at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., early on the morning of May 8, heart failure being the cause. Mr. Weeber was for nearly forty years actively engaged in the seed business, he having entered the employ of Fleming & Davidson in 1863, being later on in the employ of Henderson & Fleming, Thorburn & Carson and A. D. Cowan & Co. and in 1890 he became associated with A. L. Don, who was also in the employ of A. D. Cowan Co., as successors to that firm. In 1901 Mr. Weeber retired from business life.

Charlie Weeber, as he was familiarly known was not only a good business man but genial and companionable in disposition and had the universal love and respect of the trade. His age was 74 years.

FLORICULTURE AT IOWA STATE COLLEGE.

The work in the Department of Horticulture at the Iowa State College has been materially strengthened by the development of a major course of study in floriculture. Several new courses have been added, through which a student gets a well-founded knowledge of floriculture as a profession, both in theory and practice. During the first two years the students are required to take work in the fundamental and allied sciences, including chemistry, physics, botany, soils, fertilizers and entomology. After two years of basic work the students devote the remaining two years to work in floriculture, taking such other work as will supplement the specific courses in floriculture.

The following courses in floriculture are given:

1. Greenhouse Management. The management of greenhouses and the cultural requirements of crops under glass.
2. Greenhouse Management. A continuation of the preceding course.
3. Greenhouse Construction. Principles and methods of heating, etc.
4. Commercial Floriculture. Florists' bench crops and potted plants. Estimates of the initial cost and running expenses, etc.
5. Commercial Floriculture. A continuation of the preceding course. Marketing cut flowers.
6. Floral Arrangement and Judging.
7. Garden Flowers. The nursery as an adjunct for the florist.
8. Special Problems.
9. Thesis.
10. Floriculture Practice. Garden and greenhouse work.
11. Floricultural Practice. Practical work in the college greenhouses.
12. Floriculture Practice. A continuation of the preceding course.

The floricultural courses outlined are supplemented by courses in landscape gardening—including work in plant materials, design and planting plans,—market gardening and vegetable forcing, horticultural machinery, diseases of horticultural plants, horticultural entomology, greenhouse pests and plant breeding.

Course 7 in floriculture practice is given in the sophomore year and offers an opportunity for the students to find out by practical experience what floriculture is and whether or not they are adapted for this kind of work; it prevents misfits. In addition to these practice courses, which are of an apprentice nature, the students are required to have 6 months' practical experience in the commercial field before being allowed to graduate.

QUARANTINE ON PINES AND BLACK CURRANTS.

The Secretary of Agriculture has amended the white pine blister rust quarantine promulgated April 21, 1917. This amendment is made effective May 1, 1917, and prohibits the movement of white pines and black currant plants from the New England States to points outside of New England. This action was necessitated by the considerable movement now under way of possibly infected white pines, and to a less extent, black currants, from New England to states lying west and south. Both of these plants are important carriers of the blister rust disease, and

Book of Garden Plans

By STEPHEN F. HAMBLIN

Associate of Warren H. Manning,
Landscape Architect

The purpose of this book is to aid those who are planning gardens and country places to visualize problems similar to their own and to see how a landscape architect would solve them.

There are twenty plans of model gardens and places in the book with directions and planting lists for each. The plans are wide in their variety ranging from boulder walls, arbors, poppy beds, and special borders to the different kinds of formal and informal gardens, rock, water, woodland, Japanese, annual, and wild flower. Photographs illustrate the basic idea of each plan.

The author says of the book in his introduction:

"A rough plan, even if very incomplete, will often be far more helpful to explain arrangement and grouping than will pages of printed instructions. But so as to help make these plans more definite, an actual piece of property was in mind in each case.

"Supposing, then, that the main features on our imaginary piece of ground have been decided upon, he can refer to the blue prints and see how, by the arrangement of our garden material, we can best add to the natural beauties of the ground and give them the touch of human hands."

A final chapter gives information on the practical side of gardening—the trees, plants, shrubs, vines, etc., for various conditions, cost estimating, time for planting, and other details. 20 blue print plans. 32 pages of illustrations. Net $2.00.

THE NURSERY TRADE AND THE WAR.

Lloyd C. Stark, vice-president of the American Association of Nurserymen, has been in correspondence with Secretary Houston with reference to the American Association of Nurserymen rendering assistance to the government in the war emergency. Secretary Houston in reply urges that the pressing need at the present time is to insure a substantial increase in the production of staple non-perishable crops during the present season. He says that it has been suggested that many of the nurserymen operate large acreages of land on which certain crop rotations are used between the crops of nursery stock which are grown on them. To the extent that corn or other staple crops can be planted this year, in particular, on such land in the crop rotation which has for its ultimate aim the preparation of the land for a new crop of trees, it will help in the food situation.

"Those who are growing wheat, corn, cotton, and other staple crops as their main farm enterprise may not be able to increase their usual acreage of these crops to any great extent so that much of the needed increase in the production of these crops will doubtless be realized by the smaller growers devoting more land to them, and by farmers and others who are operating land, putting in substantial acreages of them where they have not heretofore grown these crops. In this latter connection the members of the American Association of Nurserymen can doubtless aid. Even if they grow no more than enough corn, for instance, to supply their own needs where in previous years they have purchased the corn and other grain they have fed their horses, it will amount to considerable in the aggregate and to that extent relieve the draft on the general supply."

Regarding the present conditions in the nursery trade Mr. Lloyd writes to HORTICULTURE as follows:

"I don't know how the conditions in the East have been this year, but our large orchard plantings through the Central-West were better this season than for a number of years. Ornamental business also good, but we don't know how the war will affect that. The catalog business will probably be hit some. The agency or salesman's business will suffer perhaps where the salesmen or agents cannot be found in sufficient quantities, but where salesmen are working believe they will be able to do a good business.

The labor situation, of course, is one of the nurserymen's big problems. The freight situation is also another problem, however, these like all other problems will be solved somehow.

I note a tendency towards pessimism in some quarters. This to my mind is all dead wrong. Now is the time to be conservative, of course, but pessimism won't help and it will hurt a lot. There are, on the contrary, many causes for optimism in nursery circles.

First and foremost the farmer who buys most of the nursery products is a favored son as never before; both the government and the banks are backing him up and the government will undoubtedly supply him with labor. On the other hand, the man who plants ornamentals in a large way, in many cases has more money than ever before, and he will probably continue to buy. The first year will probably be worse than the succeeding ones if Canada furnishes us a fair example. In the meantime, we nurserymen must do what we can to line up the agricultural colleges, the agricultural publications, the Department of Agriculture, etc., and get them to urge production and conservation of fruit food products and incidentally this will help the planting if orchards."

NIEREMBERGIAS.

A favorite of our childhood widely used in those long bygone days in vases and garden and cemetery borders the nierembergias after many years of obscurity are coming back once more to their own. Mixed with the common, old fashioned petunia, which is also worthy of being resurrected, and needing no special advantage except plenty of sun the nierembergias can be depended upon to "make good" wherever given a chance in the summer window box or lawn vase.

The Seedman's Side.

That the seedmen get blamed for the high prices is to be expected. But once in a while the worm will turn—as witness this protest by Michell's manager, to a Philadelphia daily.

Editor of The Record:

I was very much amused to read an article by L. K. Passmore in your issue of May 4. This is another case of a man writing about something of which he knows nothing. I might just as well start an argument about the discount rates of a bank (and I believe that this man is the president of a bank). You, as well as I, know that when there is little demand for money the rates of interest hover around 3 per cent., but when there is big demand for it they jump up to 6 per cent. This is exactly the case in the price of seeds, except that the high prices of the latter are justifiable.

In other words, there are not sufficient seeds today to supply the demand, and in many cases, such as our own, seedsmen have exhausted the supplies of their original contracts placed with growers and are obliged to call upon the growers for more goods, who in many instances supply the present demand, but no doubt sacrifice their planting stock to do so; and I want to tell you that the country, despite all the planting that is being done, will face far more of a shortage of seeds for 1918 planting than it does today. This is brought about by the fact that a great deal of the planting has not been intelligently administered. I feel safe in saying that 80 per cent. of the gardens planted by amateurs will fail, because of lack of knowledge on the part of the planter, despite all we seedsmen are doing to educate them in the art of gardening, as this is a thing that cannot be brought about in a few months. We have distributed, this season, in the neighborhood of 100,000 cultural leaflets and guides, which will help a lot, but I know there are some people who are digging up their back yards, which have an inch of soil in them and a foot of cinders, and planting in that. This procedure is simply a means of waste, and they cannot harvest anything. They might as well take up a block of cement in their cellars and do their planting there. In other words, some people don't know whether a tomato grows under the ground or on a bean pole.

This Mr. Passmore also speaks of onion sets being 75 cents a quart. Let me tell you that we paid for these (and had to beg for them at that) $13 a bushel. Now, when we measure these onions out to be sold at retail, pack them in quart boxes, label them, wrap them and, in most cases, deliver them, do you think that the difference between the cost price and the selling price leaves much of a net profit?

I honestly don't believe that there is a seedsmen in business who has taken unfair advantage of his trade; in fact, there have been many cases where some of us should have restricted the quantity of seeds we

PAUL F. RICHTER.

Philadelphia, May 8, 1917.

There is food for thought in the idea that once sold out, the seedman had better stay sold out, rather than take the curses of the know-nothing mob. There is little money in it, and for all the profit better let the other fellow swallow the pill!

Seed Committee Named.

A committee on seed stocks has been appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture to secure full information in regard to the available supplies of seed for staple food crops and to devise methods of meeting shortages in particular regions.

The committee consists of the following members:

R. A. Oakley, chairman, agronomist, forage crop investigations, Bureau of Plant Industry.

L. M. Estabrook, chief, Bureau of Crop Estimates.

William A. Wheeler, specialist in marketing seeds, Office of Markets and Rural Organization.

John E. W. Tracy, assistant superintendent of testing gardens, Bureau of Plant Industry.

William Stuart, horticulturist, Bureau of Plant Industry.

C. P. Hartley, physiologist in charge of corn investigations, Bureau of Plant Industry.

A. J. Pieters, agronomist, forage crop investigations, Bureau of Plant Industry.

C. W. Warburton, agronomist, cereal investigations, Bureau of Plant Industry.

Washington, D. C.—No seeds for free distribution nor for sale is at the disposal of the United States Department of Agriculture. The Department, however, through its committee on seed stocks is receiving daily telegraphic and other reports as to available supplies of seeds of crops for late planting and will assist in locating seed stocks for localities where shortages exist. The committee is co-operating with state, local and commercial agencies in an effort to secure better distribution of seed and to encourage plantings of important crops.

Information regarding shortages and surplus stocks should be addressed to R. A. Oakley, chairman, Committee on Seed Stocks, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Of Interest to Retail Florists

ABOUT PRICE FLUCTUATIONS

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

I believe something should be done to prevent flowers being slaughtered at glut times. The grower would be better off by getting a fair price for what is sold and let the remainder be lost. We jump "from the sublime to the ridiculous;" carnations, 25c. a dozen and then $1.50 and $2.00 a dozen for Mothers' Day. What do we want to do? Kill Mothers' Day as we did McKinley Day? They certainly are not worth it. It is foolish to compare flowers with food stuffs. The latter is a necessity; the former is not. If during glut the sales are a loser then let us quit it. Adjust the market prices and put carnations in winter no higher than four cents; in summer two cents. Then our dry goods stores would have to quit the flower business and let the florist do his to the best of his ability. Cheap prices that last only a period are an injustice to the legitimate florist. These buyers at glut prices do not buy regular and never buy flowers at market figures.

NEW YORK.

Philip F. Kessler has been elected a director of the Cut Flower Exchange.

George W. Strange is just starting out on a trip for Stumpp & Walter Co.

A. M. Henshaw has turned over the management of the Henshaw Floral Company to his employees and "joined the colors."

Charles Millang has a field of Darwin tulips, Pride of Harlem, Clara Butt and Gretchen, which give promise of being just right for Memorial Day flower orders.

Considerable excitement was caused in 28th street last Monday morning by the descent of a truck loaded with flowers from a Winfield florist for Phil Kessler, into the subway excavation at the corner of Seventh Ave. Luckily the driver escaped unharmed.

Leonard Barron is justifiably proud of the fact that E. H. Wilson's smooth seeded peach, Jrunus Mira, from China has flowered in his garden for the first time in the United States. The flowers are white, one and one-eighth inches in diameter and with the fragrance of honey.

There was no evidence on the thoroughfares or street cars in New York, Brooklyn or nearby New Jersey places last Sunday that "Mothers' Day" was being outwardly observed. Five gentlemen wearing white carnations, one with a pink carnation, one lady with a pink carnation and one wearing scarlet geraniums was the sum total of corsage or lapel adornments observed during the entire day. Some florists said there was considerable demand for small boxes of cut flowers, while others had noticed no special call whatever.

Herman Weiss has got nicely settled in his new place at 130 West 28th street. Mr. Weiss was born into the flower business at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., where his father, Charles Weiss, has conducted a prosperous greenhouse establishment for many years and where the young man got his training until he joined the 28th street wholesale community eight years ago. During that time he has been on the progressive list and the opening of the spacious and up-to-date outfit at 130 is the culmination of a persistent and well-directed industry. The fixtures, ice chest and general furnishings of the new place are strictly "up to the minute."

PITTSBURGH.

Frank Steinald has been engaged as accountant for G. P. Weaklen & Co.

Miss Sophia Duglass has assumed charge of the bookkeeping department of the Ludwig Floral Co.

Next Thursday, May 24th, which was appointed as Good Roads Day by Governor Brumbaugh last February, will instead be celebrated as Farm and Garden Day.

CHICAGO.

J. E. Pollworth, of Kennicott Bros. Co., is taking another business trip through the South, this time with Houston, Tex., as the objective point, but making stops along the way. When he returns we shall undoubtedly hear more of the peony outlook.

A. L. Vaughan states that his trade on Mothers' Day was double that of any previous one and that in his opinion this day is destined to become one of the big holidays for the florists. He noticed a welcome change in the old custom of placing the exclusive carnation order.

Wm. K. Palmer, a graduate of the horticultural department of the University of Illinois, who is well known in Chicago retail circles and who has been for some time with the Fleischman Floral Co., has been accepted at the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan, and is awaiting his call.

The garden movement has been a boon to the growers of vegetable plants, some of the largest growers being completely sold out of what they had planned for the entire season. A new supply is under way and instead of the usual limited time for doing a season's selling, this year trade promises to occupy two or three times the usual number of weeks. "It's an ill wind that does not blow somebody good."

It is safe to conclude that a great amount of seed has been wasted by the would-be gardeners, in the vacant lots and back-door yards. For several weeks the campaign of "doing your bit" by planting has been in full swing and the temperature still near the overcoat zone. Forsythias have struggled into bloom along with early tulips and these with the faint showing of coming leaves on the trees and the green grass are all the indications, so far, of nature's awakening.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

S. J. Koester, of Lord & Burnham Co., has returned to Pittsburg, Pa.

F. B. Bohnke reports business last week far ahead of last year. Rochester Floral Co. had a telegraph window, which brought good results. J. B. Keller Sons had an attractive window of orchid blossoms and fancy baskets and boxes of pansies to which trellises were attached. Edwin C. Kaelber, Inc., had the decoration for the opening of the new Dental Dispensary, the building being the gift of Geo. Eastman.

Kansas City.—Samuel Murray reports an increase of over 80 per cent. Mothers' Day business as compared with last year. In this the F. T. D. was a big factor and parcel-post business also contributed largely. The orders individually were small, however, but the volume large. Besides carnations there was an extra good demand for other flowers, also for plants such as hydrangeas, gloxinias, caladiums, etc.

BOSTON.

Tuesday night, May 15th, was very cold in this section. Two degrees of frost and half an inch of ice on small pools is reported from Lexington with considerable damage to field crops.

The proceeds on the opening day, June 1, of the open-air flower show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, on the land opposite the Museum of Fine Arts, will be devoted to the needs of the Boston-Metropolitan Chapter, American Red Cross, whose officials will be in charge of the show on that occasion. To get the greatest possible returns from the generous offer of the managers of the exhibition, the Red Cross officials have placed the price of admission tickets at $5.

NEWS NOTES.

Albany, N. Y.—Mothers' Day here was about the same as last year, except that the call for carnations was better distributed among the colors, and there was a better call for roses, daffodils, tulips and in fact all other flowers instead of carnations. Business has been good right along, in spite of war exigencies and if everyone will only go on with work as usual and not preach hard times, business will undoubtedly be O. K.

Hartford, Conn.—Dr. George C. F. Williams was elected to succeed Charles Welles Gross as president of the board of park commissioners at the annual meeting on Monday, May 7. The appointment is subject to confirmation by the board of aldermen. Professor Edwin Knox Mitchell was chosen to succeed himself as a member of the board for a term of ten years, having acted since May 9, 1914, as a member filling out an unexpired term.

St. Paul, Minn.—Holm & Olson report a 50 per cent. increase in Mothers' Day business over that of last year, the business really amounting to a holiday patronage. They had no complaint against the high prices they were forced to charge for carnations. Other flowers sold well but red carnations took the lead. Mr. Olson writes as follows:

I believe that Mother's Day is now firmly established, and that the demand for flowers is going to be much greater each year. But we must use care in exploiting the commercial side of it so as not to create in the minds of the public the thought that we are appropriating the beautiful sentiments of Mother's Day for gain and thereby cause them to resent being "held up" for flowers. This I consider of much importance, and trust that a plan along these lines can be carried out for next year, with everybody cooperating.

HERMAN WEISS

WHEN BUYING GOODS BE SURE YOU HAVE A CONTRACT THAT IS A CONTRACT.

Most business people are familiar with the fundamental legal principle that where a seller of merchandise fails through any fault of his own to deliver what he has sold, the buyer can go out in the open market and buy the quantity of merchandise the seller should have delivered, and charge the latter with any higher price he may have to pay.

To illustrate, if the contract price was $1 a dozen, and the buyer, after the seller's default, had to pay $1.25, he could sue the seller for 25 cents a dozen, this being his loss through the seller's default.

This is one of the fairest and most salutary principles of law that I know of, and in innumerable cases it has come in very handy. The purpose of this article is to emphasize the need of being sure, when you buy goods by written order, that you are making the kind of contract under which you can recover your losses in the way I have described. A case has just been decided by the highest Appeal Court of Pennsylvania which shows that very many of the contracts in everyday use in the purchase and sale of merchandise are not of that kind. This is a Pennsylvania case, but it would be affirmed by any court in the United States, and is therefore the general law.

The maker of a certain product wrote the following letter to a prospective buyer:—

Reverting to telephone conversation with our Mr. Walter J. Wilhelm, who is now East, we confirm sale of Two tank cars of at $1.51 per cwt. Terms 10 days net cash f. o. b. Pittsburgh which in accordance with agreement, is subject to approval of type sample drawn from bulk, which will be submitted immediately upon receipt from the plant involved.

We highly appreciate this item of business, and you may rest assured that every effort will be made upon our part to meet your entire approval at all points.

I omit the name of the product merely because I do not wish the principle —which is of course the same, no matter what the product is—to be obscured by mentioning any particular product.

The buyer answered as follows:—

Please ship the following goods f. o. b. Pittsburgh:—

Two tank cars Price $1.51 cwt. Pittsburgh.

The above subject to approval of sample drawn from bulk when submitted.

Now, the average business man, with these letters in his possession, would be apt to conclude that he had a complete contract for the purchase of merchandise, good enough to protect him at every point. Yet the courts said it was no contract at all.

The seller here for some reason failed to deliver. The buyer, believing his contract to be all right, went out and bought two cars of the product. He had to pay more than $4.51 per cwt. and he at once sued the defaulting seller for the difference. The court said he could not recover, because the parties had never completed the making of their contract. In other words, they had never fixed what particular grade of product was to pass, and until they did that there was no contract. This is the core of the decision:—

The contract was lacking in one particular essential, the minds of the parties had not met on the quality of the commodity, as that was to be determined by sample thereafter to be submitted for plaintiff's approval. Until such approval there was no completed agreement. Should plaintiff disapprove the sample drawn from bulk there would be no sale. There is nothing requiring defendant to submit samples from successive tank cars until two were found that would meet plaintiff's approval.

This stipulation in the letters indicates that there are different grades of this product, or at least that the quality thereof varies, hence the contract was subject to plaintiff's approval of the sample. It is somewhat like an agreement for the sale of lumber, subject to the buyer's approval of a sample thereof to be submitted. In such case the approval is the act whereby the parties agree upon the quality of the commodity, and until that is done it cannot be said that the bargain is closed. In the case at bar the plaintiff never waived the production of a sample and never agreed to accept the product without reference to the quality.

In other words, the court's position was that the parties here had never bought or sold any particular thing. They had agreed to buy and sell, provided the buyer approved the sample when it was submitted to him. If he did not approve the sample there was no sale. There would not be a complete, enforceable contract until a sample had been submitted and approved.

There is a very large number of contracts of this type in everyday business use. Contracts that make the deal, but leave it subject to the buyer's approval of something, such as approval of sample, or approval of opening price. They are really nothing but memoranda out of which, when something more is done, may come a contract.

Take a contract for so much merchandise, subject to approval of opening price. Of course, if the seller never names an opening price, the buyer has nothing he can go on. And in a sale subject to approval of sample, like the case cited above, there is no contract unless and until the seller submits a sample.

How could the buyer in the case cited have protected himself against what happened? I may not be able to answer this, for I am naturally not well acquainted with the customs of the particular trade, but it seems reasonably clear that he would have been protected if he had declined to buy on approval of a sample to be selected, but had insisted on not placing any order until some sample had been submitted, and then placing it on that. That would have been a contract.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON This market was healthy all last week and for the first day or two this week but has now fallen off very decidedly with prospects of a slow finish. Mothers' Day made a considerable impression but the advance in white carnations to $8.00 a hundred came to grief on Saturday morning when the limit fell to $5.00. Since that time fifty per cent. more has been lopped off. Roses are coming in heavily and are probably due for a cut in market values due for a cut in the market values before the close of this week. Lily of the valley is very scarce, no outdoor blooms being yet in evidence. Sweet peas are a strong factor, being plentiful and of fine quality. Spanish iris are moving briskly at $6.00 per 100. There are large quantities of Golden Spur narcissi, which sell slowly at $5.00 a thousand.

CHICAGO Mothers' Day was a surprise even to those who anticipated a big day. It seemed like another Easter Saturday, and the amount of good stock in the market was not adequate to the needs of the buyers. All through the month orders had been piling up and many had to be refused for lack of stock, so the last minute orders stood little chance of being filled and many florists in neighboring towns were without stock. One wholesaler received a letter on Monday saying ribbon had been substituted in his town. The cold days had kept stock back and prices had been good all through the week. The carnations that had been held back for the highest prices could have realized the growers a nice sum had they been sent in earlier instead of becoming worthless by age. Many outside buyers could not credit the reported condition of the market and came in person to buy stock if possible. Monday following was a fairly busy day and prices are about the same as for Mothers' Day. Producers of pickled carnations had their innings when stock was shipped out, but their outings came when that same stock was returned by the expressman on Monday. Much that never left the market found its way to the barrels—as on other holidays.

Business for Mothers' Day was excellent, and high prices prevailed. There was a decided shortage if flowers, which coupled with the stiff demand, caused the high prices. Many more plants were sold than at any previous Mothers' Day. Neither roses nor carnations are any too plentiful. A good cut of sweet peas is coming in and are having a good market. Lilies are plentiful, and callas fairly plentiful. Peonies are increasing. Greens are abundant.

The flower trade thus far in the week is almost completely stagnated. The wholesale district is as apathetic as at the lowest ebb of midsummer and considerable apprehension is expressed lest this premature lethargy may be typical of what we may expect for the rest of the season. Some little resentful comment is rife among the retail people who think they see in the attitude of the public a virtual protest against the prices enforced on certain flowers for Mothers' Day. There are quantities of shrub flowers coming in and the lily of the valley problem is temporarily shelved by the receipts of large quantities of outdoor blooms of fine quality. Roses are very fine, a fact which is doubtless due in a considerable degree to the unseasonable cool weather of the past weeks. There are great quantities of lilies of all grades from very poor to superb and they sell accordingly. The carnation situation is gradually righting itself after the disturbance emanating from the home of Miss Jarvis and Robert Kift. The bulk of the white carnations arriving on Friday and Saturday was gathered in for shipment to the City of Brotherly Love at prices that made New York retailers stand aghast and put a virtual boycott on the white carnation. Even the Greeks, who are usually good sports when such an emergency arises, kicked over the traces.

In the words of PHILADELPHIA one of our leading wholesalers —“it was a strenuous week”—May 7th to 12th. Carnations started in Monday with a two-cent advance and kept that pace up to Friday when 12 cents were realized for the best whites. Colored carnations also sold well. In fact, these brought better prices than ever before at this season. As high as 8c. for really fancy stock. Roses were scarce on account of the cool cloudy weather. Prices stiffened up considerably, especially on double white Killarney. There was a limited supply of Kaiserin and these were quickly snapped up. Sweet peas had a splendid innings, both as to quality and demand. One grower cut nearly 100,000 during the week and we understand he averaged returns 90 cents, which is “going some” for a May week in little old Lathyrus odoratus, and that is but a random instance in the immense business done all along the line. Snapdragon is still plentiful and of good quality. The demand for same has improved a little. Lily of the valley scarcer than ever. It looks as if we would have to do without this old standby pretty soon. Some good outdoor lily of the valley now arriving, but that will not last long. Spanish iris is a popular feature—especially the lavender. The peony men are down on their knees. Oh, Lord, send us hot weather, before Memorial Day.

Notwithstanding the PITTSBURGH shortage of stock of all kinds, Mothers' Day almost doubled the receipts over last year, owing to the big increase in prices. While it was impossible to even begin to supply the demands for carnations (which retailed at 25 cents apiece and $2.00 a dozen), other flowers were substituted with the most gratifying results. Florists in Warren, who raised the price of carnations to 15 cents apiece, were badly “stung.” Very few were worn, the most conspicuous display among the church congregations being a bow of white or red ribbon. Huge stocks of flowers which the florists had expected to dispose of, were still on their hands on Monday.

The market was ROCHESTER, somewhat slack at N. Y. the beginning of last week, but the latter half has been quite brisk. Mothers' Day trade livened up things considerably and most of the stores report a record business. Carnations were the most in demand and sold at good figures. The market was well supplied with roses of good quality. A great quantity of Ophelia and red varieties moved very easily. Lilies and calla are plentiful and do not sell over fast. A small consignment of lily of the valley reached us this week and was welcomed. Cattleyas are good and sell well. Narcissi are quite plentiful and sell fairly well although many are seen in bloom outdoors. Yellow and white daisies, stocks, sweet peas and forget-me-nots sell good. A good quantity of potted plants are on the market but bedding stock sells somewhat slowly on account of the cold and unsettled weather. Busy preparations are being made for Memorial Day.

We are having nothing ST. LOUIS but cloudy and rainy weather and flowers consequently are not plentiful. Roses are still in heavy supply but the worst of the glut is over. Sweet peas have fallen off somewhat, but there are enough anyway. Mothers' Day was advertised widely and was a decided success, carnations and sweet peas taking the lead, fancy boxes also selling well. Several retailers, looking for small profits, sold carnations at $1.00 per dozen. A good many lilies are thrown away.

JACOBS BUILT TO LAST GREENHOUSES

The strong, simple construction of Jacobs Greenhouses enables us to keep costs down to a minimum, without affecting durability or utility. In commercial greenhouse building, especially, where costs must be carefully considered, we honestly believe we can give you a "bigger dollar's worth" than the average. Backed by half a century's experience. Write for estimates—today!

Mr. Florist!

Are You Getting the Cream of the Trade?

An impressive Show House will help you immeasurably to attract and hold the cream of your trade.

It will attract, because visible signs of success always attract. You know the old saying, "nothing succeeds like success."

It will help to hold your trade, because customers will find it a real pleasure to view your display and select purchases from it.

We make a specialty of building show Greenhouses for successful florists. Our clean-cut graceful construction with ample head-room gives a fit place to display the finest plants grown. We study the special requirements of each case and build a structure to exactly meet them.

We recently completed the display Greenhouse illustrated here, for Louis Rodman & Sons, Bushwick Ave. and Conway St., Brooklyn, N. Y. This house is truly artistic and is in keeping in every way with the handsome adjoining shop. At the same time it is one hundred per cent practical.

There are no heavy members at the eave line to cast shadows or collect snow and ice; in fact the entire frame-work, while amply rigid, is very compact, which accounts for the exceptional brightness.

A LUTTON Greenhouse is the most suitable type of display house for the florist. Let us explain why.

Erected for H. C. Dalton, Cleveland, Ohio.

M. H. Horvath, Landscape Architect.

The Dalton Range

Cleveland Ohio

FOR H. G. Dalton we last summer erected this range at Cleveland.

Adolph Stephan is the able gardener in charge.

The odd shape of the plan is due to certain landscape features that had to be considered.

It's what we call a Fit-in-Plan. It's the kind of plan that if you don't watch what and how you are planning, it will fit good enough into the landscape, but fit very badly into the needs of the gardener.

To make a Fit-In really fit all needs, it needs team work

Note that the gutter instead of being placed on top of the sill is at the bottom of the curve, and the sash hinged to it.

and half a century or so of know how.

By team work, we mean our heartily working with the gardener or superintendent.

By know how, we mean the things we have found out about greenhouses in our long years of planning and building them.

By combining the two, you secure a Fit-In that really does fit in.

Are you ready for the team work?

You know we go anywheres for business, or to talk business.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Alocasias

These tropical plants can be increased either by cuttings of the rhizomes or by suckers. When doing either they are better when placed in small pots filled with a compost of peat and sand in equal parts. Pack the compost well and plunge where there is plenty of bottom heat. There is nothing better than a closed frame over bottom heat of about 75 degrees. Give plenty of overhead syringing and keep a night temperature of 70 to 75 degrees. In potting give plenty of drainage. Use very fibry loam and fibrous peat in equal parts, with quite a portion of sphagnum moss, some lumps of charcoal and silver sand. Give some shade all through the summer and keep the air in the house well supplied with moisture.

Dracaenas

Saw the canes into pieces containing one eye each and split each section down the middle. Every section split or unsplit forms a new plant. Place these in a compost of equal parts of loam, leaf mold and coarse sand and then sprinkle a layer of sand over all. Place in a propagating case and in a very short time, provided plenty of heat and water are given, they will show roots and growth. Leggy plants can be utilized by mossing the tops and using the canes. Cut the stem about half through just below the leaves and place something between to keep the cut open. Tie a small handful of wet moss around the cut and secure by a few twists of raffia. Keep the moss constantly wet and when white roots are seen pushing through, the stem may be severed beneath and the moss and roots buried to the lowest leaf in a well drained pot of soil. Place the young plants where they can have plenty of atmospheric moisture with three or four sprayings overhead on all bright days.

Forcing Lily of the Valley

After the middle of May lily of the valley can be grown in frames that are built good and close. For the next couple of weeks bottom heat will be necessary, but from that out they will do without it. Place about six inches of sand on the manure and in this plant the pips the same as one would in the frame in the greenhouse. It is a good plan to have the frame partitioned off, then one can plant two or more successive batches. Keep close and dark until they are well up and then give air and light so they will not become too leggy. When the bells are well out give shade with plenty of air.

Hardy Perennials

Where a batch of seeds of such subjects as delphiniums, aquilegias, Shasta daisies, lupines and other varieties were sown under glass in February and have been pricked off in flats, these will now be all right to set out in nursery rows, and any fall seedlings wintered in cold frames should also be set out. Many of these will flower nicely this season and all will make strong stock for planting in permanent beds in the fall. It is noticed that the number growing these hardy plants increases every year. From now until the first of July is a suitable time to sow hardy perennials outside in a seed bed. They need a piece of ground in a warm and sheltered spot. Make the soil rich, fine, soft and deep. After the beds have been generally levelled draw shallow rows across the surface 6 to 8 inches apart and here sow the seed, labeling each variety, and press the whole surface over moderately firm.

Primulas

It is always well to go over these plants at least three times a day to see if any may need water. Give them a nice spraying overhead once a day. As they grow they will want spacing to prevent crowding. It is always better to have the primula pots plunged. When this is done they will not dry out near so quickly as otherwise. As the weather becomes warmer you can raise both top and bottom of sash at least eight inches and keep the sashes shaded so the foliage will not burn. It pays to have the sashes all removed from about 3 o'clock in the afternoon until about 9 next morning when they can be put on again. Some growers use lath shading, except when they run into a rainy spell.

Reminders

Continue to propagate verbenas by cuttings. They should be kept cool and allowed plenty of air.

Take off euphorbia and poinsettia cuttings when small with a small heel of old bark as such cuttings make good plants.

Use the shears on any genistas, boronias, azaleas, or similar shrubby greenhouse plants and trim them into shape a little before they start their summer's growth.

Watch bedding plants carefully for water when they are taken from the greenhouse to the frames as they dry out very, very rapidly.

Where have you stored your freesia bulbs? They should not be dried right after the flowers are cut, but gradually until the foliage shows discoloration. Place in a cool, dry shed when quite dry and pick out the bulbs when opportunity offers.

Boston's new park commissioner

The appointment of J. K. M. L. Farquhar to the important position of park commissioner of the city of Boston brings to the Park Department a man of proven business qualification, one with a rare practical knowledge of gardening in all its phases such as is possessed by but few, having also good executive ability and abundant forcefulness and courage to back up what he believes to be right. It is a recognition worthily bestowed and Mayor Curley merits commendation for the excellent judgment shown in this appointment. Boston will be well served by John Farquhar.

Memorial Day

Once again we welcome the coming of the most expressive floral holiday of the year; a day especially dedicated to the memory of those who fought and bled that the nation might live but with its beautiful sentiment amplified until the floral observance of the day now appropriately extends to thus honoring the memory of all kindred and friends, young or old, who have fought their battle of life and passed on.

Memorial Day, this year, however, assumes a new significance and added impressiveness, for our country has come to a great crisis and faces a task stupendous in size and import. Responding again to the spirit which animated the nation in times of trial in the past, the people will feel anew the thrill of patriotic fervor as they reverently place their floral offerings on the last resting place of vanished heroes.

Memorial Day is essentially a floral day. In spirit and purpose it is the florists' perpetual inheritance. Is he making the most of the opportunity and privilege which are so peculiarly his?

A one-sided bargain

The experience of Messrs. Roelker in the matter of Holland import orders last winter as set forth in the communications which appear on page 680 of this issue will prove very interesting reading, no doubt, for some of Mr. Roelker's companions in misfortune who have had to pay dearly for their education in the tactics of the Dutch traders and of the Holland-America Line in dealing with their consignees on this side of the water. About a year ago we took opportunity in our editorial notes to advise American importers that, for their own protection in the existing turmoil, they should insist upon contracts based upon delivery f. o. b. at destination. In the light of recent developments, those who did so can chuckle now. The Holland nurserymen take no chances. It is against their principles to take chances if the other fellow can be impressed into assuming all the risks, on the basis of "Heads I win, tails you lose." It will be observed that the freight charges to New York must be paid by the consignee although the goods never left Holland! As an example of a one-sided bargain that certainly "takes the cake."

Summing it up

Mothers' Day reports from leading florists in several of the larger cities received at this office too late for use in our last week's HORTICULTURE, all show more or less of an undercurrent of apprehension over the probable detrimental final effect on public opinion of the arbitrary advance in prices demanded on that day for such flowers as are especially called for, particularly white carnations. It seems that the notion that carnations have some peculiar significance and are the most appropriate flowers for the occasion still prevails to a considerable extent, unfortunately. The amount of business done in that particular flower appears to have been limited by the number available, whereas the rose market was but slightly affected as a rule although the general flower sales were in a majority of cases reported as having been larger than they would have been had no special import attached to the day. The smallness of the orders received for local or telegraph delivery is unfavorably commented upon by some as making the business trifling and unremunerative. The most satisfactory results appear to have been had in the middle west. The practice of "pickling" flowers seems to have been indulged in to a considerable extent and is vigorously condemned by the retail dealers.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The date for the annual outdoor meeting of the American Rose Society in the National Rose Test Garden, (Arlington) Washington, D. C., has been deferred to June 4, (Monday) 1917.

PROGRAM

10 A. M.—Inspection of 2-acre National Rose Garden.

11 A. M.—Public Meeting. Chairman, S. S. Pennock, President American Rose Society.

Welcome.—Wm. F. Gude, National Representative S. A. F.

Address.—"The significance of the National Rose Test Garden," by J. Horace McFarland, President American Civic Association.

Response.—Hon. Carl Vrooman, Asst. Sec'y of Agriculture.

Other speakers expected are—Dr. E. M. Mills, President Syracuse Rose Society; David Fairchild, Department of Agriculture; Benjamin Hammond, Secretary American Rose Society; Dr. D. W. Shoemaker, Rep. Federation of Citizens Association of Washington, D. C.; Hon. Thomas S. Butler. (If his duties permit), Congressman from Pennsylvania. The above list is subject to change.

Those intending to attend will kindly notify, Wm. F. Gude, 1214 F. street, N. W. Washington, D. C., or Robert Pyle, Chairman Washington Rose Test Garden Committee, West Grove, Pennsylvania.

LANCASTER COUNTY FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

Thursday, May 17th, was another of our red letter days with Richard Vincent, Jr., as a visitor and his illustrated lecture on Dahlias in the evening.

President H. A. Schroyer, Secretary Frank L. Kohr and Albert M. Herr and Elmer Weaver from the common herd dined with Mr. Vincent at the Brunswick after which with the assistance of Mr. Dennis Connor he was escorted to the club rooms where some 40 members with their wives and a few friends were waiting to greet him.

In the regular business our attorney presented a report of the work he has accomplished so far and we are assured better service in every way from a local point of view but when it comes to long distance shipments there is only one source and that is the S. A. F. whom we certainly hope to see on the job this summer.

It was decided to hold the picnic at Hershey on June 21, a date that suits the country growers all right but as it is too near examinations, etc., for the city youngsters they are cut out.

Mr. Vincent's lecture was greatly enjoyed and in addition to the lecture proper he showed a lot of fine dahlia slides and explained them as he went along in his own inimitable style.

After the lecture one of our new members J. de Barry Heinitsh acted as caterer and served refreshments, this being followed by a general conversa-

MORRIS COUNTY (N. J.) GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' SOCIETY.

The executive committee of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society met in special session in Morristown, N. J., last Friday evening to rearrange the schedule for the twenty-second annual flower show. It was decided to hold the show on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 1 and 2 next. The entire committee seemed to be imbued with the spirit of patriotism. There will be no money prizes or cups this year; just ribbons—red, white and blue. The entire proceeds of the show will go to the American Red Cross Society. The voice of the committee was as of one man—"Our Country First."

EDWARD REAGAN, SR.

FOR THE YOUTHFUL GARDENERS

Benjamin Hammond, president of the American Rose Society, has donated prizes to be awarded in the Children's Home Garden Brigade of Beacon, N. Y., as follows:—

For the boy and the girl who has the best garden in each ward, a bank book for $1.00.

For the boy and girl who raises the best peck of potatoes, a bank book for $1.00.

For the boy or girl who has the best showing of morning glories or other vine over fence or porch, a bank book for $1.00.

For the boy and girl who has the best showing of roses, a bronze medal of the American Rose Society. There are to be not less than six bushes or climbers.

For the boy and girl who shows the handsomest front yard on the home block, a round trip ticket to Mount Beacon.

All who work in the brigade will receive certificates of merit. The judging to be done in September by a committee.

WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in Hubbards Hall, Greenwich, Conn., on Friday evening, May 13. There were some fine exhibits and the judges made the following awards: Cultural certificates to Wm. Graham for Calceolaria Stewartii, and to James Linaine for Calceolaria hybrid. James Stuart very highly commended for Calceolaria Stewartii and Calceolaria Babylonii; honorable mention to Wm. Graham for carnations Princess Dagmar and to John Andrews for beans "Carters Surprise"; votes of thanks to Wm. Whitton for petunia and to P. W. Popp for Calceolaria Medfordii. The monthly 1st prize went to Wm. Graham, 2nd to James Linaine and 3rd to James Stuart.

Emil Bertolf gave a very interesting talk on "Rock Plants" which was enjoyed by all present. It was decided to hold the summer show at Rye.

ALEX CLARKSON.

CLUBS AND SOCIETY NOTES.

A lecture entitled "Agricultural Problems of the Present Time," was given by Mrs. Martha H. Miller, of Cornell University, under the auspices of the Mount Kisco Horticultural Society at Mt. Kisco, on May 25.

The Rochester Florist Association meeting was held at Musicians Hall, May 14. The Sunday closing bill now pending at Albany was discussed and finally laid upon the table for future reference. Ambrose Secker read a paper on the florist business during war time. Colvin T. Ogston reported upon vegetable gardening in Chicago as carried on by the school children.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

"The Culture of Garden Roses," by A. C. Beal, is a 28-page illustrated pamphlet published by the N. Y. State Board of Agriculture as a part of the Cornell Reading Course for the Farm. It gives in condensed form good practical information regarding outdoor roses and their care.

The Skinner Irrigation Company has established a New York selling office at 131 Hudson street, New York City, under the management of Charles H. Allender.

It is stated in the news columns of a Boston paper that W. F. Heath, a florist of Jaffrey, N. H., has found a double flowered trailing arbutus growing on his farm.

Obituary

David I. Saunders.

In the death on Friday last of David I. Saunders, Washington lost one of its pioneer florists and expert horticulturists, and the florists of the city with the family of the deceased are mourning his passing. Mr. Saunders, was born in New Haven, Conn., on January 16, 1849. He was the eldest son of the late William Saunders, who for many years was connected with the Department of Agriculture as superintendent of gardens and grounds. The deceased was engaged in the florist business for nearly half a century. The funeral took place from his late residence, 2203 Second street, Northwest, with burial in Rock Creek Cemetery. He is survived by his wife, four sons and a daughter. A brother and sister also survive him.

Thomas L. Lowden.

Thomas L. Lowden, 76, veteran florist and market gardener of Pittsfield, Mass., died at his home in that city Saturday morning, May 19. Mr. Lowden was born in Florida, Mass., April 26, 1841, and after living in North Adams for a few years moved to Pittsfield 57 years ago. He enlisted in Co. A, 61st Massachusetts regiment, and served in the civil war. For a time he was in the market gardening business at Pittsfield with his brother, Orin E. Lowden, and later went into the greenhouse business, which is still conducted by his sons under the name of Thomas L. Lowden & Sons. Mr. Lowden was twice married and leaves a widow, three sons, Harry L., Arthur S. and Thomas L., and two brothers, Orin E. and George, all of Pittsfield.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Wheel out the chair, Mirandy,
I hear the sound o' drums,
An' down the street beyond I know
The old procession comes;
Push me out next the curb, my dear,
Clean out upon the grass;
I want to see my comrades an'
Say "Howdy," as they pass.

There comes "Old Glory," bless her!
As proud an' fine today
As if there never was no blood
Spilled 'twixt the Blue and Gray.
That band is makin' music, eh?
But still I hanker, wife,
Fer one o' them old march tunes on
A plain old drum and fife.

Here comes the boys! Mirandy, see,
There's Rob, an' old Cap Lane,
A-marchin' straight and proud as if
They was recruits again.
An' there's ol' Ben McClure, by jing,
A-stumpin' past as though
He hadn't left his leg down South
Near fifty years ago.

They see me, wife, they're wavin' hands,
An' see 'em all salute
As if I was some high mogul—
A general, to boot.
Hooray, boys—hip, hooray, hooray!
If my old legs was new,
You bet I'd be out there in line
Again, old pards, with you.

The sun seems gittin' darker now—
The sky is turnin' gray—
The boys, the flags, the tootin' bands
All seems so fur away.
Come to me, wife—where are you, Kate?
Take hold my hand—I hear
A bugle soundin' "taps"—I guess—
Aye, Cap'n—I'm HERE!

The rose here pictured is one of Dickson's 1917 novelties, which is to be disseminated in this country by Charles H. Totty, June 1st, this year.

It is described as a garden gem, deep Indian yellow in color and very fragrant, thoroughly perpetual, producing flowers continuously from spring until late fall.

DOGS AND THE HOME GARDEN.

A Winchester (Mass.) doctor illustrated in the town paper last week that a man can keep his temper and his good humor if he wishes even when dogs and cats are playing havoc with his beans and potatoes in his amateur garden. This is shown by the following notice printed in the Winchester Star last Friday:

CANINES' ATTENTION!

Editor of the Star:
Fearing possibly that some of the dogs in the neighborhood have not yet availed themselves of the chance to excavate or otherwise enjoy themselves in my flower and vegetable beds, I take this opportunity of extending an invitation to all those who have not yet participated, as now is the best time for their investigations, as the earth is soft and easily dislodged.

I would suggest, however, that they come in relays of six or seven, as the surface of the alleged cultivation is limited. A prize will be offered for the dog who can dig the largest hole and dislodge the most seeds and plants in the shortest time.

The contest is not limited to size or kind and is open to all varieties from the Window Washing to the Heinz of 57 varieties.

I hope that all owners of our canine friends who live on the west side of the town (I think it best to limit it) will see to it that this invitation is accepted and made the most of. A diagram of the general outlay and location can be obtained from any dog living within a radius of one mile of No. 3 Fletcher street.

Yours for the uplift of the soil.

PROTECTING THE PEONIES.

Editor HORTICULTURE:

I have been much interested in the clear, well written article on "The Hollow Stem Disease of Peonies, by Wm. Rollins of Boston. The illustrations make the case so clear that peony growers having stock infested with this disease, will be able to detect it at once. It has occurred to me that the methods of keeping stock free from disease are equally interesting and important. At Petersons' Nurseries, Chicago, the ounce of prevention is being applied constantly. As soon as the young plants are well out of the ground, any deviation in color costs that plant its life. It is assumed that off color is an indication of disease and the plant is destroyed in its infancy.

The next test comes when the plant is two years old and is equally drastic in its application. Assuming that a healthy peony plant will bloom, all that do not do so when two years old are pulled up and destroyed.

Any fungus detected upon the stems of peony plants is suspected of being Stem Blight and the plant is burned. All plants that are taken up for dividing have their foliage cut off and burned. At these nurseries Hollow Stem is as yet unknown, and no weed troubles are experienced, for it is a maxim here that no weed ever lives to be more than two weeks old. Rows are planted far enough apart, so the cultivator can be used both ways and all summer long, the ground has its fortnightly cultivation.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

Editor, HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—Enclosed find resolution adopted by the Chicago Florists' Club in the spirit of patriotism and civic duty.

I have just learned with sad regret that the Garden Bureau will cease its operation after the present week. I am very sorry indeed that this occurred, as this Committee had completed all plans to carry on this work, and our efforts therefore have been in vain.

The Garden Bureau will be discontinued for the reason that the proper financial aid has not been forthcoming, which is to be very much regretted indeed. This Bureau had already plowed between 7,000 and 8,000 acres in Cook County for Community Gardens, and nearly 60,000 people have been demanding the services of this Bureau.

I wish to express to the members of this Committee sincere appreciation of their hearty co-operation towards this movement and unless something of importance should turn up, the writer will ask our Club to dismiss this Committee at the next meeting.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB GARDEN COMMITTEE.

By F. LAUTENSCHLAGER, Chairman.
Chicago, May 21, 1917.

Following is the resolution adopted by the Chicago Florists' Club on May 10, 1917:

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Chicago Florists' Club in the spirit of patriotism and civic duty, does hereby heartily endorse and encourage the furthering of the work now being carried on under the name of the Garden Bureau of Chicago.

FURTHER, That this organization does hereby offer its assistance and co-operation, by pledging itself and its members to raise plants for garden products of such kind and in such quantity as may be practicable, and to donate the same to the public, to be distributed under the guidance and direction of the Committee which shall be by this organization thereunto appointed.

ST. LOUIS NATIVE FLORA IN DANGER.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners at its regular meeting unanimously resolved to conserve the native flora of St. Louis and County. Our native flora, owing to indiscriminate collectors, is rapidly becoming in danger, especially in proximity of St. Louis. Picnic parties, etc., visiting the country for Sunday vacations, unfortunately become over-enthusiastic with native flowering plants, to such an extent, that they devastate the landscape of its beauty, with the idea of reproducing the effect in the city garden. In the majority of cases the amateur does not study the environmental factors, the result being a total loss.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners, therefore, recommends to the people of St. Louis, that the woodland flowers should remain unmolested to their environments, allowing their beauty to be admired by all.

A copy of this resolution is being sent to all Garden Clubs, Horticultural Societies and Florists' Clubs of St. Louis.

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

P.-L. CHEMICAL CO., 507-509 W. 19th St., New York

TO ERADICATE JUNE BUGS.

If the common brown May beetles, otherwise known as "June beetles" or "June bugs," are numerous this spring, it means a serious infestation of white grubs next season. The grubs, which do their damage by feeding upon the roots of grasses, corn, potatoes, strawberries and seedling trees, especially conifers, are the larvae of these May beetles. Most of them live in the ground for three seasons before they change into beetles, becoming larger as they mature. The entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture prescribe these methods of eradicating this pest in each stage of its infestation.

When heavy flights of May beetles are noticed, spray trees with an arsen-ical, such as Paris green or arsenate of lead, to poison beetles feeding thereon. Plow grass and small-grain land previous to October 1, to destroy young grubs recently hatched from eggs laid by May beetles.

When small grubs are abundant in the fall, pasture hogs. Plow thoroughly previous to October 1. Seed such land to small grain or clover for the following year. Do not plant corn or potatoes on such land the following season. Allow chickens the run of fields when plowed.

When small grubs are abundant in the spring, seed such land to small grain or clover. Do not plant corn or wide-row crop in such land. Put corn, potatoes, field beans, etc., on ground which has been cleanly cultivated the preceding year. Pasture hogs on infested ground and give chickens the run of fields when plowing and cultivating.

When large grubs are abundant in the fall or spring, plow infested land about October 1. Delay planting until the 15th or 20th of May, or a little later if practicable. Ground containing large grubs in spring should be plowed as soon after July 15 as practicable, as indicated below. Pasture hogs in infested fields wherever practicable.

When beetles or pupae are in the ground in summer, plow thoroughly so as to break clods, any time after July 15; the sooner after that date the better. Pasture hogs in infested fields.

PLANTING BEFORE FERTILIZING.

A report from one of the large New England fertilizer houses indicates that the abnormal demand for fertilizers this spring is causing and will continue to cause serious delays in shipments. It is extremely advisable, therefore, that as far as possible the crops should be planted at the proper time whether or not the fertilizer is available; making application of the fertilizer after planting is necessary.

With active, soluble fertilizers which can be applied on the surface, fertilizing after planting is quite practicable. If the fertilizer is cultivated in, or scratched in with the weeder at the first weeding, the first rain will carry the soluble material down where it is needed and the usual satisfactory results should follow.

To put off planting because the fertilizer is not at hand is most decidedly a step in the wrong direction. The emergency method suggested is strongly recommended.

California Onion Seed in Bermuda.

(Consul Carl R. Loop, Hamilton, Bermuda.)

In November, 1915, a trade letter was received at the Hamilton consulate from an onion-seed firm in California. This letter was brought to the attention of the Director of Agriculture of Bermuda, with the result that 2 pounds of seed were ordered at once by cable. These seeds were planted at the agricultural station, with such satisfactory results that a local firm was induced to accept the agency in Bermuda for the sale of California onion seed. The Director of Agriculture states he anticipates that California will be the source toward which Bermuda will look in future for its supply of onion seed. The following statement is from the Bermuda Colonist and Daily News:

We have on exhibition in our office a number of onions grown from imported California seed. The bulbs are exceptionally fine in appearance, being good and solid with plenty of thickness in proportion to diameter, but the point that will interest the Bermuda farmer the most and possibly affect the future of the Bermuda onion industry is the fact that the seed germinates very rapidly and tests have shown 98 per cent. fertility. From the time of setting out the young plants to reaping the crop, the time elapsed was four days less than three months to produce onions about 7 ounces apiece. Local tests have shown that seeds come practically true to type, not 1 per cent. showing silver skins, and less than one-half of 1 per cent. showing any trace of red.

Narcissus Bulb Crop at Amoy.

Consul Clarence E. Gauss, reports that the Chinese narcissus bulb crop for this season is estimated at 3,000,000 pieces, of which about 1,000,000 will be of the quality and size usually exported to foreign markets. Exporters report that the prices demanded so far by the Chinese dealers have been high, owing to the abnormal freight rates and the adverse exchange rate. The export to the United States in 1916 amounted to 1,151,000 bulbs, valued at $14,620.

New Sweet Peas of Merit.

Among the newer sweet peas that are finding favor among the retailers is Sterling Stent, an orange salmon of English origin. George D. Clark, the sweet pea expert at Dreer's, on being asked about it said "yes," its all right, but there are two newer ones that are still better, viz.: Robert Sydenham and Barbara. These two were the sensation in the recent big sweet pea shows in London and San Francisco. The advanced seed houses list Sydenham but we have not yet come across any offers of Barbara. Next year they will probably have stock enough of it to warrant listing.

Call for Buckwheat Seed.

The following letters have been received:

Dear Sir: We receive daily inquiries asking where navy beans and buckwheat seed can be bought. Our correspondents often state that they wish to plant from an acre to 40 or 50 acres but they have been unable to secure seed. It is the policy of the Committee on Seed Stocks, appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, to refer such inquiries to the seedsmen in their own territory, and we shall appreciate it if you will advise us by return mail whether you are in a position to meet your ordinary trade for these seeds, and, also, whether in addition to that you would be in a position to meet an unusual demand if it should arise. While we have information in regard to where large stocks of these seeds are held, this is commonly of no use to the farmers because the men holding the large stocks sell only at wholesale. Therefore, we want to get information as to where the retail buyer may secure his seed.

We desire to avoid referring buyers to firms who are out of stock or who do not handle these seeds and shall appreciate it if you will keep us informed as to whether you are no longer able to supply these seeds or have an unusually large stock.

We shall appreciate an early reply.

Very truly yours,

A. J. PIETERS,

Secretary, Com. on Seed Stocks, Dept. Agri.

Dear Sir: A number of requests have come in to the Food Supply Department of the Public Safety Committee for information in regard to Seed Buckwheat.

Will you not send me a statement in regard to the supply of available seed and at what price you are prepared to furnish it?

Very truly yours,

LOUIS N. ROBINSON,

Food Supply Department.

A little while ago it was spuds and sets they were hysterical about. Now it seems "brown-a-de-buck" is having an inning.

GEO. C. WATSON.

The seedsmen must certainly be the most atrocious villains. Peruse this one in the North American of Philadelphia, the oldest daily in America, founded by Benj. Franklin, a Boston boy of parts:

Assails Dealers in Seeds.

Sir: At this time when the government is making emphatic the necessity for planting every available piece of ground, is there no protection from unscrupulous dealers who advance seeds, etc., to a prohibitive price?

Are not such men more of a menace to our country than the enemy beyond our borders? Surely they are, and there should be some protection from them and punishment for them.

Philadelphia, May 14.

Awful, isn't it?

A movement is on foot to enlist the cooperation of the government to ensure the safe transportation of two or three vessels to bring Holland bulbs to this country. It is now understood that the German authorities will extend immunity provided such vessels do not call at a British port. It is earnestly hoped on behalf of horticulture in the United States that such an arrangement may be consummated.

LAST WINTER'S HOLLAND SHIPMENTS.

Through the courtesy of August Roelker & Sons of New York, we present in this issue the two following communications which were received by Messrs. Roelker from their Rotterdam forwarders, in reference to shipments of bulbs and plants by sundry Holland nurserymen and growers during the past spring. The bill of lading for the goods by S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam was dated January 31st, 1917, but as the letters show, the boat was recalled to Rotterdam and unloaded. The cargo was then transferred to the S. S. Maartensdyk, which again was ordered unloaded on March 29th, and then went forward in ballast to New York.

We know that quite a few of our readers suffered similarly to Messrs. Roelker in regard to their import orders this season, and the letters, of which copies are here given, may contain something of interest or value to other importers.

Dated Feb. 10, 1917. Received March 8, 1917. Re plant and bulb shipments to S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam of the 31 ult, as per enclosed specifications:
Gentlemen:

Referring to our various way bills re the above shipments we beg to inform you that on account of the increased dangers at sea since Germany declared the unlimited use of their submarines, S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam which left from here on the 31 ult, was called back and returned here on the 2d inst.

The Holland America Line decided to discharge the cargo but up till now the nursery stock has not yet come to hand and we hope this will be the case today.

The nursery stock shipments travel at the expense and risk of the ultimate consignees; however, you will understand that under the present circumstances it is impossible to obtain any instructions from the American importers and therefore everything will be done to protect their interests as much as possible. As far as the goods have been insured by us, we have notified the underwriters who reject all responsibility, but in case of damage we will have occasion to refer again to this matter.

As the severe frost which prevails here during the past four weeks caused interruption of the navigation in the canals, it was impossible to return the plants to the nurseries and to protect the interests of consigners the Holland America Line submitted a proposal to the nurserymen in which it was stated that they were prepared to tranship the stock from the Nieuw Amsterdam into the cargo steamer Maartensdyk indifferently if the steamer would be in a position at a later date to carry the traffic to New York or not. This without any guarantee, however, and on the understanding that the shippers should release the Holland America Line also in the name of holders of the B/L and all other parties interested, of all responsibility.

As under the present circumstances it was impossible to obtain any instructions from the American owners of the goods, the nurserymen availed themselves of this proposal also to prevent the goods from the risk of frost to which they would have been exposed when discovered on the quay. As far as the goods have been insured by senders, we have notified underwriters who confirmed that they had no objection against the transshipment of the goods without prejudice, however, of their responsibility in case of damage beyond the conditions of the policy.

We hope that our Government will be able to make such arrangements with the authorities of the nations at war, that the neutral steamers can move between neutral countries without further difficulties.

As soon as things develop further we will not fail to let you know.

Dated April 18, 1917. Received May 5, 1917.
Gentlemen:

Confirming our previous communication relative to nursery stock shipments originally on board of S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam and transhipped later on in S. S. Maartensdyk, we beg to say that also S. S. Maartensdyk had to be unloaded here, and there being no prospects for any Dutch steamer with cargo of proceeding safely to the U. S. A. unless calling at an English port, which implies on the other hand the risk of being almost certainly torpedoed by German submarines, we acquainted the senders and the underwriters of the above.

The majority of the inland shippers pretend that all nursery stock travels at consignee's risk and expense and therefore we did not up till now receive instructions how to act. We hope that the nurserymen will come to some understanding.

The Holland America Line will deliver the nursery stock against payment of the steamer loading dues and the ocean freight of the Nieuw Amsterdam and besides this against payment of the charge for loading and discharging S. S. Maartensdyk, amounting to fl. 3.—per 1000 Ko. or fl. 2.50 per freight ton in ship's option. When these conditions have been complied with the Holland America Line will hand a delivery order on which the goods can be collected and returned to the nurserymen, who will then have to get any damage or loss surveyed by an expert appointed by the underwriters. Should senders undertake any action in the matter this certainly is done on your behalf and for your account and risk.

The B/L having been mailed from here it will be necessary that all Bs/L are returned to us here to which please attend at once.

Any charges due on the Nieuw Amsterdam/ Maartensdyk shipments have to be collected from consignees and we request you to attend to this at once, collecting the disbursements as per our way bills plus disbursements for extra marine insurance premium, and various outlays as per specifications sent you, fully explaining the situation to consignees, who are liable for these outlays as the goods travel for their account and risk. Of any collections please acquaint us by two different mails.

As soon as we hear something more definite we will report you further.

Of Interest to Retail Florists

A CONSERVATORY ANNEX.

Our cover illustration this week shows an interior view of the conservatory annex as seen from the new flower store of W. J. Palmer & Son of Buffalo, N. Y., which was illustrated in our issue of last week. We give special prominence to this new establishment as it seems to us to typify the ideal city flower store, in architecture, arrangement and artistic adornment. Floral establishments of this character do very much to elevate and dignify the florist business in the public estimation and are indisputable evidence of stability and progress.

PENN LOGIC.

Accompanying cheques received by mail from Penn the Florist, Boston, comes a card bearing the following characteristic logic.

This Cheque is Yours.

Without CUSTOMERS,—there would be no PENN—the Florist.

Without PENN—the Florist,—you would not have this cheque.

With YOUR boosting,—we will have more customers.

With MORE customers,—YOUR cheque will increase.

BOSTON.

The Metropolitan Park Commission have plowed the park land in the Neponset river reservation at Mattapan for the benefit of the residents in that section.

Thomas F. Galvin has sent in his resignation as a member of the Park and Recreation Board, because of pressure of business, and the mayor has appointed J. K. M. L. Farquhar to succeed Mr. Galvin. The selection of Mr. Farquhar for this important duty meets with widespread approval on all sides and the daily newspapers have without exception spoken appreciatively of the mayor's action. The other members of the board are John H. Dillon, chairman, and Robert S. Peabody, landscape architect. The chairman is the only salaried member.

The crowning glory of the spring gardens in this section for this year has been the magnolias. Never before, as our memory goes, have they been so profuse in flower and the blooms so perfect. The forsythias and also Japan cherries have also given evidence that the weather conditions of the past year have been ideal for their highest development. It is not so with some other things however, for the hawthorns and pyruses so far as we have seen will be sparse of bloom, and the cornuses and wisterias show many winter-blasted buds. Lilacs, as they are at present are about eight or ten days late in flowering and they appear to be much below the average in quantity of bloom. Some rhododendrons seem rather shy on number of flower buds as compared with the past two years, but winter damage to foliage is very slight.

Operations have been under way for some time at the Wentworth Institute grounds on Huntington avenue, in preparation for the very ambitious outdoor horticultural exhibition which is to be conducted there during the first two weeks of June under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The show will occupy a space of three acres, and the most notable private estates and commercial floral establishments in this section will be represented, as well as some prominent growers from a distance. Rhododendrons, azaleas, orchids and other special classes will be shown under huge tents in a magnificence never before touched in this country and there will be rock gardens and other artistic gardening effects in the open in which no effort or expense will be spared. It is stated that the cost of the setting for this show will approximate $25,000.

The grounds and exhibits will not be formally turned over to the society until June 2. On the previous day the exhibit will be given over to the Massachusetts Chapter of the Red Cross Society, which will charge a $5 admission fee. The show will be open from 10 o'clock in the forenoon until dusk each day. There will be concerts by the Mainnente orchestra.

PHILADELPHIA.

George W. Kerr of Burpee's is on a crop inspection trip to California.

Douglas Laird, late of Dreer's and Thorburn's, is now with the Robert Buist Co.

A. B. Cartledge has been laid up for the past month with a nervous breakdown but is now much improved and is back on duty again at 1514 Chestnut street.

Frank Adelberger is still at the Presbyterian Hospital but is much more comfortable and the doctors have decided not to make any surgical operation at this time.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., report that they are working day and night to get their Memorial Day orders filled and therefore cannot accept any more orders for that occasion this year.

The judges appointed for the Eighth Annual Lansdowne Spring Flower Show, June 9th, are Mrs. Du Best, H. F. Michell, Casper Pennock, Rowland T. Satterthwaite, J. Otto Thilow and George C. Thomas, Jr. Admission free. It will be a fine show. Don't miss it. We have over 200 members which is pretty good for a little burg of 5000.

PITTSBURGH.

Augustus Wintz, an attache of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is laid up in one of the local hospitals.

James Riley, who has been a salesman for the McCallum Co., has accepted a similar position with the A. L. Randall Co. of Chicago.

"Jack" Bysouth, who for some time has been in Braddock on the estate of one of the officials of the Carnegie Steel Co., has resigned to go to France with the U. S. Engineering Corps.

Arthur James, formerly engaged in the growing of decorative plants on the Greensburg Pike, Turtle Creek, is about to leave for Oneca, Florida, where he will specialize in growing decorative asparagus.

Earnest R. Bolton has resigned as secretary for the Horticultural Society of Western Penna. He will be succeeded by Thomas Carr, who has also succeeded him as first assistant on the Heinz estate "Greenlawn." Mr. Carr, who was recently married, came to Pittsburgh from Cleveland and has gone to housekeeping on the Heinz place.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

L. W. Kephart, scientific assistant in the Bureau of Plant Industry has left for New England points to engage in experimental work in connection with the spread of the white pine blister rust.

The Florists' Club of Washington is planning for a round-up meeting June 5. The program for the evening has not yet been selected but President R. L. Jenkins is planning for something good.

Alden A. Potter, an assistant pathologist in the Bureau of Plant Industry, has gone to Manhattan, Kansas, and Chicago, Ill., for the purpose of holding consultations with experts in those cities concerning a new system of seed treatment.

The American Florists and Z. D. Blackstone are among the several hundred merchants that have joined the Chamber of Commerce in a round-up campaign to enlist all of the merchants in a Greater Washington movement. William F. Gude, recently entertained the members of the membership committee at a luncheon at a downtown hotel.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON With the exception of a little activity on Monday, the flower market is in a decidedly moribund condition this week. There are quantities of roses, carnations, sweet peas, Spanish irises, lilies, pansies, daffodils, baby gladioli, etc., etc., and the quality as a rule leaves nothing to be desired but buyers are very few and far between, the only noticeable movement being in the line of magnolia wreaths and artificial material for Memorial Day use in the places which make a commodity of such things. Some grand gladioli of the large flowering type are coming in. They have brought good prices thus far but not enough for the grower to get wealthy on, when the time and space they occupy in the greenhouse and the expense of getting to market in perfect condition are taken into consideration. Opinions and predictions as to supply and demand for Memorial Day vary considerably. Should the weather continue as it has averaged up to the present time florists' indoor material will have practical control of the situation.

A natural reaction has CHICAGO come to the Chicago market, following the week of Mothers' Day, with its immense volume of business. People do not buy flowers every day and when so many are bought for an occasion, no matter what it is, there will be less demand just after. Reports are now in from the surrounding country and confirm last week's impression that the small cities and towns did a big business and could have done more had the stock been forthcoming. The opinion seems unanimous that one more big holiday has been added and one that has come to stay if rightly handled. A wave of mid-summer heat swept the middle west and tended strongly to increase stock and in some proportion decrease the number of week-end customers, till no one of the wholesalers could possibly move the accumulation of cut flowers. Some of the largest single sales of the season were recorded on Saturday when carnations wavered between buyers at $5.00 per 1,000 and the waste barrel. One reports having moved 35,000 in this way. A cold wave has followed accompanied by rain but tables and ice boxes are still filled. Peonies are coming regularly now and demand is fair considering the quantity of other flowers, prices ranging from four to ten cents.

The early part of CINCINNATI this week the market was glutted with stock. Business was very slow while receipts were very heavy. Shipping business has been fair. Roses and carnations are in an oversupply. More lilies are coming in than can be used. Callas are fairly plentiful and so are peonies. Some excellent gladioli from local florists are added to the supply from the South. Sweet peas are plentiful and generally are of a high quality.

NEW YORK Plenty of stock and no stability of prices is the situation in the wholesale market this week. The outlook for Memorial Day is past human finding out. If the present condition of the market is any indication it will be "a frost." There are some peonies from southern parts in this market but so far they find no welcome. Sweet peas are a burden at any price. In fact, there is nothing that can be mentioned as having any right of way in the market. It is unprofitable and unpromising for the man who makes the goods and equally so far for the man who tries to find a market for them.

PHILADELPHIA Last week was lilac week, which being interpreted means that all the thrifty farmers for fifty miles around brought in their outdoor flowers such as "lylocks" and sold them to the retailers for what they could get. So Mr. Retailer could make a good store display for small outlay and when Mr. Rose and Carnation Grower came along with his expensive stock he had to be quite suave and gentle. That's his middle name—when it's necessary. For honesty, forbearance and intelligence the commercial flower grower is renowned the world over. But notwithstanding all that it was a pretty fair week—quite as good as could be expected for this time of year. The rose crop is unusually heavy, especially in Beauties and Russells. Prices have receded a bit on these but other standard sorts like Killarney, Ophelia and Shawyer hold their own pretty well. Carnations continue of fine quality and clean up well at about normal figures. Sweet peas have fallen off in quantity. They say the growers are tearing them out and planting tomatoes. Perhaps they are right. The indoor sweet pea has to take a back seat when the hot weather comes along.

PITTSBURGH Judging by the present prospects, there will be absolutely no home-grown peonies for Decoration Day, owing to the unusually backward spring season. Carnations and lilies continue scarce. Indoor grown iris are plentiful and of fair quality. In a week or so, however, there will undoubtedly be plenty of the outdoor iris. While plentiful, sweet peas have lost their color. Roses are coming in fairly well. The market is cleaning up right along at very good prices, which promises to be the condition for some time yet to come.

ROCHESTER Business has improved considerably during the past two weeks. All florist work is brisk. A good quality of roses and carnations are on the market. Daffodils and tulips are very scarce. Giant and "baby" gladioli are now being shipped in and sell fast. Sweet peas, Spanish iris, snapdragon, pansies, mignonette, marguerites and corn flowers all sell readily. Plant trade, both bedding and perennial, is rushing.

ST. LOUIS Sultry weather has set in and again we are in the midst of a glut. Outdoor flowers, of course, influence to a great extent the price of roses and carnations. Dry goods stores are again in their glory. Good carnations at 25c. a dozen, sweet peas at 5c. a bunch. Peonies and jessamines are now on the market and will be right in line for Memorial Day.

WASHINGTON The first real breath of summer came last week and with it came the flooding of the market with stock of all kinds. Business, nevertheless, continues good and fair prices generally prevail. Spanish iris is one of the few flowers that the market is short of and there is a good demand for all that is obtainable. Carnations clean up well each day and the sale of roses is highly satisfactory. Small flowers are moving much better this year than ever before and despite the fact that daisies are growing in the fields, yellow and white ones from the greenhouses find a fair market.

HELP WANTED

Seedsman Wanted

Thoroughly experienced and educated seedsman to take charge of our flower seed department. Must be of highest character and ability, and capable of preparing the flower seed portion of the catalog. Apply in own handwriting, giving particulars of experience and stating salary required, to ARTHUR T. BODDINGTON CO., INC., 128 Chambers St., New York City.

CHICAGO.

The Garden Bureau has suffered a lapse and will suspend operations.

August Poehlmann is able to be about again, feeling much better for his rest.

Moses Penn, of Boston, is now happily situated with the Alpha Floral Co. His two weeks' vacation in his home city have made him more eager to get back to work.

Sharp, Partridge & Co. report the glass market as very firm. This is due, however, to other uses for glass than for greenhouses, for, as Mr. Partridge states, there is very little building among the growers just now.

Chicago florists stayed at home and tried to do business over the week end, but as one puts it, they lived in the torrid zone Friday and Saturday, in the temperate zone on Sunday and in the frigid zone on Monday and Tuesday. The rapid maturing of stock was checked and the weather man will have a leading part when the play is staged for the holiday just ahead.

Poehlmann Bros.' supply department is now completely settled in its new home adjoining the cut flower room. This is a happy combination which saves a customer's time as well as facilitates the handling of orders. To see the immense line of baskets handled by this firm one would infer that the retail florist used baskets for every order, and this is very nearly the case. Mr. Waters says the eleventh hour orders for supplies for Memorial Day are now coming in, but that they will all be filled on time. In the cut flower department shipping trade is good this week and indications are that there will be no excess of stock for Memorial Day for orders are already very numerous.

ST. LOUIS.

The Park Department have about completed their planting out.

Hardy ferns will start to come in from local points next week.

Special sales were made on roses and sweet peas by down-town florists all the past week at bargain prices.

The growers are giving a dance on Friday, the 25th, at 11 Mile House, to the growers and their florist friends, everybody invited to have a good time.

NEWS NOTES.

Rochester, N. Y.—Horace J. Head has just returned from a business trip to Boston.

Oak Bluffs, Mass.—The following announcement by the Justices of the District Court of Dukes County appears in the local newspaper:

The Justices of the District Court of Dukes County hereby make the following announcement:

We deem it our public duty to announce that no person, old or young, convicted of larceny, trespass or mischief, who is growing foodstuff are one negro, can appear in the District Court of Dukes County anything but prompt and severe punishment.

JOHN A. EVANS CO.
Richmond, Ind.

House 25 ft. by 75 ft. erected last year for the F. W. Wheeler Estate, Indianapolis, Ind.

One way to arrange a 25 footer, is with a wide middle walk. Or two side walks and a narrower centre walk.

18 or 25 Foot House—Which?

IF you put that question up to us, we would promptly vote for the 25 footer. That vote would be "influenced," by the plain common-sense fact that for but a little more money you get additional room out of all proportion to the cost.

That seven extra feet in width gives you 275 square feet more bench space in a house 50 feet long. To say it another way; in an 18 foot house you have two side benches each 3 ft. wide, and a centre one 6 ft. wide.

Besides 2 walks each 2 ft. 6 in.

In the 25 footer, you have 2 benches, each 3 ft. wide, with 2 centre benches 5 ft. wide.

18 ft. 3 bench house.

25 ft. 4 bench house.

In the 18 foot house 550 square feet are yours for benches; and 250 taken by walks.

In the 25 foot—800 for benches, and 350 for walks.

For further demonstration supposing an 18 foot house of a certain length cost $2,900. The 25 foot one of same length would cost but $3,600, $700 additional gives you 250 square feet more bench room.

You also have more air space, and can ventilate more freely without danger of injury.

How about it—want a figure on one of our 25 foot houses?

Coldwell Motor Mower
MODEL J

THE COLDWELL "CLIPPERBUILT" Motor Mower, Model J, combines Coldwell sturdy construction with 1917 mechanical improvements.

Power. A 4-cylinder 1917 automobile motor, Continental make, gives Model J power to climb any grade up to 25%, at any speed up to 6 miles an hour. Rolls as it mows.

Lightness. Weighs 1100 pounds on the rollers. Not too heavy—just heavy enough.

Economy. Does the work of three horses and three men on half a gallon of gasoline an hour.

The COLDWELL WALK TYPE Motor Mower runs itself. Operator guides—nothing more. A strong little motor geared up to 4 miles an hour does the work. Low upkeep, beautiful cutting and rolling make the WALK TYPE especially desirable for smaller estates. Two sizes, 30" and 35" cutters.

COLDWELL HORSE MOWER with Demountable Cutter Units. Cutters can be changed in a minute. No time lost for sharpening the knives.

COLDWELL HAND MOWERS are distinguished for materials, workmanship and finish. Hand Mowers bearing the COLDWELL stamp have been marketed for more than forty years. 150 different styles and sizes. Write for catalogue.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Prope.

Care of Adiantum

Plants from 2½ or 3-inch pots will make fine stock to plant. Do not crowd them but give at least 12 inches between plants each way. A temperature of at least 60 degrees at night, a rich compost of raw fibrous soil, three parts, well-rotted cow manure and leaf mold one part each, and some sand, with ample drainage, are the first essentials for adiantum growing. Water carefully at first; just around the plants will do. Keep the soil between the plants freely cultivated and clear of weeds. They will now require quite a heavy shade and as autumn comes gradually reduce it so that by the end of September they will be having full sun. Now is a good time to break up old plants and pot into 3-inch pots. Keep rather close and shaded until they begin to make new roots, when they can be given the same care as above recommended.

Vandas

Give ventilation even when there is a spell of wet and cheerless weather, even if you have to apply a little fire heat. Apply frequent light sprayings overhead. The temperature should be kept at from 60 to 65 degrees during the night with a gradual increase of 10 to 15 degrees during sunshine. Now that evaporation is great, during warm, sunny days the atmosphere should be kept moist by damping the benches and walks freely two or three times a day. From now until the fall they should be watered liberally at the roots and should at no time remain dry for any length of time. It is a mistake to keep them too heavily shaded; all they want is protection from direct sunshine.

Baby Ramblers

Young stock from 3 or 4-inch pots can be shifted along from pot to pot as becomes necessary to keep them growing. They do well in a rich well-composted soil, say about three parts of sods to two parts of manure and a little bone at the last shift. When growing fast they will need plenty of water and syringing once or twice a day. The baby Rambler roses make fine pot plants for the Easter trade and will sell fast in all stages of growth. To have bushy, vigorous plants for next season's trade, it is time now to make a start. I have found that those grown in pots all summer are much easier to manage and give greater satisfaction when forced than those that are grown in the field. When planted in a field let them have the best kind of soil in a freely exposed situation, cultivate well and pot up in October, so they may have time to make new roots before the cold weather sets in.

Next week Eucharis Amazonica; Gardenias; Lilies; Resting Callas; Sweet Peas; Reminders

Dieffenbachias

Syringe regularly once or twice a day and give them abundance of water at the roots. A high degree of moisture should be maintained from this out. When the desired size pot is reached they can be kept in good condition by the use of manure-water once a week during the summer. These plants require plenty of heat and moisture. Increase the night temperature now to 70 degrees. They like a daily syringing overhead through their growing season. They can not be kept too near the glass, if not absolutely touching it, but must be protected from the sun with a thin shade, or the leaves will lose their healthy color and also may burn. They like plenty of atmospheric moisture so do not curb on this during the summer. Always give them plenty of room.

Plants for Stock

Do not wait until there is nothing but a few cast-off plants before selecting what you may need for stock. It is well now to set aside a good number of stock plants to propagate from next fall and winter, such as abutilons, acalyphas, achyranthes, ageratums, alternantheras, begonias, cannas, coleus, fuchsias, geraniums, salvias, verbenas, petunias and many others. Give them a shift where they may need it and remove them to a bench by themselves, so they will not be scattered about. It is essential to take proper care of this stock which will be needed for furnishing cuttings for another season. During the summer these can be planted out in some piece of rich ground where they will produce lots of cuttings by the end of August and if necessary they can be lifted before the middle of September and housed.

Reminders

Keep Phoenix Roebelenii and similar palms away from the walks where they are constantly being rubbed by passers by.

Spray the young smilax regularly and keep insects in check and let it make a good bottom before starting up the strings.

Keep after violet planting inside until finished and do not allow the plants to be about after being taken out of boxes or pots.

Plan for any changes in and additions to greenhouses. Heating arrangements should be completed and the materials ordered without delay.

A great exhibition

The most extensive and comprehensive out-door horticultural exhibition ever made in this country opens on Saturday of this week in Boston. As we go to press the finishing touches are being given to the exhibits and it is sufficiently near completion to warrant our advising professional gardeners and the florists from even remote places to make the trip to see it at some time during the next two weeks. The area under canvas is computed to be seven times the floor space in all the halls in Horticultural Building. We shall not attempt any description of the various features now but next week's issue will give full details. Come and see for yourself.

"Business as usual"

Ed. Jenkins does not agree with HORTICULTURE's attitude on the much disputed "business as usual" proposition and promptly "gets after us" with characteristic Jenkins aggressive earnestness in criticism of our editorial note of last week in which we expressed the hope that the example set by the Lenox Horticultural Society, in discontinuing its exhibitions because of the war conditions, would not be generally followed by other societies. Mr. Jenkins makes out a good case as to the existing situation in the Berkshires and we agree that the Lenox gardeners are the best judges of what is the better course for them to follow in the present lamentable exigency.

We do not wish to be understood as disputing the wisdom of their decision in particular. What we do deplore, however, is the underlying principle in much that has been advocated by speakers and writers on the question of retrenchment on certain luxuries, so-called, and which Mr. Jenkins frankly admits to have been one main reason for the abandonment of the Lenox exhibitions. It is true that civilization's very life depends upon the outcome of this stupendous world conflict and we should be ready to make any and all necessary sacrifices in order that the hard-won results of centuries of humanity's struggle upward may not be swept away. Intelligent economy, the elimination of waste and a thorough realization of the gravity of the work before us are essential but we must not lose our heads and strike a blow at that which constitutes the very essence of civilization.

It has been said that civilization is but a thin veneer underneath which will be found only the cold-blooded, pitiless savage and the truth of this assertion would seem to be proven by the inhuman atrocities which in Europe have marked the three past years. Must we, too, follow suit and divest ourselves of the refinements and humanizing influences that help to make life worth living, cease to "feed the aesthetic soul of man," as the late William R. Smith was wont to say, devote our energies primarily to eating and killing, and thus give the lie to the scriptural injunction, "Man shall not live by bread alone"?

We submit that there never has been a time when flowers and gardens and horticultural exhibitions were more seriously needed in this country than during the period through which we are now passing. Whether they are technically up to previous standards or whether prizes are offered or not, is immaterial if only we shall be "doing our bit" to stem the retrograde movement which threatens to overwhelm the world. History shows that Boston and Massachusetts did their full share in the stern realities of the bitter conflict of '61-'65. The length of that struggle was in no way influenced by the course which the Massachusetts Horticultural Society pursued while it lasted but on the other hand it is reasonable to assume that the activities which Mr. Jenkins seems to regard as having been frivolous and ill-timed did serve in some degree as an antithesis to the demoralizing and brutalizing influences of those cruel years. It is also doubtless true that to its courageous persistence in "business as usual" under all circumstances is due the uninterrupted pre-eminence of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society among its sister societies everywhere and of the people in its particular section in the most refining of all arts. Let us stand our ground, continue to educate the people in the love of flowers and show the world that Horticulture has not been and shall not be stamped. We can take a lesson from France, where, despite the privations and terrible stress which the people have suffered a rose congress with plans for two years' trials is to open this summer.

"Cold Feet"

Under the above heading you have an editorial note in your issue of May 19th about the action of the Lenox Horticultural Society in abandoning its flower shows. Now "cold feet" implies fear or even cowardice and I hasten to repudiate and correct such an erroneous impression.

Not "cold feet" but warm-hearted, red-blooded patriotism was and is the underlying motive in our action. "Nulli Secundus" has ever been the motto in horticultural matters and our motto in patriotism is the same. You must remember that the Lenox gardeners are farmers as well and they are growing from one to twenty acres additional to their usual crops of potatoes besides extra cow beans and many other food crops, and this (owing to the labor shortage) with reduced staffs of men.

Another error—you seem to think that this came from our employers, but not at all. We did it entirely of our own volition—because we consider it decidedly unpatriotic to be devoting time, labor, money and skill to growing flowers for exhibition when the same items should be put into the growing of food stuff. The gardeners of the Berkshires would scorn to have a flower show that was not "of the best" and it is manifestly impossible to have it so under existing conditions. You refer to the fact that flower shows were held regularly through the Civil War period. That proves nothing, except that the people never realized as a whole what sort of a problem they were "up against." Had they quit flower shows and other unnecessary things at the beginning of the war and devoted their whole strength to the winning of the fight it might have been over in half the time. We in this neighborhood have grasped the fact that we should not consider our own petty interests but rather the whole nation's interest. Not "Business as Usual," but "Everything Unusual," is the slogan of the Lenox gardeners as interpreted by

Edwin Jenkins

Moisture Loving Primulas

Under this heading are included many delightful subjects, adapted for moist situations. Although all members of the genus Primula vary considerably, regarding soil and location, yet, a great number can be grown in cool, moist or bog situations. If grown in bold masses they form a very attractive feature.

The commoner varieties, viz., P. japonica and P. pulverulenta, do not require much comment. They form large superposed whorls of clear purple flowers, produced on spikes 12 in. to 18 in. long. No bog garden is complete without them, and once established they require no further attention.

Amongst the diminutive, but by no means the least attractive varieties, Primula Cockburniana and P. sikkimensis rank as foremost. Masses of the former, with their dainty heads of orange vieing with the golden-yellow bell-shaped perianths of P. sikkimensis is entrancingly attractive. Another little gem is P. rosea and its variety grandiflora. The flowers are rose-red, more or less drooping. This is one of the best of Alpine primulas.

Primula denticulata, its cousin Cashmiriana and its varieties are also very attractive plants, having flowers varying from light blue to deep purple. There is also an alba form of P. denticulata. If left undisturbed they form large clumps which give fine effect.

Primula siberica, a plant with lilac colored flowers, is a more tender species and its hardiness in this climate is theoretical.

Those mentioned, with the exception of Cockburniana, can be treated as perennials. Cockburniana is best treated as a biennial, as a large per cent. of that species die annually. For compost a mixture of equal parts, loam, leaf-mould and sand is preferred. All the species produce seed abundantly. In winter a light covering of dry leaves is beneficial.

A WORKER APPRECIATED.

We are glad to learn that Chas. G. Patten, the noted pomologist, has sold his propagating plant to the Iowa Agricultural College. We both belong to the Minnesota Horticultural Society and are of the same age—84. He has probably done more than any man to move the fruit belt north. For fifty years he has been hard at work, and an immense burden was resting on him and he had much anxiety for the future. Said he: "I am where I can't let go. I can't stop in the midst of my work and I am not strong enough to go ahead." It is well the state has stepped in to save the results of half a century of hard work and important experiments. He has done good work with his plums and has been at work on blight resisting pears. Mr. Patten is a reverent christian—a soldier of peace, and he will soon leave the world far better than he found it. We are glad he can rest by the margin of the river till he is promoted to the higher horticulture—"Where everlasting spring abides and never withering flowers."

THE FOOD QUESTION.

If the "raise eats" program keeps on the following little squib meant in fun may really have more truth than poetry in it:

THE WEDDING

It was the swellest wedding that Manhattan ever saw;
The bride's bouquet was cauliflower
With shower effect of slaw.

The decorations formed a bower
Of cabbages and beans,
With spinach and asparagus
And other garden greens.

Aigrettes of slender scallions trimmed
The bridesmaids' hats of lace,
And in the best man's left lapel
A radish found a place.

The wedding cake was decked with beets,
Cucumbers and tomatoes,
And princely was the bridegroom's gift—
A barrel of potatoes.

—Minna Irving in The Sun.

We generally have more food in this country than can be used and why it should be different this year, passes comprehension—especially as the shipping facilities on the high seas is short. A better slogan would be: "More boats and business as usual."

WHITE-PINE BLISTER RUST.

The fact has been determined by the Secretary of Agriculture that it is necessary, in order to prevent the further spread of a dangerous plant disease known as the white-pine blister rust (Peridermium strobi Kleb.), not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, to quarantine immediately the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut.

Now, therefore, I, David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, under the authority conferred by section 8 of the plant quarantine act of August 20, 1912 (37 Stat., 315), as amended by the act of Congress approved March 4, 1917 (Public No. 390, 64th Cong.), do hereby amend Notice of Quarantine No. 26, promulgated April 21, 1917, effective on and after June 1, 1917, and by this amendment do order that from and after the date hereof no five-leaved pines or black currant plants shall be moved or allowed to move interstate to points outside the area comprising the State of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS AND ORNAMENTAL HORTICULTURISTS.

The following communication has been sent out to all State Vice-Presidents from the office of the President:

State Vice-Presidents:—

I am this day appointing you Chairman of the "On To New York" Convention Committee.

Your duty will be to stimulate a large attendance at the Convention in New York, this August.

You possibly realize that this is the most important convention we have had in years, due to the fact that serious conditions confront our country at this time, the florists of the country should get together, and must show our co-operation with the Government in the present crisis.

The florist business is looked upon by the warring nations as unnecessary business during the time of war. It is up to us to convince the people that our business is very necessary, and absolutely essential in this crisis. We should go further and devise ways and means of growing such stock that will assist the Government in food preservation. Therefore, at this Convention, these various matters can be taken up and discussed.

Impress upon the members in your state the vast importance of the coming Convention, and trust that you will take interest in circulating the members of your state. Just a suggestion—get up a state delegation concentrating at some central location in your state, and proceed to the Convention in a body.

Please advise me by return mail what I may expect from you in this work.

Trusting I may hear from you with a favorable reply, I am,

Yours respectfully,

R. C. KERR, Pres.

Houston, Texas, May 28, 1917.

NASSAU COUNTY HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Nassau County Horticultural Society held its annual Spring Show in the Neighbourhood House, Glen Cove, N. Y., on Wednesday, May 23rd. The quality of blooms did not equal those of last year, owing to the inclement weather, but competition was keen in all classes. Much praise is due our hardworking manager, R. W. Jones, for the tasteful arrangement of the show. The judges were Jas. Duthie, E. Westlake and Jas. McCarthy who awarded the principal honors to John F. Johnson, Jas. McDonald, Jos. Adler, Wm. Noonan, Jas. McCarthy, John Dombrowsky and Robt. Jones. Cultural certificates were awarded to the following: John F. Johnson for an exquisite vase of salpiglossis; Jas. McCarthy for well grown sweet peas Yarrowa; Robt. Jones for a magnificent group of French hydrangeas.

NEW JERSEY FLORICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The regular monthly meeting of the New Jersey Floricultural Society was held on Monday, May 21. It was a general reunion of the society and all the older members who helped reorganize the same in 1894 were present. The following officers were elected: Joseph A. Manda, president; Rev. L. H. Lighthipe, vice-president; Edw. A. Manda, treasurer; Geo. W. Strange, secretary. The society will offer its services toward the promotion of home gardening throughout the Granges and a special meeting will be held on June 18 to formulate plans for the same. It is expected that all the heads of the various civic leagues will attend this meeting.

Prizes will be offered to the amateur gardener at our fall show and a schedule will be ready in a few weeks. GEO. W. STRANGE, Secy.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The good florists of Washington as well as the amateur rose growers of the locality look forward to a larger crowd than ever to attend the third Annual Outdoor Meeting of the American Rose Society, which will be held at the National Rose Test Garden (Arlington) Washington, D. C., on Monday, June 4. Visitors are reminded to meet at Gude Brothers, at 9 A. M., where automobiles to the Garden will be provided. Those coming kindly notify W. F. Gude, 1214 F. Street, Northwest, Washington, D. C., or Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., chairman National Rose Test Garden Committee.

Acceptances to speak have been received from Hon. Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, J. Horace McFarland, President American Civic Association, with distinguished visitors expected from New York, New England, and other distant points.

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

The St. Louis Retail Association meeting on Monday, May 21st, was a very interesting one. It was announced that at the next meeting an endeavor would be made to make it a get-together meeting, growers, wholesalers and retailers to have a talk about consolidation.

The regular meeting of the Cleveland Florists' Club will be held Monday, June 4th at 8 o'clock in the Assembly Room of the Hollenden. The speaker will be W. A. Manda, of South Orange, N. J., who will talk on "orchids." Members of The Garden Club of Cleveland, The Heights Garden Club and The Lakewood Garden Club and Cleveland Women's Florist Club have been invited to hear Mr. Manda.

DAHLIAS AND THEIR CULTURE

A Paper by Richard Vincent, Jr., Reported by Albert M. Herr.

About a century and a quarter ago, a little Mexican flower, soon named Dahlia, was first introduced to the gardens of Europe. The blossoms then consisted merely of a few floral rays or petals, red yellow or purple in color, about a central disk of rayless yellow florets. The flowers, near relatives of our common weed—the beggar's tick—and of coreopsis and cosmos, were only small to medium size, but their lightness and grace, the purity and brilliancy of their colors, their rapid changes under cultivation, and the freedom of their bloom soon won them popularity.

From this single type the Dahlia has since passed through one of the most wonderful developments known in floriculture, well justifying the species name generally given to it, variabilis; and today, it probably shows a greater diversity in habit, size, form and color, and is represented by more named varieties than any other species (or group of closely allied species) known to the florist. Among the multitude of flower forms we have almost exact duplicates of cosmos, daisy, poinsettia, clematis, anemone, zinnia, aster, water lily, cactus, chrysanthemum and peony, with many other forms peculiar to the species itself. In size the blossoms range from tiny blooms an inch or less in diameter to huge flowers rivaling the sunflower; they show every color, tint and shade, excepting the blues, known among flowers, and every combination of these by suffusion or variegation, in brilliance equalling geranium or salvia, in delicacy approaching roses or orchids, in range from a maroon almost reaching black, to a white as pure as that of the Easter lily.

One fault indeed they have. They are practically odorless; though a few scented varieties have arisen, and this characteristic, like other non-existent or at least hidden in early days of dahlia history, can probably be developed or intensified should popular favor demand it.

Simple in cultural demands, adapted to a wide range of soils and conditions, with plants so diverse in size and habit that one can readily be found appropriate for any situation, affording a wealth of bloom over a long season, suitable in some of the many varieties for every floral purpose—for garden decoration, for bouquets and exhibitors' tables—the dahlia now holds high rank as a late summer flower, and it certainly merits equally with the chrysanthemums the title "Queen of Autumn Flowers" for the dahlia is as beautiful and useful outdoors before frost as is the chrysanthemum inside or outside a little later.

Yet so recent is the development of the dahlia in its most pleasing and useful forms, that many flower lovers, particularly in the country, where the dahlia should be most popular, know nothing of the modern types. To such persons the only idea of the dahlia is conveyed by the ball-shaped blossoms of the old show and fancy types once so popular. These are models of perfection in form, of symmetry and regularity, and are often of most exquisite coloring but they lack the grace and artistic appeal that help to make flowers so attractive and that has been wonderfully developed in the newer dahlias.

What a surprise it is to many flower lovers to see for the first time a collection of modern dahlias. Its English singles, its pompons and its miniature cactus types are so bright and yet so dainty; its Century singles so large and striking but withal, so graceful; its decoratives ranging from tiny to huge, are so perfect in form yet loosely built and pleasing; its Cactus dahlias so refined and delicate of petal, like masses of interlaced, slender curved tubes of ribbon with tints almost as varied and delicate as those of changeable silk, and its peony-flowered types so artistic in the informal, open arrangement of their long curled twisted petals so gracefully held on long stems that raise them far above the bright green foliage.

Soil.

The most suitable soil for growing dahlias is a sandy loam. Heavy soil can be lightened by the use of coal ashes or sand, anything that will help to make the soil porous. Whenever possible the land for dahlias ought to be plowed or spaded up in the fall. The action of the freezing helps to make soil more friable. We ourselves use very little manure, preferring bone meal with the addition of a little potash, rather than manuring. If the ground is spaded in the fall or early winter the bone could well be mixed with the soil at that time. In using manure we would rather use it as a mulch, put on any time after the plants or roots are set. Any kind of material used for mulching around the plants will retain moisture and save watering, and if the soil is watered it will keep it from baking. By using bone we get a more stocky growth and more flowers; at least this is our experience.

Summer Treatment.

We find that the June-planted dahlias invariably give us the finest exhibition blooms. The early plantings have the extreme hot weather to contend with. This very often causes an indifferent growth as the stalk gets hard and the plant forms a mass of small weak limbs with poor flowers, if any, and more subject to diseases and insect pests. This condition can only be remedied by a vigorous use of the knife, cutting back hard so as to cause the plant to make a new and strong growth. The dahlias are not exempt from insect pests any more than other flowers. Growers will find a few sprayings, especially during a drought, are advantageous. Tobacco solution, soap, etc., almost any insecticide, will answer except for the aster bug which feeds on the flower alone. If these are not too numerous hand picking is the best remedy. They can easily be seen as they very seldom touch the dark colored flowers.

To have the dahlia to grow and show to the best advantage the plants ought to be tied to a strong stake, and to get large flowers thin out when too many limbs start out from the main stalk, also disbud those that remain and which are to carry the flowers.

My interest in the dahlia has been life-long. When I was a boy my father who was a gardener by profession, planted about one dozen roots obtained from somewhere, Child though I was, my interest in this flower was excited and I offered my entire fortune—which was sixpence, to my father to allow me to call one my own. The transaction was accomplished and this made me at the time one of the proudest boys of the land. I had something to show my playmates that none of them had.

Inception of Our Society.

I have for several years thought that there ought to be a Dahlia Society organized on broad lines to disseminate knowledge of this grand flower, look after the new varieties and eradicate indifferent ones, to classify them and so forth, also to publish something that would keep unscrupulous dealers from forcing worthless trash upon the public.

In the spring of 1915 the cry went out from a number of our prominent growers and also the trade papers, regarding an organization. By request I issued a call and we met in New York, May 10, 1915. We organized and formed the American Dahlia Society. Much to my surprise I was elected president. I cannot but thank those who gave me this high honor, as I feel that there is in this organization the nucleus for one of the largest floricultural societies in North America.

Soon after organizing, the New York Horticultural Society offered us facilities for making a show in New York City, in one of New York's finest buildings, and placed at our disposal $100 for premiums. We gave a show there September 24 and 26, of that year, that we think did credit to our young organization, especially when the weather conditions, heat and storm were considered, which destroyed the flowers of several of our largest exhibitors.

The future of the dahlia as a cultivated plant on this continent is assured and the prospects of our Society are very bright. The dahlia is everybody's flower, easy of cultivation, beautiful in its manifold forms and colorings, unequalled by very few other garden flowers. Almost any one can have and enjoy these favorites, and that they are favorites is shown by the enormous quantities that are grown every year. There are thousands of little gardens where this flower can be grown and grown with the greatest success.

In 1916 under the auspices of the American Institute we gave our second annual Dahlia Show and although on account of excessive rains throughout the growing season that were disastrous to many of the dahlia growers, our show in New York was a wonderful success both in quantity and quality of the blooms exhibited, and in old and new varieties shown, also in the increased number of exhibitors and visitors during the entire show, and the interest shown by the various garden clubs, some of which are now affiliated with our Society. A large number of the retail florists put up splendid displays.

We expect to give an exhibition this year in New York combined with the Institute management and should a kind providence smile upon us and our fields and gardens yield an abundant harvest of flowers, we hope to show the world one of the finest and best dahlia shows ever staged. We are also under promise to help and assist other dahlia shows whenever and wherever possible, and with our various trial grounds we hope to be able to test out all varieties in commerce and advise growers both large and small as to the best varieties to plant, both for commercial and private purposes.

INSECTICIDES; OLD CYCLAMENS.

Mr. Editor:

Dear Sir -Will you please tell me through Horticulture the best insecticide to use for spraying roses out of doors, mostly Ramblers and a few other kinds. Also what is the right treatment for some large old cyclamen roots through the summer time. By doing so you will greatly oblige
C. N.

There are so many insecticides on the market now, each one having its advocates, that we would not feel justified in recommending any particular one as "best." For aphides we know of nothing better than Aphine; for the rose slug, Lemon Oil is well recommended; for the leaf roller, powdered hellebore applied early is a standard; for black spot, a mixture of 5 oz. carbonate of copper compound to 3 quarts of ammonia and 60 gals. of water is prescribed in the Garden Library book on Roses. Fungine and Vermine both have proven valuable. Full directions for use are given with each package of these standard mixtures. Buy them from advertisers in HORTICULTURE.

The best treatment for old cyclamen plants, from the commercial plantsman's view is to consign them to the rubbish dump. But if one wishes to carry them over, the best plan is, after they have finished flowering, to give them a short rest, say a few weeks, and then repot them, first into smaller pots. They should not be "dried off" completely nor anything done to injure the roots. In repotting, the old soil must be removed with great care so that the roots may not suffer the slightest damage.

THE OUTLOOK FOR DUTCH AND DANISH SUPPLIES.

August Rolker & Sons have just received the following letter from the office of the Secretary of State at Washington. It may be of interest to importing firms:

"The Department has received your letter of May 24, 1917, with reference to possible difficulties in regard to obtaining horticultural supplies from Holland and Denmark.

"No regulations have been made by the Government of the United States with reference to the importation of goods of Dutch or Danish origin from those countries, and should any action be taken due publicity will be given thereto. It is not, however, anticipated that any regulations of this Government will be directed toward a limitation or regulation of the importation into the United States of goods of Danish or Dutch origin."

SEED TRADE

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

To Learn Seed Testing.

"For several years the United States Department of Agriculture has permitted persons interested to spend the months of July and August at the Seed Laboratory in Washington, D. C., to become familiar with the technique and practice of seed testing.

It is expected that more persons than usual may wish to avail themselves of this privilege this year through seedsmen voluntarily furnishing with the field crop seeds they sell, information concerning quality, including the name of the seed, the percent of pure live seed and in the case of certain imported seeds, the country of origin. It is therefore, desired to know definitely not later than June 15th how many and who may be expected.

There will be no charge in connection with this work but each person who comes will be required to supply himself on arrival with certain equipment including hand lenses, forceps, etc., at a total cost not exceeding $15.00.

Any one wishing to avail himself of this opportunity to become familiar with seed testing should immediately make application to the Seed Laboratory, Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

It will be impossible to offer similar privileges at the Branch Seed Laboratories maintained in co-operation with state institutions in California, Oregon, Louisiana, Missouri and Indiana."

DR. WM. A. TAYLOR.

Chief Bureau of Plant Industry,
Washington.

Defence of the Seedsman.

To the Editor of The Sun, Sir: As you have given publicity to remarks by Senator Smoot with regard to an experience in the purchase of some seeds, I wish you would give equal prominence to these few words in defence of a legitimate business which he misjudged because of the acts of individuals who are found in every line of trade.

With a record of fifteen years in the seed business with several firms in different localities, I can say from direct knowledge of costs that the package seeds sold are not charged at excessive rates, and to figure out on the basis of number of seeds a price a pound is entirely unfair.

The chief expense is the cost of the seed container, labor in putting up the package and the cost of distribution for which Senator Smoot apparently makes no allowance.

The Senator no doubt patronizes established concerns with reputations when he purchases his clothing, etc., and the same course should be followed in the purchase of seed. In that event

ADIANTUM GLORY OF MOORDRECHT.

It is strange that this very desirable fern is not much more generally grown and more largely used by the florist. The great beauty of A. Farleyense every one recognizes, but the difficulties in its successful culture and the fact that it produces no seed are formidable obstacles to its production by the average commercial grower. Its variety Adiantum Glory of Moordrecht is a great acquisition, being fertile, much more easily grown and moreover is a better keeper in a cut state. Anyone who can grow A. cuneatum should be able to do equally well with Glory of Moordrecht.

New Bedford, Mass.—Aaron S. Burke, a photographer with an office in the Bristol building, sought to open a florist shop at the north end of that city, on Purchase street, near Weld street, but he will have to obtain an itinerant vendor's license before doing so.

Last week City Clerk Remington was informed by a delegation of local florists that Mr. Burke was preparing to sell flowers during the Memorial Day season, and Mr. Remington sent for Mr. Burke, who informed him that this was his intention, but he was going in business on his own account, and as he was a citizen of New Bedford he assumed that it was his right to engage in any business he chose.

Mr. Remington consulted the commissioner of weights and measures, Mr. Hansen, who informed him that any person who engaged in a temporary or transient business in the commonwealth comes under the itinerant vendor law.

[A license was subsequently issued to Mr. Burke—Ed.]

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

CHICAGO.

There have been more wedding orders to take care of than usual in May, this year, many of them quite elaborate.

J. J. Benthey has returned to his usual place of business, feeling better but not quite recovered from his recent illness.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is having a dictaphone installed in their city office which they will make a permanent fixture if it proves satisfactory.

Some of the big department stores had their regular plant sales on the day previous to Memorial Day. Many thousands of plants were sold.

A. Henderson has found more room necessary for handling his seed trade and has secured the use of the store at the corner of State and Lake streets for the balance of the season.

The American Greenhouse Co. is holding a conference of its salesmen today, whose reports show that many medium sized orders are being placed.

One of Chicago's large growers has placed his order for coal at $5.35 per ton, fearing the price will advance rather than decline during the summer.

A severe frost occurred on the night of May 22nd and many a precious home garden is ruined. The seed stores are as busy as at any time in the season.

W. J. Smart, lately with Knight & Struck, is now booking orders for the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., of Chicago, and also representing the Aurora Nursery Co., of Aurora, Ill.

Zech & Mann has a very heavy shipping trade on Sunday. All hands worked throughout the day and were ready again at five the next morning getting out the orders. It did not facilitate matters when Mr. Zech sprained his ankle, but he lost no time notwithstanding.

Among the finest peonies coming into the market are those grown by Dr. A. J. Knapp, of Evansville, Ind. O. A. & L. A. Tonner are handling these peonies. So fast is the cut flower end of their business growing that a part of the supply department will be dropped in the near future.

Hoerber Bros. cut carnations entirely from their list of growing stock and have not regretted doing so, as the demand has been more steady for roses. Mr. Hoerber thinks the coal situation likely to improve during the summer, which would bring about a lower price than can be had at this time, so has not placed his order.

J. C. Butler, cashier for Poehlmann Bros. Co. at their store, was hurt in an accident two weeks ago when a motorcycle which he was riding collided with a street car, near Crown Point, Ind. He was severely injured and taken to a hospital in that city, but soon returned home feeling better and returned to his work. This week he is worse and confined to his home.

P. L. McKee, president of the American Greenhouse Co., has just received an interesting letter from W. A. Rowe of Kirkwood, Mo. The American Greenhouse Co. has presented handsome gold pocket pieces wishing good luck to its patrons, and Mr. Rowe had just received one when his auto was stolen. He says the good luck came when the auto was recovered, although it cost the life of the young thief.

W. W. Adams will move this week to his new location at the corner of State and Division streets about three blocks from his present store. The corner is an important one from a business standpoint, and a number of years ago the Fleischman Floral Co. operated a branch store here and erected conservatories, which Mr. Adams has had put in first class condition as well as the store, so the place will be one of the finest on the north side.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Dewey Lester of the Rochester Floral Co., has joined the U. S. Engineering Corps, Columbus Barracks, and was presented with a New Testament as a parting gift.

H. E. Wilson will open up a wholesale flower and supply store at 41-43 Stone street on June 1st under the name of Wilson Floral Co. The store has been thoroughly remodelled and a good sized icebox has been installed.

The Polyanthus Primroses make a display of exceptional beauty at Highland Park. They are finer this year than ever before. The evergreen raspberry from Oregon, not over a foot high and covering about 100 square feet of ground, is worth a special visit, with its clusters of yellow blossoms. The Siberian crabapple now blossoming in the Shakespeare garden offers a brilliant bit of color with its flowers of deep red. Lilac day, a big day at Highland Park, will be the first Sunday in June.

PHILADELPHIA.

There is no truth in the rumor astiduously circulated by adverse interests that Charles E. Meehan is to retire from the Pennock-Meehan Co. He only retires as vice-president, so that he may have more time to devote to his growing establishments in Germantown and Churchville. He still remains a stockholder in the corporation. A change in the personnel of the officers of a company is of daily occurrence, and no one gets excited about it unless hard up for a peg to hang a story on.

PITTSBURGH.

Earl J. Hunkle, who has been for a long time with the E. C. Ludwig Floral Company, is now with the McCallum Company.

Gilbert P. Weaklen, of G. P. Weaklen & Co., has bought out the other member of the firm and is now in full control of the business.

NEW YORK.

Guttman & Raynor, Inc., have leased adequate space in the well equipped and commodious store of the United Cut Flower Company, 111 West 28 street, which arrangement takes effect June 1. This move is a clear manifestation of the trend of the times toward practical economy and the attainment of maximum efficiency, while at the same time bringing the overhead expenses down to a minimum.

WASHINGTON.

Horticulturist and assistant horticulturist are wanted in the Bureau of Plant Industry. Salary of horticulturist is $2100 to $2500 a year. Salary of assistant is $1800 to $2000. Duties of the position include work investigating improvement of potato raising. Botanical artist is wanted in the Bureau of Plant Industry. Salary $900 a year. Both men and women are eligible.

PEONY IDENTITIES

The following communication was received by the Secretary of the American Peony Society not long ago from Messrs. Kallen and Lunnemann of Boskoop, Holland:

"Peony President Taft. This variety was placed on the market by Messrs. Blaauw & Co., of Boskoop, who obtained it as an unnamed variety from France, we believe.

From observations made this summer it seems to us that President Taft is identical with Reine Hortense."

They then request that those who possess both varieties should make further careful comparison of the two sorts and report their findings. There are already several of our growers who share the conviction of Messrs. Kallen and Lunnemann as to their identity; yet in some American lists they are offered as distinct varieties. We should be able to get this question cleared up without delay. I may add that there is a very pretty color plate of Reine Hortense in Mrs. Harding's new book.

Your ad. on Hydrangeas was very effective and has helped me to dispose of two houses of Hydrangeas for Memorial Day. We have had a great many letters telling us how fine the stock is.

Thanking you, I am

Yours very truly,

A. L. MILLER.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST A NEMATODE DISEASE.

Greenhouse men in the northwest, particularly in the New England States, New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, are experiencing considerable losses as a result of the occurrence and continued spread of a little known disease. The malady is due to nematodes, or eelworms, one or more species of Aphelenchus, which have been found in this country infecting violets, strawberries, a number of varieties of begonias, and many species of ferns. In Europe, where it has been known for many years, the disease has been reported as attacking forty-eight different species of plants.

On ferns, begonias, and other plants the trouble affects the leaves, causing them to become discolored—usually brown—in definite areas, which may increase so as to include the entire leaf. It may also produce on strawberries and violets a slight swelling and distortion of the buds, crowns, and leaves. Diseased plants may be killed or have their market value, quality, and appearance impaired.

The cause of the disease, thread-like nematodes, from 1-30 to 1-50 of an inch in length, can be seen with slight magnification when a small piece of infected leaf or tissue is teased apart in a few drops of water on glass. By the aid of a compound microscope, the egg, larval, and adult stages of the parasite may be observed within the unbroken diseased leaves, which they enter through wounds or air pores. Active larvae and adults can easily emerge from leaves through these natural openings, stomata, and may be carried to other plants, which they subsequently infect.

The following measures suggested by specialists of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, as methods of control have proven helpful in preventing and in reducing losses from the disease:

1. Separate the diseased from the healthy plants; then remove from the former and burn all infected parts. In this way the chance of infection in the healthy plants is considerably lessened and some of the diseased plants can be freed from the pest.

2. Allow as much ventilation and aeration as possible, and avoid wetting the foliage, as the nematode is readily spread by water.

3. Propagate by seeds or by the use of parts or all of healthy plants, using soil that has been sterilized by the use of steam or by other means.

4. Avoid all stock from infested nurseries and regions, and use disease-resistant plants whenever possible.

5. Partial success in destroying the nematodes by submerging ferns in water at a temperature of 50 degrees C. (122 degrees F.) for five minutes has been reported.

Rutherford, N. J.—Ed. Roehrs is in the hospital in Newark where he underwent an operation for appendicitis on Tuesday of this week. He is reported as progressing satisfactorily.

FORCED FRUITS.

Progressive florists are constantly awake to the desirability of being able to provide something new or different from the ordinary for fastidious customers when any special occasion comes up for decorative work. We understand that little trees bearing ripe fruit, grape vines, etc., are frequently used for dinner table centre pieces abroad but such things are rarely seen in this country. Sam. Murray of Kansas City has grown such successfully and used them to advantage on occasions when something exclusive was wanted.

Obituary

Charles H. Fischer.

Charles H. Fischer, a flower grower of Winfield, N. Y., died suddenly of heart trouble on May 17, aged 50 years. He is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters. He was a man of excellent character and repute.

Mrs. Carl Wilk.

Marie Wilk, wife of Carl Wilk, a retired florist, died on May 24, at her home, 220 Clarkson avenue, Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y. Funeral services were held on Sunday. Interment at Evergreen Cemetery. She is survived, in addition to her husband, by five daughters and one son. She was born in Germany sixty-five years ago and had lived in Brooklyn for fifty years.

Alexander Siegel

We regret to announce the death of Alexander Siegel, who passed away on May 25, after a long and painful illness. He was for several years proprietor of the floral department at the Wolf Wilson Drug Co., St. Louis. He was born in Cincinnati and was 63 years old when he died. He was a member of the St. Louis Florist Club. The funeral was largely attended and numerous floral offerings were sent. Alex. Siegel was a good fellow in every way and will be missed.

David I. Saunders.

David I. Saunders, a pioneer florist of Washington, D. C., having been engaged in that business for nearly a half century, died on May 18 at his residence, 2203 2d street northwest. Mr. Saunders, who was sixty-nine years old, was born in New Haven, Conn., January 16, 1849. He was the eldest son of the late William Saunders, who was connected for many years with the Department of Agriculture and superintendent of gardens and grounds. Besides his wife, Mr. Saunders is survived by four sons, a daughter, sister and brother.

Camden, Me.—There was a large and very attentive attendance at the last regular meeting of the Garden Club on Tuesday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. J. C. Murdock, gardener at the Chatfield estate, spoke on "The Home Garden," confining himself almost exclusively to the vegetable garden and he spoke most interestingly. He gave many valuable points on the care of the garden and what to do for specific crops.

CUT FLOWERS

Flower Market Reports

A very unusual Memorial Day experience was had by the Boston florists. Of outdoor flowers there were practically none. Of indoor product there was the heaviest supply ever known for this occasion. Some growers, not satisfied to rely on their regular cut, resorted to cold storage and the resultant influx, especially of roses was something enormous. Carnations, also, were subjected to the hold-up process and many dilapidated shipments were in evidence. There were mountains of candytuft, sweet peas, lilies, feverfew, astilbe, yellow daisies and late daffodils, and it was out of the possibilities to dispose of it all to advantage, yet the sales at wholesale must have far exceeded that of any previous year notwithstanding the very inclement weather conditions prevailing for the two days preceding the holiday. Shipping trade was very heavy and far overtopped the local business. The sale of artificial wreaths was phenomenal, dry goods stores, department stores and other concerns being heavily in it in competition with the retail florists. And be it recorded that of the considerable advertising space occupied in the daily newspapers by the retail florists every line of same so far as we noticed was devoted to the exploiting of artificial wreaths and not one word to fresh flowers.

When this reaches HORTICULTURE'S readers, Memorial Day will have passed and unless something unforeseen transpires it will be written up as one of the best we have ever known. Like all the florists' big days this year, some new impetus seems to have been given it and business is limited only by the amount of stock obtainable. Friday and Saturday were very busy days. Sunday, wholesale houses were open all day and every one in them on the jump. Monday, shipping was so great that it was hard to find time to wait on the home trade. There was some difference in the capacity of the various houses, some having more stock than others, but probably all turned down more or less orders, especially for peonies and colored carnations. If the sun had shown and the temperature been higher, the stock coming into the market would unquestionably have been doubled. Peonies are decidedly backward, the market having but few for the last of May. All kinds of roses are coming in quantities that may be more than sufficient next week, but this week are inadequate to meet the heavy demand. There are many sweet peas and all the colors of iris, southern gladioli, snapdragons and tulips as well as many other miscellaneous flowers.

Memorial Day business is excellent. The cut of outdoor stock is rather short but a good supply of indoor material is coming in, and this should be able to take care of the demand in good fashion. The peony cut falls short of the standard cut of other years for Memorial Day. Roses and carnations are in a heavy supply. Lilies are plentiful and prove good property for this holiday. Excellent gladioli and snapdragon are offered. Sweet peas are in fair supply and have a good market. Callas, mimosas and corn flowers form a part of the general stock.

Full details of the New YORK Memorial Day business here are not yet available at this office, but in general the situation can be described as one of enormous supply of indoor flowers with demand insufficient to satisfactorily consume them. Roses and carnations were in inordinate supply and dealers were glad to sell, in most cases, at low figures, although some specialties of wide repute brought top figures. The business done by suburban and cemetery florists was unprecedentedly large, both for plants and flowers, but there was stock enough and to spare. Many flowers usually filling a place of prominence in the Memorial Day menu were conspicuously absent in the market this year, but there was plenty of other material to take their place. The cut of roses was very heavy. Outdoor lily of the valley was abundant and nobody seemed to care about it.

Trade has been PHILADELPHIA pretty fair with prices ruling rather lower all along the line. The situation improved a little on Friday and Saturday on account of the approaching holiday and advance bookings. Roses are plentiful and the quality unusually good for the season. The same may be said of carnations and the supplies of same are more abundant than for some time past. Sweet peas are still fine but moving a little slow. Memorial Day trade started in briskly on Monday, the 28th. Local peonies are not in, which is making business in other lines better.

Judging from prospects at the time of writing, Memorial Day business will be surpassingly good this year, and according to the way orders are coming in, all lacking to make it the banner year in the history of the local trade, will be the scarcity occasioned by the daily showers and attendant dark skies and chilly atmosphere. The peony situation has fulfilled last week's prediction and there is not a single home-grown bloom. The few peonies that have come in from the South are of inferior quality. Green decoration stuff is scarce, Asparagus plumosus being especially so. Roses, lilies and carnations are coming in quite well, the quality being all that could be desired. Even American Beauties are abundant and selling well. Prices continue to hold up well.

Trade has continued ROCHESTER very active during the week, with prices about as usual. Bedding stock does not move over-fast. Everything outside is at a standstill. A few good sized weddings have taken place and have helped to work off large quantities of stock. Roses are plentiful and the shorter grades clear at low figures.

 IN ANY QUANTITY
 55-57 W. 26th St., NEW YORK

Very fine quality is seen in Hadley, Russell and Ophelia. Lillies are in abundance just now. Large quantities of German stock in pink, white and lavender reach us and clear easily. Yellow Spanish iris sells well, carnations are becoming soft and somewhat inferior. Sweet peas are in good supply and the demand is according. Tulips are plentiful and sell well.

At time of writing, carnations, sweet peas and roses have stiffened in price, of course, owing to Memorial Day demand, which is expected to be heavy. Fancy stock in roses is bringing good prices.

Scranton, Pa. — A pretty spring floral exhibition was given by the garden department of the Century Club on Thursday, May 17. Chester J. Hunt, of Little Falls, N. J., was a large exhibitor of tulips and narcissi.

A QUESTION OF PIPING

Editor HORTICULTURE:

Please let me hear from you through your columns, the size and number of pipes required to keep at 65 degrees, a house 26 by 140, 4 ft. to eaves, 11 ft. to ridge.

Thanking you in advance, I remain,
Washington, D. C. E. F. G.

In answer would say the party does not state whether he wishes the house heated by hot water or by steam. If heated by hot water it would require 1,075 feet of 2" pipe; and 640 feet of 1½" pipe if heated by steam, to keep the house at a temperature of from 65° to 70°. A house constructed by a local contractor is usually not as tight as it should be, and we have, therefore, figured on a sufficient quantity of pipe to maintain the above mentioned temperature.

GREENHOUSES BUILDING OR CONTEMPLATED.

Aurora, Neb.—F. A. Davidson, addition.

Pride's Crossing, Mass.—A. C. Burage, two houses.

Ansonia, Conn.—Shelton Floral Co., additions contemplated.

Independence, Mo.—Eric Frandsen, three houses, each 38x300.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Mrs. Karl Koenig, Thompson Run Road, four 200-foot houses.

CHILE NITRATE.

The Secretary of Agriculture has sent the following telegram in response to an inquiry regarding the availability of nitrate for fertilizing purposes.

Richard H. Edmonds,
Editor, Manufacturing Record,
Baltimore, Maryland.

Am not opposed to the importation of nitrate or the use of nitrate if it could be secured at a price which would justify investment. Impossible to secure nitrate now from Chile for application this season. Government could spare only four thousand tons. This has cost, except in one instance, sixty dollars a ton at seaboard. Quantity too small to be of consequence. Do not know of private supplies that could be secured and, if so, rates quoted seventy-six dollars per ton seaboard. Transportation to farmers would increase this. Rates from private concerns include forty-seven dollars per ton in Chile, same as Government price, and transportation in private ships at abnormal rates for tonnage, insurance and wages because of conditions. Government cannot now use transports and at present could get private ships only at high rates. Have expressed doubt as to wisdom of average farmer investing in nitrate at prices at which it could be obtained, namely, seventy-five to eighty dollars per ton. Experts doubt whether in such circumstances nitrate could be used profitably except by very skillful farmers.

London, Ont.—A fierce hailstorm was experienced here on May 19 and heavy damage was inflicted on greenhouses and their contents, as well as garden plants and fruit.

JACOBS BUILT TO LAST GREENHOUSES

The strong, simple construction of Jacobs Greenhouses enables us to keep costs down to a minimum, without affecting durability or utility. In commercial greenhouse building, especially, where costs must be carefully considered, we honestly believe we can give you a "bigger dollar's worth" than the average. Backed by half a century's experience. Write for estimates—today!

King Greenhouses

KEEP SUMMER WITH YOU THE WHOLE YEAR ROUND

On account of their sturdy special construction which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

How You Can Do Your Bit

THERE is one very practical patriotic duty that must be shared by every one of us, regardless of age or position. It is to keep home conditions normal.

The man or woman who encourages or gives way to hysteria at this time is simply not doing his or her bit.

Hysteria does not help.

It hinders.

Hysteria does not build.

It destroys.

Hysteria is not efficient. And America must be efficient, if America is to win.

Let every one of us order his life and business in so far as possible as if no war existed.

Let us press resolutely forward; let us buy and sell as usual; let us buy our homes, furnish our homes and heat our homes as usual.

Let us be un wasteful, but on the other hand, let us avoid the "hysterical parsimony" that the Council of National Defense has warned us against.

Let us bear in mind that "hard times" can come only at our own invitation, and at our own instigation.

Let us not invite them or instigate them.

Let us think "good times" and act "good times."

Let us help keep America prosperous and progressive and strong.

It is the most that some of us can do for our Country.

It is the very least that any of us can do.

The Beautiful Transformation of an Ugly Skyline Effect

The principal flaw in the top photograph is the unsightly effect produced by dead branches. Edged against the sky is a ragged, monotonous outline in which there is a minimum of grace, symmetry and beauty.

Now note the lower photograph—observe what a wonderful transformation has been effected by Davey Tree Surgeons!

All ugly, dead branches have been removed, and artistic grouping has been achieved by the elimination of certain unimportant trees and bushes. What refreshing variety of outline is now presented, what charm lies in its perfect simplicity!

Possibly your estate offers similar opportunities for enhanced beauty—perhaps a little judicious artistry can bring out "hidden wonders" of which you are now unconscious.

BUT—be careful to whom you entrust this important work. Trimming and cutting, incorrectly done, is dangerous. Thousands of trees are lost every year because their owners do not realize the degree of highly expert knowledge and experience this work requires. More than half the decay in trees is directly traceable to improper trimming.

Take the safe course — —and put your trees in the hands of Davey Tree Surgeons. Tree Surgery, as they practice it, is scientifically accurate and mechanically perfect—the result of the life study of John Davey, "The Father of Tree Surgery," augmented and refined by the massed experience of the greatest body of expert tree men the world has ever known.

Davey Tree Surgeons are the only Tree Surgeons officially endorsed by the United States Government. They have treated and saved the priceless trees at the National Capitol, White House, Naval Observatory, Fort Meyer, Charleston (S. C.) Navy Yard, Annapolis Naval Academy, West Point Military Academy, etc.

They are the only Tree Surgeons endorsed by thousands of estate owners—prominent men and women whose recommendations you can accept with complete confidence. And they are the only Tree Surgeons who are backed by a successful and responsible house, amply able to make good in every instance, and not needing, for the sake of temporary existence, to sacrifice in the slightest degree its high standards.

Write today for free examination of your trees—and booklet, "When Your Trees Need the Tree Surgeon." What is the real condition of your trees? Only the experienced tree surgeon can tell you fully and definitely. Without cost or obligation to you, a Davey Tree Surgeon will visit your place, and render an honest verdict regarding their condition and needs. Write today.

From Mr. Lisle R. Beardslee, Wilmington, Delaware

"The work done by your company upon an old tree in my yard is very satisfactory and a remarkable demonstration of what can be accomplished by the scientific methods followed by your concern."

*From Mr. Arthur Heurtley,
The Northern Trust Company, Chicago, Ill.*

"The work done on my trees by your foreman and his associates has been very satisfactory, so much so that we have been at considerable pains to canvas the neighborhood so as to give the boys some extra work while in the vicinity."

*From Mr. Wm. R. Kenan, Jr.,

"Some twelve or fourteen years ago while visiting at my sister's summer home at Mamaronck, N. Y., I saw your father with a very large corps doing tree surgery on that place. It impressed me so forcibly and, in later years the results were so convincing that, upon the purchase of this place, I concluded to have your company do such work as was necessary here. The work has been entirely satisfactory."

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Eucharis Amazonica

Potted eucharis plants that have finished their crop of flowers can be given a top dressing of cow manure and loam, removing some of the old soil on top and replacing it with new compost. Where they have made lots of roots and are becoming too big for their pots they will be better for a shift, but it should be always remembered that they flower best when well potbound. Place the pots in a cool frame, plunged to their brims in a mixture of straw manure and leaves which will provide a gentle bottom heat. Place shaded sashes over the plants; spray and shut them up sufficiently early in the afternoon to bottle up a brisk heat. By the end of September they can be placed in a house where the temperature is about 50 degrees at night and with a few weeks' rest they will be ready to force for Christmas.

Gardenias

After removing all the plants and old soil make sure to wash every corner of the benches well, then give a heavy coating of hot lime. It is essential to make use of a good porous soil. A little straw should then be spread to keep the soil from going through the drainage. A good compost can be made of three parts of very fibrous loam with one part of well rotted cow manure and some clean sand. The plants should be set about 15 or 16 inches apart. With this space between the plants a 32 to 36-inch bench should only have three rows of plants. After planting soak the whole bench, after which water only the ball of the plants as necessary. Never set out a dry plant. The ball should always be moist, and do not allow the plants to be out of the pots before planting. Firm the soil well all around the ball. Syringe freely on all good days both over and under the foliage.

Lilies

Give them an abundance of air at all times as they resent coddling. Examine the pots two or three times a day so they will not suffer from want of water, and also go over them as the flowers begin to open and remove the pollen before it discolors the petals. Keep the air moist by frequent damping. Some of the tallest lilies should be staked to keep the stems erect and the flowers in good shape. When they are fairly well out they can be moved to a cool cellar. Keep them all well syringed until the flowers begin to open. Do not neglect fumigation. Once green fly gets a good foothold it will deform or ruin a great part of the flowers. Lilium speciosum and longiflorum for summer flowering should have a house without much shade until they begin to open up when they will be better for a little shade.

Resting Callas

Callas in pots can be placed on their sides, after they have ripened a little, in some place where they can bake in the sun. Those that are planted in benches should be done very gradually at first until the foliage begins to turn yellow, when they can be lifted and the soil well shaken out. Callas will not flower well if they do not have eight or nine weeks of a rest. Those that were grown in benches will have a few offsets which can be broken off and planted out in rich ground and can be lifted in September and potted. The tubets should be stored in dry sand in a cool dry place until wanted for planting.

Sweet Peas

Keep them well cultivated and hoed, with thorough watering once or twice a week which should be followed by a cultivation the next day. This will place them in a good condition to receive a mulching between the rows later on which helps to keep the soil cool and better able to retain moisture. Keep the seed pods picked off as fast as they may appear, which will help considerably in extending the flowering season. Should there come a spell of dry weather give them water at the roots whenever possible so they will not receive a check in their growth. Before watering them you can sow some nitrate of soda and wood ashes or other good fertilizer between the rows.

Reminders

Give all plants a new stand frequently now that growth is active.

Keep the young fuchsias regularly pinched that are wanted for flowering later.

Pot up the runners of Boston ferns regularly and keep them well on the move.

Repot young palm stock giving a light shift and a good soil and make up kentias and ericas in pots as needed.

Cissus discolor requires a high temperature and ample atmospheric moisture to bring out to the full its beautiful tints in the foliage.

Next Week: Care of Violets; Chrysanthemums; Cinerarias for Christmas; Bonvardias; Outdoor Roses.

Protection The people of the State of New Hampshire do not intend that the fruits of their labors shall be lost this year by lawless and indiscriminate thieving and depredation and have passed a law providing severe penalties for any stealing or injury inflicted upon food crops growing in fields or gardens. In every place wherever man has planted and nurtured a crop of any kind, large or small, be it either fruit, vegetables, grass or flowers, there should be ample protection for his rights. In the last issue of the Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, Professor Sargent has found it necessary to protest vigorously against the breaking of the lilac bushes in the Arboretum, which, without special police protection would be exterminated in a day. We have often wondered at the peculiar moral obliquity of people who would not think of otherwise tampering with what belonged to another but who seem to see no wrong in entering upon private grounds and stealing lilac flowers. From the children of the streets up to the lady in the limousine, all seem to regard the lilac as a sort of common property!

Lagging behind

Potato and bean patches have been monopolizing so much of the public interest and so thoroughly has the propaganda for vegetable growing been pushed as an offset to the h. c. l. this season that it would seem that the fruit tree as a food producer has apparently been almost lost sight of. Yet it is true beyond all question that much of the rough land which has been plowed up in this New England section for vegetable garden use is far better fitted for the permanent planting of apple trees, and the yield of vegetables from such will in many instances not pay for the cost of breaking up the ground. From our view point it looks as though the nurserymen had been negligent in not taking advantage of the receptive condition of the public this spring to exploit the claims of the apple, pear, plum, quince, peach, cherry, currant, blackberry, grape, gooseberry and other fruits, large and small, as rivals of the annual field crops, in these days of "back to the land" sentiment. There is a vast amount of idle land and there is much that the nurseryman might say to the people regarding its use, which would be not only wise and remunerative as a business move but patriotic and helpful as a factor in the solution of the food problem for the future.

The Boston June show

It is a wonderful exhibition of high-degree floricultural products that has been assembled in Boston's great outdoor show which is now in progress. We wish that every gardener and florist in the land could be privileged to see this exhibition for in many respects it outclasses anything of the kind that has ever been done in this country and it is very doubtful if its equal will be attained or even attempted for a good many years to come. In the standard which it sets and as a triumph of horticulture it is a signal success and this, rather than the financial outcome, has been the chief aim and purpose of its promoters. The large scale and spaciousness throughout make the show extremely impressive for any visitor sufficiently well informed to realize what it means to develop those enormous specimen plants and to transport and properly place them to produce an effect so spectacular. With the exception of the great Waterer group of rhododendrons and the superb orchid exhibits from Julius Roehrs Company and A. N. Cooley and the contribution from Mount Desert Nurseries, the entire show is locally contributed. The unanimity and spirit of loyal co-operation between the different classes of membership, which President Saltonstall so earnestly strives to encourage, is one of the best assets the Massachusetts Horticultural Society can boast of today. In bringing to such a creditable finish the present undertaking, gardeners and their employers and commercial florists have stood shoulder to shoulder and we hope that during the coming week the only other factor required for complete success—public attendance—may measure up proportionately to the occasion.

BOSTON'S OUTDOOR JUNE FLOWER SHOW

Partial View of Central Group in Orchid Tent. Picture shows principally the Julius Roehrs Co.'s Exhibit which received a Gold Medal. The handsome Miltonia in foreground was part of the exhibit by E. A. Clark.

This ambitious undertaking which has been on the tapis for a year or more, opened according to schedule on the Wentworth Institute grounds, Huntington avenue, Boston, on Friday, June 1st. As it has proved, a postponement of the date for at least one week would have been a wise move, for the rhododendrons, which constitute so strong a feature, are now, one week after the opening day, only beginning to expand their buds. The first day of the show was given over to the Red Cross interests and that worthy cause was enriched to the amount of $7,500 therefrom. The public opening exercises took place on Saturday, June 2.

The central feature of the grounds which are about three acres in extent, is a rock garden and miniature lake with cascade and fountain, the work of the landscape department of R. & J. Farquhar & Co. This feature is very inadequately depicted in the illustration on our cover page. It entailed a vast amount of labor at the height of the busy season and among the myriads of plants used are many new and rare gems for the alpine garden. Since the picture was taken many water lilies have come to the surface and are now in bloom. The numerous fastigiate arbovitæ about the grounds and in some of the tents are a part of the Farquhar display and there is also a plantation of new forms of abies and other conifers collected in China by Wilson, contributed by this firm. Julius Heurlein has also a splendid group of conifers planted with pleasing effect.

There are seven tents in the enclosure, six of them 50 x 100 ft. each and one 100 x 100 ft. The great collection of azaleas from Holm Lea, the estate of Prof. C. S. Sargent, occupies one tent as shown in the accompanying picture. In size and beauty of the specimen plants this collection is unrivalled anywhere and it makes a wonderfully beautiful effect.

One tent is devoted entirely to orchids, a partial view of which we are able to present. It is an unprecedented aggregation of gems from some of the most noted orchid establishments in this country, including E. B. Dane, A. N. Cooley, Julius Roehrs Co., J. T. Butterworth, F. J. Dolansky, Mrs. C. G. Weld, E. A. Clark and Miss Cornelia Warren.

Another triumph in Thomas Roland's lengthening list is his rose garden, which fills one tent and is planted with rare artistic skill. Here are seen all the various rose classes in bloom and the baby rambler type is splendidly featured in particular. We shall have a picture of the rose garden in next week's issue.

Nearly one half of the entire tent space is occupied by the rhododendrons. As in the case of the roses and azaleas, these are all plunged in the grass sward and when in bloom they will make a gorgeous garden picture. The exhibitors are F. Gomer Waterer, Bagshot, England, whose plants have been housed and cared for by Messrs. Farquhar since last fall; Walter Hunnewell and Mrs. S. C. Lawrence. The specimen plants run from three up to ten feet high.

Among other notable displays are a great array of giant golden calceolarias from E. S. Webster and Mrs. C. G. Weld, an extensive collection in flower of hybrid azaleas by Charles Sander, gardener at Holm Lea, new astilbes and lupines from Mt. Desert Nurseries, a glorious bed of giant pansies by William Sim, wisterias grown in tree form from Holm Lea and a large group of Statice Suworowii from Faulkner Farm.

The Sander azaleas make a luminous stretch of color, blended with consummate skill and very interesting as introducing a new type based upon the crossing of the species ovata and obtusa upon the beautiful crimson Hinodegeri. They run from white and pale salmon up through all tints to red.

on one side and through a succession of orange and vermilion shades on the other.

The school children are admitted under escort of their teachers free every day except Saturday and Sunday.

The attendance for the first part of the week has been very light. This is accounted for in part by the delinquency in the weather and the fact that the rhododendrons have not yet opened. But the public mind is pre-occupied and registration day with other incidents of war preparation have naturally had a considerable adverse influence. The attendance will doubtless increase with each day, especially if Old Sol attends to his June duties as he should.

On Wednesday President Saltonstall gave a luncheon to the exhibitors and other workers at the Hotel Somerset where brief remarks were made by ex-presidents J. K. M. L. Farquhar, S. M. Weld and A. F. Estabrook, Chairman Dillon of the Park Department, Walter Gott of St. Albans, Eng., James Wheeler and Thomas Roland.

Just before the gates were opened to the Red Cross ticket subscribers the exhibition committee completed its study of the show and decided to make the following awards:

Gold medals: James Wheeler, in recognition of his service to the society in installing the exhibition; R. & J. Farquhar & Co., for the rock garden; Thomas Roland, rose garden; Charles Sander, azaleas and wisterias; John Waterer Sons & Crisp, Ltd., Bagshot, Surrey, Eng., rhododendrons; Mrs. Samuel C. Lawrence, rhododendrons; T. D. Hatfield, rhododendrons; Julius Heurlin, conifers; Arthur W. Cooley, orchids; Ernest B. Dane, orchids; Julius Roehrs Co., orchids. Silver medals: Mrs. Charles G. Weld, Edwin S. Webster, A. Dolansky and Faulkner Farm.

Honorable mention: E. A. Clark, ciation with the late H. H. Hunnewell, the chief promoter of the former enterprise which while small as compared with this year's affair was equally sensational for those days and the records show that it was eminently successful from a financial as well as an artistic standpoint. It was devoted to rhododendrons exclusively.

Mrs. William W. Edgar and General Stephen M. Weld.

Certificate of merit: Philip L. Carbone, J. Whittier and Henry Penn, for garden ornaments.

A PEONY LETTER FROM M. LEMOINE.

The letter given below was received from Monsieur E. Lemoine of Nancy, France, by the Secretary, late last autumn. It will be remembered that the firm of V. Lemoine et fils were given Honorary Membership in our society at the meeting last June.

The letter reads as follows:

"I am very grateful to the American Peony Society for the honor conferred on me, and I beg you to transmit my best thanks to the Society. I was much interested in reading the Bulletin No. 3, and particularly in examining the 'Symposium on the Newer Foreign Varieties.'

"Please note the following remarks about the year of introduction of some varieties: Bayadere, 1910—Bertrade, 1909—Claude Gellee, 1904—Gisele, 1908—La Fee, 1906—Laurence, 1911—Mirabeau, 1904—Rachel, 1904—Sultane, 1899.

"Ornement des Massifs was sent out by Crousse in 1893. We always consider it a poor variety, but very different from Charlemagne (Crousse 1880) which is a good sort, and sweet scented.

"Solange was not named after the Chevalier Soulangue-Bodin, but this is a Christian name frequently used in some parts of central France.

"We spell Renommee instead of Renomme, Mademoiselle Desbuisson, instead of Desbuissons.

"I am sending you the colored plate of tree peony La Lorraine, as requested, together with a picture and a photograph of the new tree Peony Souvenir de Maxime Cornu, which was raised and named by Louis Henry of the Paris Museum of Natural History, and which I hope to send out when circumstances become normal.

"I have so far suffered only immaterial damage from air raids, a bomb having dropped in my garden near the dwelling house last year."

All of our members will be glad to learn that the precious stocks of hybrids in the nursery of M. Lemoine were safe from damage at least up to the time of his letter, and we may hope they still are so.

In the matter of dates, our members will kindly take note of the information here supplied, and incorporate it in catalogue or garden book according as they are professional or amateur growers.

The two color plates referred to in the letter are indeed of great interest. The lutea hybrid La Lorraine has already found its way into this country, though I do not know of anyone having yet had bloom on it. It is a large double bright yellow peony—but those who get the Lemoine catalogues are already familiar with the description of this epoch-making flower. The new variety Souvenir de Maxime Cornu—another lutea hybrid—is, to judge by the color plate and the photograph of the plant in bloom, another great advance. The flower is fully double, of a magnificent bright yellow, with reddish shadings on the edges of some of the petals. The photograph of the plant shows a large vigorous bush with foliage much like that of P. lutea, and decorated with 17 or 18 huge, fully expanded blooms.

The Secretary did what he could to obtain copies of some of these pictures for distribution with the bulletin, but they were unobtainable in any such quantity. They will be on view at the Philadelphia meeting, and any member who is particularly interested and who cannot be present there, may have a look at them later on if he will signify to the Secretary that his happiness depends on it.

Just as this bulletin is ready for the press, the May number of the Garden Magazine comes to hand, with an excellent, though too brief, appreciation of M. V. Lemoine, the father of the present head of the firm. Our readers will be interested in both the sketch and the photograph of this remarkable man, "the greatest plant breeder that the world has ever seen."—Bulletin No. 4, Amer. Peony Society.

Formal Gardens are the expression of landscape architecture, man's handicraft. They do not symbolize or stimulate Nature and have little interest or attraction for one who is familiar with the natural landscape pictures of the Master Artist.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY

ROSARIANS VISIT ARLINGTON.

A better day could not have been wished for than when the members of the American Rose Society and their friends made the annual pilgrimage to the Government rose test gardens, at Arlington, Va., on June 4. The day was in marked contrast with that of last year and the year before when the trip was made through mud that clung to the walkers.

Prof. L. C. Corbett delivered the address of welcome, following his introduction by President S. S. Pennock. He told of how the rose garden had come into being, through the co-operation of the American Rose Society with the Department of Agriculture, and the purposes for which it was started.

J. Horace McFarland made a plea for "business as usual." He referred to what he termed the hysteria of some of the people of the country who seemed to believe that no one should talk anything but about the war, and should expend his efforts along all war lines. Under this scheme of things there would be no place for the florist.

Assistant Secretary Vrooman, of the Department of Agriculture, took the opposite view.

Those who registered with the secretary included Dr. E. M. Mills, Syracuse, N. Y.; E. G. Hill and Gurney Mann, Richmond, Ind.; Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.; Miss Katherine H. Neily, John Richardson, and Edward Kress, Baltimore, Md.; G. E. Anderson, Twin Oaks, D. C.; B. W. Ansporn, College Park, Md.; E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.; Roger Murphy, Urbana, O.; Frank E. Good, Springfield, O.; J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa.; I. W. Staalmann, Oakton, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Cook, Watertown, Mass.; Joseph Heacock and James W. Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.; A. Patten, William I. Hough, F. W. Kuehn and R. W. Frischkorn, Brookland, D. C.; E. J. Forward, East Falls Church, Va.; S. S. Pennock, F. J. Michell, Jr., and Robert Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.; Prof. F. L. Mulford, William F. Gude, C. Corbett, D. N. Shoemaker, Adolph Gude, Otto Bauer, George Field, Ernest Gude, Chas. E. F. Gersdorff, R. L. Jenkins, George W. Hess, C. M. Jenkins, M. Behrend, Geo. C. Shaffer, Prof. David L. Fairchild and Mr. Peters, Washington, D. C.

It was voted to have made a gold flag pin that would bear an appropriate inscription on the back, for presentation to Dr. Walter Van Fleet in appreciation of what he has done in rose production.

At Twin Oaks, D. C., the visitors were the guests of Mrs. Charles J. Bell.

ROSES COMMENDED.

The judges at the annual inspection June 4 of the National Rose Test Garden at Arlington Farm, Va., noted the following roses as worthy of special mention.

Teas and Hybrid Teas: Laurent Carle, Gruss an Teplitz, Lieutenant Chaure, Mary Countess of Ilchester, Mme. Paul Euler, Dorothy Page Roberts, Mme. Jules Gravereaux, Lady Ursula, La Tosca, Mrs. Wakefield, Christie-Miller, Lady Ashtown, Gustave Grunerwald, Countess of Gosford, Konigan Carola.

Dwarf Polyantha: Katherine Zeimet, Baby Tausendschoen, Ellen Poulsen, Mrs. Wm. H. Cutbush, Baby Dorothy, Triomphe Orleanaise.

Climbers: Countess M. H. Choteck, and Bess Lovett. F. L. MULFORD.

INVESTIGATIONS IN ROSE DISEASES.

Last year in response to a letter from President Pennock of the American Rose Society, thirty-two florists very generously contributed toward the investigations in rose diseases which were carried on by Dr. L. M. Massey of the Department of Plant Pathology at Cornell University. Dr. Massey has put in considerable work on this problem during the past year and has several lines of investigation well under way. It is the feeling of the officers of the American Rose Society that Dr. Massey should continue his work during the coming year, as was outlined in the project of a year ago. At that time it was stated that it was expected the investigation would be on a two-year agreement. Last year the American Rose Society pledged itself to support Dr. Massey while in the field one-fourth of the time, and that the cost would not exceed $1,000, of which sum $500 the first year and $250 the second year would be for traveling and other special expenses. The rest of the expenses of the investigation have been borne by Cornell University.

Dr. Massey carries on the major part of the outside work during his vacation periods, when he is free from college duties, and can visit commercial ranges. Laboratory research is carried on during the college year.

In this issue there appears a preliminary report of Dr. Massey's work. It will be understood from the nature of the project that definite results cannot be given in so short a time. It seems, however, that Dr. Massey's work during the past year has opened up some wonderfully valuable lines of investigation, which should be continued.

It is hoped that a large number of men interested in rose growing who did not contribute to the work last year, may feel interested to do their part this year. All subscriptions should be sent to E. A. White, Secretary American Rose Society, Ithaca, New York.

PRELIMINARY REPORT OF THE PATHOLOGIST IN CHARGE OF INVESTIGATION OF DISEASES OF THE ROSE.

The investigations covered more or less briefly in this report were begun August 1, 1916. During the first four months much time was spent in visiting rose plantings in northwestern United States, making a survey of diseases. This seemed desirable in order to acquaint us with the various diseases, together with their range and the extent of injury caused by them in this country. With these facts in mind suitable plants and materials have been collected for experiments now under way which will prove of the greatest value to growers of roses.

The gardens and greenhouses of about fifty rose growers have been visited. The number and extent of the diseases present have been noted and specimens taken for further study. Probably an equal number of growers have also materially aided the work by sending in specimens. These specimens have been examined and the grower advised as to the cause and control of the disease so far as our present knowledge and experience allow. If the trouble proved to be new, of unusual interest or of a serious nature, special work has been started to determine the unknown facts regarding the disease.

Diseases Noted—Old.

The survey and correspondence with growers has shown the most important rose diseases in order of importance, to be (1) black spot, (2) mildew, (3) crown gall, (4) stem canker, (5) Phyllosticta leaf spot, (6) rust, (7) bud rot, (8) other leaf spots. Practically all of these diseases are always present and take from the growers yearly tolls of surprising magnitude. It is not uncommon to find gardens and houses with all the plants completely defoliated by ravages of the leaf spot diseases, especially black spot, thus making the plants unsightly and so reducing their vitality that they are susceptible to attacks of other fungi, from which roses are ordinarily immune, and to frost injury. It is unnecessary to mention the damage done by mildew, while there is an ever-increasing demand for information relating to crown gall, stem canker, rust and bud rot. Unfortunately very little is known regarding the control of most of these diseases; and many points remain to be investigated concerning the control of such common and well-known diseases as black spot and mildew.

WEED KILLER

THE VERY NEWEST AND QUICKEST METHOD OF DESTROYING WEEDS, GRASS AND OTHER GROWTH IN GARDEN WALKS, GUTTERS, TENNIS COURTS, DRIVEWAYS, ETC.

This fluid absolutely destroys all weeds and other growth wherever applied, and its effect on the ground prevents the growth of fresh ones for a year and thus saves a great deal of time and labor, as no cutting, hoeing or hauling away of the weeds is required.

Diseases Noted—New.

A new, and what appears to be one of the most important diseases of the rose, has been observed by the writer in visits to rose houses. We are calling it the "crown canker." Specimens have been sent to the Department by growers from many parts of eastern United States and from as far west as Missouri. It was first observed by the writer in September, 1916, but talks with growers indicate that the disease has been present for possibly four or five years. All varieties seem to be susceptible to the disease. The plant is attacked just below the surface of the soil and although the disease advances slowly, the death of the plant is sure with an ever-decreasing number and quality of flowers.

This disease, which has never been described, is considered of such importance that a large part of the writer's time is being devoted to a study of the life history of the causal fungus and the development of a method of control. Several large growers have stated that unless help is obtained they will be forced out of business. With the disease already known to be present in the houses of ten large growers, it is safe to assume that other growers have plants similarly affected and that the disease will be widely distributed and increase rapidly in importance. Steps must be taken immediately to control this disease. Not only is it important that growers who already have the disease shall be furnished with control methods, but is even of greater importance that the method of dissemination of the fungus be worked out in order that the further spread of the disease be checked.

What appear to be other new diseases than the one mentioned above have been brought to the writer's attention, but too little progress has yet been made in this investigation to give definite statements at this time.

Investigations Under Way.

A. Black spot. It is planned to conduct extensive experiments for the control of this disease during the coming season. Plants at the Cornell Test Garden and at Chase Brothers' Nursery, Honeoye Falls, New York, will be treated with various fungicides along the lines of recent developments in plant disease control. One of the most important fungicides to be tried is that of finely ground sulphur applied in the form of dust. Suitable plants have been obtained and are now growing in the greenhouse at Cornell for similar experiments for the control of black spot under glass.

B. Mildew. Experiments for the control of mildew through the use of finely ground sulphur used as a dust on both indoor and outdoor roses.

C. Phyllosticta leaf-spot. A study of the life history of the causal organism is now being made. This is one of the most important leaf-spot diseases of Ramblers, and methods of control will be tried during the coming season.

D. Crown gall. Some 200 healthy plants have been obtained to be inoculated with bacteria causing this disease. These plants will be grown to determine the effect of the disease upon the plant, there being a divergence of opinion as to just how much damage is done.

E. The new root or crown disease, crown canker. Extensive experiments for the control of this disease are now under way. It is probable that the fungus lives in the soil and that successful treatments will be along the line of soil sterilization and the practice of sanitation in the houses. However, the effects of chemicals—lime, acid-phosphate, sulphur, etc.—upon the fungus, when applied to the soil, will be tried. Some 300 rose plants have been obtained and are now growing in the greenhouses at Cornell for these experiments. Much time is being spent in working out the life history of the causal organism, as such information is essential for a comprehensive study of control methods.

F. Fungi and bacteria causing other diseases of roses are being studied in culture. These organisms have been isolated from diseased material obtained from growers. Their pathogenicity will be tested and control experiments conducted where the organisms prove parasitic and the importance of the disease warrants such action.

Conclusion.

It will be seen from the above statements that while there is but little yet to report in the line of results in control, still considerable progress has been made and the foundation laid for experiments for the control of diseases which are of extreme importance to the growers of roses. There is every reason to expect that another year's work will bring results upon which proved and definite advice may be furnished the growers for the solution of their rose-disease problems. It is hardly necessary to add that is very essential that the work be continued, for should it be dropped at this point, the work already done will amount to but little.

SWEET PEA IRREGULARITIES.

Editor of HORTICULTURE,

Dear Sir:—In HORTICULTURE of May 26th there was an article in regard to Sterling Stent, Barbara and Robt. Sydenham sweet peas, stating in reference to Barbara that probably there would be stock enough of it another year to warrant listing it. The three sweet peas in the order I have mentioned them came out in the following years: 1911, 1912, 1915, and stock of Barbara has been listed or could be listed by any seed house in America since 1912. Robt. Sydenham, which came out in 1915 is quite generally listed by seed houses in America and why should Barbara, which came out three years earlier, not be listed? It is listed by a few but not by as many as list Robt. Sydenham. Barbara, I consider the best of the three, being of much better Spencer form, larger bloom, and longer stem than the other two.

The great trouble with a number of our seed houses on this side is that they are not up-to-date on sweet peas and are prone to substitute varieties which they regard as synonymous, that are not alike at all. I have two varieties of sweet peas coming into bloom now, bought from a seed house

Your ad. on Hydrangeas was very effective and has helped me to dispose of two houses of Hydrangeas for Memorial Day. We have had a great many letters telling us how fine the stock is.

Thanking you, I am

Yours very truly,

A. L. MILLER.

I will make an exhibit of these sweet peas alongside of the true varieties at the Boston Show, and I hope that a representative of the firm in question may be present. No doubt they will hide behind the warranty clause, but with responsible seed growers taking every precaution to keep stock true such an excuse will hardly hold good.

DESTRUCTION BY TORNADO AND HAIL.

Reports of the severe storms which swept over central Illinois and portions of Indiana and Tennessee, May 26 and 27, show that many florists have suffered financial loss, but so far none in the trade have lost their lives or been seriously injured. It is only a few weeks since the tornado which wrecked the Benthey greenhouses at New Castle, Ind., and just missed the Peter Wieland range. This time there was a very heavy fall of hail and the Wieland loss of glass was considerable, while the damage to stock in the houses and field looks now to be very great, especially to the young carnation plants in the field. Peony plants were just coming into bloom and acres of them were stripped by the hail. Mr. Wieland's range has 100,000 sq. ft. of glass, and breakage is estimated at four or five hundred boxes. This can easily be replaced but the loss to the stock will be much more and insurance will cover but a small part of the damage. There are many growers of flowers and vegetables in northern Indiana and nearly all lost glass, that of the Davis Gardens at Terre Haute being most severe, where it is estimated two car loads of glass will be replaced. The cucumbers, a specialty here, were badly cut. A new range of houses was under construction by Lord & Burnham Co.

The storms were not confined to Illinois and Indiana, but swept on into Tennessee where the McIntyre Bros. at Nashville had more than one-half the glass in their new ranges broken. Louis Henry is also a heavy loser, while the Joy Floral Co., having the largest range in Nashville, escaped almost without loss. The last week of May brought disaster to a large section of the middle west and only a small portion of the damage has as yet been located. When complete, it will be a record of stupendous loss to florists and vegetable growers whose investments meant years of labor and were of a nature that could not withstand the combination of wind, hail and rain.

CHICAGO.

Archie Spencer, well known wholesaler in the Atlas block, has the sincere sympathy of the trade in the loss of his mother, whose death occurred last week at the family home, 550 N. Ridgeway, Ave.

E. F. Winterson lost his beautiful new house at Highland Park by fire, May 25th. The loss is covered by insurance but this does not pay for the disappointment and anxiety occasioned by such an event.

At Simpson's Flower Shop the spring trade has been very good and orders for commencements are now coming in rapidly. C. B. Le Mare, a partner in the business, is spending a few days in Rockford, Ill.

The J. C. Moninger Co. has the rebuilding of their warehouse that was destroyed by fire last winter well under way and this firm will be better prepared than ever for taking care of their orders for greenhouse materials.

The American Bulb Co. report excellent sales for the month of May. A. and M. Monblatt have joined the traveling sales force of this firm. Paul Dressel, who has been with this house for six months has enlisted in the navy and is awaiting his call.

Counter trade is still brisk at the seed stores, the killing frost on the 23rd of May not having discouraged home gardening but rather to have aroused greater efforts. The department stores also are doing a much larger business than usual.

The retail florists in the downtown district are not anticipating any less demand for flowers on account of the war. They say they have not had any falling off yet, but on the contrary, rather an increase, as flowers are all used as expressions of sympathy.

Kennicott Bros. have peonies and other stock at their new store and business is going on at both places. H. B. Kennicott reports a large advance over last year's May business. It is the first year that they have not had peonies in cold storage before June 1st.

At Wm. J. Smyth's store, Mich. Ave. and 31st St., wedding orders are coming in briskly and some very large ones are on the books for later in the month. Mr. Smyth says the wealthier class may not be buying so heavily this year but that the middle classes are more than making up for it.

The month of May averaged the lowest temperature for ten years and included one killing frost. The effect upon the quantity and selling price of the stock is something upon which there is more or less difference of opinion, but the effect upon the coal supply leaves no one in doubt. The outlook for the future is a serious one and the coal situation is one of the things causing the growers much concern.

PHILADELPHIA

George Cook is a new recruit in the outfit of the Leo Niessen Co.

Edward Dornheim has joined the forces of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

The American Peony Society will hold its annual exhibition at Horticultural Hall, Broad and Locust street, Philadelphia, June 11 and 12.

Count Brother Engler of the Florists' Exchange among the bright particular star bowlers in the 1917 tournament inaugurated by the Florists' Club. We noticed 253 on the board June 1st, and that is nothing unusual for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram L. Pennock will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on the 5th inst at their home in Lansdowne. Only members of the family take part. They are a goodly number, and at least forty of them are expected to attend. The original Pennock came over with William Penn, and his descendants have had a mighty influence in the growth and development of Pennsylvania from that time to this.

PITTSBURGH.

Miss Grace Dryden has resigned as designer and saleswoman for the Briggs Floral Shop.

Rudolph Lilke, an attache of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Company, is critically ill with pneumonia.

Colored designs have been submitted by the high and public school pupils in competition of a prize of fifty dollars offered by the A. W. Smith Co. for the best street car advertisement. The exhibition will be on display at the Keenan Building next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Donald McCallum and his sister, Miss Elspeth, promise to follow in the steps of their father, Neil McCallum, foreman of West End Park. The young son has commenced as an apprentice in the landscape department of the A. W. Smith Co., while the daughter is a student in the University of Pittsburgh preparing to teach Nature Study.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Over 200 varieties of lilacs are now to be seen at Highland Park.

Mrs. Owen, of Rochester Floral Co., motored to Buffalo and Niagara Falls on Memorial Day.

Word has reached us that Dewey Lester, formerly with Rochester Floral Co., will soon be removed to El Paso, Texas.

Over 15,000 potted geraniums were sold by the various growers for the decoration of the Soldiers' graves in the different cemeteries May 30.

The Peony Show, which is to be held at Convention Hall, has been postponed on account of the lateness of the season until June 28, 29 and 30th.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The recent marriage of Adolph Gude, Jr., son of a member of the firm of Gude Brothers Company, and Miss Inez Gilbert, at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Southeast Washington, has just been announced. Young Mr. Gude is connected with the 1214 F street store of the firm. The young couple have taken up their residence in the Wardman Courts. —

William F. Gude, on behalf of the orchid growers, and C. B. Knickman, of McHutchison Company, last week presented to W. A. Orton, of the Federal Horticultural Board, the matter of the fumigation of orchids, under which recently a number of plants have been killed. As a result of their visit this scheme has been discontinued for the time being or, at least, until the board will have found some other method of combating the insect which they say is doing a great deal of damage to orchids.

Dr. J. B. Parker, president of the Brookland Rose Society, has been awarded the Shahan gold medal, sweepstakes prize for the largest number of merit points, at the sixth annual rose exhibition held by the society. He had a total of fifty-eight points. This Society is affiliated with the American Rose Society, and the exhibition was a departure from previous shows, in that the rules of the American Society were followed, separating the exhibits into classes, where heretofore the exhibitors have made collective exhibits.

ST. LOUIS.

Joseph Wors, son of C. W. Wors, has enlisted in the navy. He preferred to do this rather than wait for the draft.

Park Commissioner Cunliff has been reappointed commissioner. He is a great worker, looks well after the people's interests.

Henry Ostertag was married on the afternoon of June 1 at the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant to Minnie Spohr. They will spend their honeymoon in Chicago and up at the lakes.

NEW YORK.

Charles H. Totty has been confined to his home for several days with an attack of rheumatism.

We are deeply sorry to learn of the bereavement that has come to W. E. Maynard in the death of his daughter, a beautiful girl of 19, which occurred in the Nassau County Hospital on Saturday, June 2, as the result of an operation on the throat.

A CORRECTION.

In our notes from Rochester last week mention was made of the "evergreen raspberry" from Oregon at Highland Park. This should have been evergreen "barberry" (Berberis repens).

The Connecticut Horticultural Society has decided to give up all flower shows for the year on account of the war conditions, but will probably have a vegetable exhibition in the fall.

The first of the June exhibitions of flowers, fruits and vegetables of Worcester County (Mass.) Horticultural Society will be June 14 in Horticultural Hall. Exhibitions will then continue every Thursday until October. The season will close with the chrysanthemum show in November.

NEWS NOTES.

Waco, Texas.—Thos. J. Wolfe has suffered a nervous breakdown and has gone into a sanitarium.

Saco, Me.—Alonzo Hill of North Saco, a well known florist and gardener, was given a surprise party Tuesday evening, May 29, by 23 relatives and friends, the occasion being his 73d birthday anniversary. Mr. Hill, who is a veteran of the Civil War, was the recipient of many gifts, among them being a large flag which was presented with appropriate exercises consisting of patriotic songs and readings, to which Mr. Hill responded most feelingly. The remainder of the evening was spent socially.

THE EDUCATIONAL IN LANDSCAPE PLANTING.

From "Art in Landscape Gardening," by A. H. and N. M. Lake, Marshfield, Wis.

Considering the very important part performed by plants, directly and indirectly in the life, welfare, comfort and enjoyment of mankind it would seem that scientific knowledge of plants should be one of the foremost studies in our schools and colleges and that popular education in this branch should begin at an early age and vigorously followed throughout our whole course of study. On the contrary there is no scientific study so briefly taught and so lightly passed over by students as the science of plants. The loss in wealth and pleasure through insufficient knowledge of plants is, today, one of our greatest economic leaks. Our text books in botany and our failure to start the pupil in its study at an earlier age are at fault. A considerable portion of field and descriptive botany should be given young pupils in the form of interesting, illustrated, descriptive and instructive reading lessons and at the early age that children love and delight to roam the fields and woodlands in search of wild flowers and fruits. At this early and impressionable age the young pupils' minds would be filled and fixed with many facts of the science of plants and they would be much more interested in and receptive of the more fundamental principles set forth in the text books of botany when the time arrived to take up this important study.

Investigation will disclose the fact that only our most eminent botanists have acquired what may be termed an intimate knowledge of a large variety of plants; that the technical descriptions of plants in our text books were all written fifty to one hundred and fifty years ago—brief, meager and often erroneous; that the average teacher of botany in our schools and colleges is a book botanist and rarely has an intimate knowledge of plants themselves; that students in our schools and colleges have a very restricted opportunity to gain an intimate knowledge of plants on account of the limited range of varieties in their environment; that an arboretum for each school would be a costly establishment; that in the area of our home and public grounds we have the opportunity of easily and cheaply creating such arboreta; that the nursery industry in this country is just in its infancy and that our nurseries are insufficiently stocked with the known species of plants that are desirable and decorative; that our nurseries are inefficiently equipped with proper storage facilities for holding dormant plants; that there are no millionaire nurserymen and that prices for nursery stocks, retail and wholesale, are too low to afford a fair and adequate profit; that it is well nigh impossible to develop landscape gardeners and landscape architects into landscape artists until the public acquire a more intimate knowledge of plants; that the cardinal principle of landscape art, both on the part of the artist and the critic, is intimate knowledge of plants.

However much knowledge and skill an artist may possess or exhibit in his works, his reputation depends upon the capability of the public to understand and appreciate his art. The development of an art can proceed no faster than the education of the public. It was a long, long road from the Pipe of Pan to the magnificent pipe organ of today. Unless we quicken the interest and education of the public in the intimate knowledge of plants our present aimless and interestless landscape decoration will continue and the cleaning up and beautifying of our cities will remain a slow and stubborn problem.

Flower Market Reports

This market seems to BOSTON have come to a dead stop and doubled up on itself until it is piled high with its debris. Carnations and roses have met a stunner of a rebuff and everybody is as badly puzzled to account for it as they are to foresee where it is going to end. It is not a pleasant prospect to contemplate and there is but little that we can say concerning it that will be of either interest or value just now. Nothing to do but "grin and bear it?"

Following the big days CHICAGO of the week that included Memorial Day, when business houses knew no hours of rest, trade today seems very quiet by comparison. The month of May established a new record for many, if not all of the large houses, and no one is so widely optimistic as to expect such a condition to continue all summer. Saturday was a good day, showing that because people bought flowers for Wednesday it did not necessarily follow that none would be used for Sunday. The reaction, however, came on Monday, when trade was very dull and the market was well filled with all kinds of stock. Peonies suffered with the rest and were sold at any price that would move them. Carnations, that four days before had met eager buyers at five and six cents, now lay on the counters unwanted at any price. There was little shipping trade and local buyers were few for the demand had practically ceased. Weather conditions are not favorable to social affairs and a glut seems inevitable unless something changes conditions within two days. The June commencements and weddings are expected to take care of stock in another week so the depressed condition of the market which exists just now may entirely disappear by the time this is in print.

Business is at a stand-
NEW YORK still. All the customary stock is coming in heavily, and on top of this is the Pennsylvania peony crop, but there is almost no sale for anything and as to standard price "there aint no such thing." The outlook is not very encouraging for a resumption of "business as usual" until there is a let-up in the avalanche of material that is sent in to the market daily regardless of whether it can be disposed of.

Memorial week
PHILADELPHIA opened quite promising and the shipping trade did a lively business on Monday, but the uncongenial weather Tuesday checked buying and in purely city trade the situation was disappointing, all reporting very poor business, nothing like what had been expected. To make up for this, things improved Friday and Saturday and the clean-up was excellent, although at very moderate prices. Weather is more congenial now. Plenty of peonies.

Flowers are becoming more plentiful again and business so far continues to keep apace with prices corresponding. Lilacs and giganteum lilies especially are coming in better. Peonies coming from over eastern Pennsylvania promise to glut the market and bring prices away down in a day or two. Good green stuff is a little short, Asparagus plumosus and sprengeri especially.

The market has been ROCHESTER fairly active during the past week. Memorial Day trade was very good but owing to the bad weather considerable business was spoiled. May 30th was an ideal day and a fair amount of business was done even at the late hour. The month of June has opened up well and the calls for wedding work has been considerable. Quantities of out door lily of the valley are on the market and sell well. Roses, including American Beauties, are in good supply and sell well. Receipts of yellow daisies meet about all demands at present. Lilies are plentiful. Very good Darwin tulips are in and clear easy. Sweet peas, pink and white stocks, and Spanish iris are plentiful and sell well. Orchids do not move overfast. Baby gladioli and snapdragons are being used extensively for basket work. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. Bedding plant stock has moved faster during the last half of week on account of more settled weather.

Raining throughout the ST. LOUIS entire day. Decoration Day was not as rosy as it might have been. Tuesday, the 29th, a great many flowers were sold and shipped away to be delivered on the 30th, but the bad weather on Monday curtailed to a great extent sales especially to the cemeteries. Stock was high. Considerable plants were sold, also ready-made wreaths of all varieties.

The flower market WASHINGTON for the past week has been crowded with stock of all kinds and American Beauty roses were to be had at low figures. The fact that practically no peonies were offered had no effect on the market because of the glut of other flowers. There has been a good sale of Spanish iris. Lily of the valley brought $8 whenever the buyer was lucky enough to obtain the stock. The local outdoor crop is entirely off the market and the northern has not yet made its appearance. Carnations are beginning to show some of the effects of the heat. Gladioli are selling fairly well. The many commencement exercises and weddings has helped clean up the market, particularly of roses such as Mrs. Ward, Ophelia, and Cecil Brunner. Sweet peas are still to be had and seem quite good, with stems as long as fourteen inches. Cattleyas are very plentiful at $6 per dozen.

A CITY MAN'S DREAM.

In the garden I would stroll
Knocking squashes with a pole
Snapping parsnips from the tree,
Digging up the salsify.

Picking sweet corn from the vine
Is a pleasant dream of mine.
Round the garden I would walk
Nipping turnips from the stalk.

Never gardened in my life,
But I often tell my wife
That a garden is a boon
And I hope to have one soon.

—W. S. Adkins in Pittsburg Post.

"BUSINESS AS USUAL."

Editor, HORTICULTURE,

Dear Sir:—Your editorial under the heading of "Cold Feet," in your issue of May 19, also the one in your issue of June 2, under the heading of "Business as usual," are up to the minute in my estimation. It's very surprising that Mr. Jenkins took offense on "Cold Feet." I would suggest that Mr. Jenkins read the advertisement of Hitching & Co. in your issue of June 2. Hysteria is not efficiency. Further comment is unnecessary.

Yours very truly,

Book of Garden Plans

By STEPHEN F. HAMBLIN

Associate of Warren H. Manning,
Landscape Architect

The purpose of this book is to aid those who are planning gardens and country places to visualize problems similar to their own and to see how a landscape architect would solve them.

There are twenty plans of model gardens and places in the book with directions and planting lists for each.
The plans are wide in their variety ranging from boulder walls, arbors, poppy beds, and special borders to the different kinds of formal and informal gardens, rock, water, woodland, Japanese, annual, and wild flower. Photographs illustrate the basic idea of each plan.

The author says of the book in his introduction:

"A rough plan, even if very incomplete, will often be far more helpful to explain arrangement and grouping than will pages of printed instructions. But so as to help make these plans more definite, an actual piece of property was in mind in each case.

"Supposing, then, that the main features on our imaginary piece of ground have been decided upon, he can refer to the blue prints and see how, by the arrangement of our garden material, we can best add to the natural beauties of the ground and give them the touch of human hands."

A final chapter gives information on the practical side of gardening—the trees, plants, shrubs, vines, etc., for various conditions, cost estimating, time for planting, and other details. 20 blue print plans. 32 pages of illustrations. Net $2.00.

New Roof Bar Clasp And How We Stop the Glass

THIS roof bar clasp is new and it's old.

It is our old one changed. The sides have been cut down so that the drip on the bar is left uncovered.

This overcomes entirely the possibility of filling up the groove when painting; or of insects making their nests in there, clogging it up.

It has the same drip opening and air vent at the bottom and is kept in the same way as before from coming full end against the plate, which would otherwise prevent it from drying out and speedily cause end bar rot.

To hold the eave glass from sliding, we are now using a cast iron glazing stop, which is screwed to the plate.

The glass does not fit under it, but simply rests securely against it.

When you are ready to talk building, say when and where and we'll be there.

Improved roof bar clasp, made with low sides so drip opening is uncovered.

Exact size of cast iron glazing stop.

This shows the stop secured to the plate and the glass held in position. It can't slip.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pro.

Care of Violets

Violets not yet planted in the houses should be planted as soon as possible. The plants are usually placed eight by ten inches. Double varieties, especially Farquhar and Marie Louise, seem to thrive better in soil which contains a relatively high percentage of clay. The Lady Hume Campbell and single violets thrive best in light soil. If the soil is inclined to be quite heavy a considerable amount of cinders is added to increase its porosity. As soon as the young plants are in the beds in June, a heavy shade is applied to the glass. This must not be too heavy, however, or the plants become light colored and spindling. It is considered best to apply slight shade at first, increasing the density as the hot days of July approach. The shade is gradually removed in the fall and by the middle of October the glass is clear.

Chrysanthemums

For all the shifts after a 2 or 2½-inch, soil should be made rich; say fibrous loam two parts, well decayed cow manure one part and a good sprinkling of bone meal and soot. Much of the success in growing chrysanthemums can be traced to the compost used. Attend to the watering two or three times a day and give them frequent syringings on bright days, which will encourage a good clean growth. Cuttings that were put in the last of May for single stemmed will now soon be showing signs of rooting. Keep a sharp lookout as to waterings, shading and spraying until they are fit for potting. To have good plants and flowers they should be grown on without a check and never permitted to get pot bound until they are ready for the last shift, which generally is a 6-inch pot. Both day and night give them plenty of ventilation. Keep them tied and staked.

Cinerarias for Christmas

Get fresh seeds of the best strains and sow in pans on a mixture of leaf mold two parts, soil one part, intermixed with clean sharp sand. Cover the seed thinly and water so as to moisten the soil. Cover with a glass and some papers to keep them shaded until they germinate. Seeds of Cineraria hybrida should be sown within the next two weeks to get strong flowering plants for the holidays. A cold frame is the most suitable place for these plants. When the seedlings are up lay off the sashes during good days, but replace them when heavy rain comes, leaving on a few inches of air. They should have movable screens placed over them from 9 a. m. until 3 p. m. to moderate the sun heat.

Next Week:—Antirrhinums for Next Winter; Care of Cyclamen; Mignonette; Mitraria; Seasonable Repairs; Renchias.

Bouvardias

Allow about 12 inches of room each way, making use of a mellow loam for planting. Flowers are not wanted on them at this season and the shoots should be kept pinched back whenever they show an inclination to flower. Nice stock out of 2-inch or 2½-inch pots planted out now will give the plants for benching in September. These flowers come in very handy during the winter. The only thing they want is good rich soil and a light house where the temperature can be kept at about 60 degrees at night. There is no more to their culture than other plants, such as roses or carnations require and you can have them in flower from October on to the last of March. See that they are well cultivated up to the end of August to keep them clear of weeds and the ground open. Where the ground is not very rich a dressing of pulverized sheep manure will tone up their growth.

Outdoor Roses

The June bug is one of the early callers and a marauder that defies the common tactics of the rose grower. Dustings and sprayings of deadly decoctions are of little avail in its case. Gathering the bugs by hand is the best way to bring about a noticeable scarcity of June bugs. Roses out of doors are hardly ever troubled by red spider, if well attended to, but when once infested it will be found that the evil is much harder to fight in the open than under glass. Syringing, forceful and often, in any event a great help to roses in hot and dry weather, is the remedy here as well as indoors. Some of our best roses always suffer more or less from mildew at about this time, notably moss roses, some of the hybrid perpetual class and nearly all of the multiflora section, of which Crimson Rambler is the most striking example. However, it can be checked to a considerable extent by a timely use of powdered sulphur, in mild but frequent applications.

Reminders

Thin out the hardy annuals to the final distance before they get crowded.

Keep the growing points of young vines tied in fairly close or they may be battered about if by wind.

Either mulch or cultivate regularly the borders where young shrubs are planted to keep the sun from the roots.

Cut all outdoors flowers for sending to a distance early in the morning and place them in water until the time comes for packing.

A swindler

A florist of Philadelphia reports that some time ago he paid for a subscription to HORTICULTURE to a man posing as a representative of the paper and giving the name of F. Hill, but never received the paper. The man was an imposter. We give publicity to the fact here so that the trade may be forewarned in case any such party should show up. We again give notice to our readers that HORTICULTURE has no authorized traveling subscription solicitors.

Sweet pea weather

Whatever fault one may be disposed to find with the operations and vagaries of the weather thus far cannot fairly include any criticism of its effect on the sweet peas, for conditions have been most favorable thus far for peas of any kind and should it continue on the same order there is indeed a treat ahead for the sweet pea lovers in the approaching July exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society in Boston. This event in the past two years, at Newport and Bar Harbor respectively, was a keen disappointment to many growers who had made zealous preparation, and all on account of the transgressions of the weather. We hope that fortune will not relax in her amiable attitude this time and that the conditions now so promising may continue, in which case Boston and the sweet pea growers will have a spectacle to present which will richly repay a visit, even though the distance be long.

A noteworthy decision

The radical action in the matter of entertainment at the S. A. F. Convention next August, taken by the New York Florists' Club at its meeting on last Monday night, cannot fail to have a far-reaching effect on the future activities of the national society. It brings to a head in a very natural way, by reason of present economic conditions, that which has been in the heart of many well-wishers of the S. A. F. For a number of years, and for the first time in the history of that organization leaves the way open for any city that may follow New York as host of the S. A. F. to invite the Society without feeling obligated to emulate its predecessor and assume a heavy expenditure for elaborate entertainment. This step can be taken and deep-rooted traditions disregarded with a better grace by New York, perhaps, than by any other city in the country, for her ability and willingness to "go the limit" on entertainment are beyond question and no suspicion of grudging economy can attach to her action as might be the case with places of more limited resources. The S. A. F. will undoubtedly take the action of the New York Florists' Club in good part. It cannot be expected that all will be pleased but we believe the majority of visitors will heartily approve the stand and the motives which actuated the Club, while the greater freedom of movement thus made possible will be much appreciated by both visitors and the local trade.

Prudence

As for ourselves we are particularly pleased to note the disposition to restore to its pristine simplicity and unpretentious character the pleasant social feature of the S. A. F. conventions known as the president's reception. It is to be hoped that the spirit and the letter of the sentiments which seemed to actuate the decision of the New York Florists' Club may be observed and the visitors made to understand that they may leave their swallow-tails and other burdensome toggery at home this August and enjoy the pleasure of a hand-shake with their president and his staff in unconventional comfort. If this and other moderations which many of the S. A. F. members consider becoming in this exceptional year should be literally carried out and a serious business-like and business-helping convention should ensue, the effect upon the public opinion of the florist and his business cannot fail to be reassuring and salutary. What may happen any time now in this war-torn world of ours, no one can predict, and in observing "the eternal fitness of things" the Society of American Florists and the New York Florists' Club will, we believe, have done much toward winning for themselves and the floricultural interests they represent, that popular good will and respect which will soon be sadly needed if the "ruthless" campaign against so-called "luxuries" should continue.

ROSES AND PEONIES AT DREER'S

The genial June weather has at last brought the roses and peonies out in their glory, and advantage of this fine opportunity was taken by Howard M. Earl, George W. Kerr, Douglas Earl and the writer, on the 12th inst., the little party being carried in Mr. Earl's car, efficiently propelled by his son Doug'as, with the aid of a little gasoline, to Riverton and Buzzards Glory. Mr. J. D. Eisele was as ever the pink of courtesy and discoursed most interestingly on the merits of the new and old varieties in the testing grounds.

The rose trial beds are located at Riverton and comprise over five hundred of the new and standard varieties for testing and comparison. No new rose is listed until it has been tried out and found worthy for our climate, and no old variety is dropped until superseded by a better in its class. We mention here only a few of the most striking among the newer varieties that arrested attention in our brief run through.

Mme. Edmond Rostand—A large globular flower of great beauty, deep reddish orange in the center with light salmon outer petals. This is a Pernet-Ducher and, Mr. Eisele said, one of his greatest favorites.

Mme. Chas. Chambard—A fine white, one of Bernaix's introductions.

Daily Mail—This one created much attention in England some years ago and while it is a very odd color the flowers are not very lasting in our climate.

Admiral Ward—This splendid new crimson, named by Pernet-Ducher in honor of our own rose-loving Admiral, is showing up better than ever this year and promises to become very popular—perhaps in the same standard class as the now renowned little yellow, Mrs. Aaron Ward, introduced by the same raiser some ten years ago, and now a standard cut flower sort in the commercial market.

General McArthur—E. G. Hill has given us many fine things but we doubt if he has gained more plaudits for anything since he gave us this fine rose. One of the greatest of outdoor roses and while not a good forcer, crosses from it have made records in that direction. Remarkably good here this year. One-third more flowers than usual.

Mrs. Wakefield Christie-Miller—This well known standby still holds its own among the ideal roses for massing. Its bright pink flowers are very lasting and the plant remains a mass of bloom practically the whole season through. While this one has been with us now some seven or eight years it is so good that we must still take our hats off to it in passing. One of the best things McGredy has given us.

Mrs. Weymss Quin—This beautiful new yellow, one of Alexander Dickson & Sons 1915 introductions, shows up well and bids fair to justify here the gold medal awarded to it in Paris last summer. Splendid form and color and deliciously fragrant.

Mme. Second Weber—Another of the older ones, but still unsurpassed in its class—the salmon pinks.

Los Angeles—Not extra fine on the occasion of our visit but Mr. Eisele has not abated a whit of his enthusiasm for this newcomer from the Pacific Coast. The recent severe rainstorms had hurt its showing for the time being. That one we started this story with (Mme. Edmond Rostand) beats it for the present in its class and color, but "wait a minute sez he."

Mrs. MacKellar—A beautiful lemon yellow, shading lighter in warm weather, large well formed flowers, vigorous growth—resembling in the latter connection the well known Caroline Testout. While only introduced a year ago it has been under test here for five years and shows up this year as fine as ever. Very free. Flowers all summer. This is one of the 1916 Dickson & Sons.

Ecarlate—We all delight in a pure brilliant color and this variety stands out strong in that respect. Not large but very free blooming and a dazzling scarlet. Raised by Boyard, 1907.

Mme. Jenny Gillemot—Another old one but so delicious in form, color and every other desirable quality that delighted salutes are in order in passing.

William Robertson Smith—Beautiful as ever, and helping to keep his memory green and fragrant among us as the years roll by.

Unnamed No. 11; Howard & Smith—A blush self, very large and fine. Looks like a comer.

Mme. Leon Pain—Another bright old lady, ever young. You simply cannot pass her by without making your very nicest obeisance.

We were just starting in at this point to enjoy the Penzance and other climbers when the auto horn sounded for on to the peony farm some six miles distant. Arriving there we were taken in charge by the peony expert of the firm Harry Sim. He showed us over some sixteen acres of all the reliable up-to-date varieties for commercial use explaining the good points of those that could be appreciated by the casual visitor. He was apologetic, however, on the general conditions as the plants had suffered badly from the drouth last summer. There are some eighty thousand plants in the collection.

G. C. WATSON.

State Horticulturist Dudley has condemned a carload of diseased nursery stock being sold in Augusta, Me. Mr. Dudley stated the roots of the trees were covered with hairy root and crown gall.

PEONIES CHARLEMAGNE AND ORNEMENT DES MASSIFS.

In the catalogues of dealers these two varieties are said to be the same. I wrote some years ago to my correspondent, Monsieur Dessert, that in my garden they were not alike, that Charlemagne was superior. I have obtained stock from France, Germany and America, all of which with the exception of the roots from one grower, were Ornement des massifs, a poor variety with dull pink color, in which the buds open badly. I was therefore glad to read Monsieur Lemoine's letter in the last number of HORTICULTURE, as it confirmed my experience. I object however to his use of the adjective "good" as applied to Charlemagne, as inadequate. Charlemagne is one of the aristocrats of the paeony world. It is more like a glorified blush rose in color, form, and perfume, than any other. It always opens well and comes so late as to be very welcome. It ranks nearly as high as Sara Bernhardt, Lemoine, and Lady Duff.

WILLIAM ROLLINS.

ROCK GARDEN PLANTS.

Editor, HORTICULTURE:

Could any of your readers give me a list of plants suitable for a rock garden to be raised from seed for planting next spring? E. M.

The season is rather far advanced for the sowing of hardy perennial rock-garden plants. The list, therefore, is shorter than it would have been had the question been asked in January or February. By sowing in cold frames now the following plants may be raised for planting next spring:

Alyssum saxatile compactum; Aquilegia varieties; Arabis alpina; Armeria in varieties; Asters alpinus and subcœruleus; Campanula carpatica; Cerastium tomentosum; Dianthus, dwarf mountain varieties; Gypsophila cerastioides and G. repens; Helianthemum hybrids; Iberis sempervirens; Iris pumila in variety; Linum perenne; Lychnis alpina; Potentilla in variety; Primulas, hardy vernal varieties; Silene alpestris and S. Schaffta; Tunica Saxifraga; Veronica incana, repens and rupestris; Aubrietias in varieties; Viola cornuta in variety.

PEONY SHOW AT PHILADELPHIA.

The Fourteenth Annual Exhibition of the American Peony Society opened at Philadelphia on the 13th inst. in Horticultural Hall. Up to mail closing time only eleven of the thirty-two classes had been judged so a detailed report will have to be deferred until next week. Messrs. Farr, Boyd, Wister and Newbold were the principal winners in the first nine classes. In classes ten and eleven there were thirty-six and twenty-three entries, respectively. To that the judges had quite a job awarding the two small prizes in each. All the other classes were well contested for and, all things considered, the show reflects credit on its sponsors.

BOSTON OUTDOOR JUNE FLOWER SHOW

VIEW IN ROSE GARDEN BY THOMAS ROLAND, NAHANT, MASS.

The weather of the past week has been far from favorable for the opening of the rhododendron flowers, which had been depended upon to fill so important a place in the attractions of the show. In consequence of this and in order that the public may have opportunity to see this great exhibition at its best it has been decided to hold it open until Wednesday night, June 20, at which time it will positively close. A good many changes have been made in some of the tents since last week, especially in the orchid tent where some of the rarer exhibits had to be removed to prevent injury from too long exposure to unaccustomed conditions. Among the new exhibits is a large display of grand show pelargoniums from E. S. Webster and an extensive collection of lilacs from the Arnold Arboretum. Professor Sargent contributes a fine group of tree peonies. Rosa Hugonis is shown for the first time, long arching sprays of bright single yellow roses, one of the finest hardy novelties which E. H. Wilson brought to us from China and which will undoubtedly prove a big factor in rose hybridization of the future. Professor Sargent's tree wisterias are now in full bloom, the long pendant racemes of the Japanese species being greatly admired.

The following awards have been made since HORTICULTURE went to press last week: Silver medals to Mrs. C. G. Weld for exhibit; Edwin S. Webster for exhibit; Faulkner Farms for exhibit; William Sim for display of pansies; Mount Desert Nurseries for collection of Astilbes; J. T. Butterworth, collection of orchids. Miss Cornelia Warren was awarded honorable mention for display of calceolarias and orchids. Mrs. John E. Thayer was also awarded honorable mention for English ivy in pots. Henry Penn received a certificate of merit for exhibition of garden ornaments.

ORCHIDS AT BOSTON OUTDOOR JUNE SHOW.

Last week we published a picture of a part of the display in the orchid tent. The following notes in detail in the compilation of which we have been materially assisted by Mr. Walter Gott, of St. Albans, Eng., a keen observer in orchid exhibitions, may be of interest to our orchid loving readers.

Julius Roehrs Company, Rutherford, N. J., staged a most wonderful group. The background was composed almost entirely of Dendrobium chrysotoxum, intermingled with some finely grown plants of Odontoglossum Pescatorei. The centre was made up of Miltonia vexillaria in numerous varieties and the rare and beautiful Miltonia St. Andre. Also included in the group were grand forms of Cattleya Mossiae and gigas Sanderiana, Odontia Bradshawiae, several very fine plants of Mossiae Reineckiana and Brasso-Cattleya Digbyana Mossiae variety robusta, a specimen plant bearing ten flowers, and Brasso-Cattleya Maroniae. Several beautiful forms of Laelio-Cattleya Aphrodite and seventeen different species of Dendrobium were also included. The whole group was beautifully and artistically arranged by Mr. Sealey and was probably the best effort this firm has ever made in Boston. Awarded a gold medal.

E. B. Dane, Roughwood, Brookline, Mass., superintendent Donald McKenzie, exhibited an excellent and exquisitely arranged group comprised of splendid forms of Cattleya gigas and Sanderiana and C. Mossiae, Brasso-Cattleya Maroniae and Brasso-Cattleya Veitchii; also some very fine plants and varieties of odontiodas. Also Phalaenopsis Rimestadtiana and amabilis which were beautifully bloomed, Cypripediums Lawrenceanum, callosum Sanderæ, Garbari, Lebaudianum and others. Some fine odontoglossum and grand plants of Miltonia vexillaria, Masdevallia Harryana and Veitchii, Laelia-Cattleya Hyeana Sanders' variety, Vanda suavis and Cymbidium Lowianum. Gold medal.

A. N. Cooley of Pittsfield, Mass., made his first appearance as an exhibitor in Boston and staged a magnificent group, which gained for him a gold medal. Included in his group were probably the finest odontoglossums and odontiodas ever seen in Boston. The following are a few of some of the rare and beautiful varieties which he exhibited: Odontioda Gladys, a magnificent plant with twenty-eight flowers; O. crispum Moonbeam, a magnificent plant and variety with two spikes carrying twenty-four flowers; Odontoglossum ardentissimum variety Zenith, a model flower of dark chocolate color; crispum Xanthotes, eximium Xanthotes and crispum Leonard Perfect; Odontoglossum Her Majesty, ten which was especially fine, crispum Princess Mary, one of the best of the Pacho type; Odontioda Brewii, very dark with two spikes; a wonderfully flowered plant of Odontoglossum crispum-Harryanum with fifty-two flowers on one spike; Cattleya Mossiae Wagnerii nivalis, a pure white form with seven flowers; Laelia-Cattleya Domus, a noble variety; Cattleya Mossiae Cooleyanum, one of the finest forms with three flowers, also Brasso-Laelio-Cattleya Veitchii splendens and a beautiful bright Odontioda Chanticleer. The plants were of excellent culture and reflected great credit upon his orchid grower, Oliver Lines.

F. J. Dolansky, Lynn, Mass., occupied one end of the tent with an extra fine group of magnificent forms of Cattleya Mossiae, including three fine plants of Wagnerii, grand forms of Cattleya gigas Sanderiana and Mendelii, Odontoglossum Pescatorei and crispum and the odd and beautiful Brassia maculata. Awarded gold medal.

J. T. Butterworth, Framingham, Mass., was awarded a silver medal for a choice group which included several finely grown plants of Cymbidium Lowianum and Lowianum concolor; several plants of Dendrobium Jamesianum, the finest in cultivation; Cypripedium Olivia, Cattleya intermedia alba and the very rare Cattleya Mossiae Mrs. J. T. Butterworth carrying three extra fine blooms.

Mrs. C. G. Weld, Brookline, Mass., superintendent W. C. Rust, showed a very finely arranged group, including grand plants of Cattleya Mossiae and Cattleya gigas Sanderiana, Cypripedium Lawrencianum, Miltonia St. Andre, Brassia verrucosa, Odontoglossum triumphans and the beautiful Epidendrum vitellinum. Awarded a silver medal.

Mrs. Brandegee, Faulkner Farm, Brookline, Mass., superintendent William N. Craig, also occupied one end of the tent with several fine specimen plants of Laelia purpurata and Cattleya Mossiae, and a few fine grown plants of Selenipediums.

Edward A. Clark, Jamaica Plain, Mass., superintendent Mr. Golby, staged several fine plants of Miltonia vexillaria, one of which was an exceptionally fine variety; honorable mention.

Miss Cornelia Warren, Waltham, Mass., showed some exceptionally fine specimen plants of Oncidium flexuosum; honorable mention.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., EXHIBITIONS.

The New Haven County Horticultural Society opens its summer campaign this week, by holding its annual iris and peony show in the Free Public Library building, Friday and Saturday, June 15 and 16. Admission is free.

The rose show will be held in the Library building on Friday and Saturday, June 29 and 30. This will be one of the best shows of the year. The gladiolus show will be held on Friday and Saturday, August 24 and 25, and the annual exhibition on Wednesday and Thursday, September 19 and 20. The American Dahlia society has offered two silver medals and two bronze medals as premiums at the annual exhibition.

Obituary

Samuel Appleby.

Samuel Appleby, for over thirty years in the nursery and florist business at Catonsville, Md., died at his home, Swan avenue, May 29th, aged 83 years.

John Young.

John Young, florist, in the employ of Col. Samuel P. Colt, President of the United States Rubber Company, died suddenly at his home in Bristol, R. I., on Saturday, June 9. Mr. Young, who was about 80, was taken suddenly ill at his work in the greenhouses. He started home, but at the corner of State and Hope streets became exhausted and was assisted the remainder of the way by neighbors. Dr. O. R. Siegel found Mr. Young dead on his arrival. As medical examiner, the doctor pronounced death due to apoplexy. Mr. Young was a native of Scotland and in his youth served in campaigns in Egypt and in India. His wife and daughter survive him.

S. T. Minon.

Stephen T. Minon, whose death occurred June 7th at his home 2050 N. Karlow avenue, Chicago, was connected with the trade for many years, and was well known among the florists although not in the business for the past two years. He began when only a boy by working for Kennicott Bros., and was with them nineteen years, leaving for less confining work when his health became impaired, and shortly after opened a retail store at 2065 Milwaukee avenue. Here he remained six years, when he sold his store to Michael Fink and took a position as director with the Commonwealth Edison Co., Mr. Minon leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

Rodman M. Eisenhart.

Rodman M. Eisenhart, a well known flower grower of Philadelphia, died at his home in Holmesburg on June 12th. He was in his 65th year and had been a sufferer from angina pectoris for some time. His wife, two sons and a daughter survive. The sons were associated with their father in the business and will continue same. Mr. Eisenhart was born in Doylestown, Pa., and came to Philadelphia a quarter of a century ago. He made a specialty of growing violets, and some years ago added sweet peas when the winter flowering sorts began to be a big factor in the cut flower market. He was a member of the Florists' Club and S. A. F., and always took an active part in these organizations. Few men were better liked in the trade. He was a very genial companionable man, and respected by everybody and his memory will be held green and fragrant among us for many a day.

Book of Garden Plans

By STEPHEN F. HAMBLIN

Associate of Warren H. Manning,
Landscape Architect

The purpose of this book is to aid those who are planning gardens and country places to visualize problems similar to their own and to see how a landscape architect would solve them.

There are twenty plans of model gardens and places in the book with directions and planting lists for each. The plans are wide in their variety ranging from boulder walls, arbors, poppy beds, and special borders to the different kinds of formal and informal gardens, rock, water, woodland, Japanese, annual, and wild flower. Photographs illustrate the basic idea of each plan.

The author says of the book in his introduction:

"A rough plan, even if very incomplete, will often be far more helpful to explain arrangement and grouping than will pages of printed instructions. But so as to help make these plans more definite, an actual piece of property was in mind in each case.

"Supposing, then, that the main features on our imaginary piece of ground have been decided upon, he can refer to the blue prints and see how, by the arrangement of our garden material, we can best add to the natural beauties of the ground and give them the touch of human hands."

A final chapter gives information on the practical side of gardening—the trees, plants, shrubs, vines, etc., for various conditions, cost estimating, time for planting, and other details. 20 blue print plans. 32 pages of illustrations. Net $2.00.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held at Horticultural Hall on Tuesday evening, June 19, there will be no regular lecture as a dance and collation will follow the business session. A charge of fifty cents per head will be made for the entertainment and tickets may now be had from all officers.

The club has recently purchased a $500 Liberty Loan Bond from its surplus funds. Many members have also subscribed. At the September meeting of the club William H. Elliott will speak on California. At the October meeting, there will be two lectures on vegetables from the commercial and private growers' standpoints. Competitive exhibition will also be held and it is planned to have them open to the public for at least a part of one day.

A chrysanthemum night and special exhibition will be held early in November. This also will be open for public inspection. W. N. CRAIG, Secy.

CHICAGO FLORISTS' CLUB.

The Chicago Florists' Club held its regular meeting June 7th, with reports of various committees as the chief feature. The picnic committee offered no definite recommendation and the matter laid on the table. The transportation committee reported the New York Central to be the official train to the S. A. F. & O. H. convention in August, with stopovers arranged for on return trip. The coal question was brought up, but met with little discussion, not from lack of interest, but because of seeming inability to better conditions. The garden committee reported and was discharged. A report was made by the committee on advertising posters, used in the campaigns for St. Valentine's Day and Mother's Day, showing that when returns are all in the amount of money will be well into the thousands. A plan for a summer advertising campaign in the daily papers was submitted and $150 was voted by the club as its share should the proposition be carried out. John Young of New York was a visitor. New members admitted were Frank Felke, Gross Point, Ill., H. V. Swenson, 624 S. Michigan avenue, and H. E. Humiston, 2109 Summerdale avenue.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

The New York Florists' Club meeting on Monday evening, June 11, will go down into history as a memorable event in the club's career. There were present about 125 members, including a large percentage of men influential, not only in the affairs of the local organization, but of the National Society, and prominent leaders in the trade.

As is generally known, a large appropriation for entertainment and other local matters connected with the approaching S. A. F. Convention had been planned and a number of special committees had been constituted to perfect arrangements accordingly. It was understood that these committees would make report at this meeting but that in view of the war situation the advisability of carrying out the original plans would be brought into question. E. C. Vick, as secretary of the ways and means committee, having read the reports and amounts needed by the various sub-committees, the discussion on the general entertainment proposition was opened by Patrick O'Mara in opposition, who ably displayed his powers as a forceful debater, urging careful and earnest consideration of the appropriateness of any action at this time bordering on unnecessary extravagance, declaring that the New York florists' moral courage was now challenged and that the time was opportune to make a stand for the uplift and repute of future conventions. Other speakers on the subject included James Scott, Charles Schenck, W. Siebrecht, Jr., F. H. Traendly, L. W. C. Tuthill, W. A. Manda and others, expressing variant views on the problem. W. A. Manda made one of his best efforts in an impassioned and eloquent address on what he regarded as an inhospitable backing-down by New York and far from creditable to the club after having assumed the responsibility of host to the expected visitors. The outcome of the discussion was a complete victory for O'Mara and the advocates of patriotic economy, who carried practically every trench, turning down all appropriations excepting that for entertaining the ladies and a few minor matters, discharging the committees with thanks for their services and agreeing to stand responsible for any contracts or other obligations that had been assumed. It was the sense of the Club that the President's Reception be held, not in the most sumptuous hotel in New York as proposed, but in the meeting room in the Grand Central Palace. It was then voted that $5,000 of the Club money be invested in Liberty Bonds, in accordance with the recommendation of the trustees and that $1,000 in cash be appropriated for the Red Cross.

Following the usual recess, Leonard Barron gave his promised lecture on Hawaii, holding his audience for an hour, although the hour was late. The views thrown upon the screen, beautifully colored, were superb and Mr. Barron's splendid effort in description

WESTCHESTER AND FAIRFIELD HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society held its regular meeting on Friday evening, June 8th, in Hubbard's Hall, Greenwich, Conn. After the usual business session James Stuart of Mamaroneck addressed the Society on the culture of cyclamen. His remarks were both interesting and instructive and he was extended a rising vote of thanks.

There is always a fine display on the exhibition tables at our meetings and the June meeting was no exception. Awards were made as follows:

Cultural certificate to James Stuart for Cyrtopodium punctatum; very high commendation to James Linaine for a collection of flowering shrubs, J. B. Roy for a vase of Pentstemon hybrids, Paul Davenger for lettuce "May King" and cauliflower Snowball, Robt. Grunert for sweet peas and tomatoes, and Alex. Clarkson for Spanish iris. The thanks of the society was awarded to Wm. Graham for campanula and an-tirrhinum, Robt. Grunert for lupinus, aquilegia and sweet peas, P. W. Popp for Nierembergia gracilis, and Alex. Clarkson for Darwin tulips.

The summer show will be held at Rye this year, June 19 and 20, and it is under the auspices of the Rye Red Cross, so it is to be hoped that the members will help in making it a success as it is for a worthy cause, and the gardeners by bringing exhibits will help it along as all the drawings and prize money goes to the Red Cross. The society is going to buy $500 worth of Liberty Bonds as agreed to by unanimous vote.

HOLYOKE AND NORTHAMPTON FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

The regular meeting was held June 5th at the Butler & Ullman green-houses, Northampton, a goodly number of members being present. Some discussion took place regarding the annual Fall Flower Show, and it was decided to co-operate with the garden committee of the Holyoke Chamber of Commerce, which is planning an exhibit of garden produce. More than one thousand new home gardens and one thousand school gardens have been started in Holyoke, and about six hundred school gardens in Northampton. Several members of the club are assisting in this work. A committee was appointed to arrange a schedule of exhibits, no money premiums to be offered. G. H. Sinclair gave a talk on the culture of hydrangeas as pot plants. Darwin and May flowering tulips were shown in variety by Sinclair & Son and Gallivan Bros. Butler & Ullman arranged a miscellaneous exhibit, including Spanish iris, ixias, centaurea and delphinium.

The Binghamton (N. Y.) Florists' Association met in Hotel Bennett, Monday night, June 4. A talk was given by William Schmeiskey of the Binghamton State Hospital on "Carnation Culture."

SEED TRADE

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

How Seedsmen Will Help the Farmer.

Washington, D. C.—No agricultural production can be successful unless a good stand of the crop is secured in the field. A full stand cannot economically be obtained if seed of unknown quality is used. With a view to devising some practical means for furnishing the farmer essential information concerning the commercial seeds he is buying, the Secretary of Agriculture recently invited representatives of the seed trade to confer with the Department on the subject. Officers of the American Seed Trade Association and of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers Association, as well as representatives of twenty-one leading seed firms, were present.

Because of the vital importance of the matter in relation to the effort to enlarge the production of staple food and feed crops, the Department suggested that the seed trade voluntarily furnish the following information with the field crop seeds they sell.

1. Name of seedsmen.
2. Kind of seed.
3. Proportion of pure live seed present, with month and year of germination test.
4. Country or locality of origin in the case of the following imported seeds: beans, soy beans, Turkestan alfalfa, and red clover from Southern Europe and Chile.

The representatives of the seed trade present agreed to adopt these suggestions with reference to their own business, and the officers of the associations represented agreed to recommend that these suggestions be adopted by all firms included in their membership. The question of such adoption is now being submitted to individual seedsmen members not present at the conference for their approval.

It is contemplated that the information outlined above will be furnished by seedsmen, with all field crop seeds, when sold in lots of ten pounds or over and that this plan will be put in full operation not later than July 1, 1917. The United States Department of Agriculture, through the Seed Testing Laboratories of the Bureau of Plant Industry, will render such assistance in carrying out this plan as the facilities permit through the making of actual analyses of samples of seed.

Your ad. on Hydrangeas was very effective and has helped me to dispose of two houses of Hydrangeas for Memorial Day. We have had a great many letters telling us how fine the stock is.

Thanking you, I am

DUTCH CARGO SHIPS LEAVE FOR AMERICA.

Rotterdam.—The steamships Amsteldyk and Beukeldyk of the Holland-America Line sailed for America on June 8. These vessels were the first ships to leave with cargoes in the last four months, or since the commencement of the ruthless submarine campaign. They are also the first cargoes to sail under the new arrangements made with the British Government and the concessions granted to the Dutch Government. England has now arranged that outward-bound Dutch ships leaving under the Overseas Trust conditions, can call at Halifax or alternatively that ships will not be interfered with if provided with manifests approved by the Allies.

The cargo of the Amsteldyk consists mainly of sugar beet seed which was unloaded from the Noordam just before she sailed May 15. Otherwise the cargoes are miscellaneous. The American Legation at The Hague has been especially active in making arrangements and obtaining concessions for the shipment of these goods. It is stated, however, that great anxiety and uncertainty reigns in Rotterdam shipping circles and even at the Holland-America Line as to whether Germany will consider all cargoes bound for America contraband.

NEWS NOTES.

Boonton, N. J.—The Onaway Greenhouses have been purchased by Arthur Taylor.

Forest Glen, Ill.—The Brant & Noe

Floral Company has increased its capital stock to $150,000.

Wilmington, Del.—Local florists have complained to Chief of Police Black about the practice of Philadelphia flower vendors invading the local street markets on Wednesday and Saturdays and also of standing on the curbs on Saturday nights selling flowers. It is claimed that these dealers pay no state license, rent or wages to employees and compete with local florists who maintain large plants all the year around at a considerable expense. The habit will be stopped.

DETROIT FLORISTS' BILLBOARD.

Detroit members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association have added outdoor painted bulletins to their general advertising plan. A number of large forceful bulletins on the main thoroughfare are creating considerable favorable attention. Each member is assessed a proportionate sum, paid monthly to the advertising concern, and the list of members is so arranged that each member heads the list on at least one bulletin.

Secretary Albert Pochelon is very enthusiastic over the undeveloped possibilities of the Floral Telegraph business, and looks forward to the time when association members of other cities will adopt like methods to promote a greater inter-change of floral telegraph business. The bulletin shown in the photograph is twelve feet high and fifty feet long. The design is the product of the studios of Walker & Co.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

BOSTON.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society passed the eighty-eighth anniversary of its founding on Tuesday, June 12. The first annual exhibition of the society was held in September, 1829.

Ernest Borowski, a florist of Roslindale, together with a young lady with whom he was riding in his auto, was severely injured in collision with a touring car which ran into his machine and completely wrecked it, last Saturday evening.

A "punishment lot" for Somerville boys who trespass on gardens under cultivation and commit other acts of mischief is to be established on Central Hill. Here boys who have been found guilty will work out their sentences under the supervision of a member of the recreation committee. Somerville is the first city to adopt this method of punishment for juvenile offenders. Last year two boys, who stole pears from a woman's orchard, were obliged to keep the walks around her home clear of snow during the past winter as a sentence.

The lilacs are the big attraction at the Arnold Arboretum this week. Never before in the history of the Arboretum were the lilacs so late in blooming. They are now opening rapidly, however, and for the next three weeks there will be an uninterrupted succession of bloom. The lilac parade has made the Arnold Arboretum famous, and thousands of people come from all over New England, and even from distant states, when they learn that the lilacs are in bloom. Rochester, N. Y., is the only other city in the country which has a collection of lilacs which can approach that at the Arnold Arboretum.

The Harvard University School of Landscape Architecture has established a summer course in Horticulture. Plant study and appreciation, lectures and special readings; identifications in class-room, and field excursions are on the program. This course is designed to make the student acquainted with the summer appearance of the more common of our native trees and shrubs, as well as of some of those introduced from other countries for ornament in our parks, gardens, and private estates. It is planned to give a similar course in alternate years on herbaceous plants grown for ornament in private gardens and in parks, and on annuals used in school gardens.

Summit, N. J.—The senior class in Kent Place school requested its friends to devote the money they ordinarily would spend for flowers for the graduates to a fund to care for a French baby in the war zone. At the commencements heretofore there has been a profusion of flowers for the seniors, some pupils getting as many as one dozen bouquets.

CHICAGO.

Darwin tulips came to an end while the demand for them was just at its height. There long graceful stems made them an easy prey to the cold north wind and the pelting rain.

Sharp, Partridge & Co., report the glass market very firm at from five to six dollars per box, on small orders, and predicts no surplus on account of the great amount being required to replace the loss by wind and hail this season.

Lester E. Partridge, of Sharp, Partridge & Co. has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his mother, Mrs. Jane Earle Partridge at Cleveland, O., June 7th. Mr. and Mrs. Partridge were pioneers of northern Illinois. The funeral was held at Ivanhoe near Libertyville, Ill., on June 10.

Flowers are doing their bit towards relieving the sufferings of war in other ways than as expressions of sympathy. In the suburban towns, the flower gardens are used to raise money for the ambulance funds, and while these sales do not directly benefit the florist it helps to keep flowers out of the class of luxuries and gives the newspaper reporters a chance to write something for flowers instead of against them as has been the tendency all the spring. This week Mrs. A. E. Cook of Evanston is giving her acre of peonies towards the ambulance fund of the Chicago College Club.

NEW YORK.

Ed Roehrs, who has been in the hospital following an operation for appendicitis, is home again in Rutherford, fully recovered.

Word has been received that J. N. May, Jr., who sailed in company with a large number of fellow students from Princeton College to serve in the Ambulance Corps in France, had arrived safely at his destination.

A. J. Guttman in commenting upon his firm's removal to 111 West 28th street, jointly occupied by the United Cut Flower Co., states that the two concerns will by this arrangement save about $5,000 a year each in overhead expense, while the available space in the large store and basement is ample for both.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Schuyler Arnold is shipping some fine aster plants to this city.

Frank McLins has bought out the business of J. C. Brown and has taken possession.

Wm. Baker, formerly of Buffalo visited the trade here last week and may locate in Rochester.

Lilac day at Highland Park was postponed from June 3 to June 10 because of the cold weather and heavy rains.

The Wilson Floral Co. opened a wholesale establishment at 41-43 Stone street, June 9th. The trade wishes them success.

PITTSBURGH.

E. E. Ludwig has enlisted with Ambulance Co. No. 4, N. G. P., which will leave shortly for "somewhere in France."

As a member of the Tenth regiment, N. G. P., Milton Griffith, proprietor of the Monessen Flower Shop, expects to be called out for duty in July. He will leave his business in charge of a cousin.

Ernest R. Bolton, who recently resigned as assistant foreman on the Henry J. Heinz estate, has been engaged to assume charge of the Charles E. Dinkey estate in Braddock, succeeding "Jack" Bysouth, who left to go to France with the U. S. Engineering Corps.

The junior employees of the E. C. Ludwig Co. patriotically raised money for a handsome silk flag which was unfurled on last Tuesday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies. The committee in charge includes John T. Hoffman, chairman; John H. Coney, Leo Christy, James E. Stoner, Joseph Azzarella and Robert Julius Taiber.

The prizes recently offered by the A. W. Smith Co. for street car advertising posters designed by public school pupils have been awarded as follows: Miss Viola Perry, $25; Clarence Grundish, $15, and Samuel P. Morrison, $10. Several others received honorable mention and the entire display forms a fine exhibition in the store room this week.

John R. Bracken has assumed charge of the gardens in Arnold and Monongahela, Pa., financed by the American Window Glass Co., under the supervision of Norman S. Grubbs, agriculturist of the Allegheny County Farm Bureau. Prior to going east, Mr. Bracken was an attache of the landscape department of the A. W. Smith Co.

ST. LOUIS.

National flower show committees met here, Saturday June 9th, at Jefferson Hotel.

The Retail Association will have a "get-together" meeting on Monday the 18th.

On and after the 16th of June wholesale houses will close daily at 5 P. M., and on Saturdays at noon.

The growers' meeting took place at the Nine-Mile House, Wednesday, June 6th. A good attendance was there.

A site has been selected and a temporary show building, costing $60,000, will be opened in St. Louis. There will be 90,000 square feet of floor space. The following named gentlemen attended the meeting at Jefferson Hotel: R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; John Young, N. Y.; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; George Asmus, Chicago; Patrick Welch, Boston; Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; A. F. J. Bauer, Indianapolis, Ind.; D. G. Geddis, and F. H. Meinhart, representing local florists.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF ABRAM L. PENNOCK.

PENNOCK FAMILY GROUP.

Taken at the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Abram L. Pennock

Abram L. Pennock and wife (nee Anna M. Cadwalader) celebrated their golden wedding at Lansdowne on the 5th inst. Some forty of the family took part in the function which was strictly private and confined to immediate relatives. Mr. Pennock was born Nov. 3rd, 1827, on the ancestral homestead, 12th street, below Market, Philadelphia—so that by his next birthday he will have reached the venerable age of 90. His connection with the flower business dates back to 1861, when he formed a partnership with his brother, J. Liddon Pennock, under the title of Pennock Bros., and did business there for over a dozen years. In 1870 an interest in the business was acquired by John Westcott and Thomas Cartledge. Some six or eight years afterwards Herbert A. Pennock was given a portion of his father's interest and became a member of the firm. He had been the confidential bookkeeper for the company for many years. In 1875 the property at 12th and Market streets was sold to make way for what is now the Wm. Penn Charter School, and the firm bought the property at 1514 Chestnut street, where it still remains. Mr. Westcott and Herbert A. Pennock sold out their interests in 1892, and Mr. Cartledge was succeeded by his son, Alfred B., in 1896—who with J. Liddon Pennock, Jr., now constitutes the firm, the founder, Abram L. Pennock, retaining only a financial interest. From this it will be seen that while retired from active business for some years Abram L. Pennock has been a prominent factor in the florist world of Philadelphia for over half a century, and is its "grand old man." He has been not only a great business man but is a wit, philosopher and poet, and has been a benign influence with all with whom he has come in contact during his long and distinguished career. His ancestors came over with William Penn and the numerous descendants have added luster to the name as generation succeeded generation. There are many distinguished Pennocks in the front ranks today in many walks of life, and they but follow in the footsteps of their fathers, of whom none is held in greater esteem than the subject of this sketch—the modest, gentle, wise and unassuming Abram L. Pennock—one of the finest men I have ever known. Herbert and Henry are in Florida growing Asparagus ferns and other greens for the northern market; George and Caspar are among the big rose growers for the Philadelphia trade; Liddon is in the front rank of the retailers, and Samuel is the guide, philosopher and friend of the growers and retailers, "benefiting both groups and getting cussed accordingly."

John L. Ahlquist, proprietor of the Plainville (Ct.) Greenhouses, and Miss Irene La Vasseur, were married June 5.

Martin E. Tuohy, retail florist of South Boston, Mass., and Miss Alice B. O'Brien, of Cambridge, will be married on Saturday, June 30.

Miss Ethel Violet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Roy, The Moorings, Marion, Mass., and Roland Starr Dominie were married at Marion, on June 9.

On Tuesday, June 12, Miss Marie Uzella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Esler, and James Marshall Willey were married at Saddle River, N. J.

Meriden, Conn.—In spite of the drastic laws against trespassing on home gardens, wholesale thefts of garden plants are reported by Joseph A. Greenbacker, the florist. Mr. Greenbacker offers $25 reward for any information leading to the detection of the person or persons who stole tomato plants from his place. Some one in the neighborhood reported the loss of 50 hedge plants recently.

Flower Market Reports

The flower trade here is BOSTON not quite so demoralized this week as it was at the time of last report, but that is about all we can say in its favor. Commencement and graduation exercises in all directions are causing a little activity and will so continue for another week, but these events are not what they were for the florist before the "ruthless" bombardment of the flower trade by hysterical reformers and "patriots" was begun. This market is free thus far from any avalanche of peonies, and the accumulation now in sight consists mainly of carnations, lilies, stocks and other things that may be classed as regular goods. White carnations are almost unsalable; red ones are in some demand and the same is true of roses, all the red varieties having stiffened up in price today, June 14, American Beauty climbing back into the 25-cent notch. Many rose growers are already throwing out their old stock and getting ready for repairs and replanting. As a general thing the quality of all flowers at present time is very good.

The first week in June CHICAGO was dull by comparison with the closing days of May and sales were slow and stock accumulated till the latter part of the week, when the market resumed its poise and a fairly good week and business resulted. Prices had to be cut on ordinary stock and when a buyer in large quantities made an offer it was usually accepted, so the ice boxes were left in fairly good shape to begin the next week. Peonies are coming steadily, but not with the usual rush, the cold rain having held them back. There is a preponderance of dark pink just now, the light pink and white peonies being comparatively few. Outdoor lily of the valley has good sized bells and dark foliage and were its keeping qualities good it would be most acceptable. Fine American Beauties are offered, but the demand is not heavy. There are plenty of lilies, and callas, and the quality is good. Carnations are coming in, in large quantities and the prices cover quite a range, but on the whole are lower than the grower finds profitable. The rose supply is large and stock is fine. Ferns are scarce and there is much loss on those now coming from the south.

This market is glutted with stock of all kinds. With the exception of commencement business this week the demand is very quiet. Shipping business has fallen off greatly and buyers dictate the prices. Carnations and roses are very plentiful. Peony receipts have been exceptionally heavy and they have piled up in the market. Many growers are not cutting their peonies because of the poor market. Gladioli are plentiful and lilies are in a heavy supply but do not sell at any price. Excellent outdoor sweet peas may be had.

Rambler Rose Sprays

For June Weddings and Commencements a decoration of Rambler Sprays pink white or red, furnish one of the most decorative and effective results imaginable. We can supply them in long, medium or short sprays.

Per 100 sprays $5.00 to $20.00
(according to length)

First cuts come from our Washington store, then comes Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, thus prolonging the season for those charming flowers.

PEONIES

In quantity, all colors.
100—$3.00, $1.00, $5.00.
1,000—$20.00, $30.00, $40.00.

NEW YORK Conditions in the wholesale cut flower district for the past few days have been almost beyond belief. The worst feature is the arrival of truck load after truck load of peonies, big open express trucks piled to the limit of height with cases and crates. It has to be seen to be adequately realized. These are all from Pennsylvania points, the New York and New Jersey crop not coming in yet. It is positively out of the question to dispose of more than a fraction of the receipts and when the best grade of Festiva Maxima realizes with difficulty anything over $10.00 a thousand, the general return to the grower after paying expressage on such bulky material can perhaps be imagined. Other seasonable flowers are also in heavy supply, with but little demand. Tulips are about gone, and so are the Spanish iris, but there is plenty to take their place. Carnations—the less said the better. Push carts laden with peonies, roses and carnations are here, there and everywhere.

Considering the late season, business has so far kept up remarkably well. Were it not for a number of large events recently, the overcrowded market now seemingly at hand would have been on some time before. The peonies which should have been here for Memorial Day are now crowding the wholesale and retail trade and, indeed, with the exception of green products, flowers of all kinds are coming in all too plentifully.

Trade is keeping up fairly well considering the bad weather which we are experiencing at this time. Graduations have helped to make it somewhat livelier than it otherwise would have been. The planting season has been greatly hampered this year and Thursday's severe hailstorm did much damage to the younger plants, and seeds which were just planted. The market is fairly well supplied with all kinds of stock which includes roses of about all kinds and includes some good American Beauties. Excellent outdoor lily of the valley sells well. Carnations are very plentiful but move satisfactorily. Peonies shipped from the south are abundant. Snapdragon moves well. Large gladioli are of very fine quality and sell fast. A good quantity of outdoor stock is used extensively, white and purple lilacs receiving a fair demand. H. B. E.

Warm weather, with ST. LOUIS summer dullness, is with us. Carnations and roses begin to show effects of warm weather. Lilies are plentiful. Ferns are very scarce. Good Russells, Hadleys and Ophelia roses find ready sale. This week and next closing exercises at the schools will finish up the social season.

The market last week was overcrowded with flowers of all kinds. Wholesalers were forced to sell their stocks at decidedly low prices, and even then, large quantities could not be moved and had to be thrown away. A great deal of sweet william, which came in too late for Memorial Day could not be sold, and there was also very little demand for peonies. Lily of the valley

P. I. Applications must be filed by July 15.

Bangor, Me., June 6—Police forced the door of a florist's shop on Central street last night just in time to prevent Kaiser, a cat belonging to a marketman, from killing a second dove of peace after he had badly mangled one. In observance of registration day the florist arranged an exhibit of red, white and blue blooms, and three white doves put on the finishing touch. Kaiser sneaked in by a back stairway and pounced upon the doves, musing the display.

The Entrance

SUCCESS IS ASSURED

to the professional florist who tempts the public with a display like this. The clear view of the plants in the LUTTON show greenhouse creates desire to possess the flowers displayed, and the pleasing entrance is as good as a personal invitation to the passerby to enter.

Last month we illustrated a winter view of this LUTTON Greenhouse, recently erected for Louis Rodman & Sons, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The photographs shown here were taken this spring; the remarkable brightness in every part of this LUTTON Greenhouse and the clean-cut, graceful and compact design of the framework are apparent in all the views.

A good show house will pay you. Why not write to-day for an estimate on your requirements?

FORTHUBER

Why These Brothers Built An Iron Frame House

A couple or so years ago when the stable and other buildings of the Forthuber Bros. of Irvington, N. J., burned down, they determined not to have the thing repeated. The new buildings are fireproof, being constructed throughout of tile and concrete. When it came to building a greenhouse; the idea of building thoroughly and lastingly had a grip on them. For a year or more, they planned and figured; and thought and talked; about the best house to build; and the best firm to build it.

Last Spring they gave us their order for one of our Reconstructed Construction houses, 58 feet wide by 207 feet long.

If you want to get a straight from the shoulder opinion of our construction, and our way of doing business; they might be good ones for you to talk with.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

Note secure way column, rafter and truss tie are joined.

The side sash are equipped with our sliding shaft apparatus. Works easy. Closes tight.

Column is bolted, not clamped to cap fitting.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toil, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Antirrhinums for Next Winter

Do not wait too late before starting. It is from well established plants that you will get the bloom in mid-winter. It is time now to put in cuttings for stock for benching in August or September. Cuttings can be taken from now up to the end of July. These would begin to flower in December. Pot them into 2½ inch pots and shift along so as to not allow them to become pot bound. It is very important not to let green fly get a foothold; otherwise they will get stunted. Fumigate moderate and often. Place them in a cold frame. It is better not to pinch until the stem has reached a medium height as you then will get better breaks.

Cyclamen

Where you are using the houses practically all the year round but would like to give them a thorough cleaning and drying out, which, by the way is an excellent thing to do, make use of frames for the cyclamen. Cyclamen should be placed as soon as possible in cold frames where they will grow much better than in the greenhouse. Plunge the pots in fine coal ashes and shade during the summer with lath or cloth which will keep the plants cooler than when they are covered with glass that has been whitened. On hot days syringe overhead two or three times. Stock in 3-inch pots should be shifted before they are potbound. A good mixture to use is well-decayed cow manure and well rotted fibrous loam, three parts, leaf mold one part. Add enough of sand and fine charcoal to give porosity and sweetness.

Mignonette

Successive sowing from now until August will result in a supply of flowering plants in pots from early in the fall until the beginning of the new year. Seeds for the principal crops are sown in July and in some places as late as the last week of August. They do not like to be disturbed by shifting so sow a pinch of seeds at once in the pots in which the plants are to be flowered and sold which can be 5 or 6 inch pots, filling them but three-fourths up with soil and adding the remainder after the seedlings are somewhat strong and have been thinned down to one or more of the sturdiest. One-half manure, if it is old enough to be handled, added to the soil to which a fair proportion of sand is added, is what we use. Press it down firmly and let it become rather dry at every watering. Keep in a cool house.

Miltonias

Give a slight fumigation once a week and a dose of weak liquid cow manure. Keep a sharp look out for thrips and pay strict attention generally to cleanliness for at this season thrips do increase at an alarming rate. They should be grown in an airy house. Do not allow a direct draught to strike them but keep as free a circulation of pure air as possible. When cultivated under proper condition these orchids make a beautiful show especially Miltonia vexillaria, which is one of the most valuable for summer flowering. As the orchids go out of flower they should be repotted in osmunda fern fiber and sphagnum moss. After potting only enough water should be supplied to keep the compost moist. They should be supplied with more shade for at least five weeks, after which they should have plenty of sunlight through lath or bamboo shading.

Seasonable Repairs

There is absolutely nothing to look forward to in two months from now but work, more of it than we can attend to perhaps, but don't overlook having clean houses. There isn't a greenhouse that should not have at least a thorough cleaning out once a year. Don't put off cleaning for any reason; the present is the time to do it. Give a general inspection as to painting, puttying and other repairing. Repairing ventilators may be necessary. Do it now and—by the way—be sure that they are kept well oiled so that they run easily. Even at the hottest time of the year, the florist always finds plenty to do. It is hot work those torrid days but cloths can be laid over the roof to make it more tolerable. There is nothing worse than leaky and draughty houses when the fall and winter months come.

Adiantum Farleyense

I would like to forward to Mr. Farrell the following question regarding the growing of Adiantum Farleyense and which is the best compost for it. Does it require sand mixed with compost or good heavy loam itself, and what is the best temperature for same during the winter months?

Yours respectfully,

N. J.

G. R.

Would say the best compost for Adiantum Farleyense is fibrous loam four parts, well decayed cow manure two parts, leaf mold and sharp sand one part each. This adiantum being a stove species will require a temperature of from 65 to 70 degrees for a night heat and from 75 to 80 degrees during bright days; on dull days about 72 degrees will be all right. In order to keep them growing in good shape you will have to dampen down the house about three times a day so as to produce plenty of moisture in the air. Success depends to a great extent on the temperature, atmospheric moisture, and compost. Get these right and you will not have much trouble in growing Adiantum Farleyense.

Reminders

In all spraying keep well under the leaves. It is there that insects usually congregate.

Clip the genistas into shape a little with the shears before putting them out for the summer.

Water Oncidium varicosum Rogersi very freely now to strengthen the bulbs and forming flower spikes.

Nothing is so refreshing to plants during hot summer weather as frequent and free damping of floors and stages to create a moist atmosphere.

A timely warning The president of the American Seed Trade Association in his address at the annual convention of that organization sounds a timely note of warning, when he refers to the probable scarcity and higher cost of seeds next season. In the case of peas and beans, leading growers have recently found it necessary to ask their customers to permit a slight increase in the prices at which they had accepted contracts earlier in the season. This, they explained was necessary because of the unusual difficulty they had experienced in placing these crops with farmers this year. Farm labor is scarce and the farmer can more easily raise wheat or other cereal which now pays well and requires no hoeing—sowing and harvesting only. There is therefore no immediate prospect of lower prices for these crops. It is indeed a calamity that in the past we have depended so much upon Europe, particularly France and Germany for so many kinds of farm and garden seeds. The supplies of France are seriously reduced and the enemy now devotes his energy to producing food—not seeds. The outlook is anything but encouraging and high prices, we predict, will prevail for several years.

Decoration Day in Canada

It is urged by correspondents of our Canadian contemporary that May 24 be established as Decoration Day for the Dominion, to be observed on the same order as our own Decoration or Memorial Day which is celebrated on May 30. Just for what reason the earlier date is preferred by our northern neighbors does not appear. There can be no valid reason why the observance should not be on identical dates on both sides of the boundary line so far as we can imagine. We in this section of the country not infrequently find May 30 none too late for the successful carrying out of the sentiments of the occasion and Canada's spring season opens, on the average, considerably later than does ours. Perhaps one motive may be to throw the business of providing the required flowers for the occasion entirely into the hands of the florists, a plan which might promise well for the commercial interests but which would, on the other hand, put something of a damper on the spontaneity of the public in adopting the beautiful custom which with an abundance of outdoor spring blossoms would be encouraged and in the long run develop to the more permanent advantage of the florist as has been the case in this country.

Retrenchment approved

As time passes and opinions and comments come to us from various sources on the wisdom of the action of the New York Florists' Club in deciding to abandon all its plans for wholesale entertainment of the visitors at the August convention the universal sentiment of the S. A. F. members and others who have given expression to their views seems to be one of unqualified approval. No fear is expressed by anyone that in consequence of this change of program the convention attendance will be any smaller than it would have been had the elaborate entertainment as originally proposed been fully arranged for. This, we believe, will prove to be the case. It is quite probable, too, that as much money will be spent in New York in an individual capacity by the visitors and by the local people as had been contemplated under organized auspices and, as a rule, with much better results and more general satisfaction. HORTICULTURE would have little sympathy with any movement at the present time which would tend to the stagnation of business and interrupt that brisk circulation of money which is an essential to general prosperity but there is such a thing as sane and wholesome economy, the exercise of which in the present instance, shows good judgment.

The Weather and the Sweet Pea

Editor of HORTICULTURE:

Dear Sir:—I note with interest the editorial on the Sweet Pea situation appearing in last week's issue, and must say it is a wise provision to include the phrase, "should weather conditions continue favorable." An editorial appearing in a July issue of last year exploited a speaker's opinion as expressed at a banquet in Bar Harbor that weather conditions had nothing to do with the successful cultivation of the Sweet Pea, and his remarks would give the impression that the skillful grower could overcome any condition that might prevail. Since Saturday, the 19th inst., Newport has experienced one of the most unfavorable spells of weather for the Sweet Pea that could possibly be. The whole week has been one of rain and fog and not one sunny day has intervened to save the situation. As I write it is still raining hard with no sign of clearing up. May I ask the skillful man what he would do under such conditions?

THE PHILADELPHIA PEONY SHOW

A competitive display of roses was staged on the second day of the joint exhibition. The judges were Dr. Robert Huey and Robert Kift, who gave awards as follows:

Three flowers of Los Angeles—John W. Pepper, Jenkintown.

Hybrid Tea, three varieties, six blooms of each—1st, W. S. Ellis, Bryn Mawr; 2nd, John W. Pepper.

Hybrid Tea, twelve blooms—1st, Mrs. Charles T. Jones, Pitman, N. J.; 2nd John W. Pepper.

Hybrid Perpetual, three varieties—1st, John W. Pepper; 2nd, W. S. Ellis.

Hybrid Tea, one to six flowers each variety—1st, W. S. Ellis, Bryn Mawr; 2nd, Mrs. John Gribbel, Wyncote; 3rd, C. B. Newbold.

Special prize of $10, one flower each of twelve Hybrid Tea—John W. Pepper.

There were no exhibitors for the $100 cash prize offered by the American Peony Society, the weather conditions having been ruinous to all outdoor rose bloom. The flowers in the one entry, sent from a western grower, fell to pieces when the boxes were opened.

PEONY AWARDS

The judges were A. H. Fewkes, Newton Highlands, Mass., A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., and W. H. Thurlow, West Newbury, Mass. They made the following awards:

Collection of not more than 100 named varieties, 1st, James Boyd, Haverford, Pa.; 2d, Bertrand H. Farr, Reading; 3d, John C. Wister, Germantown.

Vase or basket of peonies, not less than 100 blooms, arranged for effect, 1st, James Fox, Wyncote; 2d, Miss Gwen Baugh, Media.

25 varieties, double, 3 blooms of each, 1st, Bertrand H. Farr; 2d, James Fox; 3d, John C. Wister, Germantown.

Collection of single varieties, 1 bloom of each, 1st, Bertrand H. Farr; 2d, A. P. Saunders.

Collection of Japanese varieties, one bloom of each, 1st, Bertrand H. Farr; 2d, John C. Wister.

25 light pink or pink and cream, 1st, Mrs. Charles T. Jones, Pitman, N. J.; 2d, Bertrand H. Farr.

25 red or crimson, 1st, Bertrand H. Farr; 2d, C. B. Newbold Jenkintown; 3d, Arthur H. Scott, Oak Lane.

6 blooms, 1 variety, 1st, Miss Clara Anderson, Van Wert, O.; 2d, M. Edmund Maule, Moorestown, N. J.

Specimen, double, 1st, James Boyd, 2d, E. Irwin Scott, Swarthmore.

Collection of varieties introduced since 1900, 1st, James Boyd; 2nd, Bertrand H. Farr.

6 blooms grown more than 300 miles from Philadelphia, 1st, Miss Clara Anderson; 2d, Mrs. L. R. Bonnewits, Van Wert, O.

Artistic arrangement of not more than 25 peonies in vase, bowl or basket, 1st, Mrs. Arthur H. Scott; 2d, Mrs. F. H. Bachman.

Collection of not more than 50 double, 1st, Mrs. Arthur H. Bailey, Harrisburg.

Collection of single and Japanese, 1st, Elmer K. Schultz; 2d, Arthur H. Scott; 3d, A. P. Saunders.

Collection of white varieties, 1st, Mrs. Arthur H. Bailey; 2d, Arthur H. Scott; 3d, Elmer K. Schultz.

Collection of red or crimson, 1st, Mrs. Arthur H. Bailey, 2d, Arthur H. Scott; 3d, Elmer K. Schultz.

3 blooms white, 1st, Mrs. R. S. Holt, W. Summit, N. J.; 2d, Mrs. Owen Moon, Trenton, N. J.; 3d, Mrs. John M. Webster, Van Wert, O.

3 light pink or pink and cream, 1st, Thomas T. Taylor, Ogontz; 2d, Mrs. Owen Moon; 3d, Mrs. F. H. Jarrett, Bethayres.

3 dark pink, 1st, Herbert K. Taylor, Ogontz; 3d, Fisher L. Boyd, Haverford.

3 red or crimson, 1st, William T. Taylor, Ogontz; 3d, Fisher L. Boyd.

Outdoor cut flowers, collection of six species, 1st, W. S. Ellis, Bryn Mawr; 2d, John A. Brown, Devon.

COMMERCIAL AZALEAS.

The accompanying illustration shows a house of florists' azaleas (35,000 plants) growing at Eureka, California. American florists have heretofore relied solely on Belgium-grown azaleas. Eighty per cent of the florists of America will stoutly declare the azalea cannot be grown commercially in America. C. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens Company does not agree and in proof shows this evidence. He tells us that buildings to handle a million azaleas annually are Hardy perennials, display of 12 species, 1st, A. P. Saunders.

BOSTON OUTDOOR JUNE SHOW.

The closing days of the Outdoor Exhibition saw the rhododendrons opened at last and in a blaze of radiant color, as had been hoped would be the case during the earlier days of the show. The weather has been a very serious handicap to the success of the enterprise. Sunday, the 17th, which was expected to make a record for attendance did so but in a negative way, for the winds blew and rain fell in torrents all afternoon.

The rock garden exhibit of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., has greatly improved in the time since it was planted and as the myriads of alpine plants become inured to their situation the effect is exceedingly pretty. The half-moon Japanese bridge spanning the pool in this plantation is rather too ponderous and too formal in design for its surroundings but for this defect Mr. Farquhar disclaims responsibility.

A fine collection of shrub and tree flowers from the Arnold Arboretum enlivened the show for the final days, replacing exhibits which had lost their beauty and been removed.

The exhibits of iris blooms sent in by Miss Grace Sturtevant, J. K. Alexander and others last week were a popular addition to the exhibits judging by the notice taken of them by being constructed at Eureka and claims that not only can the azalea be grown commercially along a large area bordering the Pacific Coast in Northern California, but it can be grown of better quality and at no greater cost than it is grown in foreign countries. He declares that everything entering into the cost of growing azaleas, save one item of labor alone, costs much less in Eureka than in Belgium, and the increased labor cost is neutralized by the more rapid and vigorous growth of the plant.

visitors. All were in separate vases and labeled.

In the effort to secure sensational publicity an article describing the "blue rose" and Mr. Roland's alleged scientific research and patience in evolving this wonder got into the daily papers much to the mortification of those who want to see truthfulness observed always concerning such things. It goes without saying, Mr. Roland was not responsible for the yarn.

THE PHILADELPHIA WAY.

Editor, HORTICULTURE:

It may be interesting to state that at the last meeting of the Germantown, Phila., Horticultural Society, Mrs. H. S. Prentiss Nichols, a member who takes a great interest in its objects, gave the society three $100 Liberty Bonds, the interest to be used annually for special prizes, which was highly appreciated.

And the Chestnut Hill, Phila., Horticultural Society this week voted to invest $200 of its funds in Liberty Bonds, and to co-operate with the ladies in the Floral Fair and Bazaar for the benefit of the Red Cross to be held early in November instead of holding our regular exhibition. We feel that this is the time to show the benefit to the community of our Horticultural Society and will continue our meetings and be ready to help in any way we can for the good of our town and country.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW

There was a meeting of the National Flower Show Committee at the Jefferson Hotel, St. Louis, June 8-9, to complete arrangements for the 1918 National Flower Show to be held in St. Louis, April 6-15.

There were present: George Asmus, Chicago, Ill., chairman; John Young, New York, secretary; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Nebr., treasurer; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Texas, president of the S. A. F., and A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary of the American Carnation Society.

While the Coliseum building, where it was originally intended to house the show, was still available, it was, in the opinion of the committee, entirely too small for the purposes of the exhibition, and for the meetings and the Convention of the S. A. F., which will be held at the same time. It was finally decided to lease Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell Boulevard, and also the adjoining vacant lot, 155 x 300 feet upon which a temporary building will be erected for the flower show. This temporary building will be connected, by a passageway, to the second or lower floor of the Temple, where the trade exhibits will be located.

At no previous National Flower Show were conditions more adequate for exhibits in the trade section. The floor space dimensions are about 200 x 100 feet, and the quarters at present are used as the dining hall for the members of the Temple after their sessions. The main floor, about 200 x 75 feet, is expected to be used for exhibits and displays of retail florists. The business meetings of the Society will be held in one of the side rooms on this floor.

The lot upon which the temporary building which is to house the National Flower Show will be erected is located at McPherson and Van de Venter Aves., one of the best residential sections of the city. As the exhibits in the temporary building will be placed on the bare ground there will be no danger of damaging any hardwood floors, consequently there will be unsurpassed water facilities.

The decision of the Society to hold the Convention and National Flower Show at the same time, in the Spring, is approved by the S. A. F. members in all sections of the country, and even at this early date, before the floor plans have been issued, exhibitors are reserving space in the trade section, so the outlook is very encouraging as to the financial success of the exhibition. From now until the date of the show, there will be erected on the site of the temporary building a huge sign board, to be used for publicity purposes.

The Schedule Committee will meet at an early date, to revise the schedule already issued, which was compiled to meet the somewhat limited space afforded by the floor area of the Coliseum. The new arrangements ensure ample room for the exhibits of rock gardens, rose gardens, and other displays, if it is decided to have such exhibits.

The Committee also held a conference with Mr. George W. Simmons, head of the American Red Cross in St. Louis, and it may be that the Red Cross organization will co-operate in the entertainment plans, if such course does not conflict with their rules and regulations, on lines similar to those followed by the organization at the New York Show.

The Committee are grateful for the many courtesies extended during their session, by the local florists' interests, especially to Messrs. D. S. Geddis, F. H. Meinhardt, Wm. C. Smith and Frank Gorly, who were indefatigable in their efforts to assist the committee in their work.

Now that the question of the building for the exhibition has been decided upon, the work of the Show will be pushed with vigor. The Flower Show Committee will, of course, consult the St. Louis Florists' Club and local florist interests before going ahead with any of the arrangements, and the wishes of those bodies will be considered wherever possible. With every one working in a spirit of harmony, there is no question but what the Fifth National Flower Show will be as successful as any held in the past.

The following have placed their names on the Guarantors' List, and the total subscribed is a few hundred dollars less than the ten thousand required, so if you are interested we would ask that you send in your subscription promptly so that the list may be closed: Peter Henderson & Co., Louis Burk, Thomas Roland, W. FLOWER SHOW AT CHESTER, PA.

The second annual flower show, under the direction of the Horticultural Society of the Civic League, New Century Club, opened in the Sixth Regiment Armory on June 8 and was largely attended. Mrs. Casper Howarth was awarded the silver medal, donated by the H. F. Michell Co. of Philadelphia, for receiving the greatest number of points. Second honors went to E. M. Rosenbluth, of Wallingford, who was given a bronze medal. Mrs. Garnett Pendleton was awarded a rose vase for the largest peony and Miss Janet McAllister, of Media, was given a silver rose vase for the largest rose. The show, which was continued two days, won the highest praise for the committee in charge by the many visitors. The exhibits were attractively placed and the great interest displayed by amateur gardeners was a source of considerable appreciation to the promoters whose object is to create more enthusiasm in flower cultivation. Among the special commercial exhibits were those of the Rose Shop, Cross Company, Hart's Flower Shop, Bickmore Farm, H. E. Bloom, Michell Co. of Philadelphia, Reliable Furniture Co., and the Morrow Palmer Novelty Co., Phila.

ROSE AND STRAWBERRY SHOW POSTPONED.

On account of the backwardness of the season it is necessary to change the scheduled dates of the Rose, Peony and Strawberry exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society from June 23 and 24 to Saturday and Sunday, June 30 and July 1. This exhibition is one of the most interesting and brilliant of the year and is free to the public. It will be open Saturday from 12 to 6 and on Sunday from 1 to 6 o'clock.

GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB OF BOSTON.

The last regular meeting until September was held in Horticultural Hall on Tuesday evening, June 19, and as has been customary for several years it was Ladies' Night, with a collation and dance following a brief business session.

Two hundred and fifty persons were present. Seven new members were elected. After the reading of the minutes and various committee reports, it was voted to hold the annual picnic during the week of July 25th, the actual date to be announced later. It was also voted to keep all club members joining the colors in good standing until the close of the war.

A communication was read from Sam. J. Goddard, who had purchased five $100 Liberty Bonds from the Framingham Bank in the club's name. It was voted to donate $50 to the Red Cross. A letter of cheer was ordered sent to Alexander Mitchell, who was recently hurt in an auto accident. There was a very fine display of oriental poppies from Julius Heurlein.

After the singing of America and The Star Spangled Banner by the entire assemblage, the meeting adjourned to the hall adjoining where a delightful repast of strawberries, cake and ice cream was served. Dancing followed until twelve o'clock.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS. The Convention Garden.

Some very active work is now in progress at the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, covering the layout of the Convention Garden.

The backward season has been greatly in favor of the plantings, and at present it looks as though planting operations may continue for two or three weeks more.

The public, too, is taking extraordinary interest in the Convention Garden, as is usual with all the work of the Botanical Society and the work is being done under acute observation. Judging from the interest commonly expressed in the society's garden work it is expected that the Sunday crowd of visitors alone will run to the 75,000 mark. These visitors are not altogether flatdwellers, as one may observe when looking over the license plates on the automobile parkings of a Sunday.

The rate for planting space is very low, only ten cents per square foot, consequently anyone who has a specialty in the horticultural lines to exploit will lose a grand opportunity for publicity if advantage is not taken of this garden. George V. Nash, head gardener at the Botanical Garden, is giving the Convention Garden personal and constant supervision, a fact which speaks well for its success.

Of course, the plantings are not confined solely to novelties. Many retail florists would do well to think of the publicity they could get for small cost by making artistic plantings. The opportunity is here, will it avail?

Up to date the following have secured space in the garden: W. A. Manda, John Scheepers Co., Inc., Bobbink & Atkins, A. N. Pierson, Inc., Conard & Jones Co., Henry A. Dreer, Inc., John Lewis Childs, Raymond W. Swett, Arthur T. Boddington, Inc., Arthur Cowee, B. Hammond Tracy, Wm. Tricker, Thomas Meehan's Sons, A. L. Miller, R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., and Vaughan's Seed Store.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The Executive Committee of the American Rose Society will hold a meeting in Philadelphia, Pa., during the Nurserymen's Convention. The meeting will be held on June 27th, at the City Club, 313 S. Broad St., at 1.00 o'clock. Anyone interested in the Rose Society as Rose Growers will be welcomed at the meeting, for the American Rose Society is a most excellent advertising agency for growers of roses and growers of rose bushes.

SEED TRADE

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION

Officers—President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; First Vice-President, F. W. Boigiano, Washington, D. C.; Second Vice-President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.—Convention at Detroit, June 19, 1917.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Address of President Kirby B. White at the Annual Convention, Detroit, Mich., June 19, 1917.

The thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association comes at the close of one of the most eventful years in the history of the seed business. It comes also at the beginning of a year that may be even more fateful for us as seedsmen and citizens. It is therefore with a feeling of solemnity and unusual responsibility that I address you.

It is natural that as we reconvene our thoughts should first turn to the vacant places in our ranks. Mr. W. C. Langbridge, Mr. Walter P. Stokes, Mr. John A. Salzer and Mr. H. K. White are missed by their many friends. The appropriate committee will prepare resolutions formally voicing the feeling of the Association regarding our loss.

Legislation.

The material affairs of the Association have on the whole prospered. We have suffered comparatively little from the attacks of legislators. An unusually large crop of unusually stupid bills (the exact number is 118) has received the attention of our state correspondents and under the able direction of the attorney and the legislative committee they have as a rule been satisfactorily met. If any laxness has appeared it has not been at headquarters. The trend of the year has been toward centralizing more than ever before the responsibility for directing the Association's legislative defense. The task has grown to such proportions that it takes up too much time for any seedsmen to administer its details. The Association ought never again to impose upon anyone the volume of work it gave to Mr. Scarlett and Mr. Boyles. Therefore, upon our attorney and his assistants should be placed increasingly each year this great burden.

In this connection I desire to say that my opportunity as an official to observe the work of the attorney's office has impressed upon me the enlargement of the duties he has been called upon to assume. From a small beginning our needs have grown to require not merely the occasional attention of a lawyer in general practice but the direction of a specialist and trained assistants, all of whom give their time to the needs of seedsmen and nurserymen. The function performed by our attorney is most important and should continue to expand. Every year's experience adds to his value and to the volume of the work it is found desirable to give him. I recommend that Curtis Nye Smith be retained in this position.

As time has developed the complexities of seed control it is gratifying to see how nearly those that administer and those who work under seed laws have approached a common ideal and common opinions as to what constitutes legitimate seed legislation. I hope and believe that before this convention ends the convention of the Official Seed Analysts, sitting in Detroit this week, will have aligned that association with us in vigorous support of the Uniform State Bill.

Voluntary Labeling.

The action of the Secretary of Agriculture in requesting seedsmen to mark seeds of field and forage crops as to purity and viability has met with almost universal compliance. It will be observed that this practice of voluntary marking is in effect the same as the European system of voluntary control. There is no criminal liability

KIRBY B. WHITE.

President American Seed Trade Association.

but there is every incentive for the vendor to have the label represent both accuracy in analysis and a high grade of seeds. It is possible that voluntary control which has been the sole system in Europe will prove equally satisfactory here.

Government Charges.

I desire especially to commend the work of the Committee on Government Charges. It is ably discharging the duty you imposed upon it. Our Association is pledged both to approval of publicity of the Department of Agriculture's findings and to vigilance in the defense of its members whether it be against unfairness from without or treachery from within. If the name of a member appears in a Government report as adulterating or misbranding seeds it is obvious that action must result. If the Government report is unfair, as such reports have sometimes been thought to be, the accused member is entitled to the united support of the trade in remedying the wrong. If on the other hand the report is true,

A Bulletin Needed.

This interdependence of the entire trade is more and more being recognized not merely as a liability but in even greater degree as an asset. It is only necessary that we become conscious of our solidarity to make it profitable. The truth that the highest common good is also the individual's highest good, once grasped, is a mighty factor in individual success. Every aid to solidarity is therefore to be welcomed. I commend to the Association as one of the best means of fostering solidarity the confidential "Seedsmen's Bulletin." I recommend further that a committee be appointed to report on extending the field of the Bulletin to cover garden seed crop reporting and the announcement of the range of ruling wholesale prices of garden seeds. This course is not as revolutionary as it may sound. I submit that every seedsmen would find it easier to get a fair price for his goods if all seedsmen knew more about fundamental conditions of supply. In the face of great shortage, seeds are often sold at less than replacement value. Obviously this condition is harmful. It would be to the advantage of those who know of shortages to share this knowledge with those who lack facilities for getting news quickly. The office of the "Seedsmen's Bulletin" might be made a clearing house of crop reports. From this office news could be obtained by telegraph or mail at any time and all information would be accessible to any member. Confidential reports of this Association to Association members would carry greater weight than information received elsewhere because the reporting agency would be quite disinterested. Moreover, the Association would have access to all sources of knowledge. Each member might then if he chose make his vision of general supply world wide.

In recommending that the Bulletin this Association demands that the facts be presented to it, through its committee, for such discipline as may be just and necessary. This Association in its columns the range of ruling wholesale prices I advise that names be omitted. High, low and average prices could be given for leading articles. For example: Early Jersey Wakefield cabbage might be quoted as low as $1.00 per lb. and as high as $4.00 with an average of $2.50 per lb. The range of prices, particularly when the service has been in existence long enough to afford comparisons of one year with another would be a valuable guide and enable individuals to get their prices into line with those of the trade as a whole. I believe the reporting of crop and market conditions if properly conducted would be worth much more than it would cost.

Association Problems.

I recommend that a committee be appointed or elected to advise the Association with regard to the compensation of each of its employees. Many factors should be taken into account in this connection. If the present ratio between service and pay is not right there should be proper readjustment. If readjustment entails increasing the dues let us remember that the power of the Association does not lie in its being cheap.

The power of the Association, it would perhaps be trite to say, lies in its exemplification of the principles of justice, wisdom and even taste. The coming year will be a period of trial to us all. The war has forced upon us problems involving our financial existence, our private honor and our public duty. With regard to the obligation of contracts between members, I advise that the convention take no stand. The contracting parties are the only ones concerned except insofar as the good name of all is affected by the conduct of each. With regard to our public duty I recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

A Patriotic Message.

"To the President and the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States:

At the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association it was unanimously resolved that the President of the United States and the Secretary of Agriculture be tendered the support of this Association in all reasonable measures designed to prosecute the war with the utmost vigor. We count ourselves fortunate to be able to do our full share in supplying men and money, but our greatest service may well be in maintaining under extraordinary strain the machinery of producing and distributing the seeds without which agriculture must fail. Because we realize in some measure the magnitude of the task to which our country is committed we are the more earnest in pledging to it our entire resources. The seed trade is happy to be able to say that it can and will meet whatever disturbance in its organization may arise from the draft or voluntary enlistment of its younger men. We propose to do our best to fight and to save and to work for the one great event of complete victory."

A FRIENDLY GREETING.

J. S. Brunton, editor of the Horticultural Trade Journal of the British Empire, finds a lull in the explosions from the Hun and writes a pleasant letter to HORTICULTURE as follows:

"The optimist is the man who sees in every obstacle An opportunity.

The pessimist is the man who sees in every opportunity—An obstacle."

If my memory is not at fault you had a little discussion some years ago on the definition of an Optimist. If I am wrong then my memory has played me a trick. When thinking of America I usually think of the optimist when "Horticulture" reaches me. I always look through it to read what he has written, but he does not give us enough of these racy paragraphs. When I came across the foregoing quotation (author unknown) I thought it might interest.

The prize we offered for the best definition of an optimist was finally won by Tommy Ruigi, a head waiter at the Bellevue-Stratford. Look up our back files and you will see what it was.

In the same light vein I send you this clipping from the Phila. Evening Ledger, which I happened to be glancing over half an hour ago:

We asked the young lady across the way how long she thought the war would last and she said she felt sure it would be all over this fall, but, of course, she always was an optometrist.

We are pleased to hear from you, Mr. Brunton, and are proud of the splendid sacrifices you and your allies have been putting forth these past three years. Reason must rule the world—not wild beast force.

I am still an optimist, but believe me, it's been a tough job for some time back!

CHICAGO FLORIST INVENTS.

Self-watering flower pots, window boxes and greenhouse benches are the inventions of John Marks of Marks Bros., 4827 Warwick Ave., one of Chicago's florists who works hard with his hands while his mind is also at work planning hard to better growing conditions. His inventions have been patented and manufacture of the flower pots has begun. The principle is that of capillary attraction, by means of a false bottom in the flower pot, made of the same material as the pot itself. The window boxes and greenhouse benches contain hollow building tiles which take up the water in the receptacles and convey it to the soil above. The devices seem simple, inexpensive and effective as tried out in the Marks Bros.' greenhouses, and it is quite probable that more will be heard of them later.

NEWS NOTES.

Detroit—Philip Breitmeyer left on Sunday, June 17, for a visit to his daughter and family in Montana, and enjoy a few months' outing communing with nature in the mountains.

Fitchburg, Mass.—W. H. Ritter has purchased the flower store, which has been conducted for several years by Otto Mallgrav and is now located at 446 Main street. He will continue the business at the same address and under the same name, and has placed Alfred Woollacott in charge as manager. Mr. Mallgrav has disposed of the business on account of the fact that he is making ready for military service, having joined the new battery which is being organized in this city.

Newell B. Vickery and Miss Elizabeth J. Brown, both of Mansfield, Mass., were married on June 14.

NEWS ITEMS FROM EVERYWHERE

BOSTON.

John Van Leenwen, who has been, for some time past, foreman at the Dedham nurseries of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., has gone to the Bobbink & Atkins nurseries at Rutherford, N. J.

"Business as usual" is running a close race with the sign, "Look out for paint," this week, at the headquarters of B. A. Snyder & Co., on Devonshire St., who are completely renovating their establishment.

While driving to the station from his home in East Weymouth on Wednesday morning this week, Col. W. W. Castle was thrown from his buggy by the breaking of the forward axle and sustained a fracture of the shoulder blade and a general severe shaking up.

By a vote of 8 to 7 the Cambridge City Council has at last confirmed the nomination of Professor Carroll W. Doten as a member of the board of park commissioners. Mr. Doten is a technical man of high attainments and his presence on the board of park commissioners will be of great value to the city.

The cold and rainy season has so delayed the blooming of early flowering plants like Lilacs, which were three weeks later than usual, that trees and shrubs whose flowering periods are normally several weeks apart are now in bloom together at the Arnold Arboretum and probably there has never been a time when so many different flowers could be seen here at once as are open this week. Azaleas, Rhododendrons, Wisterias, Viburnums, Cornels, Laburnums, American Crabapples, Hawthorns, Roses, Diervillas, Dipeltas, Syringas, Horsechestnuts, Buckeyes, Maples, Barberries, Siberian Pea-trees, Aro-nias, Robinias, Mountain Ashes, and Cotoneasters are a few of the genera represented by many species which are now covered with flowers in the Arboretum.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Many dealers report very attractive business in the bedding line whilst store trade is very quiet.

W. Kavanaugh of J. B. Keller Sons, is traveling for the Catholic Medal Association and is doing well.

The Rochester Floral Co. had an elaborate window decoration in honor of Marine Week here. Baskets of red, white and blue flowers were a feature.

E. C. Kalber, Inc., had an elaborate wedding decoration in Saginaw, Mich. The house was profusely decorated with asparagus, yellow daisies, spirea, pink peonies and snowball. A large marquee on the lawn was sumptuously lighted and decorated with hanging baskets of pink roses.

A considerable amount of replanting appears to be necessary in scattering districts because of the seed failing to germinate due to unfavorable weather conditions. Excessively heavy rainfall in some places accompanied by hail and high winds greatly damaged and even destroyed crops by flooding and washing the fields in various places in and around Rochester.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The shrubs, plants, and vines distributed from the Miami, Fla., station of the Bureau of Plant Industry, will be handled by Edward Simmonds, gardener and fruit station superintendent.

Fred H. Kramer is going out of the pot plant business and is planning to utilize the large conservatory at the rear of his store as a palm garden for the sale of ice cream and other like commodities. The store proper will be continued as at present for the sale of cut flowers, and will be operated in conjunction with the greenhouses in Anacostia. The new palm garden will be ready for opening early in July.

Washington florists are very much elated over the elevation of Edward S. Schmid, to the office of Grand Monarch of the Mystic Order of the Enchanted Realm. The local organization, Kallipolis Grotto, numbers among its membership the largest part of the florists of Washington. William F. Gude was in charge of the entertainment and with Mr. Schmid superintended the planting of a tree, a cedar of Lebanon, at Mount Vernon.

The experimental rose garden at Arlington Farms, Va., is due to undergo a considerable change, if the visit of Professor L. C. Corbett, of the Department of Agriculture, to New York, for the purpose of conferring with the American Fine Arts Commission has any significance. When the members of the American Rose Society visited the gardens early in the month, they made a number of suggestions as to how the rose garden could be made more beautiful.

There seems to be considerable enthusiasm among the Washington florists covering the coming convention of the S. A. F. & O. H., in New York, and despite the fact that all the elaborate entertainment features of previous years are to be cut out, a very large attendance is assured. The question of going to the convention will be discussed at length at the club meeting on July 3. It is expected that the largest delegation that has ever left Washington for such an event will be noted at the convention.

CHICAGO.

A. Henderson & Co. report the close of what has been a most successful season to them.

Several down-state florists are in Chicago attending the convention of the Modern Woodmen of America this week.

W. W. Adams is now established in his new store at State and Division streets and is much pleased with his new location.

A trip over Chicago's 55 miles of boulevard connecting its chain of parks reveals a wealth of green almost unrelieved by color. The geraniums are scarcely showing color and the shrubbery was quickly robbed of bloom by the rain and wind.

The season for bedding plants is practically closed and from the general reports the demand was much lighter than usual. This was due partly to unfavorable weather and partly to the unusual trend of opinion in favor of vegetable rather than flower gardens.

Three young men employed in the wholesale stores leave June 25 for an entirely different line of work and to see what are the opportunities offered by the great west. Arthur Pasternick, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Ass'n, Edw. Velter, with J. A. Budlong, and Leon Glaser, with the A. L. Randall Co., will try outdoor life near Jerome, Idaho.

One of the prettiest novelties seen in the new goods at Poehlmann Bros.' supply department is the mirror basket or half-basket which when fitted and hung against a mirror looks like a complete basket. One of these containing white flowers and tied with a bow of lavender ribbon illustrated another use to which it could be put, and as it holds a water container its use on a door would be both beautiful and serviceable, and much more satisfactory than the old-time spray of wind-whipped, faded flowers.

Baltimore—The heavy hail storm of June 6 did its worst damage at Reisterstown and Hagerstown where growing crops were mercilessly destroyed and glass houses were riddled. Charles G. Wright was the heaviest loser at Reisterstown and H. A. Bester & Sons at Hagerstown lost about 75,000 sq. ft. of glass.

PITTSBURGH.

Anthony W. Smith, Jr., is making a ten days' visit in Atlanta, Georgia, as a delegate to the annual convention of the Rotary Club in session there.

Charles R. McAfee and Francis Babylon, attaches of the E. C. Ludwig Company, are gaining reputations as patriotic orators at local flag day raisings.

The Ludwig Floral Company is installing an improved elevator system in their Federal street plant. George Meuschke, a director of the company, has begun the erection of a fine white brick residence on the site of the greenhouse at Castle Shannon, Pa.

The McCallum Company has issued invitations to their employees and retail patrons for a basket picnic to be held on "The Fourth" at Nursery Stop on the Harmony Line, where their greenhouses are located. E. J. McCallum is chairman of the committee in charge.

A distinctive window decoration recently seen down town was formed of three irregularly placed tables of cattleyas with a side massing of Crimson Ramblers and quantities of silken flags. In the rear were tall bronze Grecian jars of lilies, while the intervening floor space was filled with maidenhair ferns.

A charming arrangement of flowers in Dresden effect were used recently by Randolph & McClements for a dinner party. The table was centered with a basket of pink roses and white and lavender iris and tied with blue picot ribbon and white tulle. Colonial bouquets of yellow, white and lavender iris were used as corsage favors.

The International Forestry Conservation Congress, including the exhibit of the U. S. forest service, will open in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce next Thursday. There will be a special exhibit of the white pine blister rust by the forestry department of Pennsylvania. More than 100 of the leading foresters of the country will attend.

ST. LOUIS.

W. J. Pilcher will plant an extra supply of Hadley roses for next year.

Myer Brothers are in with outdoor sweet peas; also the Deutchmann boys.

The annual picnic given by the St. Louis Florist Club will be held at Ramona Park, in July.

The wholesale houses during the summer season will close daily at 5 p. m. and on Saturdays at noon.

The St. Louis Florist Club met on June 14 at the Missouri Pottery & Supply Co., 75 members being present.

NEW YORK.

The Greek-American Florists' Outing will take place on July 11 at Wetzel's Point Grove.

P. G. Panos has discontinued his retail flower store at 125th street and Fifth avenue.

A rose fete for the benefit of the American Ambulance Hospital in France has been in progress this week at Admiral Ward's estate, Roslyn, L. I.

"CHEAP" FRUIT TREES.

For some time past we have been receiving newspaper clippings from various places in Maine, Massachusetts and New York, gleefully calling attention editorially and otherwise to the offer of some 200,000 surplus fruit trees which the Horticultural Nurseries of Dansville, N. Y., had left on their hands and were prepared to deliver to the public as a philanthropic proposition at ten cents apiece—practically the cost of packing and transportation. Naturally the response was prompt and insistent from all quarters. But State Horticulturist Dudley of Maine, in the performance of his official duties, got after the trees that were being distributed in his state and is said to have found fully half of the stock affected with crown gall and hairy root. And now consternation reigns among those who purchased.

The "Horticultural Nurseries" does not appear among the places listed in the American Florist Directory, but, we are informed, is conducted by John H. Reilly and Thomas P. Reilly, who were interested in the Reilly Bros. Nurseries, formerly of Danville, but which, it is stated, went into bankruptcy about two years ago.

There is located in Dansville an establishment under the name of The William J. Reilly Nurseries which has no connection with the aforementioned concern. "The Horticultural Nurseries" have an advertisement in the Augusta, Me., Journal disputing the findings of the State Horticulturist.

MASS. AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

Massachusetts Agricultural College for the first time in half a century will not hold commencement exercises this year. The reason is that every one of the seniors of the college, who for four years has been looking ahead to this year's commencement, is absent on account of the war and is either in military or agricultural service. It has been arranged by the faculty to send by mail the diplomas to be given to the some 100 graduates this year.

A CORRECTION.

Burning the midnight oil and an otherwise unaccountable absent-mindedness appear to have been the reason for a vexatious slip of the pen last week when we credited to Leonard Barron the enjoyable lecture by J. Otto Thilow before the New York Florists' Club. Mr. Barron, however, was chairman of the essay committee that secured Mr. Thilow. Both gentlemen have forgiven us.

CUT FLOWERS

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Trade has been quite brisk at times during the past week, thanks to the school affairs and nuptial festivities. Particularly good has been the call for red flowers—roses, carnations, peonies, etc. White material is heavily overstocked, especially lilies and white carnations and now that peonies are beginning to pile up the situation promises to get worse. There are still some Spanish irises to be seen also quantities of feverfew, candytuft, astilbe, baby gladioli and other material which missed Memorial Day. Outdoor lily of the valley has finished up and once more the indoor brand is in control and with price stiffened up accordingly. Carnation quality is still very good but sweet peas and snapdragons are decidedly down in the scale. America and other large gladioli are excellent and sell for a fair price. Baby gladioli are too plentiful for the limited demand.

CHICAGO The market is full of flowers and summer conditions have come almost over night. The cold, backward spring has held back the local peonies, but now they are coming in so rapidly that some are being put into cold storage. There was a short time between the southern crop and the northern one when the demand used them all, but with this exception the market has not been particularly strong so far, though comparatively few peonies were thrown away. The special sales of flowers in the department stores show the condition of the market, and also make matters hard for the retail florists, who cannot compete with the prices in the big stores. The buyers of the stores secure stock much lower than the retail florist can purchase it. The street corner merchant appears to be doing a good business also. Shipping trade is the real standby of the large houses.

NEW YORK The flower market is steadily drifting towards the customary summer dead level of inactivity. Some desultory buying due to the characteristic festivities of Merry June still serves to keep things moving but the snap is rapidly disappearing and vacations will soon be in order. The receipts of flowers are still much too heavy for the requirements of the market and quantities of good stock go to loss for lack of a purchaser at any price. As a rule quality holds up well, especially on roses. There are some superb cattleyas to be seen. Peonies are heaped high on all sides but their stay will soon come to a close.

PHILADELPHIA There was a deluge of flowers in this market last week, the peony crop being particularly in evidence. The glut in the latter is now about over, however, as local stocks are mostly all cut and there is less than usual in cold storage. They came all in a rush this year and a couple of weeks late so that the ridiculously low price they realized was to be expected. Rose market rather overstocked but the good ones sold fairly well. Bright spots were Hadley, Beauty and Russell. These three were very good and were in excellent demand. Carnations are still very plentiful and unusually good—probably the best ever handled at this season of the year. Sweet peas still pretty good although a little soft during the warm spell. These and roses seem to be the favorites for June weddings and commencements. Delphiniums are a prominent feature of the market and are wonderfully good this year. Gladioli in strong supply and selling fair.

Orchids plentiful and splendid quality. Snapdragon nearly over. Indoor lily of the valley is in good demand and excellent quality but the outdoor from Eastern points is poor and draggy. Lilies slow but now that peonies are about past they should pick up some.

Owing to the PITTSBURGH season of weddings and school commencements, business has kept up fairly well, notwithstanding the general war economy agitation. Good roses are bringing their equivalent in prices. Fine Spanish iris is coming in, while, on the other hand, the carnation crop is falling off. Peonies are improving in all-round quality as the season advances and one retail house, which features this flower is now disposing of its surplus stock to the wholesale trade.

Trade has been very poor for the past week and large quantities of stock have been coming in for which there has been very little demand. The market is well filled with all grades of roses. Carnations are very plentiful but appear to be somewhat sleepy and drag considerably. Peonies are in abundance and have sold fairly well for the week end. Large quantities of out door iris arrive but do not sell well. Some very fine gladioli sell good. All greens are plentiful. Good business is looked for during the coming week as a number of graduations and weddings are due.

School closings have caused the florists generally to be kept busy. Stock is looking good. Russell, Hadley, Ophelia and Ward roses are showing up well but carnations are getting smaller and show the effects of the weather. Outdoor sweet peas are here and are of fairly good quality. Ferns have been very scarce.

Weather conditions have brought a great many surprises to the florists. Never before in the memory of the oldest of them has such a hailstorm as was noted last week hit this section. A great deal of damage was caused in the city to outdoor flowers and plants, making additional business for the growers, but, strange to say, the large ranges at Anacostia escaped. The cold wave which accompanied the hailstorm, however, badly retarded all flowers, with the result that prices stiffened materially. Business during the month was very good, due to a number of large weddings and the usual number of graduation exercises.

THE NEWPORT WAY.

At a meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society held on the 12th inst. a resolution was passed to hold the June exhibition in a hall in the center of the city, that an admission fee be asked, and that booths be added for the sale of flowers and other products. It was also resolved that the proceeds from admission fees and sale of flowers, as well as the prize money offered be donated to the Newport Chapter of the Red Cross.

The Lafayette Hall has been secured for the exhibition and although it is not as large as desired for the proper display of the show and although the backward season will curtail exhibits to some extent, the gardeners of Newport do not stand on any false pride in holding the exhibition, feeling as we do that the object is worthy of the effort.

IRISES AT NEW HAVEN.

The New Haven County Horticultural Society held its Iris Show in the spacious rooms of the New Haven Public Library on Friday and Saturday, June 15th and 16th. The exhibition was a complete success, being visited by thousands of people.

A great deal of interest was displayed by the public on account of the prominence of the exhibitors and the wonderful record which they had made. Mrs. Jenkins lays claim to having seven hundred varieties of Iris in her collection. The collection is situated on the grounds of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, of which her husband is the director. Among her exhibits were Queen of May, Oriflamme, Mrs. H. Darling, Palida, Princess Beatrice, Speciosa Dalmatica, Hector, Neglecta, Aurea, Lohengrin, Mrs. C. J. Sherwin, Kharput, Iris Cypriana, and many others. In addition to these she has seventy seedlings, many of them very fine.

Miss Van Name, the daughter of Addison Van Name, librarian emeritus of Yale University also boasts of having over seven hundred varieties of iris in her collection. She shows two pretty seedlings: "Purity," a beautiful white bloom, and "Emperor," a majestic purple flower.

Among the several varieties Miss Van Name showed Iris tectorum, Japan roof iris, violet, purple, white; Iris graminea the flower of which is dainty and very fragrant; Rhein Nixie, a beautiful and delicate bloom, white and purple; Wyndham, Iris siberica, a native of Siberia, light blue, and others.

While Mrs. Jenkins has made a great success with her seedlings, Miss Van Name has turned her efforts in another direction. She has achieved a wonderful record in hybridizing and crossing of the garden species thus producing a great many varieties, known only by garden names.

E. F. Coe, of the Elm City Nursery Co., made a very fine exhibit. His flowers were elegantly staged. There were several other exhibitors who made a good showing. The New Haven County Horticultural Society have every reason to be proud of the success of their Iris Show of 1917.

This is our new Double Bolted Rod Bearer, which is used on long runs of sash.

This shows how the new Bearer is bolted to the bottom of the sash. Once there, it's there to stay for life.

You have noticed that the hand wheel standard on this one is much smaller than the other. That's because it is intended for short runs to 50 feet, which requires smaller weights to counterbalance.

The Ventilating Gear That Works as Easy as an Even-up Teeter Totter

WELL do I remember when a kid, playing teeter totter, how hard it was to bear down my end of the board when Fatty Jones was on the other end. But when he slid up nearer the log on which the board teetered, I could do it "easy as pie." His weight was then counterbalanced or evened up by mine.

Exactly the same principle is put into operation by our new counterbalanced gear.

The sash might well be "Fatty Jones." The gears, the teeter board. The counterbalanced weights, "me."

When rightly installed and counterbalanced, this gear runs the sash up as easy as it goes down. No, that's wrong. It goes up just a little harder than it goes down, so that when the lever lock is released, the sash will close down themselves.

Close down—but not slam down. It will come down itself to within a few inches of the header, and then a half turn of the hand wheel pulls the sash down snug and tight.

It is made for short runs, with rod and arm. And for long runs where the rack and pinion is used.

The counterbalanced gear is now part of our standard greenhouse equipment.

This is the one we use on long runs where the rack and pinion are necessary, and larger weights needed to counterbalance the weight of the sash.

THE NEW BURNHAM

A Tubular Boiler Made in Our Factory at Geneva, N. Y. for Steam or Hot Water, Either High or Low Pressure

WE say it is new, but it's really in many particulars close to twelve years old.

Over twelve years ago, Mr. Burnham started working out his first tubular boiler, designed especially for greenhouse heating.

Over and over again since then, just as it seemed to the rest of us that at last we had a satisfactory boiler, Mr. Burnham would decide it was not yet worthy of Lord & Burnham's high standard.

Finally, however, one was perfected that not only passed the critical criticisms of all our boiler making experts, but also fully met the exacting requirements of Mr. Burnham.

So, here it is.

It's made for either steam or hot water. Either low or high pressure.

The tubes are guaranteed to be real old-fashioned charcoal iron, which is the same iron from which the railway engine boiler tubes are made.

No bricking in. Not even for the base.

It has many points entirely different from any other tubular boiler.

Points that mean much to you in saving money in setting up expense.

Saving money in fuel needed.

Saving money in operation.

Saving money in repairs.

Whatever boiler you may be thinking of buying, hold up a bit, until you have looked well into this one.

NOTES ON CULTURE OF FLORISTS' STOCK

CONDUCTED BY

John J. M. Farrell

Questions by our readers in line with any of the topics presented on this page will be cordially received and promptly answered by Mr. Farrell. Such communications should invariably be addressed to the office of HORTICULTURE.

"If vain our toll, we ought to blame the culture, not the soil."—Pope.

Begonias

Flowering begonias can be rooted now with ease and will grow into most desirable size for holiday work. Also the fine foliage varieties can be stocked from leaf cuttings. Those that were propagated in the spring and are now in 4-inch pots should be plunged in a frame, under a light shade in the brightest part of the day. Guard against sudden changes in temperature and draught so as not to induce rust. Rex begonias should be grown in pans, good loam with a third of leaf mold and some sand suiting them. The greatest care should be exercised against overwatering them.

Good Cultivation Essential

A large part of the stock raised by florists is grown into flowering or salable size by being cultivated during the summer in the open field or garden. This phase of gardening presents a multitude of advantages. Keeping the plants free of insects, the soil loose and open and the field clear of weeds by frequent hoeing—rather before than after a rain—proper trimming, stopping and tying where this is needed, and watering, spraying, feeding and mulching when deemed necessary or advisable, is the sum total of good cultivation, the degree of goodness largely depending on how the work is performed. Whether a wheel hoe or the most improved pattern or the old-fashioned hand hoe of undiminishing merit, the implement should always be carefully guided in rows and between plants, so as not to injure the stems or mutilate the branches or to cut away or loosen the roots, or to cover up the smaller ones in a row of young seedlings.

Marguerites for Next Winter

For winter blooming, the old white Paris daisy (Chrysanthemum frutescens), has all others beaten to a frazzle, to use a somewhat slangy phrase. Mrs. Sander is good in spring and summer, but will not make the same shapely plant as the older variety. The yellow varieties are harder to grow and rarely seen in shapely plants, excellent though they may be for cutting. Well flowered, bushy marguerites in midwinter are rarely seen in the markets. That they would sell well goes without saying. Root cuttings now from some cut-back plants. Never mind if they are full of flower buds. These can be kept picked off. Cuttings rooted now will make rapid growth and must be kept potted along. Keep flowers which will constantly appear, picked off, and give the plants lots of water. They should then be quite bushy stock in 6-inch pots. When large enough plunge outdoors in a bed of coal ashes in the full sun.

Next Week:—Amaryllis; Cold Storage Lilies; G

Propagating Ficus elastica

Summer is the time par excellence for rooting tops of Ficus elastica by the so-called ringing process, which simply consists of cutting the stem partly through, at any desired length, preferably below a leaf. Insert a couple of toothpicks or any small pieces of wood into the incision to keep it open. Then bind sphagnum moss tightly over, above and below the cut made. Keep it constantly moist and to ensure this keep the stock plants in a warm, moist and shaded house, where they can be freely syringed. Crotons, dracaenas, dieffenbachias and other species of plants are among those which can be readily propagated in this way, especially during the summer months. Just as soon as roots are seen peeping through the moss, cut the tops off and pot them. Give them a compost of equal parts of fibrous loam, leaf mold and sand. Keep in a shaded house until they begin to make new roots, when they should be given more light.

Poinsettias

The latter part of December is the natural blooming period for poinsettias, and they will bloom at that time if the cuttings are put into the sand early enough for the plants to become established and form the bract. That would mean any time up to the latter part of September for putting in the cuttings. Poinsettia cuttings put in the sand at once will make plants 2 to 3½ feet high. For small plants for pans, put in the cuttings about July 20. A good crop of cuttings should now be obtainable. Place in the propagating bench as soon as of sufficient length. Trim them up well and do not crowd in the sand. Keep well shaded for about two weeks, when the shade can be reduced some. In three or four weeks they will be ready to pot into 2 or 2½-inch pots. Give a spray overhead about three times a day during bright weather. When potting use a compost of equal parts of new soil, leaf mold, cow manure and sand.

Reminders

Pot on seedling tuberous begonias and gloxinias to flower in August and September.

It is now time to order early Lilium Harrisii, freesias, Roman hyacinths and paper whites.

Keep on propagating until you have rooted a sufficient number of everything needed, but make sure: faulty guesses are poor consolers.

Cut spikes of outdoor grown candidum lilies and place them in water just before the first buds open. They will expand as well as on the plant and in a cool room keep much better.

Inconsistencies

We learn from our British trade contemporary of the recent ruling that the Kew Bulletin is not an "essential publication" and the resultant order that its issuance be suspended. All horticulturists who know something of the reliability and great value of the information disseminated through the Kew Bulletin will sincerely regret its enforced discontinuance and will be disposed to agree with our contemporary when it says:

"That the available supply of paper is limited we are well aware, but whilst paper can be found for printing all sorts of trashy piffle, that is neither edifying nor useful, and boardings are plastered with appeals to the public to eat less bread, when either its price or its flavor suffice to ensure as little as possible being consumed, it is false economy to suppress a publication which keeps the record of economic botany, and disseminates information of importance and value to many great industries carried on throughout the British Empire."

The same paper also brings up the issue as to the justice of the raising of great quantities of vegetable plants in the public parks for sale at cheap rates to allotment holders, while nurserymen and market gardeners whose business must suffer from this competition are required to contribute their share in taxes to maintain the parks. We have parallel cases here in this country where the exigencies of war are made the justification for many an assault upon the rights of the individual. Neither ethics nor principle get much consideration in war time, for "policy sits above conscience" and the florist, for example, is expected to patriotically submit his business to immolation as a luxury, while he, also patriotically, must respond generously when called upon to "draw his wallet" for the cause.

Push-cart competition

The authorities of Atlantic City and Paterson, N. J., aided and abetted by the store florists, are on the warpath against the flower peddlers. In Atlantic City these include many farmers and truck dealers who are accustomed to do quite a business in wild flowers and garden bloom on the strength of their license to peddle food stuff, a privilege which costs them the nominal sum of thirty-five cents a year. They will hereafter be obliged to put up the full price of a vendor's license, thirty-five dollars, if they continue to sell flowers. In Paterson the grievance of the florists is the old, old one, protesting the hurtful competition of men who pay no rent or taxes and employ no help. The two widely distinct view-points from which the peddling of surplus flowers at cheap prices may be considered are sufficiently apparent, we presume, to all who read HORTICULTURE. The itinerant dealer surely serves a useful and even beneficent purpose as a medium for getting into the hands of the masses the accumulations of otherwise unsalable flowers that are thrown upon the wholesale markets of the large cities from time to time. The regular store florists have neither the facilities nor the disposition to tackle the problem, but still it is manifestly unfair to these legitimate business firms who pay high rents and taxes and employ labor the year round to allow the push-cart man to roam freely about the business section where they are located. The Paterson florists make what appears to be a strong point for their contention in showing that a suitable place has been provided for the push-cart element in the municipal markets so that neither the public who want cheap flowers nor the growers who produce them need to suffer.

A far-reaching measure

On June 12, a bill was introduced in the U. S. Senate by Mr. Fletcher and after its second reading was referred to the Committee on Commerce. The document is entitled "A Bill to define, regulate and punish trading with the enemy, and for other purposes," and is known as the "Trading with the enemy Act." Its provisions if adopted and carried out will practically put an end until the close of the war of the business of the horticultural importers if we interpret it rightly. Our readers who may be interested should write to their respective congressmen for a copy of the bill which is much too comprehensive in its details for any attempt at analysis in the limited space at our disposal. Its effect, if passed in its present form, upon the florist, nursery and seed business cannot fail to be very far-reaching.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

As HORTICULTURE goes to press the American Association of Nurserymen is holding its annual convention in Philadelphia with a very large attendance from all all sections of the country. It is thoroughly a business gathering with a lengthy and comprehensive program to keep it down to work for the three days specified in the call. There was a preliminary session of the executive committee at the Adelphia Hotel on Monday, at which problems of transportation, distribution, legislation and other important matters that concern the trade were discussed. In line with recent suggestions in HORTICULTURE it is declared that the convention will not end until the association has sent a message to the American people that by planting fruit and nut trees even in back yards the food supply of the nation can be vastly increased. Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., has prepared a schedule for publication throughout the country which shows how readily fruit and nut trees can be cultivated in small areas.

LANCASTER COUNTY FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The regular meeting of this club was not a meeting; it was a picnic, held at Hershey, Pa. Mr. Haverstack, manager of the greenhouses and grounds, piloted the visitors over the estate and through the greenhouses and gave them a social half hour in the Italian gardens, after which they enjoyed the many special features of the Hershey Amusement Park. That the club turned out loyally is shown by the fact that there were about 125 in attendance. Three machines came from Chester County bringing Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Marshall, Sr. and Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bernard and Mr. Bernard, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bailey and others. One machine from Harrisburg and Mr. and Mrs. Rupp from Shiremanstown, also T. J. Nolan and Mr. Coperthwaith of the King Construction Co. and Dennis Connor of the Lord & Burnham Co.

At three p. m. the children's games started. One thing worthy of special mention was a blindfold test to reach a certain point sixty feet away, between Chas. B. Herr of Strasburg and Rutter Hess of Gap. Mr. Herr reached the goal with 99 per cent. efficiency.

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

The preliminary schedule of the International Flow Show to be held at Grand Central Palace, New York city, March 14 to 21, 1918, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club has been sent out by Secretary John Young. The usual extensive lists of valuable prizes are offered in both private and commercial sections. Complete schedule will be issued later. For copies of schedule, or information apply to John Young, secretary, 53 West 28th street, New York. Telephone, 4336 Farragut.

AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY

James Boyd.

James Boyd, president-elect of the American Peony Society, is an amateur gardener of the enthusiastic type, which is not now so common as it was thirty or forty years ago before the advent of the auto and the racing yacht. He is a Boston boy and before coming to Philadelphia he probably imbibed some of the horticultural enthusiasm so common to all natives of the Hub. He is now one of Philadelphia's most prominent business men being president of the James Boyd & Bro. Company, mfrs. of fire extinguishing apparatus. His private residence is at Haverford, Pa., where he has lived for some thirty years and become famous near and far for his gardens and grounds. He is an all 'round plantsman, knowing and loving all the beautiful things and has a most interesting and varied collection. Of late years his enthusiasm has been particularly centered on the iris, the lilac and the peony. Of the latter he has no less than 250 named varieties, some of his recent additions costing fifty dollars a root. His exhibit at the recent peony show in Philadelphia was the wonder and admiration of all beholders. I have had the pleasure of Mr. Boyd's acquaintance ever since I came to Philadelphia thirty years ago and he is still the same genial, kindly, simple-souled gentleman and takes a keen delight in showing and talking of his treasures to his neighbors and to visitors from near and far. The Peony Society has honored itself as well as honoring Mr. Boyd by making him its president.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society will open in Boston, Mass., on July 7, 1917. The program of business is as follows:

Saturday, July 7, 3 p. m.—Address of Welcome, by President Saltonstall of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

President Kerr's address. Secretary's report. Treasurer's report.

Reports on the trial grounds at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., by Prof. A. C. Beal.

International Garden Club trials.

Nomination of officers for 1918.

Invitations for the next meeting place.

Election of officers.

Vote on the next meeting place.

Good for the society—Addresses and discussions.

Unfinished business. Adjournment.

The Officers of the Society are as follows:

George W. Kerr, president; Edwin Jenkins, vice-president; William Gray, secretary; William Sim, treasurer.

Executive Committee—The above officers and J. Harrison Dick, W. A. Sperling, John H. Stalford.

Nomenclature and Trials Committee—Prof. A. C. Beal, William N. Craig, George W. Kerr, Leonard Barron.

Trial Grounds—Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Exhibition Committee—James Wheeler, chairman; George W. Kerr, W. A. Sperling, William Sim, John H. Stalford, William Gray.

The Exhibition.

The Exhibition, jointly with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, will be held in Horticultural Hall, Boston. Intending exhibitors should carefully follow the following instructions.

Entries must be made on the entry blanks supplied by the secretary, William Gray, Bellevue avenue, Newport, R. I., and mailed to reach him at Newport on or before Thursday, July 5. Exception—Massachusetts Horticultural Society's classes are under the rules of that society, and entries must be made to William P. Rich, secretary, 300 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, Mass.

Exhibitors will confer a favor by strictly following the above rule. Late entries will be received and space provided for the exhibits at the discretion of the exhibition committee. Exhibitors taking this chance, may address their entries to William Gray, secretary, 300 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, Mass.

Trade exhibitors intending to enter in the American Sweet Pea Society's Gold Medal Class, the Morse Cup Class, or to make a special exhibit should notify James Wheeler, Natlck, Mass., one week previous to the opening of the exhibition, stating the amount of space they intend to fill.

Entry is free to members of the American Sweet Pea Society. Non-members competing in Sections A, B, C. D. must accompany their entries with an entry fee of $2.

All exhibits must be staged by 12 o'clock on Saturday, July 7.

Exhibits sent express prepaid will be taken care of and staged in the absence of the exhibitor, providing entry has been duly made and notice has been given of intention to ship to the secretary. All such exhibits should be marked: American Sweet Pea Society's Exhibition, c/o William Gray, Secretary, Horticultural Hall, Boston, Mass., with the name and address of the sender.

The schedule of prizes is well filled with specials and should bring out a record show. Copies may be had on application to Secretary William Gray.

NEWPORT SHOW POSTPONED.

The first joint exhibition of the Garden Association and the Newport Horticultural Society which was to have been held this week has been postponed till July 3 and 4, and will take place in the Lafayette Theatre. It has been decided to turn over the premium money to the Red Cross this year.

At the June meeting of the Nassau County (N. Y.) Horticultural Society in Glen Cove on Wednesday, June 13th, awards for exhibits were as follows: 1st, Thos. Hendersen, asparagus; Harry Goodband for cauliflower; John W. Everett for gladioli, also cultural certificate for Calceolaria Stewartii. Honorable mention to J. Mastroiana for a collection of vegetables. Geo. Ford was appointed manager of the Rose Show. It was unanimously agreed to give the gross receipts of the Dahlia Show on Oct. 9th and the Chrysanthemum Show Nov. 1st and 2nd to the American Red Cross, all intending exhibitors to compete for prize cards only; no money prizes will be given. Competition for our next meeting, Wednesday, July 11th will be on 12 sprays of sweet peas, white, 12 pink and 12 any other color.

HARRY GOODBAND, Cor. Secy.

NOTES AT DEDHAM.

We notice that it is coming to be more and more the practice of trade visitors in Boston to go out to look over the stock in the Farquhar nurseries at Dedham, and in the season of the blooming of the Regal Lily this also means a stop at Roslindale where Messrs. Farquhar are growing this remarkable lily. One thing which has made the Dedham place so interesting is that there can be seen a full stock of all the Wilson collections from China and these plants are now old enough to show their permanent characteristics.

The ranges of small houses erected last year and the year before are more than fulfilling Mr. Farquhar's hopes. For economy, convenience and the great variety of uses to which they are adapted these plant houses are well worth examining in these times of high fuel cost. A number of these houses are now devoted to conifer propagation by cuttings and by seed. The outlook for the resumption in the immediate future—or ever again—of business with old European sources of conifer supply is not bright and Messrs. Farquhar plan to stock up

Buffalo was allotted $1,500,000 as its quota, in the National Red Cross Campaign; due to the co-operation of business men, the fund approached the $2,000,000 mark. The active work of W. J. Palmer & Son was a feature of the campaign of lively interest. The picture shows the front of one of the Palmer flower shops with girls in Red Cross uniforms, selling flowers for personal wear, in behalf of the Red Cross. The entire proceeds of the sidewalk sales went into the fund.

Bankers and longshoremen alike, wore the carnations from Palmer's, showing that they each did a bit more for the Mercy Campaign. The campaign finished Monday night with a jollification dinner held at Hotel Statler, 400 workers being seated. It was Palmer's intention to give each worker a carnation, so the four nurses were furnished with a good armfull of carnations and passing through the banquet room, they were rewarded with many a one-dollar bill. The final stunt was by Miss Mildred Lowe, Palmer's office girl who mounted a chair and auctioned a bunch of carnations, which brought $150.00. The total collections amounted to $465.66.

heavily on home-grown material in the selection of which the Wilson novelties will hold an important place.

The avenue of overarching Buddleias in the large house which made such a sensation last fall will be repeated this season. A row has been placed on either side of tall standards of B. Farquhari and B. asiatica and it will make a rare picture.

PITTSBURGH.

Julius W. Ludwig is detained from business owing to an abscess on the jaw, resulting from some dental trouble.

Mrs. Rosena Rusille was in town early in the week on a purchasing trip for her sister, Miss Emma DeBorth, the Ellwood City florist.

Theodore P. Langhans, who was appointed to solicit about 150 florists of Pittsburgh and vicinity in the interest of Red Cross Week, is meeting with great success.

Ralph W. Pinner, manager of the landscape department of the A. W. Smith Company, has been awarded the contract for planning and planting a three pool rock garden for J. French Miller at Franklin, Pa.

Dr. Otto E. Jennings, professor of botany in the University of Pittsburgh, and his assistant, Mrs. Jennings, left on last Monday for a general plant survey and the collection of specimens for the Carnegie Institute Museum of which he is curator.

John Greeney of Randolph & McClements' salesforce, recently enlisted and expects to be called shortly for war time service. Miss Eliza McKinley of the same firm, has returned after a two weeks absence owing to the serious illness of her father, W. O. McKinley.

Sergeant H. Milton Griffith, proprietor of the Monesson Flower Shop, will leave this week for service with the First Field Artillery, N. G. P., leaving his business in charge of his brother, Charles F. Griffith. Mr. Griffith who was actively engaged in border warfare last year, is the brother of N. Shelby Griffith, manager of both the Arcadia and the Fox Flower Shops of this city.

The marriage of Samuel McClements, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McClements, to Miss Beulah Munhall, on Wednesday of last week was a beautiful appointed home ceremony. The floral decorations were especially attractive, the bridal table being arranged to form a hollow square in the center of which played a sparkling fountain and decorated with crotons larkspur, iris, peonies and hydrangeas. After a motor trip through Virginia, young Mrs. McClements will live with her mother during Mr. McClements service in the National coast defense into which he recently enlisted.

During Recess

COMMODORE WESTCOTT ENTER-TAINS.

June 22nd Commodore John Westcott, of Philadelphia and Waretown, N. J., entertained a party of his old friends at his farm house and ocean bungalow on Barnegat Bay. His welcome was as cordial and hearty as ever and all hands enjoyed themselves exceedingly. Some of the party had to return home the same day but most of them stayed over for a couple of days more to further enjoy the sailing, the fishing, the ozone and the good company.

Bos'n Trainer and Cruiser McTavish fame was on hand and again distinguished himself this time by presenting the Commodore with a new flag for the front pole of the bungalow—a big and handsome banner which after appropriate speeches and ceremonies was run up and now floats proudly to the breeze.

Later in the proceedings of the day came another flag ceremony—this time for the inside of the bungalow—two handsome silk flags being presented by Comrad Vaughan of Chicago. Robert Craig made the presentation speech in his usual eloquent style and W. F. Gude of Washington—as befitted the National emblem—proudly handed the flowing banners into the Commodore's hands. Their resting place is cross-ways over the door of the dining room where all may salute as they enter.

Coast guard maps officially prepared by the department at Washington were another of the surprises of the occasion. These came from George W. Hess, superintendent of the Botanic Gardens, and now adorn the walls of the main entrance.

The weather was fine, the country round about never looked more green, fresh, blooming and beautiful. The Commodore despite seventy-seven summers and winters never looked better—gay and frisky as a June bride. The new pool table presented last year was well patronized and the pinochle artists were thereby left in peace to enjoy their quieter but no less exciting pastime. The herd of guernseys with the old bull strutting ahead made a fitting background for the maritime delights with the famous old lighthouse looming on the sky line five miles across the bay.

Capt. Stackhouse has a remodeled schooner with a fine new cabin and a new engine. So she isn't a schooner any more but the admirers of the "Geneva" say she has the finest "sea legs" of any boat that ever listened to the groans of the whistling buoy ten miles out to sea. How a groan can be a whistle and how a boat can have legs or how the wind can "back-in" I leave to wiser artists in the language than yours truly. But one thing we escaped this time. There was no snoring in Deutsch as our good friend W. Kleinheinz was not on hand to oblige.

We all had a happy time and wish the Commodore long life, health and happiness.

DENNIS AT WARETOWN.

(A soliloquy—With apologies to Aristophanes, B. C. 444.)

How many things there are to cross and vex me,
My comforts I compute at four precisely.
My griefs and miseries at a hundred thousand,
Let's see what there has happened to re-rejoice me.
With any kind of joyfulness.
Come—in the first place I put down two dollars Which Kifty did dig up again and refunded
Then I rejoiced I loved the ginks for that 'Twas nobly done for the interests of surcease.
But again I suffered cruelly in the next (draw,
A tragical disappointment. There was I Gaping to hear old Watsonus—when the herald Called out "Trainorus bring your winners forward."
Imagine what my feeling must have been
But then Kifttheus coming forward
And singing his hilarious melody,
But then came Bo's'n with his music truly That turned me sick and killed me very nearly
And never in my lifetime, man nor boy
Was I so vexed as at this present moment
To see the chairs at this time of the morning
Quite empty when the assembly should be full
I think and think I don't know what to think,
I draw conclusions and comparisons,
I ponder, I reflect, I pinch my nose;
I'm out three dollars thirty-five,
But wait until tomorrow! Wow!

ST. LOUIS.

The next thing on the program is the annual Florist Club picnic in July at Ramona Park.

One of St. Louis' hustlers is Tom Carr, the Union Market florist. He "gets his" if there is anything in sight.

Joseph Wors, son of C. W. Wors, left St. Louis with the other naval recruits for training quarters at Newport on Monday night, June 25.

Fred Foster has purchased the lease of the greenhouses of John Benson, 4025 Marcus avenue. Frank Bucksart will have charge of the greenhouses. Ferns and bedding stock will be raised.

PHILADELPHIA.

Joseph Hurley, late of Haverford, has moved to Glen Riddle.

The Leo Niessen Co. announce 4.30 p. m. as their closing hour for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bodger, of Los Angeles, Cal., spent the week end at Pine Tree Farm, the country residence of Howard M. Earl, near Doylestown.

Alberger, Meehan, Barrett, Westcott, Lang and others in the trade contributed generously towards the success of the Roxborough flower show on June 16.

The Pennock-Meehan Co. will go on their summer closing schedule, July 2nd. Four p. m. daily; Saturdays one p. m.; until further notice. Closed all day July 4th.

Abram L. Pennock was taken home to Lansdowne from the Presbyterian Hospital Saturday. He had been there three days. His condition as reported today (Tuesday) is still very serious.

John Burton went under an appendicitis operation at St. Timothy's Hospital on the 22nd inst. On the 25th his son George reported everything all right so we are all breathing easier.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club will be held in the Club Room on Tuesday, July 3rd, 1917, at 8 p. m. The discussion at this meeting will be pertaining to the future of the club, in the event of Horticultural Hall being sold. The club room committee will make a report, giving their recommendations upon the above subject.

OBITUARY.

Henry Fischer.

Henry Fischer, a florist of Stratford, Conn., died on Tuesday, June 19.

Mrs. Carrie W. Harrison.

A note has just been received from Rev. C. S. Harrison, York, Neb., announcing the passing away on the morning of June 20, of Mrs. Carrie W. Harrison, after an illness of ten months. She was a native of Quincy, Mass.

James Ivera Donlan.

James I. Donlan died on Wednesday morning, June 27, at five o'clock, at the Manhattan State Hospital on Ward's Island. He had been ill for about a week. Particulars of his illness are lacking except that he was picked up in the street unconscious last Thursday. Mr. Donlan was well known by the florist trade of the greater part of the country. He was unique as a character. As a floral decorator he stood very high. As a writer he was clever, caustic, and witty withall. Much of his time of late years has been taken up with Irish political topics and agitation.

Levi De Freest.

Levi De Freest died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry B. Becker, 110 Pine Woods avenue, Troy, N. Y., on Saturday, June 16. Mr. De Freest was born at Kinderhook, N. Y., eighty years ago. He was a resident of the East Side for forty-eight years. He was a well known florist of this section for a number of years. He was a graduate of Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. He is survived by three children, Mrs. Ada M. Becker of Troy, John M. De Freest of Plant City, Florida, Mrs. Sarah L. Towsley of Williamstown, Mass., and three grandchildren and one great grandchild.

SEED TRADE

SEED TRADE CONVENTION.

The American Seed Trade Association and the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association convened their annual meetings at Detroit, Mich., during the week of June 18th, with headquarters at Hotel Ponchartrain and the largest attendance on record. The address by President Kirby B. White of the American Seed Trade Association appeared in our issue of last week. Secretary-Treasurer C. E. Kendel presented the following financial report:

Treasurer's Report.

Balance on hand	1,527.14
	$4,910.45

Seed Trade Association officers were elected as follows: President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; 1st vice-president, W. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md.; 2nd vice-president, David Burpee, Philadelphia; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.; assistant secretary-treasurer, cum privilegio, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.

The records showed a membership strength of 196, this including three honorary memberships.

Many vital topics came up for discussion and adjustment, some of which were the consideration of trade rules, the submission of controversies of seedsmen to a committee of arbitration, the adoption of a resolution calling for the procurement of reliable crop reports of vegetable seeds, current prices and the dissemination of such information to members through the official bulletins of the association.

One of the most satisfactory things done at the convention from the point of view of every member was the adoption of resolutions by both associations advising the President of the United States and the Secretary of Agriculture that the Associations tendered the government their heartiest support in the present war emergency in the way of men and means, and that the seed trade as a class did not ask for exemption from military duty if called upon.

The social features were extraordinarily interesting and pleasant. D. M. Ferry & Company certainly gave the seed trade an entertainment such as rarely if ever been given at any of the conventions. The entertainment consisted of receptions at the homes of Len Bowen, president of D. M. Ferry & Co., and Capt. Ferry, treasurer of D. M. Ferry & Co.; a boat ride on the lake with a splendid banquet on board, music, addresses and ample opportunity for members of the seed trade to visit with each other. Another form of entertainment was an automobile ride around the city and its suburbs. The last day of the convention was taken up by a visit of the association to the seed trial farms of D. M. Ferry & Co., at Oakview, twenty-two miles from Detroit. Special cars were provided. A unique basket lunch with all the "trimmings," music, fancy dancing by artists, and other specialties were thoroughly enjoyed. Automobiles were at the disposal of members to go all over the seven-hundred-acre farm; in fact everything was done for the entertainment and interest of the guests. All the arrangements for this day were under the charge of Theodore Cobb, representative of D. M. Ferry & Co.

The Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers re-elected their former officers, viz: President, A. E. Reynolds, Crawfordsville, Ind.; vice-president, C. C. Masie, Minneapolis, Minn.; secretary-treasurer, Wm. R. Jossman, Detroit, Mich.; counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston.

The Caughey-Jossman Company entertained the members of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association one evening at Lakeside Inn with a dinner and a trolley car ride in a very happy manner. The event was delightful and enjoyed to the limit. An invitation was extended to meet at Louisville, Ky., next year.

F. W. BOLGIANO.

F. W. Bolgiano, president-elect of the American Seed Trade Association started in business at the age of 17 as a florist at Waverly, Baltimore, Co., Md. After two years he entered the establishment of J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md., where he remained five years. He then opened a business place in Washington, D. C., where he conducted a retail seed and florist business, numbering among his patrons at various times, three Vice-Presidents, a vast number of Senators and Congressmen and society leaders, also Chief Justice Fuller and family whom he remembers as one of the great men of the times.

In 1899 his business in the seed line became so large that he retired from the florist part of it and gave his entire time to the seed business, which has steadily grown until at this time it is large and prosperous. He is best known to the trade for the part taken by him in the fight on the first Mann's Pure Seed Law. But for his prompt action it is likely the bill would have been reported for the third reading in the House.

Mr. Bolgiano has been a member of the American Seed Trade Association since 1894 and has been a hard worker, always preferring the interests of the Association beyond all others. His local interests are large and varied, being an executive director in three banks. Numbering among other companies in which he holds an active directorship are an ice cream plant, a cold storage and produce business, an insurance business, a large manufacturing business, and having also a large interest in farming land and farming in his own right. Another interest which he holds very dear to his heart is a Sunday school class of about 150 men, who receive his personal instruction almost every Sunday during the year.

His busy day begins at 5 a. m. and is only thorough when he retires at night. He is a member of the Country Club also the Commercial Club, of Washington, where he delights to entertain the members of the trade when in the city. Being a member of the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce, he is in constant touch with the activities of the city. Next to the membership in the American Seed Trade Association, he values his membership in the Rotary Club, in which association he has been an officer.

In 1910 Mr. Bolgiano built a large five-story office and sales building. He has just broken ground for a large warehouse fifty by one hundred and fifty feet. He is married and has one boy, Charles W. Bolgiano, whom he is educating at Cornell with a view of entering into the business. His boy makes yearly trips to the growing points of the West to become familiar with the types and kinds of vegetables, the seeds of which he expects to handle when he enters the business.

In 1914 Mr. Bolgiano organized his business into a corporation under the name of F. W. Bolgiano and Co., Inc.

ture that certain shipments of beans from the Orient known as Burma or Rangoon beans have entered this country from Canada. They closely resemble the ordinary navy bean in appearance but can be distinguished by their light yellowish color and the fine distinct radiating lines passing out from the hilum or eye.

They are pole beans of the Lima type and not suitable for planting in this country, since they are of tropical origin and will not mature in the bean growing states. They are not fit for human food, since they yield hydrocyanic acid in amounts which may be dangerous to the health of the people of the United States.

The port and border laboratories of the Bureau of Chemistry are under instructions to make examinations of all shipments of such beans offered for entry, and to effect their detention.

Governing the Importation of Potatoes into the United States permits, free of any restrictions whatsoever under the plant quarantine act of August 20, 1912, the importation of potatoes from the Dominion of Canada and Bermuda into the United States or any of its Territories or Districts, effective on and after July 1, 1917.

been put over to July 5.

Williamsport, Pa.—The Garden Club gave a very interesting peony show at the store of the Williamsport Floral
Co. on June 15.

West Fitchburg, Mass.—Alfred Woollacott has been made manager of the flower store, recently purchased by Ritter, the florist.

Bernardsville, N. J.—S. H. Townsend, gardener for F. Dryden, is down with scarlet fever. He is doing very well and hopes to resume work about
July 4.

Eastport, Me.—Sidney A. Farris, florists, has had his opening in his new quarters on Washington street. He distributed several hundred roses among lady visitors.

Toronto, Ont.—The exhibition committee of the Ontario Rose Society has decided to hold the 1917 rose exhibition in the Foresters' Hall on College street during the first week of July.

Marblehead, Mass.—Store, office and greenhouses of J. B. Reynolds were flooded with water on Sunday, June 17. The cause assigned was the filling up of an old waterway which formerly drained the property. The boiler pit was full and had it happened in cold weather the loss would have been heavy.

Yonkers, N. Y.—The men connected with the New York Floral company held a dinner at the Square Hotel, June 18, to celebrate the opening of a new store in Manor House Square.
Those present were Gus Massas and Arthur Pulas, the proprietors; John

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Tom Sullivan, of Geo. B. Hart's, has gone on a farm for the summer on account of ill health.

J. B. Keller had a very attractive window with a large cross of red carnations in a huge gilt frame. The foreground of the window was decorated with oriental poppies and red carnations.

The Florists' Association has gone on record as favoring means to keep dogs and thieves from gardens. It is suggested that owners of canines co-operate with garden owners in seeing that their pets do not run loose in neighborhoods where there are gardens.

George Boucher had the decorations for the Red Cross dinner at Convention Hall, June 18th. Fifty tables were in use, the center table the shape of a cross with a fountain in the center banked in red roses. The hall was trimmed with wild Huckleberry branches throughout.

A Peony Show will be held at Convention, Hall June 29th and 30th, under the joint auspices of the Florists' Association and the Red Cross Society and the net proceeds will be turned over to the latter organization. Band concerts and other entertainments will be given. The show will be one of the most brilliant ever staged here. Several large out-of-town growers will exhibit and there will be a large display by the Department of Parks.

BUFFALO.

The big social event of the week in florist circles was the marriage of Mildred Lucille, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Palmer, and Mr. Raymond P. Fowler. The floral decorations were so exceptional that we will let the local newspaper reporter describe them, as follows:

The bridal party descended the stairway and advanced through a bower of June flowers to the conservatory, where the ceremony was solemnized. Snowballs and graceful bridal wreath garlanded the stairway and were caught in big clusters to the newel posts. The flowers curtained the large hall and formed an arch at the entrance to the conservatory. Orchid plants hung from the ceiling, the walls were curtained with smilax and everywhere were the snowy clusters of bowers. A tulle veil fastened with orange blossoms fell to the hem of the Bride's court train and she carried camellias and lilies of the valley showered. The maid of honor carried Ophelia roses and white lilacs. There were two little flower girls, carrying swagger sticks tied with sweetheart roses and showered with ribbon. June flowers in a profusion of coloring adorned the living room, larkspur, delphinium, gladioli and flowering shrubs. The bridal table was adorned with June flowers in the softer French tints in a large-handled basket in the center and individual holders down the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Fowler have left for a motor trip to the Berkshires. Mr. Fowler sails for France the last of the month with the American ambulance corps.

Houston, Tex.—The Cotney Floral Co., has been sold to the Misses Atwood and Fagan.

BOSTON.

The Boston Flower Exchange bought a $1,000 Liberty Bond.

Young cabbage plants and pot-grown strawberries are in very active demand here at the present time.

Much interest attaches to the notable exhibition of sweet peas scheduled for July 7 and 8 at Horticultural Hall under the auspices of the American Sweet Pea Society and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

Two or three sultry days last week brought out the rhododendrons and other belated spring shrubbery and also on account of their softness due to long continued moist weather, finished them up in ruthless double-quick time.

The peony show at Horticultural Hall, Saturday, June 30, and Sunday, July 1, promises to be a gorgeous affair. Among the notable exhibits will be that of E. J. Shaylor, which will comprise a lot of seedlings of sensational merit.

Holm Lea, the magnificent Brookline estate of Prof. Charles S. Sargent, with its wonderful collection of rare and beautiful plants and shrubs, was thrown open free to the public all day last Sunday. The estate comprises one hundred and eighty acres.

Bedding plant trade is reported generally in this part of the country as having fallen off materially from the average of former years. Of geraniums there is a large overstock including the most popular varieties, of which there are seldom too many and last year there was a great scarcity.

All South Boston is interested in the coming marriage of Martin E. Tuohy, the well known florist of West Broadway, who on account of his extreme popularity has often been referred to as "The Mayor of South Boston," and Miss Alice O'Brien, night chief operator of the Cambridge telephone exchange, which takes place Saturday, June 30, at St. Mary's church, Cambridge.

A correspondent in New York City writes: "I had the privilege of seeing different views of the recent Boston show in Proctor's. This was certainly good publicity. The pictures were very fine. It makes me think of the old days when, if anyone suggested that pictures of a flower show would be shown in a theatre, they would have been confined in the padded cell. I am not exaggerating when I say that these pictures were magnificent."

CHICAGO.

John Walsh of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association left on Saturday for two weeks on a farm.

At the Alpha Floral Co.'s a very appropriate window display this week includes a bride and groom, the former carrying a shower bouquet of lily of the valley.

Walter Young, of C. Young & Sons, St. Louis, Mo., was in Chicago last week, where he was successful in passing the examination for the aviation corps.

At the Schiller Floral Gift Shop a very neat window is arranged with a background of flags. The vases of flowers on display rest upon a carpet of moss which gives a woodsy effect.

The sale of the peonies from the summer home of Albert E. Cook, at Hinsdale, Ill., is taking place at the Red Cross rooms and the proceeds are used for that society. Other flowers have also been contributed.

Schiller's advertising card has been criticized by State's Attorney Hoyne, who has started a campaign against using the American flag for advertising purposes. A state statute provides for a fine of from $10 to $100 or imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or both.

A letter from Rollo Mueller, who recently left Frank Oechslein's, where for a year he has been adding practical experience to his training in the floricultural department of the University of Illinois, says he returned to his home in Wichita, Kas., and has enlisted with the Kansas artillery, to be called into Federal service August 5. Mr. Mueller also announces a life enlistment on the 29th of June when he will be married to Miss McHenry of the same city. Mr. Mueller gives promise of being an honor to the florists profession and declined a very good business opportunity that he might serve his country.

The competition of the department stores, during the summer months particularly, is a topic of local interest and some very good arguments are being heard. The wholesalers as a body have taken no steps because many of them are also growers and they see the subject from two angles. That a great quantity of stock is cleared from the market at these sales needs no telling, nor that it is sold to the big stores cheaper than a florist can buy it in small quantities, but that it tends to cultivate a love of flowers or the habit of buying them, does not seem to the writer at all sure to follow, for the flowers are so often worthless before they are in the hands of the customers, because of the way they are handled on the counters.

NEW YORK.

Chairman Charles Knight says there will be a gorgeous display of gladioli at the July meeting of the New York Florists' Club.

Alfred Fischer, has assumed charge of the florist business conducted by his father, Charles Fischer, who died recently. The greenhouses are located on Prospect near Seventeenth street, Winfield, L. I.

Next Sunday, July 1, will see the inauguration of the all-day Sunday closing by the wholesale florist trade. It is a sane and in all respects a commendable innovation which should have gone into effect long ago.

Secretary Young says that from all accounts reported to his office by traveling men, there will be a splendid S. A. F. convention attendance from all sections of the country and he is satisfied that there will be a very creditable display in the trade exhibit section.

The schedule committee of the National Flower Show met at the office of Secretary John Young last Saturday. Present, Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa., and the Secretary. The result of their deliberations will soon appear in the issuance of a second preliminary schedule.

In the Circuit Court on June 19, the suit of Frederick Meerbott, a Secaucus florist, to recover $10,000 from the Public Service Gas Company, resulted in the jury in the case bringing in a verdict for six cents for the plaintiff. Meerbott testified that gas leaking from the pipes of the defendant company near his hothouses had injured a large quantity of his plants, and his attempts to grow sweet peas in particular had been failures. Edwin R. Smith appeared for the florist, and Howard MacSherry represented the defendant company.

Frank Friedley of The Friedley Company recently journeyed to Mt. Gilead, Ohio, and left with the Mt. Gilead Pottery Company, a contract for their entire stock of pots, eight or ten carloads in all.

The next regular meeting of the Cleveland Florists' Club will be held on Monday evening, July 2, in the Club Room at the Hollenden Hotel. H. P. Merrick of Lord & Burnham Co., will give a talk on Scientific Greenhouse Planning and Construction, illustrated by numerous stereopticon views.

Knoble Brothers, following their custom of several years past, have taken the entire output of peonies from the Siether Peony Farm. Owing to favorable weather conditions, they have been of exceptional excellence. With the blooming season now at its height, the peony farm is a glorious sight, and worthy of a long jaunt to behold.

The interest stimulated by the talk on orchids given by Joseph Manda at the last meeting of the Florists' Club will result in their more extensive growing upon private estates of Cleveland and vicinity. The talk was enthusiastically received by the members of the Horticultural Society and Garden Clubs who attended at the invitation of the Florists' Club. Their ardor was heartily shared by the large representation of private superintendents and gardeners who form a considerable proportion of the membership of the Florists' Club. Mr. Manda has rendered a distinct service to the horticultural interests of Cleveland by impressing upon greenhouse owners the intense enjoyment which may be derived from the culture of orchids, especially in view of his assurances that the difficulties attendant upon their successful growing have been greatly exaggerated.

Business and recreation were happily combined in a trip to Painesville recently, participated in by Messrs. Brown, McLaughlin and Bartels of the J. M. Gasser Co., and Mr. Darnell, formerly manager of that company. The Corrigan country estate, famed for the beauty of its location and its attractive landscape features was an interesting digression from the main trip. The party was impressed with both the personality and evident capabilities of Mr. Hamilton, the new superintendent who has succeeded Mr. Bause.

Martin Kohankie's nursery was found in its usual high degree of cultivation. Mr. Kohankie, through keeping everlastingly at it, has brought his soil to a state where it is as mellow as ashes. The visitors unanimously voted that his middle name should be "Cultivate."

Merkel Brothers were as busy as ever. Their range of glass was greatly increased in area last year.

A pedometer would have had to work over time to register the mileage covered at the Storrs & Harrison nursery, through which the visitors were conducted by Mr. Schumacher and ex-City Forester John Boddy. Dinner was served at the Willoughby Hotel, F. C. W. Brown acting as host.

S. N. Pentecost, president of the Cleveland Florists' Club, is about to discontinue, temporarily at least, the flower growing industry, of which he has been proprietor for the last twenty-five years and will take a well deserved recreation period of two years. The probabilities are that he will then erect a modern range of glass upon his farm at Willoughby. The genuineness of Mr. Pentecost's personality, and the high business standard to which he has always adhered, have earned for him a host of friends who extend to him their most sincere wishes for a vacation time which will prove beneficial and thoroughly enjoyable.

Mr. Pentecost's greenhouse property was at the time of the inception of the business, located well into the suburbs of Cleveland but is now too valuable to retain for greenhouse purposes. It has, therefore, been sold and the greenhouses are to be removed at an early date. Much of the material has been purchased by A. C. Fox, treasurer of the Florists' Club, whose store is at St. Clair avenue and 105th street. Mr. Fox proposes to re-erect the greenhouses upon his farm at Richfield. It is his intention to develop this farm into a nursery for trees, shrubs, and perennials. The greenhouses will enable him to supply the continually increasing demand of his store for plants and flowers.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Among the appointments made by President Wilson of members of the various boards to determine all questions of exemption under the conscription law, is the name of Adolph Gude. Mr. Gude has been assigned to the district in Anacostia.

There is a vacancy in the position of assistant in poisonous plant investigations, male, in the Bureau of Animal Industry; salary $1,440 per annum. Applicants should apply for Form 1312, stating the title of the examination desired, to the Civil Service Commission in Washington. The examination will be held on July 25.

R. Lloyd Jenkins, president of the Florists' Club, on Tuesday of last week deserted the ranks of the jolly bachelors and became a benedict, taking as his bride Miss Opie Lois Allen. While it was pretty generally surmised that Mr. Jenkins was going to take this fateful step, because of the fact that he was building a fine new house near the greenhouses in Suitland, Md., in the operation of which he is connected with his father in the firm of C. L. Jenkins & Son, the announcement that the knot has been tied came as a bit of a surprise.

Flower Market Reports

BOSTON Evidence of the waning season is seen in the wholesale flower section where activity is light and a distinct falling off in amount of transactions is noted as compared with last week. The great variety of material in sight heretofore is materially reduced and the main contents of the markets comprise roses, carnations, lilies and peonies, the latter being at last the native crop. Carnations are very fine but are hopelessly overstocked, particularly in the white varieties. Sweet peas are at low ebb, between the last of the winter crop and the first of the outdoor product. Peonies are of superb quality but like everything else they bring very small returns.

Very satisfactory conditions have prevailed during the past week, when the month of roses with its commencements and weddings was nearing a close. Business is generally reported to be very good and cool weather has given the florist some excellent stock to work with. Roses may be said to be the real backbone of the business now, as they have been for some time. With the coming of peonies they have usually fallen to second place but this year roses have held first. Local peonies are now at their height and good ones are selling at a moderate price, while the grower who has been unsuccessful in producing good flowers will have very small returns. Carnations are not moving at all well, a situation which unfortunately is not new and many of the carnation growers are getting discouraged. Iris is nearing its close. Many lilies are seen and most of them are moved with little loss. The number of kinds of miscellaneous flowers is narrowing down, calendulas, pansies, and marguerites being most in evidence this week.

CLEVELAND Although the peonies of northern Ohio are of an unusual quality, they have been so retarded by the lateness of the season that the usual supply for Commencement exercises was not available. In addition to the great quantity now on the market, gladioli and outdoor Spanish iris are plentiful, with roses and carnations coming in with the rapidity which is to be expected at this time of year.

The absence of a marked demand for any one thing in particular makes a dull market and that is the condition this week. School closing is playing a very trifling part this year, less than usual. There is a plenteous supply of roses, carnations, outdoor stock and warm weather. To particularize, carnations are firmer in price than last week and Beauties because of a falling off in quantity and their better keeping qualities are doing fairly well. The smaller roses are coming in freely and are showing the effect of summer weather. Mrs. Russell has the lead as a seller, when good. All of the red roses blow out so quickly that they are neglected. Outdoor "Jacks" have been in heavy supply but are now on the wane. Lily of the valley is in limited supply and holds up in price. Cattleyas—when choice—generally find buyers at good figures. There is no scarcity of lilies and it is not possible to clean them up every day. Cold storage peonies are very much in evidence and although the quality of these flowers is very fine the prices realized are very low. The street and the business reminds one of a day in August.

PHILADELPHIA The market here is without special feature. If anything business has fallen off a little. Stocks are plentiful and quality holds up very well in most things. Roses are very good, especially Beauties, Hadleys and Russells. White roses have been rather on the scarce side. Carnations are still holding their own pretty well. There are plenty of good lilies. Sweet peas have suffered a bit from the warm weather being rather soft and not lasting well. Orchids are plentiful and good and moving fairly well at moderate prices. Lily of the valley is selling all right but the quality is nothing to brag about.

The demand for good flowers which according to season, should be about over, continues, although it may slow up and the bottom fall out, as it were, any day. Peonies are about gone, but there are plenty of good roses, including American Beauties. Green stuff is coming in more plentifully than earlier in the season.

Business has been somewhat better this week. Carnations are shortening up considerably; they are becoming smaller and do not bring such good figures. Reds are hard to move but there is a steady sale of good white and pink varieties. Roses are meeting about all demands but they are less plentiful. Ophelias are about as popular as any but good reds sell well. Outdoor larkspur and gailardias are coming in and more satisfactorily as do also peonies, especially the finer varieties, lemon lily and Canterbury bells. Bedding stock lags and many growers are pretty well stocked up with it.

Trade has come to a complete standstill. Stock is fast showing the effects of hot weather. Carnations, especially Pink Enchantress, are poor and unsaleable. Roses hold up fairly well in quality, Ophelia opening up too quickly. Carnations are in poor demand. Sweet peas outdoors are shortening up on stem and another week will see a shortage. New hardy ferns are now starting to come in.

The market will be clear of lily of the valley July 1. There is a marked shortage of pips and the production of valley has stopped. Business is keeping up very well. The presence of the several foreign delegations is bringing considerable business to the stores in the way of dinner decorations. There is the usual run of June weddings and the school decorations this year have been, for the most part, very satisfactory. Roses continue good and there is a marked demand for Russells. Shawyers are in bad shape because of mildew. Carnations, although small, are very good. Orchids are plentiful, and in good demand. There is no demand for peonies.

Every Reader of "Horticulture" Needs

DR. L. H. BAILEY'S BRAND NEW Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture

Six large quarto volumes. More than 3,600 pages. 24 full page exquisite color plates. 96 beautiful full page halftones. More than 4,000 text engravings. 500 Collaborators. Approximately 4,000 genera, 20,000 species and 10,000 plant names.

THE New Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture has been freshly written in the light of the most recent research and experience. It is the fullest, the newest, the most authoritative of all works of its kind and constitutes the most conscientious attempt that has ever been made to compress the whole story of our horticultural thought, learning and achievement into one set of books. It is both an Encyclopedia and a Manual.

A Few of the Many Important New Features

Key to Identification of Plants This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

Synopsis of Plant Kingdom This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders, and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters; the number of genera and species and the ranges; a list of the important genera; brief statements in regard to the useful plants; and diagrammatic illustrations.

Illustrations There are 24 colored plates; 96 full page halftones; and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

The Glossary This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works. It comprises botanical and horticultural terms with brief definitions.

Translation and Pronunciation of Latin Names In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

Class Articles Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling. Here are some of the titles of these articles: Ants; Autumn Gardening; Bedding; Diseases; Drainage; Floral Designs; Formal Gardening; Hotbeds and Coldframes; Insects; Landscape Gardening; Lawn Planting; Orchards; Rock Gardening; Subtropical Gardening; Tools and Implements; Village Improvements; Window Boxes, etc.

General Index The final volume contains a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind.

The complete set of six volumes, bound in decorated buckram, will be delivered to you for only $3 down and $3 a month for 11 months, until the full amount of $36 has been paid. Cash price $35.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., 466 W. Erie St., ChicagoTHE COAL SITUATION.

Document No. 183, House of Representatives, is a letter from the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission transmitting report on the anthracite and bituminous coal situation and the relation of rail and water transportation to the present fuel problem. It is a document of 29 pages. The present conditions in the anthracite industry and the outlook for anthracite, the impossibility of solving the anthracite problem without action of Congress that will at the same time cure the present evil conditions in the bituminous industry and in transportation, anthracite royalties, the panic conditions and prices in the anthracite trade last fall and winter, the response to the question of the justification of the price increases in May, 1916, in relation to the wage agreement of that date, and the bituminous coal situation these are the principal subjects discussed.

In view of the findings the commission recommends:

First. That the production and distribution of coal and coke be conducted through a pool in the hands of a Government agency; that the producers of various grades of fuel be paid their full cost of production plus a uniform profit per ton (with due allowance for quality of product and efficiency of service).

Second. That the transportation agencies of the United States, both rail and water, be similarly pooled and operated on Government account, under the direction of the President, and that all such means of transportation be operated as a unit, the owning corporations being paid a just and fair compensation which would cover normal net profit, upkeep, and betterments.

Chairman Wm. J. Harris agrees with the recommendations but does not concur with the proposition to pool the transportation agencies on Government account but recommends that during the war the President be authorized to order rail and water transportation agencies to give preference to shipment of coal, coke, and other commodities in the order of their importance to the public welfare.

NEWS NOTES.

Sidney, Ohio—Among the heavy losers in the severe storm of June 2 was C. L. Osborne whose greenhouses were wrecked by hail.

Catskill, N. Y.—An excellent flower show was held here on Wednesday, June 27. Ribbon awards were made to a large number of exhibitors. The affair was managed by the Village Improvement Society.

Newark, N. J.—The June flower show of the Prudential Insurance Company was held on June 21 in the assembly room of their building. Forty-seven prizes were awarded in eighteen classes. The exhibit opened at 11 o'clock, continuing until 5 in the afternoon. The Prudential orchestra gave "floral music," the program consisting of ten musical numbers depicting the life of a rose, beginning with "Budding Roses," and ending with "The Last Rose of Summer."

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Certain changes in service regulations at printing office make it necessary that HORTICULTURE'S forms close several hours earlier than heretofore. Important copy arriving on first mail Thursdays can at times be cared for, but correspondents should plan to get matter to this office by Wednesday hereafter.

Glimpse of the site with posts laid out ready for the first house.

A week later the frame of the first house was up.

"Business as Usual" Says the Duckham-Pierson Co.

IF you haven't happened to read that little write-up of the new Duckham-Pierson rose range at Madison, N. J., that appeared in last week's Exchange, go straight away and do that very thing.

Do it, whether you are interested in the range or not. Do it, because it contains some good sound business sense that you will appreciate.

It's either sense or patriotism, am not sure which. Just now, however, one means the other.

In case you don't look it up, you may like to know a few things about this big rose range that with earnest faith in the country and a prosperity that's bound to be, this company is building at Madison, N. J.

There are 5 Iron Frame Houses and a fine big power plant.

Five houses are being put up now, and the land

This shows our quick shifting scaffold for ridge work.

By looking sharp, you can just see the ridge truss running from rafter to rafter. It amply strengthens it without adding to the shade.

all ready for another later.

Each house is 61 feet wide and 500 feet long, and of the same construction and long roof slope to the south as the last Coddington houses at Murray Hill.

The frame of the first house went up in a week.

Materials were delivered daily by auto trucks from our Elizabeth factory, so this pace could be kept up for the five.

The main rafter and trussing members are all hot riveted together at the factory, so they can be quickly hustled up and all bolted into place in no more time than it used to take to put up just a rafter.

Every once in a while as this big range progresses, we will tell you about it. In the meantime, don't forget that we go anywhere for business—or to talk business.
